Advertising Cheats ! ! !

'It has become so common to write the beginning of an article, in an elegant, interesting manner,

'Then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such.

'And simply call attention to Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,'

'To induce people

'To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else.'

'THE REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,

'Religious and secular, is

'Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines

'There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness

'And ability

'In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.'

Did She Die ?

'No

'She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years'

'The doctors doing her no good ;'

'And at last was cured by Hop Bitters the papers say so much about.'

'Indeed ! Indeed !

'How thankful we should be for that medicine.'

A Daughter's Misery.

'Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery,

'From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility,

'Under the care of the best physicians

Who gave her disease various names,

'But no relief,

'And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters that we had shunned for years before using it.'
—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

'My daughters say :

'How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters.'

'He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable'

'And we are so glad that he used your Bitters.' A LADY OF UTICA, N. Y.

HOARSENESS AND FAILURE of voice from congestion of the vocal cords follicular disease of the fauces, or minister's sore throat, are often the result of bronchial troubles, extending up the trachea and larynx, affecting the whole mucous tract of the air passages. These diseases are the outcome or expression of nerve debility and blood impoverishment from overworking the system and excessive use of the organs involved. Here constitutional treatment is required to restore nutrition and nerve power, and WHEELER'S Phosphates and Calisaya has been successfully used by singers and public speakers.

ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL.

TIPPLING PLACES.

MILES OF LONDON SALOONS—HOW THE TRAFFIC IS CARRIED ON.

LOUISVILLE, April 26.—A London letter to the Courier Journal:—If the public drinking places of England were placed side by side in a straight line they would extend a distance of 700 miles. In describing these places we must first classify them. Some are licensed to sell all kinds of intoxicating beverages; some to sell beer and wine, and some to sell only beer. They differ, also, in point of respectability.

The character of these places is determined largely by the class of people who patronize them. Some are as low as perdition itself; others are exceptionally well conducted, as matters go here, no one need be ashamed to visit them. There are places in town where the soberest man could not get more than one glass of liquor before dinner, nor more than two at any time.

At many others—most others, I may say—the only limit is the applicant's ability to pay for what he demands, or to stand up and drink in. On the whole, however, the publicans keep the law. The hours of closing are rigidly observed every where, and there is no doubt that parliament concludes to shut them up altogether on the Sabbath day, shut up they will be, back, front and all around, without a single exception in the whole land.

The country tavern is rated as very respectable. Often the keeper of it is a church warden. In the the tap room honest Hodge regales himself from a foaming tankard, looking, with his long pipe and ruddy contenance, the very picture of health and contentment. Usually there are several other drinking rooms of a better class. In these the 'squire sits down to chat with his tenants and the traveller to refresh himself for his further journey. Occasionally, too, the country persons drops in.

These county inns are the village hotels. the accomodations are plain enough, but very clean, very comfortable and very cheap. Bed and breakfast will seldom cost more than 50 cents, and the landlord and his wife will make you feel so much at home that you will be sorry when the time comes to leave. You get at their places the maximum of real refreshment at the minimum of cost, with no degrading associations and without being compelled to patronize the bar.

The taverns in town and city are conducted differently. You must drink there and way well for it. But the traveller can avoid these if he likes, for in any place of any size, lodging can be procured at private houses, while in the largest centers you will find hotels very similar to those in our own country. The ordinary city tavern clearly indicates on the outside what is carried on within. There is no attempt at concealment. On the contrary, windows and doors are covered with advertisements of the different drinks, and by a study of the exterior you find the different compartments into which the place is divided.

On one door, the most conspicuous, you will read the announcement, "Public Bar" This will lead you into the part where the common herd go and where the lowest prices prevail. Another door will admit you to the "Private Bar." Here drinks are served only by the glass and the charges are a little higher. Still another door will lead you to what is called the "Luncheon Bar," where you can get a snack of sausage or bread and cheese as an accompaniment to your drink and where, as you stand eating and imbibing, your features will be hidden from customer in other parts of the place, even from those waiting on you, by a screen of ground glass placed at a proper height above the counter for that express purpose. All these compartments will be in one room, divided from each other by wooden partitions, which extend from the front of the counter to the outer wall. Behind the bar there is no division. This part is usually arranged with great taste, the glasses, bottles and other ornaments standing against a mirror which usually stretches the full length of the place, presenting after gas light a red brilliant appearance. Such is an ordinary English drinking saloon, the kind one finds scattered all over London, within a few hundred steps of each other. There are other kinds of course—some large and magnificent, combining with the regular bar, cafe, buffet, dining-rooms, &c. The Criterion is one of these. Another, just finished, is the Holborn restaurant. This building is nearly all of pure marble, furnished in regular style—really the most "swell" place in London. Its construction and fitting cost $600,000, and there are others in the metropolis not much behind this in either costliness or sumptuousness.

VERY REMARKABLE RECOVERY.

Mr. Geo. V. Willing, of manchester, Mich., writes: 'My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two Bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved that she is able now to do her own work.'

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testamonials attest their curative powers. Only fifty cents a bot at R. Templeton's.

"Twenty-four years experience, says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wasted [illegible], drain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure See adv't in another column

SHALL WE LET THE CHILD DIE ?

A hard-hearted political economist, looking at a pale and puny child feebly gasping as it lies upon a pillow, says that the child might as well die. It is so weak and poor that its life will never be worth much anyhow. There are already a good many people in the world who are of not much account anyhow. And what's the use of adding to their number another weakling, who has but slender chance of ever amounting to anything?

Now ask that child's mother what she thinks about letting the child die. About this time the hard political economist had better get out of the way. Let my child die? No! No! As long as there is a remedy to be found that will save that child, the child shall not die! I'll spend my last dollar to save the child!' Well try a bottle of Shaker's Blood Syrup on that child. See the poor fellow pick up strength. He revives. He will live. Hosts of other children hade been brought almost from death to healthy life by The Shaker Blood Syrup. Your druggist sells it.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the error and indiscretion of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood &c., I will send a receipt, that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN Station D, New York City. d&w

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

DYNAMITE IN TORONTO.

An exclamation of horror passed over the country yesterday when it was known that dynamite fiends had placed the deadly explosive beneath the apartments of the Speaker of the Legislature and of the Commissioner of Crown Lands. How long it had been there cannot be learned but from the fact that the Speaker's apartments are almost entirely unoccupied during the recess it is to be presumed the explosive was placed in position before or while the House was in session. It is certainly a most extraordinary and alarming discovery. It proves that there are disciples of O'Donovan Rossa or emissaries of his in this country insane enough to fancy that some object good in their eyes is accomplished by such dastardly outrages. Fortunately whatever plans were laid miscarried and the country spared the calamity which would have befallen it had one of the leading members of the Cabinet fallen a victim to the criminal design. It is useless to expect that the dynamiters will be discovered.

DISALLOWANCE AGAIN.

The following appeared in an extra of the Gazette issued yesterday :—

"Whereas, the Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Ontario, with the consent of the Legislative Assembly of that Province, did on the 25th day of March 1884, pass an act intitled, 'An Act respecting license duties ;' "And whereas the said Act has been laid before the Governor-General-in-Council, together with a report from the Minister of Justice recommending that the said Act should be disallowed ; His Excellency the Governor-General has thereupon this day been pleased, by and with the advice of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada, to declare the disallowance of said Act, and the same is disallowed accordingly, whereof the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Ontario and all other persons whom it may concern are to take notice and govern themselves accordingly."

Perhaps the best evidence we can furnish that this last exercise of the veto power is unjust arbitrary and unconstitutional is to be found in the following inspired utterance of the Ottawa correspondent of the Mail :—

"That the License Fee Act is WITHIN THE COMPETENCY OF THE LOCAL LEGISLATURE NO ONE WILL DENY, so far as it purported to provide for the raising of revenue for provincial purposes."

From a party point of view we are not sorry that Sir John Macdonald has once more seen fit to abuse his position and trample on Provincial rights. The people must see where it will eventually lead unless at once stamped with public disapprobation.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

A FLOOD OF ABUSE.

With the best intentions in the world, Mr. Davin has only succeeded in making Regina and its newspaper the laughing stock of Canada.—Montreal Herald.

A DAY OF RECKONING.

Ottawa Government has not yet reached the zero of unpopularity. A Ministry that in a single session can throw $80,000,000 of borrowed money among a poor and struggling people is bound to command success for a while, though deserving of the sternest reprobation. But it is evident that Sir John's Cabinet is somewhat demoralized.—Winnipeg Sun.

A SECOND CASBIANCA.

Another office-holder has resigned. He was postmaster of the town of Nutt, New Mexico, and when the town disappeared from the face of nature, as western towns are wont to do, he resigned and notified the department that he and the star of empire had decided to move on toward the setting sun. To his credit be it recorded, however that he did not give up his office until all but him had fled.—Boston Globe.

PERIODIDAL PUBLICATIONS.

Those who very properly condemn the flash, demoralizing literature so common to an age of fast printing presses should encourage pure, wholesome reading. This desideratum may be had in "Electra," a monthly magazine whose motto is "the good, the true, and the beautiful." It would be a mistake to suppose that this magazine is not entertaining as well, for its large success in the first year of publication furnishes abundant proof of its attractiveness. [Electra, Courier Journal Buildings, Louisville, Ky., ; $2 a year.]

"Our Little Ones" for May profusely illustrated is a vehicle through which the very young can be amused and instructed. The Russel Pub, Co., 36 Bloomfield St., Boston ; $1.50 per annum.

The Budget Insurance Journal for April contains much valuable matter and many items interesting to insurance men. The first instalment of the evidence in the Citizens suit for libel against the Budget is given.

Home Science is the name of a new magazine published by Sheldon R. Hopkins, 69 Bible House New York. It is evidently controlled by Dio Lewis, whose name appears as a contributor. The magazine would seem to be devoted largely to matters of hygene, and intended to advocate everything that will tend to make home happy and comfortable. For contributors it has such men as Drs. Talmage, Cuyler, Storrs, and others ; and among other clergymen and professors, Dio Lewis, N. T. Allen, and others among hygienists, and a good supply of miscellaneous writers besides.

Ill-fitting boots and shoes cause corns. Holloway's Corn Cure is the article to use.

DR. M. SOUVILLE'S SPIROMETER GIVEN FREE.

Encouraged by the fact that during the past five years thousands of patients who have used my Spirometer have been cured of Asthma, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness, Consumption or weak lungs, and finding that many who could be cured are financially unable to procure the instrument, I WILL GIVE THE SPIROMETER FREE to any one, rich or poor, suffering from any of the above ailments, who will call at 173 Church St. Toronto, and consult the Surgeons of the International Throat and Lung Institute—the medicines alone to be paid for. If unable to call write for particulars and treatment which can be sent by express to any address DR. M. SOUVILLE, ex-Aide Surgeon French Army.

THE TORONTO milk dealers are protesting against the use of the lactometer in testing the quality of milk. Of course it may be said that milk which is too rich is unknown in Toronto.

IN APPOINTING Chief Justice Hagarty of the Queen's Bench, Chief Justice of Ontario, the Government did a graceful thing. An abler or more conscientious judge does not sit on the bench, and the learned jurist is as popular as he is respected. It is more than probable that Chief Justice Wilson will be transferred from the Common Pleas Division to succeed Chief Justice Hagarty in the Queen's Bench Division. If so it is to be expected that Mr. Justice Armour will be promoted to the Chief Justiceship of the Common Pleas Division, which would leave a colleague for Mr. Justice Cameron to be selected from the Bar.

DYNAMITE IN TORONTO.

The Deadly Explosive Concealed Under the Parliament Buildings.

MOMENTOUS DISCOVERY BY A BOY.

(From Own Correspondent.)

TORONTO, April 30, (4.30 p. m.)—Dynamite was discovered under the Parliament Buildings this afternoon. Two cartridges were found under the Speaker's private apartments and one under Hon. Mr. Pardee's private office. There is intense excitement.

FULLER PARTICULARS.

TORONTO, May 1.—The papers this a. m. contain full accounts of the dynamite discovery. The discovery came about in the following manner. A son of one of the caretakers, Willie McDonnell, was playing around the western end of the buildings, in which are situated the Crown Lands offices, containing all the muniments and records of the department from the earlier settlement of the Provice. From the ventilator under the window lighting the Commissioner of Crown Land's office he saw protruding from one of the iron ventilating grates the end of what was apparently a roll of paper, and, boy-like, his curiosity was aroused. He at once pulled it out and the news soon spread over the building. The Commissioner of Crown Lands, Mr. Houston, the Librarian, and the chief clerks were at once on the scene, and the situation was really deemed so grave as to demand.

AN INSTANT SEARCH

of the whole of the buildings in as thorough a manner as the circumstances would allow. Every crevise and nook were peered into by anxious and expectant eyes, but nothing was found till the central portion was reached at the front, when, in the ventilator corresponding to the one in the western end, under the steps approaching the Speaker's chambers,

TWO MORE CARTRIDGES

were found in a similar position, and placed there with the same deadly purpose. Again the same arrangements were completed this time. The dynamite was in two cartridges ; the wire was attached ; the preparations had been made for the attachment of the fuse, which lay a short distance from the cartridges. This demonstrates that the miscreants had been disturbed in their fell purpose, and compelled suddenly to abandon it, Had the conspiracy case been in progress at the present Assizes, the Speaker would doubtless

HAVE OCCUPIED HIS CHAMBERS,

The cartridges found are about six inches long by an inch and a half in diameter. They weigh between a quarter and half a pound. They are called "Ætna No. 2,' and are manufactured by the Ætna Powder Company of Chicago. Across the end of the shell of the cartridge is printed in large type," "40 per cent.," this doubtless being the proportion of nitro glycerine. The shells appeared to have been newly oiled to keep out moisture. 'There is said Mr. McDonald, a gentlemen who had one of the cartridges in his hands, "to blow up either the east or west wing of the Parliament buildings." The cartridge was capped and fixed in such a position by wire that a long fuse could be attached with out difficulty and fired without danger.

PLENTY OF FUSE.

The dynamite must have been placed last night in the position in which it was found. A small piece of wire was attached to the two cartridges first found. A piece of fuse about two yards in length was found by the gardener this morning, lying near where the cartridges were afterwards discovered. The gardener was at work with his lawn mower when he picked up the fuse. Not knowing its use, he thought it had dropped from the window above, and it excited no curiosity when he found it. Another piece of fuse was found under the steps near by. It was newly cut.

THE BUILDINGS GUARDED.

The guards who were on duty at the buildings and about Government House recently were taken off at the close of the close of the session. It was supposed that all cause for alarm had passed away, but this discovery proves the contrary. Last night the buildings were again under the patrol of an armed guard.

AMERICAN SPARKS

Sixteen unfortunate inmates of the Van Buren county poorhouse, Michigan, perished in the flames which destroyed the building on Tuesday night.

Every one speaks highly of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters as a Stomach Liver and Kidney Medicine. 'The best family medicine we ever used,' say they all. Try a bottle this Spring as a blood purifier.

KINGSTON PRESBYTERY.

At a meeting of the Kingston Presbytery on Tuesday Rev. T. S. Chambers' resignation of his charge at Storrington, Pittsburg, and Glenburne, was tabled until his return from the old country whither he goes presently having obtained 3 months leave of absence. Rev. Mr. Houston was appointed interim Moderator of Storrington session, and Rev. Mr. Young, of Napanee, interim Clerk of the Presbytery.

Every [illegible] who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate degree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, such in Northrup and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never of properly and judiciously administered. Prepared by Northrup & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all druggists.

FOR ALL AGES.

The aged debilitated and infirm will find renewed vigour and strength by taking Burdock Blood Bitters. The young hastening to early to early decay will also find in this revitalizing tonic a remedy worth trying.

PROFITS OF INSURANCE.

STATEMENT OF THE INCOME AND EXPENDITURE OF THE COMPANIES IN 1883.

The following statement is taken from the advance report of the superintendent of insurance, Dr. Cherriman. They show that the British Companies have made more and sustained fewer losses proportionately than have the Canadian Companies. This may be taken to mean that the British Companies are better managed, or that they only take the pick of the business :—

MASCULINE FASHIONS.

THE STYLES IN THE LINE OF SENSE AND GOOD TASTE.

New York Tribune.

"There is a strong infusion of common sense in the new fashions of men," said a well known tailor yesterday. "There is no longer that absurd tendency to run to extreme in every direction which for the last year or two has marked them." A few inquiries among other tailor elicited similar responses. As to cut, they said that trousers will be a little looser, cut to display the shape of the leg, but with more material in them than formerly. Waistcoats are hardly changed in cut. As to coats the frock coat will have its skirts a trifle longer, while the "cut away" of either four or five buttons will have no outside pockets save that on the breast, and will be a little longer. The sack coat will be a little altered, but in this as in all coats the buttons will be placed closer than heretofore. It is in evening dress that the most radical change has been made. The shiny broadcloth of generations is being discarded by the youths of to-day. Dress suits are now cut to fit the figure like a glove, and the material is some one of the many varieties of black diagonal or dull surfaced thin cloth. The waistcoat is white, cut extremely low, and the opening is rounded instead of V shaped. The material used for morning suits are either self-color or checks and stripes of a quiet and unobtrusive appearance.

The old-fashioned pleated shirt front for evening dress is taking the place of, to some extent, the plain, stiff front. The reign of the single stud is nearly over and three small studs are now worn by many, though some persons may be seen with four. The scarf worn with the frock coat or four buttoned cutaway is the plain folded scarf of dark color, patternless, and with a small pin. The sailor's knot is also worn, but it is considered "bad form" to insert a pin of any kind in it. Collars are still high, though the American makers do not run to the extremes of their English rivals. A high collar, meeting in front with the corners turned down, is the latest fashion. The white evening tie is rather narrow and is tied in a strictly horizontal and formal bow. Colored cambric shirts for summer wear are appearing in the shirt makers windows. For some inexplicable reason some of these have white collars attached to the colored body. Gloves are gradually creeping into general use in the evening, after their long banishment. The heads of canes and umbrellas are no longer so extravagant in design as before, and the most fashionable head is either a plain gold cap or a natural stick with the small excrescences of the wood tipped with the precious metal. The spring style in silk hats has been seen for some weeks. The general shape is a decided alteration from that of twelve months ago. The brim is lighter and with scarcely any curl. The crown is taller and less bell shaped. The English hat is the model for all. Shoes are less pointed than formerly, but the toe is still [illegible]. Patent leather shoes have uppers of [illegible] or fine black cloth, and all eccentricities of material, such as tan-colored uppers, are now out of favor.

A DOUBLE BENEFIT.

James Moore, a prominent resident of Leamington, writes that he cured himself of Dyspepsia of a year's duration by one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and two bottles cured his wife who had been for two years a sufferer from the same disease. He conscientiously recommends it to all suffering from similar troubles.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues healed and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all this. Try it. Every bottle warranted.

S. Chadwick Arcadia Wayne Co, writes ; 'I have had severe attacks of Asthma for several years. I commenced taking Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The first dose relieved me in one hour. I continued taking it in teaspoonful doses for a few days, and have not had an attack of it since, now nearly one year.'

MAY.

Light of foot and winning fair,
Show'ry gems amid her hair,
Through a wavering light and shade,
By the fitful sunbeams made,
Or through shimmering veil of rain,
Dances down the fragrant lane,
This bright maid, who draws each lover
By a charm none may discover.
Varying still from grave to gay,
Thousand fancies in a day,
Singing medleys with such trill
As the restless air must thrill,
Wild with wanton, elfish glee,
Sad with freakish misery,
Now to tender tears beguiling
Then to mirth with witchery wiling ;
First she pouts and says you grieve her,
Next entreats you not to leave her ;
Then she lures you on to follow
Her slight figure through the hollow,
Up the hill-slope, o'er the stream
Rippling soft with silver gleam.

If a few Grains of Common Sense could be infused into the thick noddles of those who perpetually and alternately irritate their stomachs and bowels with drastic purgatives they would use the highly accredited and healthful laxative and tonic Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, which causes 'good digestion to wait on appetite and health on both.

Mr. J. H. Smith, Inspector of Public Schools in Wentworth county has issued a circular to the trustees teachers and pupils throughout the county, intended to promote the desire to beautify school grounds. Mr. Smith says: "To secure united action among trustees, teachers, and pupils, I would recommend trustee boards to set apart Thursday, the 1st day of May, as 'Arbor Day,' and join with the teachers and pupils, in planting suitable shade trees." This accords with the suggestion made a few days ago in this column. Is it not worth trying it at a later date?

"We notice, "says the London Advertiser," that a person of this city, presumably a very fresh youth, advertises in a Belleville paper that he wishes to open up unlimited correspondence with a number of young ladies, "with a view to mutual improvement and perhaps matrimony." He announces that he will exchange photographs, and that all correspondence will be strictly confidential. There is an implied compliment to the London ladies in this, but it is at the expense of the Belleville ones. It is to be hoped the Belleville ladies will show their good sense by paying no attention to the jackanapes. Still, if there is a dime museum in the town it might be worth while securing his photograph."

UNWELCOME GUESTS

Whose arrival at an Hotel was not Booked.

An attempt was made about twelve o'clock last night by burglars to break into a hotel and store at Ferry Point, but without success. At Mr. P. M. Fredericks grocery the thieves removed the shutters and attempted to raise the window, but being unable to do so, they went to Mr. Wm. Gerow's hotel and while raising the window with a crowbar, one of the slats in the side of the sash broke. The noise awoke the dog in the house and afterwards Mr. Gerow was alarmed. He ran to the window and fired ten shots at the men about four in number, as they were running up the road. Mr. Gerow while searching about the point later in the night found a skiff among the lumber piles east of his hotel, which it was thought the burglars used to ferry them across the bay from Belleville.

This morning a representative of the ONTARIO learned that Mr. William Carter, who keeps a boat livery, hired a skiff last night to a man who stated that he wanted to go Ferry Point and would return during the night. Mr. Carter was unable to give a description of the party, but stated the boat found was his. The supposition is that the man who hired the skiff is a member of the gang and that after getting the boat he met his companions somewhere along the docks and they rowed across the bay together.

The case of Cecilia Rollins v. Central Ontario Railway for erecting a tent along the road which caused her horse to run away, has been laid over until next court on the application of the plaintiff, on the ground of the unavoidable absence of two witnesses; the costs of the day to be paid by plaintiff. Hastings for plff.; Delaney & Ostrom for deft.

The Dominion Bank v. Thomas Mills and A. S. Northrop executors for the estate of the late E. Burnett was tried yesterday without a jury. It was an interpleader issue to try right to 100 tons of iron, 16 tons of steel, and 500 boxes of axes seized by Sheriff of County of Hastings under an execution in favor of defendants, against J. W. Campion. The plaintiffs claimed the property under three several warehouse receipts made by Richard Patto and on which they had made large advances to Campion. About $11,000 was involved in the suit and the question was a very important one. The defendants contended that Richard Potter was not a warehouseman and therefore the transactions which Campion had with the Bank in giving the warehouse receipts in order to extend his credit was not legal. Verdict for the defendants. Clute and Williams for plffs; Osler, Q C., Simpson, Bogart and Northrop and Denmark for defts.

The trial of Henry Coons, charged with a misdemeanor, took place this morning. The alleged offence consisted in selling about $160 worth of peas, after having given a warehouse receipt for them. The verdict had not been given when the court rose for dinner. Britton, Q C., for Crown; Clute & Williams for deft.

Daniel Desmond, arraigned, pleaded guilty to the third indictment of stealing from John Hotchcraft.

THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. I am satisfied the medicine is not injurious and will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical profession stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of these happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

SEALED UNTO HIM.

A Story of the Early Days of Mormonism.

By JOAQUIN MILLER.

Author of "Songs of the Sierras," "The Parities," "Memorie and Rime," etc.

The suspense was terrible. Every one leaned forward. The very stars up in heaven stopped their mere twinkle. The moon leaned low and large, and looked with a petient sympathysing face down into her sister's face on earth. The man was angered with her hesitation. He asked her again and savagely. At last she whispered, 'Yes.'

What was our horror to hear him calmly almost bitterly, answer:

'Then God be praised! You shall die in the Faith, my wife. And so we shall meet again.'

CHAPTER VI.

BURIED IN THE LAKE.

The Danite leader now beckoned our party to move on, bidding us to leave the heaviest log-chain behind. The horsemen merely glanced at each other. They knew what was to be done, and swung into the saddle as one man. No Cromwell ever had troopers obedient as were these ignorant and desperate followers of the false religion in America.

If you who have this question to settle, sooner or later, will only stop to consider a moment, you will observe that all such monstrosities the poor human nature has brought forth on the earth have two elements for their establishment: one, the father of them, a learned man, a superficially learned man, a 'crank;' and the other element, a densely ignorant mass of mankind to sow their doctrines among, to mature and maintain them when they take root. And these two elements are never wanting in recruits. They never will be while ignorance is so general upon the earth. Of couese you cannot destroy the leader, the 'crank,' men crazy over their books and about religion. But you can utterly destroy their following, plough up the fields, cultivate it, and the tares will perish in time. This is the remedy. Cultivation, intelligence, education, association with others, have already done much broken off the hard corner of this rock in the sea. But let ignorance prevail there as it did thirty years ago, and you will see renewed all the ferocity, cruelty crime, in the name of the new religion which we knew then.

Destroy these people by war! No, you cannot destroy them by war, even though you pour in your million of men with guns and all the treasure of the universe. You might kill them every one and confiscate their homes. And yet in Europe—anywhere everywhere where there is ignorence to follow and fanaticism to lead—you might see a Mormon Church.

Our train moved on. The horsemen galloped along side for a little way after having had some silent orders from their giant and ironhearted leader. Then they rode back. Then they galloped up the hill along side again and so remained until we reached the top of the hill. Here we were ordered to stop and wait, till we we were permitted again to move on.

No one had spoken to the girl to say goodby. Hope had been kindled in her heart. She had even taken a step forward to fall in with the moving train and follow us as we started. A heavy hand fell on her shoulder. She lifted her eyes to the missionary's, let them fall, and stopped as still as death.

When we turned about in the full white moonlight on the hill, and looked after the horsemen while they dashed down the hill in a cloud of dust, we could see dimly. But a man who professed to see clearly, said the giant was leading the girl down toware his own camp, and the ugly coffin hiding away there in the shadows.

One of the horsemen rode down to the mouth of the litte stream where it fell into the lake, and drew a boat that was hidden there up into a little cove formed by the watters of the brook. We could not see the girl now. What was being done?

As was said before, we could see but indistinctly now. By and by some one saw the monstrous giant once more pushing the long black box before him down toward the lake. and pointed out the dark object to others. The horsemen rode leisurely behind, with their hats in their hands. The girl still could not be seen.

At length a dreadful suspicion crept over us, and a cry burst from one of the women. She wrung her hands and cried hysterically that the girl was in the coffin and they were going to bury her in the lake.

The woman was silenced with effort, and all stood still as death, waiting, waiting. The moon seemed only a little way above us, only a litte way above us, only a little higher on the hill, and oh, so pale and pitiful and sorrowing it seemed! The far white mountains of snow shone like silver in this whitest and brightest of silver moons this side of Arabia.

Why were we compelled to stand here and see all this? Surely they meant to murder the girl and make us witness it in order to spread terror and the fear of their power to 'judge' and to execute judgment through the land. Here was a murder to which the murderers demanded witnesses and compelled the presence of witnesses. But still, as I said before, we could see but dimly. The moon was sinking fast now. How slow and deliberate they were!

The barrow evidently had a heavier load than ever before. The heavy chain and the chained girl?! It moved heavily, slowly, through the great white girdle of gleaming salt; slowly and sadly, like a funeral march.

At last it touched the edge of the dark water. All was still as silent as death. It seemed that some one of these men—two of them, three of them, all of them—must disobey this giant and monster, kill him if necessary, and save this beautiful girl. Even if they had no sense of chivalry or virtue or valor in them to help the helpless, it did seem as if some one, any one, all, might do almost anything to protect her, save her.

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained a world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefits which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M'g Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

HOARSENESS AND FAILURE of voice from congestion of the vocal cords follicular disease of the fauces, or minister's sore throat, are often the result of bronchial troubles, extending up the trachea and larynx, affecting the whole mucous tract of the air passages. These diseases are the outcome or expression of nerve depravity and blood impoverishment from overworking the system and excessive use of the organs involved. Here constitutional treatment is required to restore nutrition and nerve power, and WHEELER'S Phosphates and Calisaya has been successfully used by singers and public speakers.

THE LAUGH IN SCHOOL.

Hold on for a moment, teacher!
You had better ignore the rule,
Than punish that little urchin
Who has just laughed out in school.
Had he done it out of malice,
It would be a different thing.
But he could no more help it
Than a lark can help to sing.

I know by his clouted jacket,
And his shoes tied with a cord,
That a laugh is the only luxury
Of childhood he can afford.
And he hasn't much time left him
For even that trvial joy,
For he'll have to earn his living
While he is yet a boy.

You ask why I defend him;
Well, the fact is, yesternight
I found a dog-eared primer
That I used when but a mite;
And, in imagination
As I turned its pages o'er,
I saw some wonderful pictures
That I never found before.

I saw a certain urchin
(Called Clarence by the boys)
Go toddling into the school room
Making his share of noise;
And I saw him during school time
Play pranks upon the sly
With the rosy little Agnes
Till she laughed as she would di

And I think we all are better
When we grow up to be men,
If we have something to make us
Look backward now and then;
And therefore I insisted
You had better ignore the rule
Than punish that little fellow
Who has just laughed out in school.

TO THE NEWSPAPER CONTRIBUTOR

The following version of the "Contributor's Ten Commandments" is taken from a Swedish paper.

"1. If you wish to send a communication to a paper, do it at once. What is news at this moment is no longer so tomorrow.

"2. Be concise in your statement, for thereby you save your own time and that of the reader. Explanations, not words; but no reflections on them.

"3. Be simple, write distinctly, and give the name of the day or the date.

"4. Begin frequently a new line, which gladdens the compositor. Write short sentences for the benefit of the reader.

"5. Do not correct single letters or numbers, but cross the whole word out when a correction is wanted.

"6. First and foremost, write only on one side of the paper. A hundred lines on one side can be cut into ten pieces, and set up by several compositors in ten minutes. If written on both sides, only one compositor can arrange it, which will take some hours.

"7. AMS. paper, which takes some hours in getting into type is in danger of not being printed the first day. and is passed over till another day.

"8. What is kept till the next day is no longer new, and may not get in. Each day has its own trouble; yesterday is always in the wrong.

"9. Put your name and address on the back of your copy.

"10. Above all, speak the truth, and nothing but the truth. If you talk about yourself use the third person; say what you have to say without false modesty, but also without conceit.

FOR YOUNG MEN.

Remember

That clothes don't make the man.

That if they once get in debt they may never get out of it.

That parting the hair in the middle brings on softening of the brain.

That to deal honorably with all men they begin with their washerwoman.

That they need something more substantial than cigars, kid gloves, and a cane to start housekeeping with.

That they can't reckon on their father's fortune to bring them through life. Fortunes are slippery things—better have something besides to fall back on.

That a girl who decks herself in the latest things out, and parades in the street while her mother does the washing, isn't worth wasting much love on.

That a fellow who deliberately proposes matrimony to a girl when he can't support himself, is either a first class fraud or a fool—unless he marries for money and becomes her hired man.

SINGLE WOMEN.

"My views on the marriage tie are briefly," says Mgr. Capel, "that women were made by God Almighty to be either married or become nuns, and that there is no state such as old maid recognizable. My advice to all young women is to accept marriage proposals in stead of rejecting them." This dictum on the marriage tie it well commented upon by the Herald and Globe of Rutland, Vt., part of the criticism of which is as follows:

The truth is, as every observant man knows, that one-half the bestphilanthropic work of the world is wrought by single women. Go into any country town in Vermont, and among the very best, most upright and most useful women for every good work are women whom Mgr. Capel calls "old maids," and who, he thinks, have no mission outside of marriage save a nunnery. Some distinguished American statesman once said that the presidency of the United States was an office neither to be meanly secured by intrigue nor declined when honorably offered for acceptance. It is something so with marriage; if it comes in worthy and acceptable form, it is well; but if it does not come in that shape, it is something to bere jested.

SHALL WE LET THE CHILD DIE?

A hard-hearted political economist, looking at a pale and puny child feebly gasping as it lies upon a pillow, says that the child might as well die. It is so weak and poor that its life will never be worth much anyhow. There are already a good many people in the world who are of not much account anyhow. And what's the use of adding to their number another weakling, who has but slender chance of ever amounting to anything?

Now ask that child's mother what she thinks about letting the child die. About this time the hard political economist had better get out of the way. Let my child die? No! No! As long as there is a remedy to be found that will save that child, the child shall not die! I'll spend my last dollar to save the child!' Well try a bottle of Shaker's Blood Syrup on that child. See the poor fellow pick up strength. He revives. He will live. Hosts of other children hade been brought almost from death to healthy life by The Shaker Blood Syrup. Your druggist sells it.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the error and indiscretion of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood &c., I will send a receipt, that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. THE DAILY ONTARIO.

THE LIQUOR LICENSES.

The simple legal effect of the veto of the Ontario Act of 1884, respecting License Duties is to reduce the cost of Dominion Licenses to a sum equivalent to that paid for a Provincial license. This is all. It does not alter the fact that a Dominion license is wholly unnecessary and absolutely of no value. It has no effect one way or another on Provincial licenses but simply cheapens the cost of a Dominion license to those who are foolish enough to take it out. A Dominion license is dear at any price.

The Ontario Government at a Cabinet Council held yesterday morning decided to receive under protest the regular Provincial fee for Dominion licenses, except in those cases which will be set apart for trial in the courts as test cases.

DOMINION AGGRESSION.

It is not a hard thing to understand this disallowance matter. The occasions which demand the use of the crown veto were very clearly defined by Sir John Macdonald himself, when the New Brunswick School Bill was under consideration. He then laid it down that only when a Provincial Act was beyond the jurisdiction of the Legislature or opposed to existing Dominion legislation might it be disallowed. Now, the honorable gentleman refused to advise the veto of the New Brunswick School Act for the express reason that it was within the jurisdiction of that Legislature to pass the Bill. This, notwithstanding the goodness or badness of the measure. It was within Provincial control and that was an end of it. Now why does this man not apply those rules which he himself laid down, after mature consideration to Ontario's legislation? If he did neither the Streams Act or the License Act Amendments would have been vetoed. It is beyond question that the veto of Wednesday is indefensible. It is admitted with shameless audacity that the disallowed Act is wholly within the jurisdiction of the Legislature of Ontario and concerns Provincial matters only. It is neither unconstitutional or counter to Dominion legislation because the Dominion cannot legislate on the matter at all Then why is the Act disallowed and the proper legislation of the first Province in the Dominion made a farce?

We will give the full and whole argument advanced from Ottawa in defence of this thing as taken from yesterday's Mail, so that our readers can see and judge for themselves what force there is in the contentions.—

"That the License Fee Act is within the competency of the Local Legislature no one will deny, so far as it purported to provide for the raising of revenue for Provincial purposes. Clause five of the Ontario License Duties Act states that fees under the Act for Dominion license are separate and apart from Provincial fees. This averment indicates that the Mowat Government did not intend to raise money for provincial purposes by their legislation respecting fees for Dominion licenses. All the statute aims at is really to punish people for obeying the law passed by Dominion Parliament."

Here then is the Ottawa cabinet sitting in judgment upon the decision of the Province of Ontario regarding a matter which we, and we alone, have power to deal with. These few cabinet ministers, elected to attend their own business, take upon themselves to say that the Act is discriminating and a bad Act. They presume to ascribe motives to the Government of Ontario for introducing the Act to the Legislature. Is the Government of Ontario, be it Liberal or Conservative, amenable to the Dominion cabinet for its motives and actions in matters of purely domestic concern? We say by no means. The statute aims, it is said, to punish people for obeying the Dominion law. Well, the highest court in the land had just decided that Ontario and not the Dominion had the authority to issue licenses and no man was called upon to pay for a Dominion license. It was wholly unnecessary. It was evident the Dominion Act itself was ultra vires and of no effect. But these assertions from Ottawa are only arguments put forward to try and justify an unconstitutional and spiteful abuse of the veto power.

We declare as a doctrine essential to Provincial rights and Provincial autonomy that in domestic legislation whether it is wise or unwise, expedient or inexpedient the Provincial Legislature is supreme, as much so as the acts of the Dominion Legislature within its bounds and for the Ottawa Cabinet to invoke the power vested in the Governor-General to make null and void purely provincial legislation is an outrage upon the constitution and upon the rights of the Provinces and is a step the gravity of which is perhaps not fully appreciated.

P. D. Q.

(Louisville Courier Journal.)

If the Democratic party is not the party of Reduced Taxes and a Revenue Tariff, it ought to go to the devil in a hand basket, and that p. d. q.

That lecherous hanger-on of the Painted Harlot of Protection, the Atlanta Constitution, has the effrontery and insolence to speak of the Courier Journal as a "free lance."

Every [illegible] who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate degree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrop and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never of properly and judiciously administered. Prepared by Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all druggists.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The London Advertiser encourages the Arbor Day tree planting movement.

The Hamilton Conservative organ is again questioning the benefit of the Agricultural College in Ontario.

A correspondent enquires of the Country Gentleman, "how can a dog be cured from sucking eggs?" to which the satisfactory reply is given, "shoot the dog." The man who will pause at drastic measures deserves to fail.

Ontario is not to be permitted to legislate in her own interests if these are contrary to the schemes of the Dominion Government even though such legislation should be admittedly within her competency. Outrageous!

Now that the session is over Sir John Macdonald's alternative when logically beaten of "call in the members" is followed by "call in the Governor-General" and forthwith the power in the Crown is invoked against public opinion.

The Mail yesterday made the proclamation of disallowance read:—"Whereas the Governor-General of Ontario." This is quite in accord with the legislative union notions of the Dominion Premier that Ontario should be governed from Ottawa. But we mistake the public opinion of this Province if it is not emphatically for Home Rule.

Next Session, said Principal Grant, in his annual address, Dr. Campbell will deliver his three lectures on Political Economy, and the public will have an opportunity of judging whether, in his opinion, it is a canon of political economy, that, in a new country, and a country without a single good library, only old books and books comparatively useless to universities, should be admitted free of duty. Dr. Grant has always maintained this to be a wrong in the tariff.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

THE THREE P.'s.

The three ruling powers—Press, Pulpit and Petticoats—appear to be ranged on the side of the Scott act in this city and county. Napoleon once said he feared three newspapers more than 100,000 bayonets, and Wendell Phillips is authority for the statement that the newspaper is parent, school, pulpit, example and councellor, all in one. Still, it may turn out when the vote comes that whiskey is mightier than the pen, even if the pen is mightier than the sword. St. Thomas Times.

IT DOES NOT PAY.

It does not pay to steal. At a time when the reports in the daily papers would indicate that stealing has become a popular industry, this maxim cannot be too strongly impressed upon the mind of every man, but more particularly of every young man, occupying a position of financial trust. Toronto World.

IT ALWAYS WAS.

Sir John's party appears to be held together just now by no strynger bond than the cohesive power of plunder.—Winnipeg Sun.

WE BEAT THE WORLD

The Canadians are congratulating themselves that the cost of maintaining the White House at Washington is a mere trifle compared with the expense of the Vice-Regal court at Ottawa. The amount appropriated for the Governor-General and the officials who surrounded him is $150,000; while the President receives only a paltry $50,000 per year, with $10,000 or $15,000 additional for a few private secretaries and clerks. Repairs of the Government House cost $400,000, and the travelling expenses of the Viceroy $172,000. It is not surprising that the Dominion is proud. Her territory is larger than that of the United States, and her expenditure for her chief ruler is, of course, on a proportionate scale. Our eagle must "roost low."—New York Journal.

THE FLYERS OF THE TURF.

MAUD S., JAY EYE-SEE, JOHNSTON AND THE LITTLE BROWN JUG AND THEIR OWNER.

From the Chicago Tribune.

The fastest trotter in the world, Maud S., is owned by William H. Vanderbilt, who, like most of the descendants of the Amsterdam Dutch, the first white settlers in New York, inherits a love for fast horses The trotter with the second fastest record —Jay Eye See— is the property of J. I. Case. The two fastest pacers the turf has ever known are the property of Commodore N. W. Kittson, of St. Paul, Minn., a man who will shortly have completed the allotted age of three score years and ten, and he takes to-day as great an interest in matters pertaining to turf sports as do the men who are more than a generation behind him in years as well as experience. The horses referred to, Johnston and Little Brown Jug, have records respectively of 2:10 and 2:11¾, these figures representing the fastest miles ever paced. They are now at Cincinnati, where a part of Mr. Kittson's horses have been kept during the winter in order that they might enjoy the benefits of a milder climate than is to be found at the home of their owner. They will be on the turf during the coming season and should no accident befal them, there is little doubt that the pacing record of 2.10 made at Chicago last fall by Johnston will be materially reduced, as either of the horses mentioned is capable, under favorable conditions, of a mile in considerable faster time.

Before sailing on Tuesday for England, Henry Irving gave a breakfast at Delmonico's, New York, to about 80 distinguished gentlemen. Mr. Irving, toward the end of the breakfast, asked the company to empty a glass with him, which was done with a great deal of cordiality. He then read a letter from a firm of Western circus managers, offering him an engagement in a company entirely composed of stars, with which they propose to devastate the country under a mammoth canvas, giving the Shakesperean drama with lectures between the acts by a zoographist, and a recess for an hour for the pleasures of the sawdust arena. This provoked great laughter, and Mr. Irving went on to thank his friends with no little feeling and earnestness, for the manner in which he had been treated, and bid them good-by until next season. Mr. Edwin Booth proposed his health in brief but well-chosen terms, and it was drunk with all the honors, after which the company departed.

ARREST OF F. LEWIS AT HIS RESIDENCE PETERBORO

Peterboro, May 2.—A man named F. Lewis has been arrested here on the charge of having forged a consolidated Canadian Loan bond for one thousand pounds. Lewis was at one time a clerk in the Receiver-General's office, and was superannuated in 1879. He must have stolen the bond while he was in the Department, kept it in his possession, and afterwards forged the signature and cashed the bond. It was Chief Sherwood, of the Dominion police, who made the capture yesterday. The bonds in question fall due on the 1st January, 1885. Lewis' son is Manager of the Bank of Montreal here.

ENGULPHED ON WALL STREET.

New York, May 1—It is said that Jas. R. Keene has lost probably $4,000,000 in Wall Street within six months. His dishonored pledges represent from $150,000 to 200,000 shares of stock. When the fact that Keen had laid down on his privileges was established yesterday, put and call brokers made a lively scramble to get rid of his paper. Brokers say that Keen of late has been very reckless making privileges. It is impossible to give even an approximate extent of Keene's liabilities. Keen himself does not know.

WURTEMBERG LOVERS

New York, May 2.—Henry J. Schlitter and Maria Rook were lovers in Wurtemberg, but Henry's father objected to their marriage. The parents of the girl were poor. The young people concluded to elope and, collecting enough money to pay their passage in the steerage, they came over in the steamship Bothnia. They were married yesterday in the Labor Bureau at Castle Garden by Pastor Berkemeier, Capt. Reichardt, the Assistant Superintendent, blessed the bride with a fatherly kiss, and blessed the husband by obtaining employment for him in Troy.

A conference of leading members of the Peace Society called in London a few days for the purpose of assailing the policy of Mr. Gladstone's Government regarding the Soudan degenerated into an angry war of words and broke up in disorder.

Earl Granville stated in the Upper House that the employment of Indian troops for the relief of Berber and Khartoum was deprecated by experienced generals.

He conscientiously recommends it to all suffering from similar troubles.

S. Chadwick Arcadia Wayne Co. writes: 'I have had severe attacks of Asthma for several years. I commenced taking Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The first dose relieved me in one hour. The above patient was visited at his home being unable to call at our rooms.

Consumption Cured,

Mrs. George Armstrong, Cornwall:—"I am happy to say that your treatment has entirely cured me. My case was considered hopeless, and I did not expect to recover. Having had several attacks of bleeding of the lungs, a cough raising large quantities of matter, I gave up all hope of ever getting well. But I am thankful to you beyond the expression of words for your timely treatment which saved my life. All who are thus afflicted shou'd apply before it's too late."

'Consumption Arrested,'

'Rectory, Cornwall.'—I am glad to be able to inform you that my daughter is quite well again as this is the second time she has been cured of grave bronchial trouble when the usual remedies failed. I write to express my gratitude. Please accept my sincero gratitude. So sayeth an English Church clergyman.

To-Day's Probabilities.

Cloudy to rainy weather, followed this afternoon by strong winds and moderate gales from the west and north-west, with clearing and cooler weather.

RAIN AND WIND.

A Strong Gale Down the Lake This Morning.

After me the deluge, said the sunshine yesterday, and towards evening a thunder storm broke over the city and the rain fell in torrents continuing with few intermissions far into the night.

The wind to day was the strongest blow of the season, and made sailing on the bay impossible. One or two schooners got above Zwicks Island but they were unable to proceed any farther. The ferry steamer Mary Ethel could not leave her slip, while it was only by the skin of his teeth that the captain of the Quinte got away from the docks. The wind coming dead down the bay dashed the angry waters against the wharf, and the spray was blown up many feet. It was the strongest gale experienced on the bay in some years past. A bill board at Wallbridge's corners was blown down, and other damages done throughout the city to fences and trees.

BOARD OF WORKS.

The Board of Works met last night. Ald. L. Johnston in the chair. The street pay sheet amounting $228 57 was endorsed, likewise an account of $29.50 for nails J. W. Walker. The prayer of the petition to repair the sidewalk on Yeoman street, between between Bridge and Catharine was granted and the work ordered to be done. The Committee ordered that Mcdonald street be opened to the bay in compliance with the wishes of a large number of residents of that section. An account for 10,324 feet of lumber furnished the city in January by Wm. Sutherland amounting to $115 41 was the subject of some discussion. Some of the Committe thought the lumber was not all of good quality, while others very forcibly expressed their disapproval of the reckless policy of ex-Ald. Starling in buying such a quantity of material to be carried over to another season at the city's expense. The Street Inspector stated that Mr. Sutherland in measuring the lumber deducted between 600 and 700 feet on account of the poor quality, but as the lumber had been ordered and furnished at contract price the Committee felt forced to pay the account. The question of forcing the Street Railway to square their account with the city was referred back to the council.

A DAUGHTER OF THE FOREST.

"I'm twenty one."

She was an Indian woman the mother of two children, the eldest being thirteen, And as she stood in the door of the office of the Chief of Police last night, compelled to seek shelter from the drenching rain outside, her aged and infirm appearance aroused the curiosity of an idle visitor to the station. In a small basket in her arms she carried a nest of juvenile dogs, and besides her two sons, Charlotte Smart was accompanied by a spaniel, who appeared to be an essential acquisition to the band. They wanted to stop over night and as the m ! o it Sergeant was recording their names, he asked Charlotte her age' Immediately her face assumed a serious look and with a guarded tongue she made the response—'I'm twenty-one." That was enough for the officer and the visitors were ushered into a cell without further ceremony. The poor old woman didn't mean to lie, she was merely copying a popular fashion, keeping her age within bounds.

CALLENDAR'S MINSTRELS.

This organization appears in the Opera House to-morrow evening. Of their merits we know nothing except that "Billy Kersands" is a name belonging to a minstrel king with continental fame. An exchange refers to them thus: The attractions of the bill are so capitally done that it is difficulty to pick out any one thing for special mention, Billy Kersands and Tom McIntosh, the end men, deserve the blackest honors in the sable field. The fine voice of Mr. Burch Stanton was a prominent feature of the programme. Mr. Burrill Hawkins as the negro Irishman made an excellent hit. The most artistic part of the performance, however, was "The Black Zouaves," whose brilliant evolutions and clog tournament surpass anything of similar kind on the minstrel stage.

SPOKES FROM THE WHEEL.

H. W. Philps, of St. Cathrines, rode to Niagara, twelve miles, in 64 minutes.

The St. Thomas Bicycle Club will join the Canadian Wheelsmans' Association.

Mr. E. H, Stinson has secured a full plated "Expert Columbia" bicycle, one of the best in the city.

The cinder track on Queen St., upon which the 24th May races will be held is being rapidly put in order. A fence is going up around it.

The bill to exclude bicycles from public highways in Kentucky was rejected and a bill passed making riders responsible for damages caused by carelessness. A wheel in Canada has the same legal right to the roadway as any other vehicle.

It is now the correct thing to do in Belleville to buy a bicycle and become a wheelman. Scarcely a day passes that does not bring out a new rider, who is immediately as enthusiastic over the sport as if he had experienced its peculiar exhilaration for an entire season, Now is the time to join the ranks.

At Leicester, England, on Saturday, April 12 h, bicycle races took place for the 20 and 50 miles championship of England. R. Howell, of Coventry, won the 20 miles from eight competitors in 1 hour 5 mins. 33 4-5 secs. Battensby, of Newcastle, won the 50 mile race in 3 hours 3 mins. 26 3 5 secs, one of the defeated competitors being the French champion De Civry. On the following (Easter) Monday a 10 mile race took place, won by Howell from nine others in 35 mins 24 3-5 secs.

FOR ALL AGES.
The aged debilitated and infirm will find renewed vigour and strength by taking Burdock Blood Bitters. The young hastening to early to early decay will also find in this revitalising tonic a remedy worth trying.

SPRING ASSIZES.

Trial of an Important Railway Suit Unseating Geo. D. Dickson.

At the assizes yesterday before Mr. Justice Patterson, Daniel Desmond, who pleaded guilty to three charges of stealing carpenters' tools, was sentenced to a year in gaol.

Michael Kyan, who pleaded guilty of having stolen a time ticket for wages, was sent to gaol for a month.

Thos. Kelso was plaintiff in an action against E. O. Bickford & Co., railway contractors for the construction of the Grand Junction Railway, and subsequently the owners of it, and against the lessees of that road, the Midland Railway Co., for seven years services at $3,000 a year when he occupied the position of President of the Grand Junction. The judge found that the plaintiff was entitled to be paid by Bickford & Co. for services rendered, and made a reference of the case in order that the amount might be ascertained. In the course of the case a large amount of correspondence was read, amongst which was a letter from the defendant Bickford, offering in the interests of his railway scheme to bear the expense of the proceedings to unseat as a member of the City Council Mr. Geo. D, Dickson, Q.C., one of the counsel for the plaintiff in the cause, against whom he understood a cause could be made out. Mr. Burdett, with Mr. Dickson for plff.; Mr. Osler, Q C., and Mr. Delamere for Bickford & Co., and Mr. Biggar for the Midland Ry.

Queen v. H. Coons—Verdict for defendant. Britton for Crown; Clute for deft.

Harford Ashley v. W. H. Ross, et al—an action on account for monies advanced was tried to day. The defendant disputed the account. Verdict for plaintiff for $259. Clute and Williams for plff.; Denmark and Northrup and Robinson and Thomas for defts.

Francis J. Drake v. George W, Amey, an action to secure balance due on boiler and engine which plaintiff furnished defendant. Amey claimed that the engine was not according to guarantee and offered the $300 which he had paid in court. Verdict for plaintiff for balance of $125. Denmark and Northrup for plff.; Britton and Whiting for deft.

Mary E. Foster v. A M. Foster, et al—action for $600 loaned the defendants by the plaintiff has been settled by a compromise. Burdett for pff.: Simpson and Bogart for deft.

FITZGERALD LEADING.

In the Great Walking Contest in New York

At the great walking match yesterday in New York the score at 10 a. m. stood:—

Fitzgerald	381	Herty	344
Rowell	376	Elson	323
Noremac	352	Nitaw	136
Vint	345	Panchot	332

There was great excitement when Fitzgerald took the lead. Fitzgerald beat all previous records by completing 387 miles at 11 o'clock. The Sun of Wednesday says:—Rowell was in perfect condition, and did not seem in the least fatigued. He rolled up mile after mile with his tireless dog trot. His sturdy legs, with their immense calves, moved with clockwork regularity His eyes were clear, and his face wore an easy expression, far different from the one it wore in his last long race. He has since then got a habit of winking both eyes as he runs.

The cricket club did not organize last night, but Mr. Halliwell thinks the scheme will be a success by selecting members.

There was the largest attendance yet last evening at the walking match. The crowd was very enthusiastic. Rowell left the track for an hour at three o'clock and seemed to be in good condition, but appeared worried by the lead Fitzgerald gained on him, and made several spurts; but only succeeded in gaining two laps at 7:30, Vint was third man with 388 miles to Noremac's 380, and Herty's 375. The score at a. m. this morning:—

Fitzgerald	447	Rowell	440
Vint	408	Noremac	399
Herty	395	Panchot	392
Elson	372	Nitaw	150

C. B. Hall Braville, Ill., says: 'I have sold at retail 136 bottles of Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, guaranteeing every bottle. I must say I never sold a medicine in my life that gave such universal satisfaction. In my own case with a badly ulcerated throat after a physician pencilling it for several days to no effect the Eclectric Oil cured it thoroughly in twenty-four hours, and in threatened croup in my children this winter, it never failed to relieve almost immediately.'

NICE DOMINION COMMISSIONERS.

One of the evil results of the Dominion license law is seen in a case which has just occurred at Port Elmsley, a small village half way between Perth and Smith's Falls, The Ontario commissioners have for some years refused to grant a license there as there is really no necessity for such. This year as application was made to the Dominion board, and though Judge Senkler strenuously opposed it, the other two commissioners, one of whom is Dr. Preston, of Carleton Place, formerly from Newboro, decided to grant it, the applicant being a Conservative. Mr. A. P. Macdonald, a Conservative contractor, who has a number of men employed on the Tay Canal near by, intends to oppose it under the act which prohibits the sale of liquor near public works, and the proprietors of the woolen factory, which really keeps the village in existence, will second his efforts. Brockville Recorder.

Mr. John Magwood, Victoria Road, writes: 'Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure is a splendid medicine. My customers say they never used anything so effectual. Good results immediately follow its use. I know its value from personal experience having been troubled for 9 or 10 years with dispepsia, and since using it digestion goes on without that depressed feeling so well known to dyspeptics. I have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of Indigestion, Constipation, Heartburn, or any trouble arising from a disordered stomach.

Health is a duty. Disease a crime. Use Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters and be cured of all biliousness or liver trouble. 25 cents will buy a large bottle.

CRUSHED BY THE CARS.
A little son of John Spinks, Toronto, had his foot crushed by a G. T. R. Express train some time ago. Two doctors attended him without benefit, and amputation was proposed, but Hagyard's Yellow Oil was tried, which gave prompt relief and effected a speedy cure even removing all stiffness of the joint.

GRAND TRUNK RECEIPTS.

The Grand Trunk traffic reports for the week end April 26th, 1884, show the total receipts to have been $304,996, against $354,309 for the corresponding week last year, a decrease of $49,313 for 1884. The number of passengers was 5,750 more than in the corresponding of 1883, but the passenger receipts were $11,140 less, the mails and express $875 less, and the freight $32,298 less. The aggregate receipts for the seventeen weeks were, $5,163,091, and for the same period last year $5,793,288, a decrease of $630,197, of which $602,218 is in freight traffic.

CUSTOMS RETURNS.

The Goods entered for consumption at this port during the month of April 1883 and 1884 were as follows:—Imports—Value, 1883, $64,065 00; duty, $5,494 55; 1884, $57,535.00; $3,730.99; decrease, $6 530.00; $1,733 56.

Exports—Value, 1883, $57,596.90: 1884 $63,498.00; Increase, $5 902 00.

AN EDITOR'S TRIBUTE.
Theron P. Keator, Editor of Ft. Wayne, Ind 'Gazette,' writes: 'For the past five years have always used Dr. King's New Discovery, for coughs of the most severe character, as well as for those of a milder type. It never fails to effect a speedy cure. My friends to whom I have recommended it speak of it in the same high terms. Having been cured by it of every cough I have had for five years, I consider it the only reliable and sure cure for Coughs, Colds, etc,' Call at R, Templeton's Drug Store and get a Free Trial Bottle. The demand for funeral tributes in New York City is so great that florists pay the cents each for ivy leaves which thieves steal from vines in exposed places.

DANGEROUS TRAPS.
Neglected colds are the fatal traps that ensnare many a victim beyond possibility of rescue Take a cold or cough in time and it is easily conquered by that safe and pleasant remedy Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Asthma, Bronchitis and pulmonary complaints generally yield to its healing influence.

M. de Lesseps is the father of ten, and all the ten have been immortalized on one canvas by F. Pelez of Paris. The picture was painted on the sly as a surprise to the father.

A FAVORITE EVERYWHERE.
Wherever introduced Hagyard's Yellow Oil finds friends, it is the old reliable household remedy for external and internal use in all aches, pains, lameness, and soreness of the flesh, A. L. Geen, a prominent druggist of Belleville, says.' It is a great favorite here, and has good sale

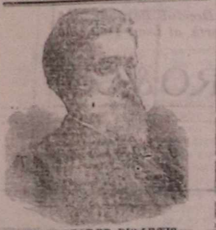
Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Whenever the blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of an prevailing epedemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished power should be these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce all erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, billiousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. The fruit season is especially prone to produce irritation of the bowels and disorder of the digestive organs; both of which dangerous conditions can be completely removed by Holloway's correcetive medicines.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally and the Ointment rubbed externally are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, surest. Holloway's Pills and Ointment purify the blood, remove obstructions to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the overgorged air tubes, and render respiration free without reducing the strength [illegible] irritating the nerves, or depressing the [illegible]. Such as the ready means of saving [illegible] when afflicted with colds, coughs, [illegible] other complaints by which so many are [illegible] tously and permanently afflicted in most [illegible] tries.



THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemn I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. [illegible] am satisfied the medicine is not injurious [illegible] will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical profession stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of these happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

SEALED UNTO HIM.

A Story of the Early Days of Mormonism.

By JOAQUIN MILLER.

Author of "Songs of the Sierras," "The Danites," "Memorie and Rime," etc.

Two men rode up, dismounted, held their horses by the long tethers as they stood there fretful and knee deep in the gleaming girdle of salt, and so hastily lifted the long black coffin into the boat.

The giant solemnly and silently took his place at the oar and began to move slowly and certainly toward the dark and desolate rock in the deeps of the lake.

The horsemen remounted, drew back hats in hand and so sat with the others looking out at the colossal and silent boatman with its singular freight, Was he rowing to reach the rock where the corpse had been seen loaded down in the water with chains? Would he not go on, on, on, anywhere and escape these brutal and blind followers, who believed him a saint engaged in maintaining the Church of Jesus Christ?

But these men did not doubt for a moment. They sat their horses in a crescent about the head of the lake and looked on tranquil silent, reverential, waiting with certainty the signal of death.

Never tell there such a silence. Never was there such a murder as this. Far away above the gleeming towers of snow the stars stood trembling. The moon began to hasten away and slide swiftly down in the west behind the hill on which we stood, as if terrified and refusing to be a witness.

The man saw that the moon was going away, and he dipped his oars with rapid and heavy stroke. The water shone, sparkled, flashed in the moon. The oars dug into the heavy water as if dipping into a sea of molten silver,

The boat struck the rock! You could hear it grate and grind, all was so still.

The giant stood up in the boat a second, then with his broad right hand slowly drew back the covering and looked down as it into a face in the coffin. He was so tall his form seemed like a tree. He cast a black and frightful shadow far over the sea of silver in the fading moonlight. The mounted Danites loomed up in the mirage larger than historic statues, At last the collossal figure leaned over and caught up something long and heavy from the coffin stood up tall and terrible with it poised in air, high above his head in his two mighty hands. He poised it there a momemt, dallied with it, heaved his great heavy shoulders, arched his long strong back, surged to and fro in the failing silvery moonlight and then with vehement force threw it forward into the dark water with all the tremendious power that was in him.

The waters dashed up, gleaming like a sunrise, closed over and all was still again in the heart of the great dark waters of death.

A hand was lifted to us from the nearest horseman, and we passed on over the hill right in the face of the great round moon now sitting down to rest in the far-off Sierras, and I never saw the place again for twenty years or more.

And when I did return I came from London to write up the trial of Brigham Young, who was then being tried for his life for complicity in murder like this.

By good fortune I found an old friend of mine was the Governor of the Territery. We searched this spot for the skeletons; but, as before observed, the lake had so filled that, while we found the buried rock and little island, we found nothing more.

I told a Mormon elder this story, and he earnestly assured me that all we had seen of the end was the mirage—a delusion; that the missionary did not drown the girl, but had taken this course to save the girl from the Danites; that he had left the girl in the willows, to fall in with the next train that came by, while he had thrown only his bag of bread or something of that sort with the chains about it into the black waters o' the great lake. Let us hope so at least.

THE END.

VERY REMARKABLE RECOVERY.

Mr. Geo. V. Willing, of manchester, Mich., writes: 'My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone, She used two Bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved that she is able now to do her own work.'

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of tastamonials attest their curative powers. Only fifty cents a bot at R. Templeton's

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wastby giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5,00, addressed to Jas, Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and [illegible] their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In [illegible] way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Advertising Cheats!!!

'It has become so common to write the beginning of an article, in an elegant, interesting manner,

'Then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such.

'And simply call attention to Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,

'To induce people

'To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else.'

'The REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,

'Religious and secular, is

'Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines.

'There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness

'And ability

'In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.'

Did She Die?

'No

'She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years'

'The doctors doing her no good;'

'And at last was cured by Hop Bitters the papers say so much about.'

'Indeed! Indeed!

'How thankful we should be for that medicine.'

A Daughter's Misery.

'Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery,

'From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility,

'Under the care of the best physicians

Who gave her disease various names,

'But no relief,

'And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters that we had shunned for years before using it.'—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

'My daughters say:

'How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters.'

'He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable'

'And we are so glad that he used your Bitters.' A LADY OF UTICA, N. Y.

HOARSENESS AND FAILURE of voice from congestion of the vocal cords follicular disease of the fauces, or minister's sore throat, are often the result of bronchial troubles, extending up the trachea and larynx, affecting the whole mucous tract of the air passages. These diseases are the outcome or expression of nerve depility and blood impoverishment from overworking the system and excessive use of the organs involved. Here constitutional treatment is required to restore nutrition and nerve power, and WHEELER'S Phosphates and Calisaya has been successfully used by singers and public speakers.

ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL

THE VOLTAIC BELT Co., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above,—N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty days' trial is allowed.

SPIRITUALISM AN IMPOSTURE.

Dr. Talmage's Sermon, Preached Last Sunday Morning, April 27.

"There shall not be found among you any consulter with familiar spirit, or a wizard, or a necromancer, for all that do these things are an abomination unto the Lord."—Deut. 18; 10 12.

We are surrounded by mystery. Before us, behind us, to the right of us, to the left of us, mystery. There is a vast realm unexplored that science, I have no doubt, will yet map out. He who explores that realm will do the world more service than did ever a Columbus or an Americo Vespucci. There are so many things that cannot be accounted for, so many sounds and appearances which defy acoustics and investigation, so many things approximating to the spectral, so many effects which do not seem to have a sufficient cause. The wall between the spiritual and the material is

A VERY THIN WALL.

That there are communications between this world and the next world there can be no doubt, the spirits of our departed going from this world to that, and, according to the Bible, ministering spirits coming from that to this. I do not know but that some time there may be complete and constant and unmistakable lines of communication opened between this world and the next.

To unlatch the door between the present state and the future state all the fingers of superstition have been busy. We have books entitled "Footfalls on the Boundaries of Other Worlds;" "The Debatable Land Between this World and the Next;" "Researches Into the Phenomena of Spiritualism," and whole libraries of hocuspocus enough to deceive the very elect. I shall not take time this morning to rehearse the history of divination, Delphic Oracle, sybil or palmistry, or the whole centuries of imposture.

proposes to open the door between this world and the next, and put us into communication with the dead. It has never yet offered one reasonable credential. There is nothing in the intelligence or the character of the founders of Spiritualism to commend it. All the wonderful things performed by Spiritualism have been performed by sleight of hand and rank deception.

I hold in my hand a specimen of spiritualistic photography—Spiritualists bringing up the dead, and then clothing them in bodies somewhat similar to the bodies they once had but somewhat shadowy. Here are photographs. This of an editor who calls back a dead editress. She comes clothed in materialization, her cheek against his forehead. The picture of the living and the picture of the dead. And all these pictures. One I cannot show you, for it is of Christ. Men have rushed in, as one man from this church went behind the scenes, and he found the masks and the false hair and all the apparatus for building up a body. In all cases a swindle

The first leading remark I have to make in regard to Spiritualism is that it is,

A VERY OLD DOCTRINE.

Do you want to know the origin and the history of that which has captured so many in all our towns a cities, a doctrine with which some of you are tinged? Spiritualism in America was born in 1847, in Hydesville, Wayne County, New York, where one night there was a rapping at the door of Michael Weekman, and a second rapping at the door and a third rapping at the door, and every time the door was opened there was no one there. Proof positive that they were invisible knuckles that rapped at the door. In that same house there was a man who felt a cold hand pass over his forehead, and there was no arm attached to the hand. Proof positive it was spiritualistic influence.

After a while, Mr. Fox with his family moved into the house, and then they had bangings at the door every night. One night Mr. Fox cried out, 'Are you a spirit?' Two raps—answer in the affirmative. 'Are you an injured spirit?' Two raps—answer in the affirmative. Then they knew right away that it was the spirit of a peddler who had been been murdered in that house years before, and who had been robbed of his $500. Whether the spirit of the peddler came back to collect his $500 or his bones I do not know. But from that time on there was a constant around the premises, and the excitement spread all over the land. All these are matters of history. People said: 'Well, now, we have a new religion.' Ah! it 's

NOT A NEW RELIGION.

In all ages there have been necromancers, those who consulted with the spirits of the departed—charmers who threw people into a mesmeric state, sorcerers who by eating poisonous herbs can see everything, hear everything, and tell everything, astrologers who found out a new dispensation of the stars, experts in palmistry who can tell by the lines in the palm of your hand your origin, your history and your destiny. You want to know of these things. He says in one place: 'Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live.' And lest you should make two wide a margin between Spiritualism and witchcraft, He groups them together in the text and says: 'There shall not be found among you any consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard, or a necromancer, for all that do these things are an abomination unto the Lord.' And then the still more remarkable passage which says: 'The soul that turneth after such as have familiar spirits, and after wizards, to go a whoring after them I will even set my face against that soul, and will cut him off from among his people;' and a score of passages showing that God never speaks of these evils in any other way than with living thunders of indignation. After all that, be a Spiritualist if you dare!

Another remark I have to make in regard to Spiritualism is, that, it takes advantage of people when they are weak and morbid with trouble. We lose a friend. The house is dark, the world is dark, the future is seems dark. If we had in our rebellion and in our weakness the power to marshal a host and recapture our loved one from the next world, we would marshal the host. Oh how we long to speak with the dead. Spiritualism comes in at that moment. when we are all worn out, perhaps by six weeks' or two months' watching, all worn out body, mind and soul, and says, 'now, I will open the door, you shall hear the voice; take your place around the table; all be quiet now.' Five minutes pass away, no response from the next world. Ten minutes, fifteen minutes, twenty minutes. Nervous system all the more agitated. Thirty minutes; no response from the next world. Forty minutes pass, and the table begins to shiver. Then the medium sits down, his hand is twitching, and the pen and the ink and the paper having been provided he writes out the message for the next world. What is remarkable that these spirits after being in the illumination of heaven, some of them for years, forget how to spell right. People who were excellent grammarians come back and with their first sentence smash all the laws of English grammar! I received such a letter. I happened to know the man that signed it. It was a miserable spelled letter. I sent it back with the remark, 'you just send word to those spirits they had better go to school and study orthography.' It comes in time of weakness and overthrows the soul. Now just think of spirits enthroned in heaven coming down to crawl under a table, and break crockery, and ring the bell before supper is ready, and rattle the shutters on a gusty night.

Another remark I have to make in regard to Spiriturlism is, that it is AN AFFAIR OF THE NIGHT.

The Davenports, the Foxes, the Fowlers and the mediums prefer the night, or, if is in the daytime, a darkened room. Why? Because deception is more successful in the night. Some of the things done in Spiritualism are not frauds but are to be ascribed to some occult law of nature which will after a while be demonstrated; but nine hundred and ninety-nine out of a thousand of their feats are arrant and unmitigated humbug. All the mediums of the past did their work in the night. Witch of Endor held her seance in the night. Deeds of darkness. Away with this religion of spooks.

Another remark I have to make in regard to Spiritualism is that it

RUINS THE PHYSICAL HEALTH.

Look in upon an audience of Spiritualists. Cadaverous, pale, worn out, exhausted. Hands cold and clammy. Nothing prospers but long hair—soft marshes yield rank grass. Something startling going through the room, clothed in white. Table fidgety as though to get it's feet loose and dance. Voices sepulchral. Rapping mysterious. I never knew a confirmed Spiritualist who had a healthy nervous organization. It is the [illegible] of epilepsy or catilepsy. I have noticed that people who hear a great many rappings from the next world have not much strength to endure the hard-raps of this. Spiritualism is a martial and social curse. Deeds of darkness and orgies of obscurity have transpired under its wing. I cannot tell you the story. I will not polute my tongue or your ear with the recital. Enough to know that the criminal courts have often been called to stop the criminality. How many families have been broken up here in Brookly and throughoughout the United States! Women by the hundreds have by Spiritualism been pushed off into a life of profligacy. It employs all that phraseology about 'spiritual affinities,' and 'affinital relation.' and 'spiritual matches,' and the whole vocabulary of free love. It is at war with the marriage relation. I read you from one of their prominent papers where it says: 'Marriage is the monster cause of civilization.' The Spiritualist paper goes on to say: 'Marriage controls education, is the fountain of selfishness, the cause of intemperance and debauchery, the source and aggravation of poverty, the prolific mother of disease and crime. The society we want is men and women living in freedom, sustaining themselves by their own industry, dealing with each other in equity respecting each other's sovereignty and governed by their attractions. If Spiritualism had full swing it would turn this world into a pandemonium of carnality. It is an unclean and an adulterous religion, and the sooner it goes down to the pit from which it came up, the better for earth and heaven. For the sake of man's honor and woman's purity let it perish. I wish I could gather up all the raps it has ever heard from spirits blessed or damned on its own head in one thundering rap of annihilation. Spiritualism also produces insanity. There is not an asylum from Bangor to San Fransisco where there are not the torn and bleeding victims of Spiritualism.

What did Judge Edmonds say in Broadway Tabernacle, New York, while making argument in behalf of Spiritualism himself having been fully captured. What did Judge Edmonds say? He admitted this: 'There is a fascination about consultation with the spirits of the dead that has a tendency to lead people off from their right judgment and to instil into them a fanaticism that is revolting to the natural mind.'

Spiritualism not only ruins its disciples but it ruins its mediums. Another remark I have to make in regard to Spiritualism is, that it

RUINS THE SOUL.

It first makes a man quarter of an infidel, then it makes him half an infidel, then it makes him a full infidel. The whole system is built on the insufficiency of the Bible as a revelation. If God is ever struck squarely in the face it is when men sit at a table, put their hands on the table and practically say: 'come, you spirits of the departed and make a revelation in regard to the future world which the Bible has not made. Come father, come mother companion in life, my children, come, tell me something about that future world which the Bible is not able to tell me. Although the Bible says he that adds a word to it shall be found a liar, men are all the time getting these revelations or trying to get them from the next world. You will either, my brother, my sister, you will either have to give up the Bible or give up Spiritualism. No one ever for a very great length of time kept both of them.

I received a letter yesterday from a gentleman saying he was a Christian and a Spiritualist, and that he had been brought up under the excellent teaching of Theodore Parker, a worse infidel than Tom Paine because Tom Paine never pretended to be anything but an infidel. I can understand how a man brought up under Theodore Parker can believe Spiritualism or anything else.

How do I know that Spiritualist is antagonistic to the Christian religion? I know it by the fact that Spiritualists call up the spirits of those who believed in the Christian religion here, but coming now from the next world denounce it. They call up for instance, as I have evidence to show, Lorenza Dow, the evangelist, What does he do? Coming at their call he denounces all Christians as idolaters. They call up Tom Paine. He says he is stopping at the same house with John Bunyan! They call up John Wesley who denounces Christianity, coming from the spiritual world, although all his life he preached it. Andrew Jackson Davis, the chief of their apostles, says that the New Testament is a dismal echo of a barbaric age. In another place he says the Bible is a

SHALL WE LET THE CHILD DIE?

A hard-hearted political economist, looking at a pale and puny child feebly gasping as it lies upon a pillow, says that the child might as well die. It is so weak and poor that its life will never be worth much anyhow. There are already a good many people in the world who are of not much account anyhow. And what's the use of adding to their number another weakling, who has but slender chance of ever amounting to anything?

Now ask that child's mother what she thinks about letting the child die. About this time the hard political economist had better get out of the way. Let my child die? No! No! As long as there is a remedy to be found that will save that child, the child shall not die! I'll spend my last dollar to save the child!' Well try a bottle of Shaker's Blood Syrup on that child. See the poor fellow pick up strength. He revives. He will live. Hosts of other children hads been brought almost from death to healthy life by The Shaker Blood Syrup. Your druggist sells it.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the error and indiscretion of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood &c., I will send a receipt, that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. THE DAILY ONTARIO.

ONTARIO'S HUMILIATION.

The vetoing of the License Fees Act is thus spoken of by the Hamilton Times:—"Without Provincial self-government, the Confederation scheme is not worth retaining; it is an injury to Ontario. Lord Carnarvon said:

> The constitution of Canada does not contemplate any interference with Provincial legislation, on a subject within the competence of the Local Legislature, by the Dominion Parliament, or, as a consequence, by Dominion Ministers.

The Imperial Privy Council has said that the Local Legislature has the right to legislate on the license question. Sir John Macdonald, a Dominion Minister, disallows the local legislation, because its quality does not please him. Thus he flies in the face of Lord Carnarvon, who passed the B. N. A. Act, and of the Imperial Privy Council, which interprets it. Are we Canadians to be governed by the laws made by our representatives, or are we the bound subjects of an arbitrary old man who defies the laws and demands that we shall obey his caprices? It is time to test this disallowance business. The Mowat Government should enforce the law, though it has been disallowed at Ottawa for there is no warrant in the Constitutional Act of 1867 to justify such disallowance."

The Globe in a temperate article yesterday says:—"The people of this Dominion, we are certain, believe in the principle of Provincial autonomy, and are thoroughly determined that there shall be local control and only local control of local affairs. If the power of disallowance in the hands of an unscrupulous and partizan Federal Administration can be constitutionally abused, then the constitution that allows it must be amended So far at least as Ontario is concerned, forbearance has ceased to be a virtue. It is true the disallowance of this Act makes little practical difference. Before any one can take out a Dominion License he has yet to pay the regular license imposed by the laws already in force to the Province, and after he has got his license, unless he takes out a Provincial license as well, will find himself at once prosecuted and fined. But all that is not to the point. The Act passed was strictly within Provincial jurisdiction, and no good and valid constitutional reason can be given even as an excuse for its disallowance." The article concludes:—"It is high time every thoughtful man in this Dominion were carefully considering the consequences of these aggressions under the present Ottawa Government by the Federal authorities upon the rights of the Provinces. They can not continue. They must cease or Confederation must cease. Those who from the merest partisan causes thus systematically violate Provincial rights are sapping the foundations on which the structure of our whole Dominion rests."

THE NEW HEALTH ACT.

The Ontario Health Act of 1884 is a comprehensive bill giving large powers to the new local Boards of Health which are to consist of the Mayor and six rate payers. The clerk of the council is to be secretary and the council may (not shall) appoint and pay a Medical Health Officer and a Sanitary Inspector. The Board has authority to order the abatement of nuisances and the removal of any objectionable matter, and the cleaning of any place, and enforce its authority by directing that the thing shall be done and the expense recovered by distress, the same as taxes. When the order involves an expenditure of over $100, there may be an appeal to the County Judge. When anyone complains to the Board the matter shall be immediately investigated, and every Board, or any two of its members shall have the same authority as a Justice of the Peace to require and compel the attendance of witnesses They may also direct the destruction of any bedding or other articles exposed to infection. Penalties are provided for infractions of the Act.

Every one speaks highly of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters as a Stomach Liver and Kidney Medicine. 'The best family medicine we ever used,' say they all. Try a bottle this Spring as a blood purifier.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

The Executive Committee met last night Ald. Diamond, Chairman, presiding, and passed the accounts before the other Committee mentioned in yesterday's ONTARIO. The recommendation from the Board of Works to open McDonald Street was left in abeyance. Ald. Diamond was apposed to the city taking any action in this matter at present and the Solicitor agreed with him for the reason that in all probability if the street was opened it would involve a law suit. It was stated that Mr. Jas. F. Chisholm who owned property in that vicinity had consented to open the street as soon as he had made some repairs. Two printing accounts were passed. Ald. Pope introduced the question of asking for a grant to ascertain cost of bridge or permanent roadway from the foot of Dundas Street to Mill Island, and the Committee decided to first obtain the consent of the Government before making any expenditures. Mr. Pope informed the Committee that Mr. Hamell, Government engineer, was in favor of having a permanent roadway across to the Island, as in his opinion it would materially benefit the harbour, and shut out the debris which annually lodges there through the channel.

Every [illegible] who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate pegree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrup and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never of propriety and judiciously administered. Prepared by Northrup & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all druggists.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

FLATTERY, says Goldwin Smith, in the estimation of all people of sense, is an insult more intolerable even than condescension.

THE Presbyterians are to be congratulated on the success of the movement for the augmentation of minister's stipends. An united church can accomplish much.

THE TORONTO Telegram finds it odd that twenty-four jurymen are necessary to the finding of a true bill. It is odd, in view of the fact that fifteen of the Grand Jury can find a true bill.

IF IT IS TRUE that Lord Lorne proposes that the idle and worthless of East London shall be shipped off to Canada then it is time Sir Charles Tupper was attending to his business as High Commissioner.

THE KINGSTON News wouldn't object to Gen. Luard's successor disliking "persons and things colonial" if he had the grace to conceal his dislike until his term expired. That is to say our contemporary would prefer a hypocritical snob to a man who honestly speaks his mind.

MR. DAVIS, an Indian chief, says the Indians have exhausted their patience in waiting for the fulfilment of Sir John's promises to investigate their grievances, and so accustomed have they become to his procrastination that he has been christened "Ruxton Oiauchloughi" which, being interpreted, meaneth "Old To-morrow."

"Bessie Bramble" settles the corset question in this emphatic style:—The papers have broken out against women's corsets, but this is about the regular time of year for that. Women have lived and loved and had a right nice time in corsets for many happy years, and they do not propose to give them up at the dictum of any man or set of men. However, if it does the men any good to talk about them, why let them keep it up and enjoy themselves.

MR. GREENAWAY, a leading member of the Provincial Legislature in Manitoba in a speech on Provincial rights said referring to Sir John's tergiversation that there was a limit to endurance and if something was not done speedily he would not blame the citizens for revolting. He would even go so far as to say that Manitoba would be better as a crown colony than she was at present. With $1,500,000 derived from custom duties Manitoba could easily run her own affairs. This is pretty strong talk.

THE SUPREME COURT of Iowa refused to grant a divorce to a woman with a drunken husband for the following reasons: "She does not show that her personal safety or even her well-being requires her to leave him. She doubtless would have lived more comfortably in the society of a sober man, but she ought to have considered, and doubtless did consider the discomforts of a drunken husband when she married the defendant. But, she urged, he promised reformation before marriage. His failure to keep his promise did not justify her in deserting him. All the world knows that such promises made by a drunken man are always broken. In a few words, as she knowingly married a drunkard, she must be content to be a drunkard's wife."

ELECTRIC LIGHT COMPANY.

The first contracts for the electric lights on Front Street expired last night, but they will not be taken down. A local company is to be organized with a capital of $10,000 in 1,000 shares of $10 each, to continue supplying the light to a much larger number than have hitherto used it. Already the following firms have contracted for the light:—Brignall & Thompson 4, Dickens & Sanderson 2, T. Bayeur 1, J. Jenkins 1, Joseph Soby 1, B A Gibson 1, Lazier & Meyers 2, J. Clarke & Co. 1, J. McGuire 1, Geo. S. Stirling 1, Huffman & Balkwell 1, A L Geen 1, C McDonald 1, A. E. Fish & Co. 1, Geo. Ritchie & Co. 2, Wm. Smeaton 1, and others. There is no doubt the shares of the company will be in demand and that the investment will pay. At present the plant will only supply about 37 lights and these will it is expected be all called for. It is thought that inside of a year's time there will be a hundred lights.

John R. Vert, Hamilton, says: McGregor's Speedy Cure for Dyspepsia and Indigestion is cheap at fifty times the price asked for it. BURGLARS IN AMELIASBURG.

Rednerville was visited again last night by burglars. They broke into Mr. Henry Cunningham's grocery and Wm. Rose's blacksmith shop. The latter lost two bags of potatoes. An attempt was also made to break into Mr. J. S. Johnston's place at Roblin's Mills, but he frightened them away before raising the window. At Dr. File's office the till was broken open and a small amount of silver stolen.

A DOUBLE BENEFIT.

James Moore, a prominent resident of Leamington, writes that he cured himself of Dyspepsia of a year's duration by one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and two bottles cured his wife who had been for two years a sufferer from the same disease. SPORTING NOTES.

In the walking match at New York yesterday the score at 10 a.m. was:—

Fitzgerald	483	Herty	428
Rowell	465	Elson	403
Vint	442	Panchot	431
Noremac	438

Rowell yesterday had fallen hopelessly behind Fitzgerald. Nothing seems to have ell's lead seemed perfectly safe. It seems gone particularly wrong with him, the better performance of Fitzgerald seeming to be simply the result of greater physical power. Up to Wednesday morning Row-Rowell, however, is gaining on Fitzgerald. It is said that Fitzgerald complained of sickness during last night, and it is predicted he will not last much longer. His appearance seems to favour this supposition. But his trainer says Rowell will have to make 640 miles to beat him. At 1 a.m. this morning the score stood.

Fitzgerald	536	Rowell	525
Vint	482	Noremac	494
Herty	485	Panchot	497
Elson	455	Nitaw	157

CRUSHED BY THE CARS.

A little son of John Spinks, Toronto, had his foot crushed by a G. T. R. Express train some time ago. Two doctors attended him without benefit, and amputation was proposed, but Hagyard's Yellow Oil was tried, which gave prompt relief and effected a speedy cure even removing all stiffness of the joint.

BOARD OF TRADE.

Organization on a firm Basis of this Important Body.

PRACTICAL ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT.

A meeting of the Board of Trade was held in the Council Chamber last night, the President, Mr, Thos. Ritchie in the chair. Those present were: Mayor Dunett, Ald. Macoun, Tickell, Pope, Cooper, J, W, Johnson, Col. Brown, H. Corby, A. N. Reid. Thos. Muir, C. F. Smith, W. Smeaton, J. Thompson, F. H, Rouse, S.G. Retallack, P. J. Shannon and T. L. Bayeur.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The President in his inaugireal address said that the importance and influence of such associations as this have been fully recognized in Canada as well as in Great Britain and the United States, and under an Act of the Dominion Parliament very considerable powers are given to any choosing to register according to statute, such as establishing a Board of Arbitrators with power to examine witnesses under oath and to give judgment in matters of commercial dispute, and appoint inspectors of grain and other produce. The chief object of a Board of Trade is to consider all questions pertaining to financial, commercial and industrial interests, and legislation on these. The Local Boards deal of course, chiefly with matters of local interest, but representatives of the several Boards throughout the country constitute the Dominion Board of Trade, which deals with the subjects in a wider for more national aspect.

The advantages which may result to the community from a thoroughly organized Local Board are manifest, For instance we can act unitedly and with definite aim in regard to railways and navigation Our railway system to the north is not by any means what could be desired. Belleville, is the natural outlet for the products of the Northern townships, yet we find, though we have expended large sums of money in this direction, the traffic is finding an outlet to the east and west of us, to the detriment of this city. Now, while I hope we are too magnanimous to be jealous of the prosperity of neighboring towns, yet it is culpable in us to neglect or be independent to what ought naturally to minister to our own prosperity.

Navigation also on our waters with proper attention can be made to aid more largely toward the commercial interest of the city than it has hitherto done, and in the simple matter of Ferry communication between us and the neighboring county we could greatly facilitate things and prevent complications. I observe that in Toronto and other places many matters of this kind relating to trade are referred to the Board of Trade for decision. Again it is desirable to obtain statistics as to the trade of the locality, the quantity and kind of material and artificial products, how they are marketed and the prices obtained. It has been stated whether true or not, that the grain market here is not operated in a satisfactory manner, and it is within our province to enquire into such matters, and to see that the channels of trade are not directed from us by any improper means, and to secure as far as possible integrity in all transactions. It will also be our duty to foster manufacturing industries already here and to use all legitimate means to establish new ones, and to develop our resources in every available direction. Further it comes within our sphere to watch legislation as it affects customs and excise—to take into consideration the law in respect to debtor's estates and the distribution of assets, and to make our views and opinions known to the Legislature.

There are many ether matters which will readily suggest themselves, of which we ought to take cognizance, for example the use and abuse of credit, the relation of labor and capital, and generally what concerns the system of business, to remove everything that is in any wise pernicious or harmful to trade and to promote what is healthful and sound. Another not unimportant result which may be attained in this association, is a better understanding among commercial men. causing the wheels of trade to revolve with less friction, As a rule there is as much honor and magnanimity among those engaged in trade and commerce in their relations to one another as in any other calling, and in this County perhaps more than those following the professions or agriculture, but notwithstanding this we all feel that there is yet considerable room for improvement and by coming together at stated intervals to make common cause for the public welfare there will arise a sort of unwritten code by which even such as may be disposed to do wrong or injustice to a competitor will be restrained.

In conclusion I may be permitted to suggest that inasmuch as this Board as at present constituted is not exactly in accord with the terms of the Act we reorganize so as to bring ourselves entirely in line with the requirements of the law.

MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS.

Five new members of the Council were appointed which with the others selected at the previous meeting constitute the managing committee as follows: Ald. Pope, G. P. Downey, Col. Brown, Ald. Macoun, J. P. Thomas, Ald. Tickell, T. Watkin, W.Smeaton, Mayor Dunett and Thos. Kelso. The Secretary, Mr. I. P. Thomas, was authorized to proceed with the legal incorporation of this Board.

THE GRAIN TRADE.

Ald. Pope referred to the grain trade which had gradually been leaving Belleville and seeking a market elsewhere. Perhaps the grain of this section found a natural outlet at other points along the bay and perhaps not. He suggested the appointment of a Committee to investigate the cause of the grain trade diverting from Belleville.

Mr. H. Corby favored the appointment of grain inspectors and Inspectors of warehouses if Messrs. Downey & Preston would consent to having their warehouse a public one and subject to inspection by officers of the Board. It is impossible to induce outside buyers to come here unless this is done. In the past people who stored their grain in warehouses would receive a No. 1 ticket for No. 2 barley, making a difference of six or seven cents a bushel and the shipper would get second grade barley for the first-class barley he had bought.

Ald. Pope—That's just the point.

The President said he understood that Messrs Downey & Preston were anxious to have the Board appoint an inspector.

Mr. Corby was also of the same opinion, but if they did not wish to make their warehouse public he thought perhaps the Midland Railway would complete the one which they undertook to build some time ago. On motion of Mayor Dunnett, Messrs. Cooper, Corby, Pope, and Downey were appointed to investigate the matter.

The number of new members is forty-seven. The membership list will be left open for another month.

The Board then adjourned.

At a meeting of the Toronto ministerial association, Rev, G. M. Milligan, M. A, read a paper on Modern Preaching. He maintained that the power of the pulpit was not on the decline, and advocated biblical, christological exegetical and extemporaneous style of preaching as best suited to the needs of the age.

Dr. W, J. Beecher, of Auburn Theological Seminary tells his students that, when he began reading religious newspapers there were plenty of leaders of religious thought who were strenously affirming that, unless the earth and skies were fitted up in their present shape in the space of 144 hours by the clock, the Bible was a lie, and all religion was a fraud. "To-day," he says. "nearly every one is convinced that the process of bringing our system into being lasted through long periods of time, and that this view is entirely consistent with the Bible and with all sacred truths"

Mr. John Magwood, Victoria Road, writes: 'Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure is a splendid medicine. My customers say they never used anything so effectual, Good results immediately follow its use. I know its value from personal experience having been troubled for 9 or 10 years with dispepsia, and since using it digestion goes on without that depressed feeling so well known to dyspeptics. I have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of Indigestion, Constipation, Heartburn, or any trouble arising from a disordered stomach.

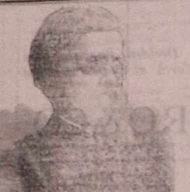
Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Whenever the blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of an prevailing epedemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished power should be these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce all erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, billiousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. The fruit season is especially prone to produce irritation of the bowels and disorder of the digestive organs; both of which dangerous conditions can be completely removed by Holloway's corrective medicines.

Holloway's Ointment, and Pills.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally and the Ointment rubbed externally are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, surest. Holloway's Pills and Ointment purify the blood, remove obstructions to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the overgorged air tubes, and render respiration free without reducing the strength irritating the nerves, or depressing the [illegible]. Such as the ready means of saving [illegible] when afflicted with colds, coughs, [illegible] other complaints by which so many [illegible] ously and permanently afflicted in mos[t] tries.



THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. [I] am satisfied the medicine is not injurious [and] will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use [th]is preparation. The truth is, the medical profession stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of those happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

A FULFILLED PROPHECY.

I believe this sermon under God will save from disease and death and darkness and doom. I think we have come to the time spoken of by the Apostle when he says: 'In the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits.' And I think never so much as now the words of my text need to be rung in all the churches: 'There shall not be found among you any consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard, or a necromancer, for all that do these things are an abomination unto the Lord.'

I invite you a Christian seance—not a midnight but a noonday seance. This whole church is a family. Here is the table. Put the Bible on the table. Then let us put our hands on the Bible and listen if we can catch a voice from the next world. The answer comes: 'The secret things belong unto the Lord our God; but those things which are revealed belong to us and to our children forever.' That is a voice from the next world. Before you quit this Christian seance I want you to promise that you will trust in the Word of God as it is until the light of the eternal world flashes upon us.

Do not stir at a worldly seance either in fun or earnest. Have your tables so well made that they will not tip. If the table must move have it move under the offices of industrious housewifery. Let your children know there are no ghosts except those that walk on two or four feet—human or bestial. Do not go to get somebody to tell your fortune. Tell your own fortune by putting your trust in God and doing your best. I will tell your fortune. 'All things work together for good to those that love God.' Do not insult your departed friends by asking them to come into a dark closet to cut up capers or crawl under the extension table. Remember there is only one spirit you have a right to invoke, and that is the grand, the glorious, the august, the holy, the Omnipotent Spirit of God that hovers this morning around your soul and that has been around you all your life long. That Spirit now moving upon your soul. Grieve Him not away. The voice dropping through the roof, coming in at the window, filling all this room from door to door and from floor to ceiling, with tender and overmastering intonation saying: 'My spirit shall not always strive.'

BALLADE OF A SWELL.

His forehead has fringes and decks
With carefully cut Montagues;
He angles his arms semi-X,
And dresses in delicate hues;
His haunts are the rich avenues;
Staccato is somewhat his gait;
It takes but a wink to amuse
His sadly impoverished pate.

His costumes are covered with checks;
He travels in taper-toed shoes
Through Vanity Fair, their to vex
The silly young heart that he woos;
He's clever with cards and with cues,
And banters with Fortune and Fate:
Alas that he cannot lose
His sadly impoverished pate!

He's fond of the frivolous sex;
His light conversation he strews
With 'taffy'; aught else would perplex
The topic his fancy pursues;
The cud of contentment he chews,
While women and wealth on him wait;
And nature with nothing endues
His sadly impoverished pate.

ENVOY.

Fair princesses, all who peruse
This ballade, beware ere too late,
Lest Opulence hear you abuse
His sadly impoverished pate!

Frank Dempster Sherman.

MISS BERYL McCLOSKEY'S LEAP YEAR EXPERIENCE.

'Do you really love me, Beryl?'

A pair of soft, lustrous eyes looked up inquiringly into the face of Harold Wyverne and over the sweet girlish face swept a wave of pallor, quickly followed by a sunny smile as she saw by the expression of Harold's face that his question had not been asked in seriousness.

'How you frightened me,' she said, nestling close beside him in the confiding, trustful way that is so characteristic of women when she is about to lay pipe for a new bonnet. 'If you had been in earnest Harold, I believe your words would have broken my heart——' and stepping to the other side of the conservatory into which they had wandered after the last waltz, she gazed steadfastly out into the deepening gloom of a November night.

'Poor little birdling,' said Harold to himself, 'how madly she loves me. My words, even tho' spoken in jest, have affected her strangely and she steals away for an instant to conceal the tears that cannot be restrained.'

Harald had never been arrested for knowing too much. He was a young man of singularly pure [illegible] and tight pants, and never once had there swept across the unflecked horizon of his lawn tennis and cigarette existence the cold, solid fact that after whirling in the dreamy measures of a waltz even the best of women love to steal awhile away and stand unostentatiously on the sides of their feet in order that their corns may throb untrammeled in all the buoyant gladness of a temporarily removed slipper.

'I knew you loved me, darling,' he said, drawing her close to his sky blue suspender and bending tenderly above the coronal of golden hair that her father had agreed to pay for the first of the month. 'I knew it full well, and it was wrong of me—very wrong—to cause you pain. Am I forgiven?'

For answer she twined her white gleaming arms about his neck, as he stood there a willing prisoner in those ampled fetters of love, she kissed him in the low, nonreverberating fashion she learned at Vassar.

'Yes,' she said, 'I do indeed love you, and when we are married I will prove that love by a test whose potency cannot be denied by those who scoff at wedded bliss. You will know that my love for you is not ephemeral passion for a day, but a deep, enduring current that flows on and on forever.'

'What is the test?' he asks.

'I shall,' she replied, 'never try to make biscuit.'—Chicago Tribune.

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure Mfg. Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

ROBLIN HOUSE,

Late Douglas House.

As the late proprietor of the Douglas House has removed to other premises and called it the New Douglas House, I beg to notify the public that I have reopened the Douglas House myself, under the name of the "ROBLIN HOUSE." As the house has always had the name of a First-Class Hotel, I shall spare no pains to make it as popular as it ever was. The above is pleasantly situated in the central part of the city, and is a very desirable place for Families and the Public generally. It has been thoroughly renovated and furnished with new furniture. A cordial invitation is given to all old patrons of the Douglas House, and all new ones who will favor me with a call.

Advertising Cheats!!!

'It has become so common to write the beginning of an article, in an elegant, interesting manner,

'Then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such.

'And simply call attention to Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,

'To induce people

'To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else.'

'THE REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,

'Religious and secular, is

'Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines

'There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness

'And ability

'In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.'

Did She Die?

'No

'She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years'

'The doctors doing her no good;'

'And at last was cured by Hop Bitters the papers say so much about.'

'Indeed! Indeed!

'How thankful we should be for that medicine.'

A Daughter's Misery.

'Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery,

'From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility.

'Under the care of the best physicians

'Who gave her disease various names,

'But no relief,

'And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters that we had shunned for years before using it.'
—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

'My daughters say:

'How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters.'

'He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable'

'And we are so glad that he used your Bitters.'
A LADY OF UTICA, N. Y.

THE EXPERIMENTS OF PROFS Dusart and Raife, of Paris, and D. Anderson, of London, and other eminent physiologists demonstrating the function of PHOSPHATES as exstants of nutrition and nerve power having brought these agents into general use, it ought not to be necessary to call the attention of invalids to WHEELER'S Phosphates and Calisaya, the best combination of these food elements, with Wild Cherry bark, in existence. Its value in prostrate conditions of the system is obvious and its prolonged use in obstinate cases that have resisted all ordinary treatment will clearly demonstrate its extraordinary merits.

ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL.

The VOLTAIC BELT Co., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above.—N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world Price 25 cents a bottle.

A PARRICIDE'S CONFESSION.

HOW A SON HELPED DELIBERATELY TO MURDER HIS FATHER.

Cicero B. Jellerton, 25 years old, living in Carroll county, Iowa, is under arrest, together with his two brothers-in-law, for the murder of his father, Hiram Jellerton, on Friday night. He was sworn and made a full confession of the murder in the presence of a large audience. He said:

I formerly resided at my father's home in Audubon county. The last time I saw father was on last Friday night. J. J. Wilson, John A. Symth, and I are the ones who did the murder. We left the residence in Carroll county at about 8 o'clock on Friday evening. Symth rode his own horse and Wilson and I rode his own horses. We tied our horses to trees a few rods northeast of the house. We stopped there and laid plans as to how we should proceed. Wilson took a rope which he had brought, and Symth and Wilson burst the door open. We all went inside, and then went to the bed and pulled father out.

Father said: 'Cicero, is that you?' Nobody answered. Mother said: 'No it is that John Symth.' We took him to the front room and choked him. One of my companions took the rope out of my hands and put it on father's neck. Father begged us not to hurt him. We started out doors with him and dragged him along by the neck. I had hold of the end of the rope and Symth and Wilson were behind. As we were dragging him along father said: 'Don't John, don't hurt me so.' Wilson stopped and tightened the rope and John and pulled him along.

When we got to a tree Symth tied one end of the rope over a limb and I helped pull father up. Wilson took hold and lifted him till he got him clear of the ground. When we got him up we tied his hands behind him and wound the rope around his body. I think he was about dead then, as he only kicked once or twice after we got him up. Wilson tore father's shirt open and tied it over his head. The shirt was the only clothing he had on. We stood around for a few minutes, and Symth and Wilson put on their overcoats, and we untied our horses, mounted them and rode off. We arrived at Wilson's at 4:30 Saturday morning. It was quite daylight.

We murdered father about midnight. We took our handkerchiefs and cut holes in them for our eyes, and wore them over our faces for masks. I threw mine into the stove and burned it when I got home. Wilson bought the rope that we used to hang father with at Coon Rapids a week ago last Saturday. They had been talking to me about hanging father for a week or ten days, but I objected and did not want to help do it. Symth came to Wilson's on Friday morning, and we agreed to go that night. They told me they would make away with me after they got back that night if I would not go along with them and help them, and John Symth said we had better go that night, as it was dark and the roads were good, and we could get back before morning. I told them we would get into trouble and would get arrested: but they said we could go and get back before daylight, and go to work in the morning as usual, and no one would mistrust us. I went against my will, but told them I would go, and they made arrangements where to meet and at about what time.

There was no light at John's house when we passed John said that he and his wife and hired man went to bed early, and after the others were asleep he got up and left. None of us had any arms that I knew of. They told me not to tell anything, but to deny everything. Wilson was the author of the whole business. He said that he was the man who was doing it.

Cicero's testimony coincides exactly with that of Mrs Jellerton at the inquest relative to the scene on the night of the murder. Everything about the place indicates that Cicero has told the exact truth Justice Rogers held him await the action of the Grand Jury, without bail. Symth and Wilson will have an examination on Wednesday.

Wilson bears a good name and character in Carroll County. His marriage with Lucy Jellerton was brought about through the influence of Smyth. They were married on Feb. 14, 1882. Cicero states that immediately after their marriage Wilson suspected that his wife had not always been virtuous. He accused her, and she frankly admitted it. This angered Wilson and he said that he would either leave her or kill the old man. She wanted him to do neither. He consulted with Smyth, and the tragedy of Friday was the result of the consultation.

Many believe that Smyth was the real party who got the girl or girls into trouble and caused them to charge it to the old man. The prisoners are in no danger from the citizens at present. Rumors that their friends in Carroll County would raise a mob and come down and liberate them caused a ripple of excitement, and has resulted in increased vigilance on the part of Sheriff Herbert, who has them behind three-inch iron doors. The people here will stand by him in the discharge of his duties. He will keep the gaol strongly guarded.

If a few Grains of Common Sense could be infused into the thick noddles of those who perpetually and alternately irritate their stomachs and bowels with drastic purgatives, they would use the highly accredited and healthful laxative and tonic Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, which causes good digestion to wait on appetite and health on both.

SHALL WE LET THE CHILD DIE?

A hard-hearted political economist, looking at a pale and puny child feebly gasping as it lies upon a pillow, says that the child might as well die. It is so weak and poor that its life will never be worth much anyhow. There are already a good many people in the world who are of not much account anyhow. And what's the use of adding to their number another weakling, who has but slender chance of ever amounting to anything?

Now ask that child's mother what she thinks about letting the child die. About this time the hard political economist had better get out of the way. Let my child die? No! No! As long as there is a remedy to be found that will save that child, the child shall not die! I'll spend my last dollar to save the child!' Well try a bottle of Shaker's Blood Syrup on that child. See the poor fellow pick up strength. He revives. He will live. Hosts of other children have been brought almost from death to healthy life by The Shaker Blood Syrup. Your druggist sells it.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the error and indiscretion of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood &c., I will send a receipt, that will cure you FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self addressed envelope to the Rev. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City. d&w

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

BRITISH PARLIAMENTARY REPRESENTATION.

There are 658 members of the Commons when all the constituencies are represented. Of these England returns 493, Ireland 105 and Scotland 60. But if the principle of representation by population were observed, the House would stand thus:—

	Population.	Members.
England and Wales	26,762,974	494
Scotland	2,825,744	71
Ireland	5,042,572	93
Total	35,631,290	658

If the three kingdoms were represented according to the amount of revenue collected from each, England would have 510 members, Ireland 77 and Scotland 71. If expenditure as well as taxation were taken into account, that is if the net revenue from each country was the basis, Scotland would gain 11 members while Ireland would lose 28. The prime absurdity in the present system, however, is found in the borough representation. There are 79 Scotch boroughs with 211,000 electors returning 26 members, while 31 Irish boroughs with 58,000 electors return 37 members. Fifteen of these Irish boroughs, each returning a member, contain only 4,600 electors, being one member for every 310 voters, while the average number of electors for each English member is over 52,000. These and similar inequalities Mr. Gladstone undertakes to level up in the redistribution bill.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

WHEN the Roman Catholic editor of the Mail mounts the Protestant horse there must be some new scheme at Ottawa.

MR. JOHN STERLING, of Maxwell, County Grey, in a letter to the Flesherton Advance, predicts that Ontario will be overrun by Fenians during the first week in June next. All right. The volunteers will be then in their best condition.

NEW YORK is a great city but it cannot support two star opera houses. Unless the directors and stockholders of the academy of music have paid the bank the $22,000 that they permitted Col. Mapleson to draw over his account the impressario's effects were sold by the sheriff to-day.

FREQUENTLY the Mail gets a drive at those many Conservatives who disapprove of its course. On Friday, referring to the Conservatives who thought its course towards the Mowat Government was "too severe" it says :—"They have been taught that our views are correct." So you see the editor looks upon his readers as pupils to be "taught" whether they like it or not.

THE MONTREAL correspondent of the Mail sends the following :—The exodus of French Canadians across the line, which has assumed larger proportions from here and Quebec this spring than for some years past, is causing more discussion than formerly, as people were looking more for the repatriation of those who had gone before, instead of the large emigration of 100 to 150 per day, composed chiefly of families now in progress from Montreal alone."

THE vocabulary of Wall Street eclipses in impenetrableness anything known to the uninitiated. A business obituary of James R. Keene, who dishonored his privileges, refers to him as follows :—"Being a large speculator he was all the time crippled in his movement by the puts and calls he had out. He was probably the most consistent and intelligent bear for the last two or three years, yet he did not dare to allow the market to go down too far out of fear that an avalanche of stock would come down upon him. The consequence was that he had to sustain the market by buying stocks, and, as prices went down notwithstanding his efforts, he had a mass of stock put to him besides."

John R. Vert, Hamilton, says: McGregor's Speedy Cure for Dyspepsia and Indigestion is cheap at fifty times the price asked for it. I am a commercial man, and travel continually, and would no more leave home without a bottle of McGregor's Speedy Cure in my valise than I would of leaving my team at home and going on foot.' Free trial bottles at A. L. Geen's wholesale and retail Drug Store. Regular Size fifty cents and one dollar.

AMERICAN SPARKS

Isaac McLain, of Hillsboro', Ill., who recently secured a divorce from his young wife, has married her mother, now 56 years of age.

Two women accosted a prominent business man in an Iowa town on Thursday, threw pepper into his eyes, inflicted a terrible horse whipping upon him, and then discovered that they had attacked the wrong individual.

The high license law in Chicago went in to effect last week. There is a decrease of 550 licenses issued as compared with last year. The revenue for the year will be a million more than last year.

Corns cause intolerable pain. Holloway's Corn Cure removes the trouble.

CABLE BREVITIES.

An English lady has offered £25,000 towards the relief of Gen. Gordon.

It is stated that the British Government will place $25,000,000 at the disposal of a commission to assist Irish peasants to become proprietors.

It is stated that violent quarrel between the Marquis of Salisbury and Lord Randolph Churchill has resulted in the latter resigning the chairmanship of the National Conservative Union.

The three suspected dynamiters, Daly, Egan, and MacDonnell, were arraigned at Birmingham on Saturday, and after some evidence had been given by detectives again remanded for a week. The prisoners, who appeared to realize the serious position in which they were placed, were strongly guarded inside the court, a strong force being also stationed outside.

The superiority of Mother Graves, Worm Exterminator is shown by its good effects on the children.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

A LOWER PROVINCE TRIBUTE.

Mr. Blake has not only fully justified the faith of his friends, but he has won the respect of his opponents, and to-day stands head and shoulders above any man in Canada in the respect and confidence of the people.—St. John Telegraph.

DISGUST AND INDIGNATION.

We might quote whole columns of this silly and disreputable language which the Mail is now daily using towards the venerable head of the Catholic Church in Ontario. In its stupid recklessness it has the audacity to assert that it is speaking the sentiments and has the sympathy and support of all the educated and respectable Catholics of Ontario. We have no hesitation in stating that there are not a score of Catholics, Conservatives or Liberals, who read its attack with feelings other than disgust and indignation.—Montreal Post.

THE WORST SIGN UNNOTICED.

Since Canada went into the railroad subsidy, protected tariff, and spread eagle business generally, the country has witnessed a good many things, surprising there, but quite familiar here. It has seen an enormous inflation of prices, great land booms, and a spasmodic and feverish prosperity, followed by prostration and collapse. It has seen the accumulation in three years of a score or more enormous fortunes by individuals who in 1881 were almost without means. It has seen gigantic robberies in the public treasuries and more official corruption than was ever known before. It has seen the growth of monopolies not only in lands but in manufactures, the success of selfish schemes under government protection, and the agents of such enterprises tampering with the Legislatures in order to fasten their grip still more closely upon the people. It has seen one Province almost in open revolt against the injustice of monopoly, and others uneasy and threatening. These may be only signs of the times, but it is much more likely they represent, as the same symptoms do in this country, the effects of the monopoly disease which pervades every legislative and executive body. It is easy for corrupt or foolish men to build up giant interests inimical to the people, but it is very difficult for honest men to divest them of their power for evil.—Chicago Herald.

SHIPWRECKED.

LOSS OF A NORWEGIAN SHIP AND 19 MEN OFF WOLF ISLAND.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 3.—A telegram from North Sydney, C. B., says that the ship Alestine, of Drammen, Norway, was wrecked five miles east of Wolf Island Station in the gale and snowstorm of the 18th ult. Nineteen lives were lost, the second mate being the only survivor. He speaks but little English.

ATLANTIC STEAMER LOST.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The agents of the State Line Steamship Company have received a despatch from Glasgow showing that the steamer State of Florida, which left New York for Glasgow, April 12th, was lost at sea. The despatch is as follows :—"The steamer Devon, from New York for Bristol, picked up April 27th, two life boats of the State of Florida without occupants or gear. A sailing vessel, bound West, signalled the steamer City of Rome, April 23rd, in lat. 46, long. 42, that she had the shipwrecked crew of a State Line steamer on board. The State of Florida was 4,002 tons burthen and was built at Glasgow in 1879.

MILITARY EXAMINATIONS.

The examinations for 1884 of candidates for cadetships in the Royal Military College of Canada, Kingston, will be held at the headquarters of the several military districts, on Tuesday, the 17th day of June.

The instructional year for the Schools of Military Instruction is divided into three "short courses" of three months each, commencing on 1st of January, April, and September.

THE COURSE HE WOULD TAKE.

(From French Fun.)

At a medical examination the professor said to the student : "I will suppose that a man has fallen into a deep excavation and broken his skull on one of the tools the workmen left there. You are summoned. What would you do?" "I would leave the man there and have the excavation filled up!"

CANADIAN NOTES.

Mrs. T. W. Jeffery, wife of the pastor of the Queen Street Methodist church, Toronto, died yesterday morning after a short illness.

A Detroit woman has recovered $8,000 from the Grand Trunk railway for the loss of her husband, who was run over and killed on the line.

A handsome gold medal, suitably inscribed, has been sent by President Arthur to the Governor-General for presentation to Captain Spalding, of Quebec, in recognition of his rescuing the master and crew of an American vessel.

An analysis of the cartridges found under the Parliament Buildings, Toronto, proves their contents to be dualin, an explosive more powerful than dynamite.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

Madame Lablache and her company, including Segnior Del Puente, have been engaged for an opera season of three nights in Toronto, beginning on Thursday, when she will repeat her triumph in Trovatore as Azucena and present the other two nights two acts each from Carmen and Mignon. The company, excepting Del Puente, sang on Saturday evening in Toronto to a well pleased audience.

Those attending the Vesper service at St. Michael's Cathedral last night were given a treat which will be remembered for many a long day. The celebrated contralto, Madame Lablache, visited that church with Signor Stagi and sang Fac et Partem, and the Signor sang Cujus Animam from Rossini's "Stabat Mater." Such sublime music has but seldom been heard in any church.

IN THE AUSTRALIAN BUSH

Sleeping Under the Blue Amid Kangaroos and Bears.

GREAT DROUGHT IN SOUTH WALES.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

LETTER NO. 16.

QUEANBEYAN, March 25.

The resplendant king of day clad in glorious golden panoply, was slowly retiring beyond the distant hills, when a solitary horseman was seen approaching, &c., &c., (for the remainder of this prelude vide dime novel). The 'distant hills,' in in this case were the mountains of New England, N.S.W., and the 'solitary horseman' was none other than 'Orion, the scribe.' The place he was approaching was peculiar. 'Twas naught but a bushman's hut, situate far from the busy haunts of men, in a broken defile in the mountains. My jaded beast, weary with fourteen hours travel, was fain to call a halt and I was not loath to follow suit. 'Could I get a bed and feed for my horse?' 'No bed, no horse feed !'. 'How far to next house ?' 'Fifteen miles.' 'Twas now dark and to proceed through the bush over an unknown road was more than I cared for, so taking a drink from the pool near by (Tanner lived forty days on water,) I sought repose beneath the stars, while my horse endeavored to appease his appetite on the dry grass in the vicinity. I fastened a cowbell to his neck so as to keep his whereabouts, and all night long my dreams were enhanced by the 'tintinnabulation of the bells,' the thud, thud of the kangaroo as he jumped by me in the darkness, or the peculiar grunting sound of the native bear in the tree tops above. There were opossums and dingoes, cockatoos and wallabies ; the entire woods seemed alive. I rather enjoyed it for the novelty of it and also the fifteen mile ride before breakfast next morning, but it is said to grow stale with time. I do not doubt it.

THE SCENERY

mountains on one side, river on the other—was grand and the myriad voices of parrots, magpies, cockatoos &c., filled the air with song. But as the sun climbed higher his rays grew stronger and the thermometer registered 110 ° in the shade. I have now, at this present writing, spent eight months in Australia, during which time I have ridden 1,700 miles by railway, 1,600 by coach and 225 on horseback, through the bush. All of Australia is bush. You are right in the midst of it five miles from Sydney. Excepting in a few districts there are no farms fenced in and tilled as in Canada, and only in the interior are there treeless plains ; all the rest of the country is covered with the never ending green trees (Eucalypti) stretching away to the horizon. These green trees never shed their leaves, which is a great blessing in this dry, burning land. In the spring when they doff their coat of bark the clean white trunks present a peculiar and somewhat ghastly appearance. Many are the trials and hardships endured by travelers in the bush and not unfrequently do the papers record the death from thirst or starvation (generally from the former) of some unfortunate wayfarer.

A GREAT DROUGHT.

New South Wales is at present passing through the most trying drought she has ever experienced. Hundreds of farmers and squatters are threatened with ruin. The bleaching bones of tens of thousands of sheep and cattle whiten the plains, while their putrefying bodies taint the air. The rivers are nearly all dried up and the largest of them have ceased to run and now are merely a succession of mud holes. Cattle and sheep come for many miles to these to drink, and being too weak to scarcely walk fall into the water and die. I have seen many such as these, and a fellow B. A. has just told me that he counted 300 in one hole. Frequently in riding in the coach we passed bullocks, horses and sheep dead or dying along the route. Some of the interior towns are deserted through lack of water, while in many places water is brought long distances by teams and the railways. Horses are not worth the cost of keeping and in many cases owners are offering to give them away. Teamsters can only take half a load being compelled to carry their water and feed with them. Fabulous prices are paid in the interior for all kinds of fruit, provisions and horse feed. For instance hay at Bourke is £90 per ton, it costing £30 per ton to be carried from Nyngan a distance of 120 miles. Board is 10 shillings per day, oranges one shilling each, eighteen pence for a wash at Wilcannia on the Darling, &c. Steamers can generally go up the Darling as far as Bourke but now can get no farther than Wentworth.

On some of the runs all of the sheep have died. One man having 60,000 sheep has now only 11,000. From Pilliga to Walgett (70 miles) there were counted 11,000 carcasses.

People sometimes talk about droughts in Canada, but it is a very different thing in this land. During a good year when there is plenty of rain the grass grows luxuriantly several feet high and there is an abundance but now the country is little better than a barren red desert, with not a blade or root of grass for thousands of square miles.

Continued to-morrow

S. Chadwick, Arcadia Wayne Co., writes : 'I have had consumption of Asthma for several years. I commenced taking Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The first dose relieved me in one hour. I continued taking it in teaspoonful doses for a few days, and have not had an attack of it since, now nearly one year.'

CRUSHED BY THE CARS.

A little son of John Spinks, Toronto had his foot crushed by a G. T. R. Express train some time ago. Two doctors attended him without benefit, and amputation was proposed, but Hagyard's Yellow Oil was tried, which gave prompt relief and effected a speedy cure even removing all stiffness of the joint.

A DOUBLE BENEFIT.

James Moore, a prominent resident of Leamington, writes that he cured himself of Dyspepsia of a year's duration by one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and two bottles cured his wife who had been for two years a sufferer from the same disease. He conscientiously recommends it to all suffering from similar troubles.

PRESIDENTAL FAVORITES.

Some Interesting Facts Concerning the Men Who stand Closest to the Chief Executive

Visitors who, from curiosity or business, have called at the White House, must have been impressed by the courteous yet systematic manner with which they were received and escorted through the mansion. The gentlemen whose duty it is to receive all persons coming to the White House are Colonel E. S. Densmore, Mr. John T. Rickard and Mr. T. F. Pendel, and they have occupied their present positions through the various administrations since and even during the war. Mr Pendel was President Lincoln's body guard ; saw him to his carriage that fatal night on which he visited Ford's theatre, and he now has in his possession the blood stained coat which Mr. Lincoln wore on that memorable occasion. There is not a public man in America to-day who does not know, and who is not known by, these gentlemen, and the reminiscences of public and social life which they can recount would fill a congressional volume. During the weary yet exciting years of the war ; through the more peaceful times of Grant's administration ; while Hayes held the reins of government, and when Garfield was shot, it was these men who stood in the executive mansion, welcoming the advent of each new administration, bowing at its departure, and receiving both martyrs through its portals.

During that long, hot and never to be forgotten summer when President Garfield lay between "two worlds" the nation became aware of "the deadly malarial influence which hung about the White House." But all through that period these three men never deserted their posts for a single day, although each one was suffering intensely. In conversation with the writer, Col. Densmore said :

"It is impossible to describe the tortures I have undergone. To be compelled to smile and treat the thousands of visitors who come here daily with courtesy when one is in the greatest agony requires a tremendous effort. All the summer I had tremendous headaches, heart burn and a stifling sensation that sometimes took my breath away. My appetite was uncertain and I felt severe pains in the small of my back. I was under the doctor's care with strict instructions not to go out of the house but I remained on duty nevertheless. You would be surprised to know the amount of quinine I took ; on some days it was as much as sixteen grains."

"And was Mr. Rickard badly off, too ?"

"I should think he was. Why, time and again we have picked him up and laid him on the mantle, here in the vestibule, he was so used up."

"Yes," exclaimed Mr. Rickard, "I was so weak I could not rise after lying down without help, and could only walk with the aid of two canes, and then in a stooping position. Oh, we have been in a pretty bad condition here, all of us."

"And yet you are all the embodiment of health," said the writer as he looked at the three bright and vigorous men before him.

"Oh, yes," said Mr. Rickard, "we have not known what sickness was for more than a year."

"Have you some secret way of overcoming malaria and its attendant horrors?"

"I think we have a most certain way," replied Colonel Desmore, "but it is no secret. You see about two years ago my wife began to grow blind, and I was alarmed at her condition. She finally became so she could not tell whether a person were white or black at a distance of ten feet. One of her lady friends advised her to try a certain treatment that had done wonders for her, and to make a long story short, she did so and was completely cured. This induced me to try the same means for my own restoration and as soon as I found it was doing me good I recommended it to my associates and we have all been cured right here in the stronghold of malaria and kept in perfect health ever since by means of Warner's Safe Cure. Now I am not a believer in medicines in general, but I do not hesitate to say that I am satisfied I should have died of Bright's disease of the kidneys before this had it not been for this wonderful remedy. Indeed, I use it as a household medicine and give it to my children whenever they have any ailments."

'Yes,' exclaimed Mr. Pendel. 'I use it in my family all the while and have found it the most efficient remedy we have ever employed. I know of very many public men who are using it to day and they all speak well of it.'

"I weigh 160 pounds to-day" said Mr. Rickard, "and when my physicians told me over a year ago I could not hope to recover I weighed 122 pounds. Under such influences you cannot wonder that I consider this the best medicine before the American people."

The above statements from these gentlemen need no comments. They are voluntary and outspoken expressions from sources which are the highest in the land. Were there the slightest question regarding their authenticity they would not be made public, but as they furnish such valuable truths for all who are suffering, we unhesitatingly publish them for the good of all.

FOR ALL AGES

The aged debilitated and infirm will find renewed vigour and strength by taking Burdock Blood Bitters. The young hastening to early to early decay will also find in this revitalizing tonic a remedy worth trying.

PROSPECTUS

—OF THE—

Belleville Electric Light Company,

To be organized and under the control of local management, for the purpose of Lighting Stores, Hotels, Halls, Public Grounds, &c.

The Company is licensed to use the Thomson-Houston System, such as has been exhibited during the last two weeks in the several stores and on Front street, and much admired for its brilliancy, pure white color, steadiness in burning, and absence of flickering and frying, so objectionable in the lights of other systems. The Thomson-Houston System is well and widely known throughout the United States. It is the only perfect automatic self-regulating system of electric arc light in existence, and has carried off the first prizes whenever brought into competition with other systems in the United States.

The Belleville Electric Light Co., to be organized with a capital $10,000, divided into 1,000 shares of $10 each. The business is well established and on a paying basis. It has a newly equipped central lighting station, having ample room for the extension and enlargement of facilities for lighting as fast as required by the public demand for the light. It is provided with one 12 light dynamo, and another of 25 light capacity is now under way to provide for lights already contracted for.

STOCK SUBSCRIPTIONS.

It is now proposed to receive subscriptions for the capital stock of the Belleville Electric Light Co. The stock will be issued in shares of $10 each at par fully paid and non-assessable. The financial success of the enterprise is fully assured. Compared with surplus funds that are earning but 3 or 3½ per cent will find this stock a good remunerative investment with a moral certainty of receiving from 10 per cent besides large increase of the stock.

A subscription book has been opened at the office of J. Parker Thomas, from whom any further information that may be required will be cheerfully furnished.

SPOKES FROM THE WHEEL.

A club has been formed in Portsmouth, near Kingston.

Mr. Geo. Sills has purchased a 50 wheel from Mr. Canniff of the Institute.

Mr. Snider is disposing of his wheel in order to purchase a new British machine.

The cinder track is getting into good condition and is being used by the wheelmen.

There are just 30 wheels in the city and the 14 en route bring up the number expected on May 24th, to 44. What eastern city can beat this, bar Montreal?

Prizes for the Meet on the 24th will be given by Messrs Ritchie, Carmichael, Retallack, Snider and others. They will consist chiefly of medals. His Worship, Mayor Dunnet, will likely offer a prize. Of course besides these the event of the day, the Corby Challenge Cup, will be competed for.

Mr. Retallack on Saturday received a cablegram apprising him that all the English bicycles he had ordered were shipped. Six will arrive this week and 8 others in about 2 weeks. About half of this number are already bespoken and those thinking of securing a wheel should make up their minds at once and see about it.

The Weather Prophet looks for Spring this month. The wise men look for a blood purifier that will not injure the system; he can find what he wants in Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters, the greatest of all blood purifiers. In large bottles at 50 cents.

FACT STRANGER THAN FICTION. It is a fact that Alonzo Howe, of Tweed, had a fever sore that afflicted him for thirty-five years. Six bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters cured him, which he considers almost a miracle. It was but the natural result of the remedy restoring pure blood and perfect secretion.

RECOVERY OF MGR FARRELLY.

As noted occasionally in these columns the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Farrelly, administrator of the Diocese of Kingston has been ill for the past several weeks. His people were therefore much pleased at seeing him assist Father O'Donohue in the celebration of High Mass yesterday. At the conclusion of the service an address from the congregation, expressive of their gratification at his recovery, was presented to the rev. gentleman. The deaf mute pupils of the Institute who attend the church also presented an address. Both were appropriately acknowledged by Mgr. Farrelly, who was visibly affected by these spontaneous evidences of affection and regard. It is to be hoped sincerely that the rev. gentleman's health will now be restored to its wonted condition of activity.

Extraordinary Assault Committed on a Trenton Shoemaker.

Three weeks ago John Thomas, a shoemaker, 60 years of age, went to Kingston from Trenton to enter the General General Hospital. He complained of his throat being badly cut. On examination it was found that his windpipe had been opened, and when he spoke the air came out of the hole. He said on Saturday that he had been to Trenton on the night of April 14th, and on his way home, some distance out of Trenton, he was assaulted by two men who, before leaving him, nearly shut his wind off by cutting his throat. It was about twelve o'clock at night when the affair occurred. He says he has no idea who the men are that did the cutting.

A telegram from Picton states that the schooner F. F. Cole, anchored at Gull Pond, parted her chain during the gale Friday and drifted into the lake without anyone on board. The captain, who was on shore, drove across the country to the life-saving station at Point Traverse, and reported the matter to Captain Larry Spofford, who with his brave crew had the life-boat moved four miles on wheels to Point Traverse, and launched her safely, and proceeded about five miles into the lake, and put Captain Hineman and his men on board the schooner Cole, which, when last seen, was making for shelter under the Main Ducks.

More than 100 tons of human hair are annually bought and sold. Four ounces is an average clipping from a human head; so that 100 tons represent the product of from 800,000 to 1,000,000 heads. In Europe the heads of female criminals are shorn, and they supply a large market, but the greater part is bought by travelling peddlers. Between the ages of 15 and 40, a woman can grow about seven crops of hair.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

FITZGERALD DOWNS ROWELL

And Becomes Champion Pedestrian of the World

THE VICTOR A CANADIAN.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Last night the greatest six-day contest ever held came to end, a success in every respect. All records in the way of distance were beaten by the racers, and all records in the way of attendance by the spectators. Fitzgerald eventually won by about six miles. Rowell's left ankle gave out during the last day, although he still managed to gain greatly on his leader. Fitzgerald's achievement is a wonderful one. He is evidently a man of wonderful endurance, and according to the accounts of him by his trainers, he posses a phisiological peculiarity invaluable for such occasions. It is said that he can live on one hour's sleep in twenty-four and retain upon that small supply of rest his ordinary muscular vigour. The previous best on record in the world, in the way of long distance racing, was Hazael's 600 miles, made in 1882. When Hazael made his previous record, 600 miles in six days, he completed his task at 9:30 in the evening. Fitzgerald beat the record for that distance by over four hours. Rowell completed his 600th mile at 6:53, beating Hazael's record by 2 hours 18 minutes and 35 seconds. Peter Duryea, Rowell's backer, gave up the contest at 7 o'clock. He attributed Rowell's defeat, he said, to the badly sprained left ankle from which his man had been suffering for two days, and wanted to make another match with Fitzgerld. He will let Fitzgerald name the time, the amount to be over $5,000 a side. The score of each of the seven walkers who remained out of the fourteen which started were as follows:—

	Distance.	Time.
Fitzgerald	610 miles.	140h. 34m.
Rowell	602 miles.	140h. 39m.
Panchot	566½ miles.	140h. 26m.
Noremac	545⅚ miles.	140h. 37m.
Hary	539⅚ miles.	140h. 30m.
Vint	530 miles.	140h. 14m.
Elson	525⅔ miles.	104h. 4m.

Estimating the net receipts at $25,-000 the dividends will be about as follows:—

	From Stakes.	From Receipts.	Total.
Fitzgerald	$1,050	$12,500	$13,550
Rowell	300	5,000	5,300
Panchot	150	2,750	2,900
Norema	....	1,750	1,750
Herty	....	1,250	1,250
Vint	....	1,000	1,000
Elson	....	750	650

The actual receipts thus far amount to $35,000.

SPORTING NOTES.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Isaac Frederick, of Massassaga Point, died on Wednesday the 23rd April. Mrs. Frederick has been in failing health for more than two years, and has been in almost constant suffering during that time. She was a person greatly respected in the neighborhood in which she lived, and was venerable for the steadiness and constancy of her religious character. The funeral took place on Wednesday the 23rd and was numerously attended. The Rev E. Cragg of Rednersville conducted religious services in the school house, and gave an eloquent and instructive sermon appropriate to the occasion. The interment took place at the cemetery near by, which has been greatly improved by the addition of some very fine stones. This burial ground has been in use for more than 60 years.

Mr. John Magwood, Victoria Road, writes: 'Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure is a splendid medicine. My customers say they never used anything so effectual. Good results immediately follow its use. I know its value from personal experience having been troubled for 9 or 10 years with dispepsia, and since using it digestion goes on without that depressed feeling so well known to dyspeptics. I have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of Indigestion, Constipation, Heartburn, or any trouble arrising from a disordered stomach.

TWO MADE ONE

One of Cupid's arrows, rankling deeply, blossomed on Thursday evening last into a cluster of Hymen's favorite emblem, the passion flower. At the residence of Mr. Smith Sprague, of Tyendinaga, a select and fashionable company assembled on that evening to witness the marriage of Miss Thompson, granddaughter of the host, to Mr. E. B. Smith, the foremost merchant and carriage manufacturer of Crofton, Ont. At about seven o'clock, the spacious parlors being well filled, the bride entered upon the arm of Mr. Sprague, supported by Misses Anna Lazier, Baldrick and McLaren, as bridesmaids. The bashful groom was supported by Mr. A. R. Carman, of Belleville. The bride was arrayed in a tasty and elegant costume of pink silk and brocaded satin, which proved but a fitting foil for her fair features. After the impressive ceremony, conducted by the Rev. M. W. McLean, of St. Andrew's Church was concluded, the bride and groom with their attendants and guests adjourned to the dining-room, where several large tables were literally overflowing with good things. Here mirth and happiness took possession of all present, and the beautifully decorated rooms rang with witty repartee. At a late, or rather early hour the company regretfully separated, but not until they had loaded the happy twain with presents and hearty well wishes.

C. B. Hall Braville, Ill., says: 'I have sold at retail 156 bottles of Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, guaranteeing every bottle. I must say I never sold a medicine in my life that gave such universal satisfaction. In my own case with a badly ulcerated throat after a physician pencilling it for several days to no effect the Eclectric Oil cured it thoroughly in twenty-four hours, and in threatened croup in my children this winter, it never failed to relieve almost immediately.'

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues, healed and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all this. Try it. Every bottle warranted.

Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Whenever the blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of an prevailing epidemic. THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. am satisfied the medicine is not injurious will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use preparation. The truth is, the medical preparation stands head and shoulders in the presence of more than one kidney malady while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of the happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

THROUGH SNOW AND SUNSHINE:

OR

TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

CHAPTER I.

Warmly, brightly shone the sun, and the pretty little village of Hazlebery never looked so joyous as on this bright August day.

The sun-browned, contented features of its inhabitants all seemed to be full of gladness.

And no wonder, for it had been a bountiful harvest, and the ripe corn had been gathered in—all put the last load; and the villagers of Hazlebarry were about to celebrate their harvest home.

Never before had the farm house, with its barns, and stables, and many out buildings, looked so gay.

In the distance striding over the silvery stream that ran through the village, stood basking in the full glow of the sunlight, the fine old mill, while the waters, as they sent the large wheel revolving, seemed to sing a song of praise for the beautiful harvest.

And now the last load was ready for removal.

The carter cracked his whip, the horses shook their flower decked heads and moved on, and from a hundred throats a loud 'Hurrah! burst forth, and the gay cavalcade of happy rustics escorted the last load of that glorious harvest home.

With his handsome face aglow, the young farmer stepped forth from the poarch to greet his labourers. And loud was the shout and may the eulogium passed on Harry Fairfield, the handsomest, and most generous young farmer for miles around.

'Friends and neighbors,' said Harry, 'It is the first time since my father's death that in my own name I bid you welcome to our harvest home.

'It is only one short year that I have been your master but we have known each other long and loved each other well. As you found my father, so shall you find me—not only an employer but a friend.

'I have invited the men in yonder mill to join you in your festivities, and as I see they are coming, I will only once more bid you welcome and enjoin you to be merry and wise.'

'Hear, hear! Three cheers for Master Harry. Hurrah!' shouted the rustics.

Scarce had their cheers died away, when another shout was heard, and about a dozen men and boys turned the corner of a lane and came up in front of the farmhouse.

They were the employes at the mill.

'I am glad to see you, my men,' said Harry. 'I think that I have provided all that is necessary but if there is anything lacking only speak and you shall not want it long.'

'Thankee, thankee, we will sir,'

'It is very kind of you farmer,' said an old miller, 'to think of us poor chaps. It shows you have a good, heart and the man who treats his servants well don't loose by it, though there be some as won't see it.

'Now there's Master William, much as he likes pleasure himself, don't think us poor fellows want none, an' if it had'n't been for Miss Mary saying as how we might leave work, I don't believe Master William would have let us. Ah, farmer, it be a pity that old Brierley gives so much power to that nephew of his: he'll regret it some day see if he dont.'

'You may misjudge Mr. William,' said the farmer. 'He hasn't been brought up in the country as we have, and his manners may belie his feelings. But however do not let us speak of unpleasant subjects, but make ourselves merry.'

With a cheer the whole party were about to rush off to the large barn, where a sumptuous meal was spread, when two men turned the corner of the lane.

A sight of them the whole party paused.

It was Mr. William Brierly, nephew of the mill owner and manager of the mill, and Joseph Nib, cashier and clerk in general.

Striding up to the group with his white face convulsed with passion, Brirely exclaimed—

'What does this mean?'

As none of those addressed seemed inclined to reply Farmer Fairfield advanced, saying—

'It is our harvest home, Mr. Brayley; I should be happy if you would join us.'

'Join you,' interrated Brierley, starring about and surveying the farmer in mingled surprise and disgust. 'Do you take me to be a clodhopping boor like yourself, that you ask me to join in the rude festivities of a set of ignorant yokels!'

'Mr. Brierley,' said Harry, 'I took you to be a gentleman. I am sorry for the mistake.'

A flash of passion spread itself over Braley's face, and advancing with clenched hands he cried—

'Rascal! do you dare deny that I am ——'

'A gentleman?' interrupted Hary, cooly. 'Certainly I do but it needs no assertion of mine, since your every act and words prove it.'

'You shall regret this,' hissed Brierley.

Every who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate pogree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrup and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never of properly and judiciously administered. Prepared by Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all druggists.

VERY REMARKABLE RECOVERY.

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure Mfg. Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

Advertising Cheats!!!

'It has become so common to write the beginning of an article, in an elegant, interesting manner,
'Then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such.
'And simply call attention to Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,
'To induce people
'To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else.'
'THE REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,
'Religious and secular, is
'Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines
'There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness
'And ability
'In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.'

Did She Die?

No
'She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years'
The doctors doing her no good;'
'And at last was cured by Hop Bitters the papers say so much about.'
'Indeed! Indeed!
'How thankful we should be for that medicine.'

A Daughter's Misery.

'Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery,
'From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility,
'Under the care of the best physicians
Who gave her disease various names,
'But no relief,
'And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters that we had shunned for years before using it.'
—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

'My daughters say:
'How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters.'
'He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable'
'And we are so glad that he used your Bitters.' A LADY OF UTICA, N. Y.

THE EXPERIMENTS OF PROFS Dewrt and Ralfe, of Paris, and D. Anderson, of London, and other eminent physiologists demonstrating the function of PHOSPHATES as excitants of nutrition and nerve power having brought these agents into general use, it ought not to be necessary to call the attention of invalids to WHEELER'S Phosphates and Calisaya, the best combination of these food elements, with Wild Cherry bark, in existence. Its value in prostrate conditions of the system is obvious, and its prolonged use in obstinate cases that have resisted all ordinary treatment will clearly demonstrate its extraordinary merits.

ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL

THE VOLTAIC BELT Co., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above.—N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty days' trial is allowed.

SPRING HILARITY.

"Ha ! ha !" saith the carpet tack, ha ! ha !
Now comes the time of my coup d'etat,
When the hammer's gripped by the gruesome pa,
And he strikes me with stroke of a tyrant Shah
But his thumb intrudes, and he beats a "baa"
And shrieks for the reinforcing ma,
Who takes a hand in the tack-ticks ah,
And skips the job at the old faux pas?
"Ha ! ha !" saith the carpet tack, ha ! ha !

"Ho ! ho !" saith the elbow joint, ho ! ho !
'Tis the vernal for notch my crude tableau,
When the host removeth the stove, you know,
And I cling thereto with a lovers glow,
And give him many an overthrow,
And soot the same with a film of woe,
Till he utters many a rare bon mot,
While grins his wife at the festive show,
And he waltzes off on a mangled toe
To the junk department down below,
"Ho ! ho !" saith the elbow joint, "ho ! ho !"

DEPRESSION IN AUSTRALIA.

An Army of Men Killing 6,000 Rabbits a Week.

The Kangaroo Pest—Difficulty and Cost of Travel—Hanlan's Arrival—General Booth and Mrs. Langtry.

LETTER NO. 16 CONTINUED
QUEANBEYAN, March 25.

The dust in traveling is fearful. Whirlwinds of dust may sometimes be seen a half mile high. Clouds pass up and down through the streets of the interior towns blinding those exposed to it. At Bourke nearly every other person you meet has their eyes covered with a bandage, the result of sore eyes. Coach drivers and teamsters wear veils to protect their eyes from dust and flies. The last are almost unbearable. It is almost impossible to get goods conveyed at all in some places, owing to scarcity of food and water. At the present writing they are offering £65 (equal to about $325) per ton for carriage from Bourke to Barringun only 60 miles. Hard on book agents—books are weighty! At one place between Nymagee and Nyngan, we had to walk about a mile to enable the horses to pull the empty coach through the dust. The road was level and the coach drawn by five horses. To add to the dismal state of affairs winter is just coming on and should rain come and the grass sprout, the frosts will at once destroy it so that there will continue to be a large dying off of cattle and sheep for several months yet at best. Wool being the staple of the colony, the squatters are reduced to extremities and it is no exaggeration to say that three fourths of the runs of the country are practically owned by the banks. Heavy loans have been contracted by the colonies to meet the pressing demands and now the English press are speaking in unmistakably strong terms against it. The colonists have been careless, there is no doubt that they require the lessons to be learned from the present depression. Wages are very low and thousands have nothing to do. Scores of men may be had at from fifteen shillings to a pound per week, and plenty are willing to work for their grub.

THE RABBIT PEST.

The drought is not the only trouble the country has to suffer. They have not got the grasshoppers yet nor the Canada thistle, but what is worse than either—the rabbits and kangaroos. The question as to the best means of coping with the rabbit pest is one of the most important topics of the day. Six years ago their presence was so little dreaded that prizes were offered at agricultural shows for tame ones. New Zealand, Tasmania and South Australia and Victoria have been troubled for some time but it is only lately that N. S. W. has become aware of the fact, that they are overspreading her plains leaving devastation in their rear. One third of the colony is at present infested by them—not to the extent of hundreds and thousands but of millions. About 400 men are at present employed in the work of extermination, having 48 inspectors and two head inspectors. This small army of men are destroying them at the rate of 6000 per week (N. S. W. only) at a cost of £60,000 per annum. Part of this is paid by the Government and part by the graziers. New Zealand has been fighting them for 15 years and it is estimated that £1,500,000 are lost yearly by them. The drouth is doing good service in killing off the kangaroos if it did not take the sheep and cattle also. There are countless numbers of them in the interior—on the runs and many men are constantly employed to keep them down. In talking with a man a few days ago he said that he killed on an average 20 per day.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

The drouth and all other topics of the day are forgotten for the redoubtable Hanlan has arrived. The people have screamed themselves hoarse, members of parliament and titular dignitaries have been toadying to the lion and if he hasn't laughed in his sleeve at the nincompoops he hasn't as much sense as I give him credit for. He goes up the Parramatta river to-day to take up his quarters and begin practice. He expects to stay six months.

The temperance people have formed a Local Option League and the Blue Ribbon Gospel Temperance Army are making great efforts to reclaim and save.

Messrs. Booth and Glover, the great temperance lecturers and reformers, have been very successful in Melbourne and their visit to Sydney is anxiously looked for. General Booth of the Salvation Army is expected in August and Mrs. Langtry in July.

The Marquis of Normandy has resigned the Governorship of Victoria and leaves for England by P.M.S.S. Australia via California on April 25th. No successor has yet been appointed although there are several applications for the position.

ORION.

SHALL WE LET THE CHILD DIE?

A hard-hearted political economist, looking at a pale and puny child feebly gasping as it lies upon a pillow, says that the child might as well die. It is so weak and poor that its life will never be worth much anyhow. There are already a good many people in the world who are of not much account anyhow. And what's the use of adding to their number another weakling, who has but slender chance of ever amounting to anything?

Now ask that child's mother what she thinks about letting the child die. About this time the hard political economist had better get out of the way. Let my child die? No! No! As long as there is a remedy to be found that will save that child, the child shall not die! I'll spend my last dollar to save the child!' Well try a bottle of Shaker's Blood Syrup on that child. See the poor fellow pick up strength. He revives. He will live. Hosts of other children have been brought almost from death to healthy life by The Shaker Blood Syrup. Your druggist sells it.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

DOMINION LICENSES.

Regarding the recent circular issued from the office of the Inland Revenue, Toronto, the Globe says:—"The last stroke of the Dominion Government is evidently the outcome of desperation. A circular couched in ambiguous, or rather lying, terms has been issued, in which circular licensed victuallers are addressed in words of alternate entreaty and bullying.

Persons concerned are warned that, IF the constitutionality of the Dominion Act be affirmed, those who relied on Provincial licenses will find themselves unable to continue business. This is a distinct falsehood, for the highest Court in the realm has irrevocably determined that the Crooks Act is within the competence of the Provincial Legislature.

The circular goes on in purposely ambiguous words to say:—

> "The Dominion License Act being upheld, licenses issued under the Provincial Act will no longer afford protection to persons selling liquor without licenses from the Dominion Board."

Many persons would interpret this sentence as containing a formal statement that the Dominion License Act has been upheld, etc., whereas in truth and effect it is our old friend IF again in disguise. "IF the Dominion License Act be upheld," etc. IF this very unlikely event were to happen it would not affect in the least the validity of Ontario licenses. But IF, as is almost certain, the Dominion License Act be upset, the whole expense to which Sir John proposes to put the country will be wasted.

The significance of the whole thing is in this:—That at the eleventh hour the Dominion Government was compelled to extend the time in which applications could be made, and is now endeavoring to bulldoze the trade into submitting to a new set of taxes."

REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.

Before another general election there must be, it would seem, a redistribution Bill passed by the Manitoba Legislature two of whose members represent half the voters who voted at the last election. The western part of the province is said to be disfranchised. The Opposition with nine members represents a larger number of electors than the Ministerial party with twenty-one.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

ADDRESS OF BISHOPS—GROWTH OF THE DENOMINATION

Philadelphia, May 5.—The address of the bishops was read in the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church to day. It states that there are 99 annual conferences, 14 missions, 11,349 travelling preachers, 12,026 local preachers, 1,769,534 members and probationers. The increase in the past four years was 69,232. The number of travelling preachers who died was 654 and of members 58,891. The accessions were 158,787. In 1883 there were 18,741 churches and 9,815 parsonages, valued at $79,238,000. There are 10 theological seminaries, 45 colleges, classical institutions, and 8 female colleges. The bishops refer to the laxity of the laws on divorce, and ask for more stringent regulations regarding the solemnization of marriage of divorced persons.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

HALLELUJAH! HALLELUJAH!

Dear sir:—With your permission I will continue to enumerate some of the elements of what I have termed a false revival.

3. Spiritual pride is another evil that is conspicuous in a false or superficial revival. So much is made of young converts. They are so often called forward to "bear testimony," to give their experience, to conduct religious services, that there is a great danger of them becoming vain, self conceited, presumptuous.

Now it is surprising how prominent this conduct is in connection with the pretensions and operations of these Hallelujah Bands. Old veterans of the Cross, heroes of the faith—men who have led the hosts of God's Israel to sure and certain victory again and again in the past, men whose whole lives have been a grand demonstration of the power of God's grace in the heart, to inspire, to purify and ennoble, men in whom the public have unbounded confidence, men who are the very pillars of the church, and without which the church would soon become a total wreck, have been persistently crowded into the back ground with the daring insinuation that their hand had lost its cunning in soul-saving; that the glory of the Lord had departed from them and that henceforth "Ichabod" must be written on all their efforts to do good, by these men of yesterday. These self constituted Hallelujah Bands are subject to no authority in heaven or earth. These so called christian workers, having become infatuated with Salvation Army antics, cannot be restrained within the pale of any single church or city, and so have become religious explorers, going forth in every direction to assail the strongholds of the devil, fully equipped with tambourines, Salvation Army hymn books, etc. These weapons are infinitely superior to the Word of God and the sword of the Spirit.

Now, Sir, I claim that it must prove a moral calamity to be subjected to such unscriptural and unreasonable methods in revival work. The persistent efforts made to secure the wildest excitment, the indiscriminate pressure brought to bear upon sinners in the pew, are dangerous in the extreme and must be fraught with terrible consequences. These parties in their blind zeal have forgotten that all the physical, and mental, and musical constraint in the universe cannot compel a man to become a christian; nothing short of the constraint of the Holy Ghost can accomplish this sublime task. Now when the methods are false and the motives false, the work must prove inconstant and superficial, which fact has been amply corroborated at this early date. Scores reported converted by this Hallelujah Band have been found almost immediately in fellowship with sin. How is the grace of God magnified by such work? How is religion commended to the world by such an experience? How is the state of society improved by such pretentions? How is the church benefitted by such a burlesque on religion? Why, sir, earnest Christian workers, together with the intelligent unconverted must vote 'want of confidence' in such religion every day in the week. I am confident that if the Hallelujah Band reporter were to make a recount of the converts made and influence remaining in the majority of places visited, he must come to the conclusion that the mission of the band has been a terrible failure, and he will immediately advise a retreat.

4. Another evil apparent in a false revival is the judging of piety and zeal by false and unscriptural rules. All who fail to come up to a certain standard of loud demonstration &c., &c., are regarded as in a back-slidden state, and obstacles in the way of a revival, while those who can shout and clap their hands are counted very near to the gates of glory. I have been amazed at the loud pretentions of Hallelujah Band patrons to a high state of grace. They appear unable to distinguish between emotional ecstacy, produced by external excitants, and scriptural holiness or entire sanctification. Some claim that they cannot get happy without the jingle of the tambourine, &c., &c. Now, if I depended upon tambourine music for my religious enjoyment, I should at once question its divinity. Surely it cannot be of God. The bird perched on the top-most branch, bathed in the mellow atmosphere of the spring morning proudly sings its carol and is happy. The little lambs as they sport and play over the meadow are happy, but you do not call them religions, much less sanctified. The most striking feature in the experience and conduct of a sanctified person is that of humility. I am not satisfied yet that this grace is peculiarly exemplified in the conduct of these new religion [illegible]. In the past the men who lived nearest to God, the men who breathed most of the atmosphere of Heaven, the men who have achieved the most for God and humanity in the domain of practical and theoretical religion, the men whose presence was a very benediction, the men whose names have been enbalmed on every page of church history, the men the fragrance of whose lives lingers with us still as the grandest inspiration to everything that is pure and noble and good are the men who wrote thus of themselves:—What a marvel that I am saved! How is it that I am out of hell? It is all of grace, grace! grace!! O the wondrous love of God!

But endanger his life, will he? Nossa.

Every [illegible] who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies [of] the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate degree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrop and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never [fail] of properly and judiciously administered. Prepared by Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all druggists.

SAD DROWNING AT MONTREAL.

Montreal, May 6.—In the case of Adolphe Lescavalier, aged 16 years, the young man who died so suddenly on Saturday morning and was supposed to have come to his death by poisoning, it was proved by evidence that deceased was an inveterate tobacco chewer, and that his blood was in a very poor condition from the effects of the same; and, from this and the large amount of cocoanut he had eaten which proved so indigestible that death was the result.

GEN. LUARD'S FAREWELL.

Ottawa, May 6.—In relinquishing the command of the Canadian militia and accepting that of a brigade at Aldershot, Major-General Luard in the Gazette congratulates the volunteers of Canada on having made marked improvements in their discipline and appearance since he came among them. BLUE BLOODED VAGRANTS.

Toronto, May, 6.—The young "English gentlemen," Richard Chamberlain and Walter Redford, arrested at the instance of the proprietor of the Rossin House as vagrants, were before the Magistrate to-day. They assert they are what they claim to be, and were remanded pending a reply to a cablegram to England.

ONE TAKEN THE OTHER LEFT.

The Township Council have voted $200, the Executive Committee $200, and a subscription list may bring the whole amount for expenses to $1,000. The celebration, the Kingston Whig says, will commence on the 16th June and continue until the evening of the 18th. The gentlemen that will probably deliver addresses will be Lieutenant-Governor Robinson, Sir John A. Macdonald, Hon. E. Blake, Sir Richard Cartwright, Hon. Speaker Kirkpatrick, Rev. Dr. Jeffers, Dr. Canniff and Dr. Sangster. It is also expected that the Governor will lay the foundation stone of the monument on the 16th. The other days will be taken up with the regatta, balloon ascension and other games that will attract the multitude. Ross will scull and military bands will play. It is expected to end the celebration with a torch light procession and fireworks on the 18th.

REMARKS ON TOBACCO.

BY "SAREPTA," A SMOKER, IN THE MONTREAL "HERALD"

The chemical parts of tobacco are two, oils and an alkali. Of the two oils one is volatile, the other empyreumatic. Of these three parts, the volatile oil and the volatile alkali are the principal agents in producing any effect in smoking.

There are also three chief effects after smoking—the heart's action is retarded, the respiratory power is affected and the digestion is impeded. These statements seem very formidable at first; but there results are only injurious after excessive smoking and, like most other things, depend altogether on circumstances. If good Havana or Turkish tobacco be smoked through a clay or a meerschaum pipe after a meal, no injury will result but a green cigar smoked when the stomach is empty will act deleteriously. If cigars or cigarettes are used, a holder in which cotton-wool can be placed is advisable, and if the cotton-wool were steeped in tannic acid the nicotine would be extracted and the smoke would be more enjoyed.

Although carbonic acid, sulphydric acid, and prussic acid all exist in tobacco smoke, they are so volatile and occur in such small quantities as to have no effect upon the physical system. It is nicotine that alarms everyone except the man who smokes properly and on whom it therefore has no effect. When it is known that a single drop of this poison will kill a dog and that a man may smoke all his life and never feel any ill-effect from it, the bugbear diminishes considerably. There have been cases of foolhardiness. Smoking tabacco is not more injurious than tea-drinking. An immoderate use of either will poison the system and destroy the nerves.

THE IRISH COLLEGE IN PARIS.

There are a hundred students in the Irish College of Paris, all of whom are Irish by birth, and are studying for the priesthood in various dioceses in Ireland. The Superiors of the institutions are also Irish by birth, but they profess little sympathy with the present movement headed by Mr. Parnell. The alumnia, however, are all Parnellites. Its President D. MacNamara, is of the same school of politics as Lord O'Hagan and Mr. Errington. The seminary of St. Sulpice contains several hundred students, the majority of whom are of French nationality; but Ireland is represented there also by an Irish professor, Father Hagan and, a number of young ecclesiastics, who are all of advanced Irish views.

AN IMPOLITIC PREACHER.

During Lent the elite of the ladies of Madrid society assembled in the chapel of the Convent of the Sacred Heart of Jesus to hear the sermons by Father Mon, an eloquent Jesuit who, besides displaying much independence in religion also, on Wednesday, March 5, administered a severe lecture to his audience on the dissipation of the past winter season. Then noticing during his sermon the arrival of Infantas, Isabel and Euralia, the sisters of the King, he renewed his severe homily, directing his remarks especially against the French plays introduced into Spanish theatres during Lent. Father Mon's sermons were subsequently examined in a council of Ministers, and Senor pidal, the chief of the Ultramontane party and Minister of Public Works was commissioned to call on the Primate Archbishop of Toledo and remonstrate with him on the subject. Cardinal Moreno immediately went to the palace, had a long interview with the King and not only ordered the Jesuit preacher to cease his sermons, but to leave for the Seville College the same night.

AN INDEPENDENT GREAT PRIORY.

London, May 5.—The Prince of Wales, grand master of the knights templars, absolves the Canadian templars of their allegiance and wishes the great priory of Canada a prosperous future. Thus the independence which the majority of the order in the dominion have so persistently agitated has been secured.

PROSPECTUS
—OF THE—
Belleville Electric Light Company,

To be organized and under the control of local management, for the purpose of Lighting Stores, Hotels, Halls, Public Grounds, &c.

The Company is licensed to use the Thomson-Houston System, such as has been exhibited during the last two weeks in the several stores and on Front street, and much admired for its brilliancy, pure white color, steadiness in burning, and absence of flickering and frying, so objectionable in the lights of other systems. The Thomson-Houston System is well and widely known throughout the United States. It is the only perfect automatic self-regulating system of electric arc light in existence, and has carried off the first prizes whenever brought into competition with other systems in the United States.

The Belleville Electric Light Co., to be organized with a capital $10,000, divided into 1,000 shares of $10 each. The business is well established and on a paying basis. It has a newly equipped central lighting station, having ample room for the extension and enlargment of facilities for lighting as fast as required by the public demand for the light. It is provided with one 12 light dynamo, and another of 25 light capacity is now under way to provide for lights already contracted for.

STOCK SUBSCRIPTIONS.

It is now proposed to receive subscriptions for the capital stock of the Belleville Electric Light Co. The stock will be issued in shares of $10 each at par fully paid and non-assessable. The financial success of the enterprise is fully assured. People with surplus funds that are earning but 3 or 3½ per cent will find this stock a good remunerative investment with a moral certainty of receiving from 10 per cent besides large increase of the stock.

A subscription book has been opened at the office of J. Parker Thomas, from whom any further information that may be required will be cheerfully furnished.

OBITUARY.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PICTON, May 6.—It is my sad duty to report the sudden and unexpected death of our most respected townsman, Mr. Lucius Harte, of the firm of Harte & Rorer. He was taken with a stroke of paralysis Sunday morning at 8 o'clock and only lived until within a few minutes to 9 in the evening. He leaves a wide circle of friends who will greatly mourn his sudden and untimely decease.

SELECTED AND CONDENSED

"So you're engaged to Dr. F. It must be very nice to be engaged to a doctor. Evry time he calls, you know—and of course that must be very often—you feel as if you were getting for nothing what everybody else would have to pay $3 for.'

The latest Western drinker of whiskey on a wager varied the usual method by stipulating to turn a hand spring between glasses. The double gymnastic and bibulous feat was repeated nineteen times, and then the performer collapsed in a helpless heap, leaving the twentieth tumbler emptied, but the corresponding flip flop unaccomplished.

Of course it was the gross ballet that the Bishop spoke of.

Many ladies in Belleville, who have experienced untold annoyance by a servant leaving without a moment's notice will be interested in knowing that a domestic servant in Montreal was arrested for this offence and sent to gaol. This seems hard, but the practice of failing to keep engagements, and of keeping them only long enough to lull the mistress into a peaceful feeling is most unfair, and girls who wish mistresses to keep their promises, must themselves respect an engagement and act honorably.

CITY COUNCIL.

Appointment of Board of Health and Inspector.

THE SALE OF MILL ISLAND.

At a regular meeting of the City Council held last night, His Worship Mayor Dunnet presiding, all the members were present except Ald. L. Johnson and Vandusen.

A letter was read from Mrs. Stewart asking a remission of taxes for 1883. James Craig, Cow Inspector, presented his report for the quarter ending 1st May. He stated that there were now only two pounds in the city.

In answer to Ald. Hanley the Mayor stated that Mr. Rathbun, who had offered $5,000 for Mill Island, would be in the city some day this week when the whole question would be fully discussed.

Ald. Petrie—I would like to ask how many have paid their dog tax. I am chased home every night and if citizens are permitted to enjoy the luxury of such a scene I propose they should pay for the privilege. (Laughter.)

The Mayor—I am afraid you will have to endure the chasing until the 1st June as the citizens are not obliged to register their dogs before that date. (Renewed laughter.)

Ald J. W. Johnson—Get a black thorn.

A By-law was introduced appointing a Board of Health consisting of the following: Mayor Dunnet, Wm. Bisland, (Foster Ward) Francis Clarke, (Samson Ward) C. J. Starling, (Ketcheson Ward) Richard Taylor (Baldwin Ward) James Meagher (Bleecker Ward) Prof. J. T. Bell (Coleman Ward) Horace Yeomans (Murney Ward) and Dr. Tracy. The first is a member of the Board by Statute and the other seven were appointed without opposition. For the position of Health officer the names of Dr. Tracy, Dr. Burdett and Dr. Curlett were proposed. The first ballot gave Dr. Tracy seven, Dr. Burdett eight, and Dr. Curlett four. Ald. Mason then informed the council that neither Dr. Burdett nor Dr. Curlett would act unless they were paid for their services. This intimation resulted in the appointment of Dr. Tracy by thirteen votes. Mr. R. Taylor was chosen as Inspector to the Board.

Ald. Graham moved that the Grand Trunk Company be instructed to repair a crossing over their rails on Great St. James street. This was seconded by Ald. Baker and carried.

Ald. Diamond gave notice of a By-law for the appointment of pound keepers; also of a motion for tenders for printing the auditor's report.

RETIREMENT OF REV. DR. JEFFERS.

Resolution Adopted by the Members of his Congregation.

At a meeting of the members of the Holloway St. Canada Methodist Church last evening the following resolution was moved by Mr. Irvine Diamond and unanimously adopted:—

We, the members of the Official Board of the Holloway St. C. M. Church, desire to express our deep regret, at learning that the declining health of our pastor, Rev. Dr. Jeffers, has rendered it necessary for him to retire from the active work of the ministry, at the close of the present Conference year—his first year of labor among us. We feel that in losing him, we shall be deprived of a privilege we have rarely, if ever enjoyed, that of listening to some of the most instructive and powerful sermons we have ever heard. We cannot allow this opportunity to pass without placing on record our high appreciation of him as a gospel minister and of his very instructive and successful labors—labors accompanied by the energy of the Holy Spirit in quickening believers and converting souls, and we trust that the truth proclaimed with such faithfulness shall be as seed sown in good ground which shall bring forth much fruit. While we feel profoundly grateful for the Spiritual blessings we have enjoyed under his self-denying efforts we earnestly pray that his life, which for nearly half a century has been such an invaluable blessing to the church of his choice as one of its ablest defenders of Gospel truth and most powerful of pulpit expositors, may long be spared; that the richest benedictions of God's grace may rest upon him in his declining years, and that the closing of his earthly work may be to him but the beginning of Heaven's unclouded noon.

If a few Grains of Common Sense could be infused into the thick noddles of those who perpetually and alternately irritate their stomachs and bowels with drastic purgatives they would use the highly accredited and healthful laxative and tonic Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, which causes good digestion on w is en appetite and health on both.

A SCATHING INDICTMENT.

Our hull system of business consists in puttin' a dozen good apples on tap of the bar'l to hide the wind-falls an' worm-holes below. We admire sharpness in a man, an' we acceptlyin,' stealin' an' hypocrisy as sharpness."

"Twenty-four years experience, says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wasting brain, Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

ARRAIGNED FOR MURDER.

The Suspected Murderers of Peter Lazier plead not Guilty.

THEIR TRIAL NOW PROCEEDING.

(From our own Reporter.)

PICTON, May 6.—At the assizes here today, before Mr. Justice Patterson, Joseph Tompsett, David Lowder and Geo. Lowder were arraigned and indicted for the crime of murdering Peter Lazier, of Belleville, at Bloomfield on the 21st December last, the Grand Jury this morning having found a true bill.

When the Grand Jury brought in a true bill against all three prisoners the court room was densely crowded and a great deal of excitement prevailed. The prisoners pleaded not guilty amid breathless silence. The court then adjourned until two when the trial will proceed. In the absence of Dalton McCarthy, Q. C., G. D. Dickson, Q. C., was retained to-day to defend the prisoners.

Peter Lazier was a sober and industrious citizen of Belleville. At the time he was shot he was travelling for Patterson Bros., manufacturers of agricultural implements, and while going through Prince Edward County, stopped over night at Mr. Gilbert Jones, a relative who lives a mile west of Bloomfield. He arrived at the house about twilight, and near ten o'clock retired for the night. Before he had got in bed, however, a rap was heard at the kitchen door and Mrs. Jones, on opening it, was confronted by two masked men, one with a gun in his hand and the other carrying a revolver. She at once screamed out at the top of her voice and Lazier hurried to her assistance. Being a muscular man he grappled one of the desperadoes and would no doubt have overpowered him had the man with the revolver not sprung back and shot him through the heart. The murderers fled, but the neighbors were soon alarmed, and from circumstances which will be disclosed in the evidence the following morning the three prisoners now in gaol were arrested and at the preliminary examination they were sent up for trial. Perhaps the only theory that can be given for the visit of burglars at Mr. Jones' on that night, was that he had been to Bloomfield during the day and received $550 for his hops. The money he took home with him, and among those who were at the station that day was Joseph Thompsett.

The accused are all ordinary looking men, with the exception of Thompsett, who has a sort of a dogged appearance, with a dark beard, thin projecting chin and extended nose. Still he would not be singled out as a man likely to be guilty of such an atrocious crime. On the contrary he appears to have more of a sneaking look. The Lowders are smooth faced, fair-haired boyish-looking fellows, and look as little as possible like the conventional murderer. All three are well known in this vicinity. Tomprett spent the most of his time fishing around West Lake, and the two Lowders were engaged farming. Previous to this affair they bore a good character, but Thompsett was pretty generally shunned by respectable people, as several larcenies committed in the neighborhood of late years had been, right or wrong, laid at his door.

Mr. John Magwood, Victoria Road, writes: "Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure is a splendid medicine. My customers say they never used anything so effectual. Good results immediately follow its use. I know its value from personal experience having been troubled for 9 or 10 years with dispepsia, and since using it digestion goes on without that depressed feeling so well known to dyspeptics. I have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of Indigestion, Constipation, Heartburn, or any trouble arising from a disordered stomach.

THE ELEPHANT'S TAIL AND THE BUDDIST PRIEST.

Philadelphia Cal.

Two young ladies were gazing at the white elephant as it stood enthroned in all its sacred splendor and surrounded by the mystic emblems of its holy character and the adoring priests who were kneeling devoutly on every side.

'How curious it is,' remarked one, 'that any race of people should be so deluded as to worship an elephant.'

'It is indeed,' replied the other sadly. 'When I look upon the worshipping throng of ignorant, superstitious, creatures and realize how earnest and sincere they are. I cannot but feel that there should be no rest until the missionary message is borne to the last one of these benighted heathen.'

'True,' asserted the first speaker; 'it is a grand and solemn duty—'

Just at this juncture the animal flicked his tail and struck one of the Buddhist priests in the mouth.

'Howly Moses!' he exclaimed, interrupting his devotions, 'ye hathen baste—' and then the young ladies strolled on to the monkey's cage.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues, healed and the system invigorated. Towns' Elixir will do all' his. Try it. Every bottle warranted.

Every one speaks highly of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters as a Stomach Liver and Kidney Medicine. 'The best family medicine we ever used,' say they all. Try a bottle this Spring as a blood purifier.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. OUTRAGE AT CLINTON.

CLINTON, Ont. May 5.—On Tuesday night last a young girl named Bates, whose home is in Goderich, was forcibly taken outside the town limits of Clinton by three young men and outraged by one of the villains, a bus driver from Seaforth named Hunter, although she fought her assailant desperately. Being left helpless by the roadside she wandered during the night several miles, turning up in the morning at the residence of Mr. Hall on the base line. Constables Paisley of Clinton, and Yuill of Goderich, arrested three young men in Seaforth on Friday, named Charles Halbart, Fred Soles, and W. Hunter, who were brought before Mayor Forrester, when sufficient evidence was elicited to commit them for trial. A medical examination of the girl showed that she had been shamefully abused, her body being black and blue. She has sustained such a shock to her system that she lies at the point of death.

A CURE FOR CUTS, SORES, ETC

The finest healing compound under the sun is McGregor and Parker's Carbolic Cerate. There is no sore but will succumb to its wonderful healing properties. It is an invaluable dressing for scalds, festers etc. Price twenty-five cents at A. L. Geen's wholesale and retail Drug Store.

INTERESTING ITEMS.

In groping around a room after dark it is always the longest nose that catches the open door.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

VERY SATISFACTORY IN PROSTRATION.

Dr. P. P. Gilmartin, Detroit, Mich., says: "I have found it very satisfactory in its effects, notably in the prostration attendant upon alcoholism."

The wife who sits up until 2 a. m. for her frolicsome husband to come home is waiting for the fast male.

THOUSANDS SAY SO

Mr. W. Atkins, Girard Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctors bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by R. TEMPLETON.

A man in this city claims to have a wife so hot tempered that when she is angry he can light his cigar from the fire that flashes from her eyes.

——Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was first prepared in liquid form only, but now it can be sent in dry form by mail to points where no druggist can readily be reached and to-day the Compound in lozenges and pills finds its way even to the foreign climates of Europe and Asia.

The ladies are at present all stirred up over the spring millinery openings. It will be their husbands' turn to get stirred up a little later in the season.

DANGER TRAPS.

Neglected colds are the fatal traps that ensnare many a victim beyond possibility of rescue. Take a cold or cough in time and it is easily conquered by that safe and pleasant remedy Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Asthma, Bronchitis and pulmonary complaints generally soon yield to its healing influence.

Belmont, N. H., boasts of a woman who "goes out and chops wood with her husband." It is customary to use an axe, but he may be an unusually sharp man.

A FAVORITE EVERYWHERE.

Wherever introduced Hagyard's Yellow Oil finds friends. It is the old reliable household remedy for external and internal use in all aches, pains, lameness and soreness of the flesh. A. L. Geen, a prominent druggist of Belleville, says: "It is a great favorite here, and has good sale."

"I don't know much about the style in gentleman's apparel," said a lady, "but the latest thing in Spring overcoats is my husband; he never gets in until 1 a. m.'

As a sure remedy for sick Headache, Sour Stomach Dispepsia Indigestion, Constipation, Torpid Liver, Biliousness, &c., no medicine is equal to Baxter's Mandrake Bitters. 25 cents per bottle.

Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Wherever the blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of an prevailing epedemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished power should be these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce all erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, biliousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. The fruit season is especially prone to produce irritation of the bowels and disorder of the digestive organs; both of which dangerous conditions can be completely removed by Holloway's corrective medicines.

Holloway's Ointment, and Pills.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally and the Ointment rubbed externally are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, surest. Holloway's Pills and Ointment purify the blood, remove obstructions to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the overgorged air tubes, and render respiration free without reducing the strength ritating the nerves, or depressing the . THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. am satisfied the medicine is not injurious will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical preparation stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of those happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

THROUGH SNOW AND SUNSHINE:

OR

TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

Harry smiled derisively.

'I am not one to be easily frightened or annoyed, Mr. Brierley,' he said.

'Nib,' yelled Brierley.

'Yes sir,' returned Nib, standing with body bent and rubbing his hands together.

'Take down the name of every man and boy who left the mill to join these yokels here; and mark me sir, when they present them selves at the mill again, pay them what is due to them and instantly discharge them.'

'We be not away without leave, sir,' said the old miller who had before spoken. 'Miss Mary Brierley told us we could go.'

'Did she?' sneered Brierley; 'then you'll find, my man, that I am master, not her—you never enter the mill again.'

'Or say, rather, tyrant,' exclaimed Harry 'Shame on you. Mr. Brierley; this act of yours stamps you a mean-spirited tyrant and a contemptable coward.'

'Coward?'

'Aye, coward. Your paltry spirit sought revenge for the rebuke I gave you; you feared to turn upon me, so turned upon them, I repeat you are a coward and a tyrant.'

'Villain,' cried Brierley. 'Apply this epithet to me again, and I'll——'

'Hold there, Mr. Brierley,' interrupted Harry, 'For the sake of one I love, I would not harm you, therefore goad me not too far.'

'Harm me,' cried Brierley. 'Presume to address me again in the presence of these ignorent rustics I will chastise you.'

'Hark you, Mr. Brierley; I can see your object is to quarrel with me, but be warned in time. Look upon this arm of mine; it has been made strong as iron by hard and honest toil. I offered you this hand in friendship—you spurned it; if you goad me to extend it in enmity, you will regret it.'

'If you think that the arm strengthened by toil is a match for the arm wielded by science. this to convince you, ignorant yokel, of your mistake.'

So saying Brayley struck a quick blow at Harry. But rapid as had been the movement, the strong left arm of Harry caught the blow, and his right fist shot out like lightning, struck Brayley on the forehead, and felled him to the earth. A loud shout of joy from the rustics hailed this feat.

'I am a witness to this assault on my respected master,' cried Nib; 'and the law sir, shall make you pay for it.'

'Shut up, quilldriver.' said Tim the carter; 'stand back, or I'll just lay my whip about those thin legs of yours.'

And Tim flourished his whip in such a way that Nib leaped about two yards away from it.

Foaming with passion, Brierley arose and confronted Harry.

'Farmer,' he cried, in a hissing whisper, 'that blow shall cost you dear. I hated you before. I loathe you now, and my vengeance shall never slumber till I have crushed you, body and soul.'

'Ha, ha!' laughed Harry, 'I care no more for your threats than I care for the passing breeze; if you can injure these poor men, you cannot harm me.'

'I can, and I will,' hissed Brierley, 'I will not strike at your face, but at your heart, and your reputation. You triumph now, Harry Fairfield, but the victory will soon be mine. I hate you and I will be revenged.'

'Viper,' cried Harry, springing upon him and seizing him by the throat, 'I know what your threat portends. You would ruin me in the estimation of the girl I love, and through your cousin Mary strike at my heart. You have sought this quarrel because I aspire to the hand you would win.'

'Aye, and I will blight your hopes, ruin your happiness, Harry Fairfield, you have made me your foe, your bitter, lasting, implacable foe.'

'Coward!' cried Harry. 'Now I know you in all your infamy, I will have no mercy.'

'Hold, hold, in mercy,' cried a voice; and a lovely girl dashing through the throng of rustics, sprang between them.

Harry relaxed his hold of Brierley.

'At your command, Mary, I spare my direst foe—your foe and mine.'

'Cousin,' cried the girl, addressing Brierley, 'who means this? Wherefore is a scene of joy turned into one of bickering and sorrow?'

'He struck me,' hissed Brierley, and I am not one to forget or forgive a blow; but this no place for you. Come.'

He seized her arm and turned to go.

'Where?' she asked.

'To the mill, to your home. I will explain all there.'

'If you refuse to explain here, I will hear it from Harry and that I shall get a truthful version I am sure, since Farmer Fairfield is too proud and too truthful to stoop to a falsehood.'

'You forget, Miss Brierly, that in your father's absence I am your guardian, and that you must accompany me if I will it so.'

'Indeed. sir, I have a will of my own and shall use it. Were you not yourself in fault, you would be so eager to drive me hence.'

'That be it, miss,' cried Tim; 'he be a mean paltry sneak. It be all his own seeking, and he's just got what he deserves.'

Brierley made a dash at him; but Tim stood firm, and, wielding his whip exclaimed—

'Keep off, or I'll put my whip round you I bean't in service at the mill, and you can't sack I as you've done these poor chaps cos they come to drink a glass at harvest home.'

Harry had taken Mary's hand and whispered all that had transpired. With her face flushed the fair girl turned upon Brierley.

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England In way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M'f'g Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

Advertising Cheats!!!

'It has become so common to write the beginning of an article, in an elegant, interesting manner,

'Then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such

'And simply call attention to Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,

'To induce people

'To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else.'

'THE REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,

'Religious and secular, is

'Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines

'There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness

'And ability

'In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.'

Did She Die?

'No

'She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years'

'The doctors doing her no good;'

'And at last was cured by Hop Bitters the papers say so much about.'

'Indeed! Indeed!

'How thankful we should be for that medicine.'

A Daughter's Misery.

'Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery,

'From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility,

'Under the care of the best physicians

'Who gave her disease various names,

'But no relief,

'And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters that we had shunned for years before using it.'
—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

'My daughters say:

'How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters.'

'He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurrble'

'And we are so glad that he used your Bitters.'
A LADY OF UTICA, N. Y.

THE EXPERIMENTS OF PROFS Dusart and Raffe, of Paris, and D. Anderson, of London, and other eminent physiologists demonstrating the function of PHOSPHATES as exstants of nutrition and nerve power having brought these agents into general use, it ought not to be necessary to call the attention of invalids to WHEELER'S Phosphates and Calisaya, the best combination of these food elements, with Wild Cherry bark, in existence. Its value in prostrate conditions of the system is obvious, and its prolonged use in obstinate cases that have resisted all ordinary treatment will clearly demonstrate its extraordinary merits.

ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL.

THE VOLTAIC BELT Co., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above,—N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY

is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the error and indiscretion of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood &c., I will send a receipt, that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self addressed envelope to the Rev JOSEPH T. INMAN Station D, New York City. d&w

PROSPECTUS

—OF THE—

Belleville Electric Light Company.

To be organized and under the control of local management, for the purpose of Lighting Stores, Hotels, Halls, Public Grounds, &c.

The Company is licensed to use the Thomson-Houston System, such as has been exhibited during the last two weeks in the several stores and on Front street, and much admired for its brilliancy, pure white color, steadiness in burning, and absence of flickering and frying, so objectionable in the lights of other systems. The Thomson-Houston System is well and widely known throughout the United States. It is the only perfect automatic self-regulating system of electric arc light in existence, and has carried off the first prize whenever brought into competition with other systems in the United States.

The Belleville Electric Light Co., to be organized with a capital $10,000, divided into 1,000 shares of $10 each. The business is well established and on a paying basis. It has a newly equipped central lighting station, having ample room for the extension and enlargement of facilities for lighting as fast as required by the public demand for the light. It is provided with one 12 light dynamo and another of 25 light capacity is now under way to provide for lights already contracted for.

STOCK SUBSCRIPTIONS.

It is now proposed to receive subscriptions for the capital stock of the Belleville Electric Light Co. The stock will be issued in shares of $10 each at par fully paid and non-assessable. The financial success of the enterprise is fully assured. People with surplus funds that are earning but 3 or 3½ per cent will find this stock a good remunerative investment with a moral certainty of receiving from 10 per cent besides large increase of the stock.

A subscription book has been opened at the offices of J. Parker Thomas, from whom any further information that may be required will be cheerfully furnished.

JOTTINGS FROM JOHNSTON.

(From our own Correspondent.)

JOHNSTOWN, May 6.—The gale of last week gave the fences in this vicinity a bad racket.

Mr. John Munn lost a valuable horse on Thursday last.

The wonderful tailless calf owned by Mr. P.N. Stickle, has died.

Our pastor, Rev. E. F. Howard, has been away attending Conference.

There will be a "social" in Johnstown M. E. Church on Wednesday evening, 14th inst. The committee is making every effort to make it a success.

The T. V. Advocate of last week, in one of its locals, speaking about one of our citizens got matters sadly mixed. No doubt it will make the necessary correction.

WAFTED FROM WALLBRIDGE.

From our own Correspondent.

WALLBRIDGE, May 6.—The farmers here have nearly completed their spring sowing, the land being in a fine condition for seeding.

Apple trees are showing an abundance of fruit buds and seem to promise well for a good crop

But very little fall wheat was sown last season. Both it and clover are growing well having escaped injury during the winter.

During the heavy wind on Friday last, the rod supporting the balls and ornamental iron work at the top of the spire on the C. M. church was bent over and now hangs at right angles to its proper position. It will be difficult to replace it.

The Hallelujah Band made its appearance on Sunday last holding three services, that of the afternoon being divided between the two churches. The meetings were well attended and seemed to give general satisfaction. The "Band" have announced their intention of continuing the services through the week.

Our Township Council was in session yesterday and transacted a large amount of business. Though somewhat of a conversational style is adopted, yet a stranger is favorably impressed with the intelligence manifested by the members of the Council, and their earnest attention to business.

A TOUCHING STORY.

Once upon a time a village editor awoke to find a burglar searching in his chamber for his gold and bonds, and drawing his pistol, he took steady aim at the nocturnal intruder's head. Looking around and becoming painfully aware of his peril the burglar pleadingly said:

'Spare me for I have made a mistake in the house. I have found nothing but an old out of date railroad pass. Let me depart in peace.'

'Not so,' answered the editor, holding his aim like a skilled marksman, 'for this is a mighty dull week for locals.'

'But pause a moment and reflect,' returned the burglar, 'your paper is not issued till Friday. Your hated rival, the Weekly Bungstarter, will go to press to morrow evening, and would have at least two colums of my death and the coroner's inquest. It would be fully two days ahead of you.

'True enough,' said the editor, with a sigh, as he lowered his pistol and placed it it under his pillow, 'you are too early in the week for an item for me and I, therefore, spare you. You will find the plumber's house, for which you evidently mistook this humble home, next door but one.'

RATHER DOUBTFUL

Mrs. D (looking up from her paper—'Is not this strange?'

Mr. D—'Well, whave have you struck now?

Mrs. D, (reading)—'A bride of a month from Marinette, Wisconsin, slipped out of a sleeping car near Milwaukee with $65 of her husband's money, and disappeared.'

Mr. D.—'I don't believe it.'

Mrs. D.—'and why not?'

Mr. D. 'It says they were married a month don't it?'

Mrs. D.—Yes.'

Mr. D—'And she took $65 from his pocket?'

Mrs. D.—'I believe so.'

Mr. D.—'Well, no man a month married ever had that amount of money left.'

HE KNEW IT WAS SHE.

From the Philadelphia Call.

Jones—Have you ever heard what become of your runaway wife?

Smith—No, and don't want to. all I know is that she left a note behind saying that she had determined to go on the stage and knew I would never consent.

Jones—Well, I was looking over a Denver paper the other day and saw a most enthusiastic notice of the success made by a new prima donna, and judging from the description she must be your wife.

Smith—A prima donna? That is impossible My wije could not sing a note.

Jones—But she may have learned. The paper said she took the town by storm.

Smith—By storm, eh?

Jones—Yes,

Smith—That is she.

Every [illegible] to walk the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more tham fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate pegree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrup and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never of proply and judiciously administered. Prepared by Northrup & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all drugists.

SHALL WE LET THE CHILD DIE?

A hard-hearted political economist, looking at a pale and puny child feebly gasping as it lies upon a pillow, says that the child might as well die. It is so weak and poor that its life will never be worth much anyhow. There are already a good many people in the world who are of not much account anyhow. And what's the use of adding to their number another weakling, who has but slender chance of ever amounting to anything?

Now ask that child's mother what she thinks about letting the child die. About this time the hard political economist had better get out of the way. Let my child die? No! No! As long as there is a remedy to be found that will save that child, the child shall not die! I'll spend my last dollar to save the child!' Well try a bottle of Shaker's Blood Syrup on that child. See the poor fellow pick up strength. He revives. He will live. Hosts of other children hads been brought almost from death to healthy life by The Shaker Blood Syrup. Your druggist tells it.

THE DAILY ONTARIO

SIR CHARLES TUPPER'S RESIGNATION.

The bull-dog of the Cabinet has retired, the man who was the ablest of them all, except the chief, and the most ferocious. He was an implacable opponent, unscrupulous, regardless of truth and with an eye always upon the interests of—Tupper. It cannot be said he is a popular man, or a disinterested Minister, or a patriotic member of Parliament notwithstanding the sickening adulation with which he has been constantly overwhelmed by the Mail. His political sins, from the time when Mr. McLelan, now his colleague, denounced him as the High Priest of Corruption to the last day of his tenure of office and his subserviency to a powerful railway corporation, are innumerable It is not a regrettable thing that a man who held his political honor lightly and a Minister upon whose word you could not place the slightest reliance is retiring from a position so important to Canada, more so than that which he retains, High Commissioner in London. It is not impossible that his successor may be as bad in other ways but in change there is room for hope.

In giving up his dual character Sir Charles Tupper has tacitly acknowledged that he had no right to hold both and that Mr. Blake's arguments in the matter were sound and constitutional. Perhaps it is safe to say that had the Opposition not pressed the question so strongly and logically at the last session of Parliament Tupper would have retained both positions. We trust that at the important post he goes to fill Sir Charles will act with an eye single to the interests of Canada though a belted knight cannot perhaps be expected to escape from Imperial ideas many of which are incompatable with the material interests of Canada notably in the matter of negotiating commercial treaties and in appointments.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

We too, favor a strong central authority but opinions may differ as to what constitutes such strength

FRIDAY was a day of singular freshness and beauty in New York, one of the matchless days of the later spring when the city is at her best. The scene is described by a local journal. At 5 o'clock it changed suddenly, and the warm western breeze turned to a yellow tornado, charged with the pungent smoke of burning pine forests and laden with clouds of dust The sun was a ball of burnished copper, and the air was like a London fog, but dry and hot with the breath of the distant fires, and moving with the fury of a gale. Altogether it was a very exceptional day in New York.

MR. ELWYN WALLER, Ph. D., says the N. Y. Sun, the chemist to the Health Department of that city, has been making an interesting scientific investigation into the nature of pickles. The samples which were subjected to examination, five in number, were procured from various pickle dealers, and in every instance Dr. Waller found that the pickles contained so much copper as to be injurious to the health of the consumer. The facts are to be made known to the persons who sell the poisoned pickles, and "their attention is to be called to the danger of offering such articles of food for sale."

THE LONDON Morning Post the other day published the following prelude on primroses.—"A patient, knee-deep heron, alone with the reeds of a wide waste of water; a carrier pigeon steering its path of glad tidings of peace homeward across the empty sky; an eagle, beating in proud isolation its strong way up to some desolate rocky pinnacle, observed of all men; a lion listening alone to the far off echoes of the startled wilderness; a solitary palm tree bending alone over its own shadow in the desert; all these strike in different tones the same key of sentiment as the single pale-tinted flame of the primrose burning close to the dark mould, whence, in early spring, few signs of leafy summer have yet ventured forth."

INDEPENDENCE FOR CANADA.

The last meeting of the Legal Society was held last evening in Shire Hall the President in the chair. The attendence of members was large. After the general business was disposed of the debate—"Resolved that Independence would be beneficial to Canada," was warmly discussed by all the members present, and at the conclusion the chairman thought that the weight of argument was with the affirmative and gave his decision accordingly. A hearty vote of thanks was then tendered the President, Mr. J. J. B. Flint, for the very efficient manner in which he has presided over the meetings and for the active interest which he has always manifested in its welfare. The Society has been very successful since its organization in January last and will meet for re-organization in October next.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

PRESIDENTIAL CHANCES.

Mr. John Magwood, Victoria Road, writes, 'Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure is a splendid medicine. My customers [illegible] say they never used anything so effectual. Good results immediately follow its use. I know its value from personal experience having been troubled for 9 or 10 years with dyspepsia, and since using it digestion goes on without that depressed feeling so well known to dyspeptics. I have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of Indigestion, Constipation, Heartburn, or any trouble arising from a disordered stomach.

ROUGHS IN MADOC.

A Belleville Specimen meets a Brother "Slugger" who is "Jugged."

(From our own Correspondent.)

MADOC, May 7.—Our "new" chief once more manifested his impartiality in the discharge of duty by arresting and "cooping" an old-time chum. It had been suggested at the time of his appointment that the boys of the village would be favored while the country lads would be "nailed" every time. It did not prove so. "Jack" accepted the position conscious of his duty and gave his friends to understand that he would recognize or favor no one, and he has proved himself equal to the emergency. On Monday a rough from Belleville, named McGuire, came to this village and picked a row with S. Wellington, of this place, but was prevented by Chief Hall from doing much harm. The Chief warned both that if the row was commenced again they would be arrested and locked up. Not very long after Wellington began the fight again and was arrested by the Chief who started for the lockup with his man. Wellington is fully as large a man as the Chief and put forth every possible resistance, grabbing hold of everything that came in his way, but of no avail. The task was not a very easy one, and those upon whom the chief called for assistance, not being very anxious for a job in that line hung back, but determined to place his man where he would do no harm, he displayed an amount of strength which was not to be found in the prisoner, and took him nearly there alone, when, almost exhausted, he was assisted by one or two willing hands. Unfortunately, he had no handcuffs or anything by which the task could have been made easier, but had to rely on his own strength. McGuire was not to be found when the Chief went to look for him, or he would have experienced the same fate. Wellington was taken before Mr. E. D. O'Flynn, J. P., and the usual fine imposed. The smallness of the fine is a matter of remark.

M. E. CONFERENCE.

REV. DR. JAQUES URGES UNIVERSITY CONSOLIDATION.

STIRLING, May 6.—At the Ontario M. E. Conference, Rev. Dr. Jaques, President of Albert College, was requested to address the Conference respecting the interests of the institution over which he presides. He stated that Albert College was to go on still, with some slight modifications in its work, and that in view of the union it was likely the best arrangement that could be made. He thought it was inadvisable for two universities to go on and prosper so close together as were Albert and Victoria, as Methodism was to be a unit he thought the Universities

SHOULD BE CONSOLIDATED.

Though the university powers of Albert would be given up, the work of the college proper, Alexandria College, and the commercial part of the institution would go on unimpaired and probably with greater efficiency than ever. In closing he expressed the hope that no one would entertain the opinion that that the teaching power of Albert College would be in any way reduced, and that the brethern would let this be known on their fields of labor. A communication was read from Rev. T. [illegible]rgue, Superintendent of Methodist Episcopal Missions in Manitoba, giving full financial returns for Winnipeg, showing prosperity in all departments and expressing the desire to remain in that Province, as also the desire of brother Finn to the same effect The report of Principal Austin, of giving an account of the school was read, showing prosperity in all departments. The attendance is large, 146. About a dozen young ladies are expected to finish their course and graduate this year, The Arts school has been affiliated with the Ontario School of Arts, Rev. Dr. Badgely gave a most enthusiastic address relating to the past history, present status, and future prospects of Albert College, which much interested his hearers. Mr. T. O'Donohue, a second year man who had been absent till this morning, received credit for his year's examination, and was elected to deacon's orders. Father Norman, who has been in connection with the Conference for 47 years, during 26 of which he was in active work, but has not been on the list of superannuates for some years was requested to say a few words to the Conference, which he did. The presented their report, and estimated that the value of the institutions in the united body about being consummated, including endowment funds, will be about $815,518, and annual income of $85,868.

ALMA LADIES' COLLEGE

COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION

The Committee on Sabbath observance reported urging a more strict observance of the Lord's Day, and also deprecating the running of railway trains and steamboats on that day.

A very pleasant episode occurred just before adjournement at noon. Rev. F. F. Stratton on behalf of contributors in the Conference presented to Rev. J. Curtis, who has been secretary since the Conference was organized, a purse of over $50. Mr. Curtis gave an appropriate reply.

The Conference Stewards reported the amount collected for the superannuated preachers and widows, which notwithstanding the financial pressure, was about equal to the amount raised last year.

The Bursar of the Albert College reported the amount of collections from the circuits for that institution being a little less than last year. The endowment fund now amounts to over $54,000.

The Committee on Church Property reported the value of parsonages, churches and other institutions to be over five hundred and thirty thousand dollars.

THE EDUCATIONAL PROBLEM.

The Committee on Education presented Report No. 2, embodying a resolution looking towards one Grand Provincial University with which the denominational colleges shall be affiliated. The following was substituted: 'In the unsettled state of educational interests in the country, your Committee would suggest the advisability of having a Methodist University supported by the Methodist Church. Should it be thought advisable in the interests of the country to consolidate the University, then let its province be merely degree conferring, the teaching to be done in the colleges. Then we should have a Methodist College.' The resolution was withdrawn and, the substitute accepted as the report. It provoked considerable discussion pro and con. An amendment was proposed to strike out all after the word 'should,' that is all after the terms 'Methodist Church' be stricken out, which prevailed. The Committee on Equalization reported, stating the amount of cash in hands of the treasurer, and recommendations relating to future action. This was laid on the table to hear the treasurer's report.

ELOPED AND ARRESTED.

TOLEDO, May 6.—Friday night Lillian Whitney, daughter of J. Whitney, the theatrical manager, was married to Chas. Neiveille, during the absence of her father. Neiveille has a wife and two children in Detroit.

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attacks as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me. HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

BIG BANK FAILURE.

NEW YORK, May 6.— Wall street was in a tremendous whirl to-day over the closing of the Marine Bank, an institution that had done business uninterruptedly since 1851. J. D. THE LAZIER MURDER.

The Shooting and Appearance of the Men Described.

TESTIMONY OF CHIEF McKINNON.

Excited Crowds—Scenes in Court—Arrival of Mr. McCarthy.

(From our own Reporter.)

PICTON, May 6.—The trial of Joseph Tompsitt, David Lowder and George Lowder for the murder of Peter Lazier, at Bloomfield last September began here at two this afternoon before Mr. Justice Patterson. The court room was packed to suffocation, long before the hour of opening, and the deepest interest was manifest in the proceedings. The three prisoners occupied the dock, and were closely scanned by the dense crowd within the precincts of the court room. Tompsitt's wife sat in front of him during the trial with her child a very pretty little daughter, on her knees. Mrs. Tompsitt wore a nervous look and appeared to realize more than he did, the serious nature of the crime which her husband was charged with.

Mr. R. C. Clute acted as crown prosecutor, and P. Low appeared as county attorney. The prisoners were defended by Mr. G. D. Dickson, Q.C., and N. Gilbert.

THE PERSONNEL OF THE JURY.

Considerable time was taken up in the selection of a Jury. Counsel for the prisoners challenged six or seven of those called, some of whom were farmers living near Bloomfield, and some from various parts of the county. The Crown asked but two jurymen to stand aside. The jury as sworn were chiefly men under thirty-five years of age, as follows:—W. B. Babcock, yeoman, 1 concession of Ameliasburg; Jonathan Clarke, yeoman, 1st concession of Hallowell; Stephen N. Seeds, clerk, Picton; Charles Pettingill, yeoman, 1st concession of Hillier; John H. W. Bedford, dentist, Picton; John W. Fegan, merchant, South Marysburg; James N. Wright, yeoman, 1st concession of North Marysburg; Wm. H. Kinnear, yeoman 4th concession Ameliasburg; Thomas E. Wright, yeoman, 1st concession Hallowell; Marcus B. Burlingham, grocer, Picton, Albert Huff, yeoman, 3rd concession Ameliasburg; David John Baker, yeoman Picton.

THE EVIDENCE

The first witness called was,

Gilbert Jones, who being a Quaker affirmed as follows: I live about a mile from Bloomfield and about five or six from Picton; am a farmer and hop grower; on 21st December last was at Bloomfield station delivering some hops; received $555 for the same there about four o'clock that afternoon; went home afterwards arriving shortly before sundown; Stephen Lazier came to my house about twilight to stop over night; while attending to his horse I fell in the hay mow and injured my back; went to bed about eight o'clock; in consequence of this my hired man John Wallace heard of the accident and came over for a time, when Wallace left again for home Lazier started for bed and my wife also went to her bed room; a sharp rap was heard a few minutes later at the back door and my wife answered the call; as soon as she opened the door heard her scream and run back; I jumped out of bed and ran out; Lazier was then grappling with one of the men in the kitchen door who, on seeing me, sprang back and fired; Lazier immediately fell back in his night dress on the floor of his bedroom; saw blood oozing from a bullet wound in his left breast; I said "Is poor Peter shot?" he rose up and looking at me said "Is this me?" he fell back and expired a few minutes later; when

LAZIER WAS SHOT

I was standing close to him and he was standing just outside of his bedroom door; did not know prisoner Tompsitt previous to his arrest; the mask one of the men wore looked as if it had been made from a grey linen bag; the mask appeared to project about six inches above the head; with the mask on the man he appeared to be about my height.

In cross-examination by Mr. Dickson witness stated that John Miller and the man Miller who bought his hops were present when he got his money at Bloomfield. Did not see Tompsitt there; would not know him if I saw him there; can't recognize him now as any man that I saw that day; Tompsitt does not appear to be as tall as the man with the mask at my house; only saw one man the night of the murder—the one with the mask; the light from the coal stove afforded sufficient light in the room for me to see Lazier and the masked man; when I first saw them the masked man appeared to be forcing Lazier back into the room; but when he saw me with the gun he hurriedly sprang back and fired at Lazier; after firing he looked over his shoulder at me and hesitated before running away. I had the gun drawn which, however, was not loaded, and advanced towards, which I think frightened him away; saw the man running down the lane; it snowed early that evening, but when the man left it had cleared up; it was colder next day.

TWO SHOTS FIRED.

To Mr. Clute—There must have been two shots fired. One lodged in Lazier's body, and the other was traced through the door, and along the wall and was found on the floor.

Margaret J. Jones, wife of the last witness, corroborated the evidence of her husband. "At the time the two men came to my house," she said, "Peter Lazier, my husband, a niece, who is an invalid, and myself were the inmates of the house, it was about ten o'clock; the masked man had a revolver in his left hand, and the other a gun in his right hand; the man with a gun had his hat pulled down over his eyes and had his head and body stooped; the other with the linen mask stood erect; after I had opened the door I ran in the direction of my husband's bedroom; looking over my shoulder I saw the man with gun holding it over his head as if intending to strike Lazier on the head, who stood against the sideboard; the masked man stood beside him; the light I had I left in the bedroom; the shot was fired before I got back, but I did not hear it; the room was filled with smoke, and I smelled the powder; when I got back to Lazier he put his hand over his breast and said, "I'm shot"; I went to the kitchen door and coming back Lazier fell to the floor and expired; Dr. Noxon was sent for but Lazier died before he arrived; Dr. Noxon and myself found the tracks around the house under the pantry window and under the two bedroom windows.

THEIR APPEARANCE CORRESPOND.

George Lowder was asked to stand up. Mrs. Jones said he resembled in size the man who stood over Lazier with the gun. He appeared to have a false beard and his clothes were dark. The man with the mask wore grey tweed clothes. In cross-examination she said she heard that Lazier was struck with the gun, but she did not know whether that was so or not.

Wm. S. Drury, Provincial Land Surveyor, submitted a plan showing the location of Jones house and those of the three prisoners, as well as the location of the marsh and the track from Jones' house to Tompsitt's and Lowders. It was four miles, the diagram showed from Jones' house to Tompsitt's.

STRONG TESTIMONY.

Hugh McKinnon, Chief of Police of Belleville, deposed as follows:—I was engaged the day after the murder, (Saturday) to work up the case; have had about nineteen years experience in the detective business; when I arrived at Bloomfield I requested Tompsitt and David Lowder to remove their boots, which I now have in my possession; went with others and examined the tracks leading from Jones' house; found two tracks; I compared David Lowders shoes with the tracks, but they did not correspond; Tompsitt's boots however with other tracks alongside; began making the tests in the marsh south of Talcott's going towards Johnston's island; the tracks went together until near Johnston's island, where they separated; one track then pointed towards Lowder's house, and the other towards Tubo's Island; the tracks were not similar to each other; I did not examine the tracks far beyond the point of separation; we retraced our steps to [illegible] where I ordered the arrest of Geo. Lowder; next morning (Sunday) I in company with others went to went to Bloomfield and got a pair of long patch-bottom boots from Adam Taylor J. P.; a peculiarity about the boots is that there is a difference of about a quarter of an inch in the length of one of the boots between the heel, and the patch bottom sole; I went to Jones house and and the long boots filled exactly the tracks under the windows; I am confident these long boots now in my premises were those which made the tracks at Jones house; the tracks led to the lake

CORRESPONDED EXACTLY

TOWARDS LOWDER'S HOUSE;

I didn't go over the whole course from Jones to Lowder's on Tompsitt's; the other pair of boots corresponded so closely with the other tracks that I concluded the party who wore these boots that night made the tracks; At Lowder's I found two double barrel guns loaded, one with an empty barrel.

In cross examination the witness said he went to Mrs. Tompsitt and told her that her husband had confessed and that she might as well give up the pistol. He said he sympathized with Mrs. Tompsitt and related the confession to her which he said her husband had made. He said he manufactured the story out of whole cloth for a purpose, but it was not successful. He afterwards caused a letter to be sent to Mrs. Tompsitt purporting to be from her husband but that did not effect the object for which it had been sent. He believed he had a right to do this to assist him if possible in securing further evidence and bringing the guilty parties to justice. He was examined at length by Mr. Dickson in regard to the foot prints, but his evidence in that particular remained unshaken.

MEDICAL EVIDENCE.

Dr. Noxon in his evidence stated that about five or ten minutes to ten Wallace came for him on the night of the murder; when he arrived at Jones', Lazier was dead. He referred to the tracks he found under the windows and down through the front yard to the gate.

Dr. Wright testified that deceased died from the bullet wound received that night. Dr. Piatt, M.P., corroborated this evidence and produced the bullet found in the body which he said was a 32 calibre ball.

The court then rose until 9.30 to-morrow morning.

TO-DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

PICTON, May 7.—The greatest interest prevails here in the murder trial, the court room and corridor being densely crowded. Hundreds of people are turned away unable to gain admission. People stood on the window sills, climbed on top of stoves and benches, while those on the floor swayed to and fro in one solid mass, all the time trying to elbow their way up to the railing. Tompsitt's sister was present to-day. She wore a cardinal jacket and black hat with dark and grey plumes. She went up to her brother crying bitterly her moans and sobs being heard over the room. After shaking hands with her brother she sat down the tears rolling down her cheeks, for some little time afterwards. The rest of the time he busied herself writing. Evidence was given to-day in regard to the boot prints found in the snow leading from Jones' house to where the prisoners live. A great deal of importance was attached by the Crown to this testimony. Mr. Dalton McCarthy, Q.C., who arrived this morning from Ottawa, took charge of the case for the defence. It is improbable that the trial will be concluded before Friday.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. I am satisfied the medicine is not injurious and will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical profession stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of those happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

THROUGH SNOW AND SUNSHINE:

OR

TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

'Cousin,' she said 'did you think to win my respect by what you have done? It but embitters those feelings of adversion I always entertained toward you; here my affections are centered and here they will remain.'

She placed her hands in those of Harry and looked up in his face.

'Thanks dearest, for that assurance,' he cried.

'Mary,' exclaimed Brierley, 'you know not the man you spurn. I have sworn that man shall never call you wife, and I will keep my oath.'

'Leave us,' said Mary; 'your presence is a blight upon the happiness of all.'

'Aye, and I will blight your happiness and his,' cried Brierley. 'Farmer Fairfield,' he added, 'your triumph shall be short-lived. You have a serpent in your path that will sting you to the death, Beware, be warned, for my vengeance never slumbers.'

So saying, he turned away and strode down the lane, followed by the base sycophant Josiah Nib.

'Oh, Harry. Harry, beware of that man,' said Mary. 'I will reveal all to my father on his return, and he will not dare harm me. But he is treacherous and cruel, and may strike you when least you expect the blow.'

'I shall be prepared, come when it will, Mary. Our friends' mirth has been stifled but now that he has gone all will be well again.'

Then turning to the rustics, he continued—

'Come, friends, be merry and of good cheer, and that no shadow may lie across the path of your joy, I engage to employ every man whom Brierley discharged.'

'Three cheers for Master Harry. Hollo, boys. Hoorey!' shouted Tim.

Drawing Mary's arm through his own, the young farmer led the way to the barn where the feast was prepared.

And Mary, looking up into his handsome face, tried to forget the threats of her cosin, but they still rang in her ears and threw a gloom over her heart.

CHAPTER II.

It was Christmas Eve and the noble hearted Harry Fairfield had invited his labourers to partake of cakes and ale.

The snow had fallen heavily throughout the whole day, and still the large soft flakes descended.

Having partaken of the hospitality, and having each received a little present in the shape of a Christmas box at the hands of the farmer, the rustics, with light hearts wended their way back to their village homes, through the snow.

All but one. This was Tim the carter, who remained behind in the kitchen of the cozy farm-house, to court Dolly and imbibe continual draughts of the strong old ale.

It was eleven o'clock—the quaint old time piece at the mill announced that hour, as two men stood in the centre of the lane that led to the farm-house. They were Brierley and his factotum Nib—the one haughty, over bearing, and insolent in his demeanour, the other cringing and frowning as was his wont.

'You requested me to meet you here, sir,' said Nib, in his oily tone.

'I did and it is well you obeyed, Mr. Nib, I have been carefully over your books and I find——'

'What, sir?' gasped Nib.

And the thin, cadaverous face of the cashier became white as the snow at his feet.

'That for a long time past you have been embezzling my uncle's money, and that it becomes my duty to hand you over to the officers of the law. Josiah Nib let me tell you that transportation is the penalty of your crime.'

'Oh, Mr. Brierley, for Heaven's sake be merciful. Do not betray me, Spare me, and I will bless you, become your very slave.'

A look of triumph shot from Brierley's eyes.

'You see how firmly I have you in my power,' he said. 'One word from me and a prison cell becomes your home. Then a trial, conviction, and finally a journey across the seas, a branded felon, to meet a convict's doom.'

'For the love of Heaven, spare me, oh, spare me!'

And in his agony of fear, the fawning Josiah knelt imploringly at the feet of William.

'Good,' muttered Brierley to himself, 'I can play upon his fears and use him for my purpose.'

Then he added aloud—

'Spare you: why should I spare you? What return will you make for mercy?'

'Oh, I will do your very bidding, become your most abject slave.'

'Swear it then,' said William.

'I do, I do,' groaned Josiah.

'Enough,' said William. 'This moment I will put your promise to the test. Rise and listen to me.'

Josiah rose and stood trembling.

'You know I have a hated foe in Harry Fairfield—I hate him for his courage and independent, spirit. but I hate him with a deadly hatred because he won the love of my cousin Mary.'

'Yes, yes,' said Josiah.

'Hark you, Josiah. Since you are in my power, I will speak plainly I would wed my cousin not only because I love her for herself, but that I may possess the wealth my uncle has been years accumulating. This Harry Fairfield will tear her from my arms, unless a blow is struck that will separate them for ever.'

'Then strike it, Mr. William,' said Josiah. 'He has often treated me with contempt, and I, too, hate him.'

S. Chadwick Arcadia Wayne Co. writes: 'I have had severe attacks of Asthma for several years. I commenced taking Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The first dose relieved me in one hour. I continued taking it in teaspoonful doses for a few days, and have not had an attack of it since, now nearly one year.'

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail in the United States, Canada and England. In this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M'f'g Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

Advertising Cheats!!!

'It has become so common to write the beginning of an article, in an elegant, interesting manner,

'Then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such.

'And simply call attention to Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,

'To induce people

'To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else.'

'THE REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,

'Religious and secular, is

'Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines

'There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness

'And ability

'In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.'

Did She Die?

'No!

'She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years'

'The doctors doing her no good;'

'And at last was cured by Hop Bitters the papers say so much about.'

'Indeed! Indeed!'

'How thankful we should be for that medicine.'

A Daughter's Misery.

'Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery,

'From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility.

'Under the care of the best physicians

Who gave her disease various names,

'But no relief,

'And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters that we had shunned for years before using it.'
—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

'My daughters say:

'How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters.'

'He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable'

'And we are so glad that he used your Bitters.' A LADY OF UTICA, N. Y.

THE EXPERIMENTS OF PROFS Dusert and Balfe, of Paris, and D. Anderson, of London, and other eminent physiologists demonstrating the function of PHOSPHATES as exstants of nutrition and nerve power having brought these agents into general use, it ought not to be necessary to call the attention of invalids to WHEELER'S Phosphates and Calisaya, the best combination of these food elements, with Wild Cherry bark, in existence. Its value in prostrate conditions of the system is obvious, and its prolonged use in obstinate cases that have resisted all ordinary treatment will clearly demonstrate its extraordinary merits.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

PROSPECTUS

—OF THE—

Belleville Electric Light Company.

To be organized and under the control of local management, for the purpose of Lighting Stores, Hotels, Halls, Public Grounds, &c.

The Company is licensed to use the Thomson-Houston System, such as has been exhibited during the last two weeks in the several stores and on Front street, and much admired for its brilliancy, pure white color, steadiness in burning, and absence of flickering and frying, so objectionable in the lights of other systems. The Thomson-Houston System is well and widely known throughout the United States. It is the only perfect automatic self-regulating system of electric arc light in existence, and has carried off the first prize whenever brought into competition with other systems in the United States.

The Belleville Electric Light Co., to be organized with a capital $10,000, divided into 1,000 shares of $10 each. The business is well established and on a paying basis. It has a newly equipped central lighting station, having ample room for the extension and enlargement of facilities for lighting as fast as required by the public demand for the light. It is provided with one 12 light dynamo, and another of 25 light capacity is now under way to provide for lights already contracted for.

STOCK SUBSCRIPTIONS.

It is now proposed to receive subscriptions for the capital stock of the Belleville Electric Light Co. The stock will be issued in shares of $10 each at par fully paid and non-assessable. The financial success of the enterprise is fairly assured. To those with surplus funds that are earning but 3 or 3½ per cent will find this stock a good remunerative investment with a moral certainty of receiving from 10 per cent besides large increase of the stock.

A subscription book has been opened at the office of J. Parker Thomas, from whom any further information, that may be required will be cheerfully furnished.

GOOD NIGHT.

She took my coat—I'm rather tall,
And she is not so very;
The step led upwards from the hall;
She stood, the little fairy;
Just balanced on the second stair,
My great coat's burden holding,
And then her hands—the kindest pair—
The collar down was folding.
There never was an eye so clear,
Nor lips so red in moving,
"Just tall enough, now, ain't I, dear?
See how I've grown from loving!"
Just tall enough! From eye to eye
Ran horizontal light.
"Just tall enough to—let me try—Yes, tall enough—Good night."

WOMAN'S SPHERE.

Eloquently Defined by a Sweet Girl Graduate.

THE HIGHEST, HOLIEST OFFICE.

At the closing exercises of the Kingston Women's Medical College, Mrs. Alice McGillivray, M. D., read a valedictory in which the following reference to woman's sphere occurs:—

Women's sphere—most hackneyed term!—has been so often defined that it has become almost meaningless, but give us leave to say it has heretofore been chiefly defined by the half of creation, not woman, and therefore by her open to criticism. First always comes the highest, holiest office of womanhood, that of wife and mother, the highest, the holiest work to mould the minds, to form the characters of the rising generation, to guide them on in paths that lead to the perfecting of what is noble and pure in their natures, in paths that lead to perfect manliness, to perfect womanliness; to nourish the seeds of good, to destroy the germs of evil; to create in them influences for good to all eternity; to the uplifting of mankind; to the welfare of the nation. So far woman has not been the ideal mother she might have been. Where she has been the

NOBLE AND TRUE MOTHER

that we all revere, think of the mighty efforts of love, untiring zeal and patience, necessary to achieve so much at so unspeakable a disadvantage. What keen perception there must have been exercised to catch the reality of things from the mere reflections that were her all. Perfect motherhood! noble ambition! and how shall it come? Not by dwarfing her mind not by cramping her powers in any way, but by allowing her to work her will, developed by all the advantages of education, physical and intellectual, and unhampered by prejudice and adverse criticism. We feel that neglect here accounts for the immaturity, the misshapen, imperfect lives that are lived out in weariness, utterly devoid of the true soul-delighting happiness within the reach of the trained and thoughtful intellect. Just so sure as that the light of science has reached the brightness of the present day, through years, decades, centuries of constant nourishment of what was already given through rectifying mistakes, through taking out the false links in the chain, through every means that could strengthen true principles and promote growth toward a far off divine event of perfectness, just as surely have years decades, centuries of seclusion, ignorance, restriction, tended to prevent, to weaken, the intellect and the body of one half of creation, and yet we are told again, and again, women have not the capacity for education. They are mere weaklings in intellectual fields. They have never yet evinced power by any achievements. They lack scientific accuracy. They are most profoundly illogical.

WOMEN'S MIND HAS BEEN STARVED.

instead of being surrounded by anything to call forth the latent powers with which we know nature has endowed her. Her aspiration have been most timely nipped in the bud by the rigid dogmas of father and brother, and oh! grievous truth! by the holy horror of her orthodox sisters. Did she evince a desire to acquaint herself with the workings of state, to gain a glimmer into the sacredly masculine mechanism of politics and legislation or venture to open her lips on a subject which custom had declared beyond the scope of feminine intellect, her courteous friends accorded her a smile of superior greatness while her brothers privately admonished her to keep silence on such subjects, that it was unbecoming in a lady and entirely beyond her 'sphere.' So chilled and repressed on all sides, the years have rung out their changes and woman has remained at a standstill, the general current of her soul frozen and inanimate. It has sadly told upon her. She feels that she is not expected to be strikingly sensibly, that she and logic are two. A prettily curved smile, a becoming dress, a sweet confiding manner is the acme of the desirable girl.

She is informed by her gentlemen friends that she is delightful just as she is, 'heaven preserve me from a learned woman,' 'the saints defend me from a lady physician,' while a scientific female 'would fairly set me wild.' It reminds us of what a well known writer once said, 'Such men in choosing a wife wish to make sure of one fool who will call them wise;' or 'We are not a denyin' women are foolish, God made 'em to match the men.'

Lift their natures up, work out their freedom, let knowledge to them her ample page unroll, let them drink deep till the sins of emptiness, gossip and slander die. Then can we hope for the true, heaven designed companionship between man and woman, mutual respect perfect sympathy of heart and mind, for 'The woman's cause is man's'—they rise or sink together, dwarfed or God-like bond or free. If she be small, slight natured, miserable how shall men grow? Let her make herself her own to give or keep, and live and learn, and be all that not harms distinctive womanhood; for woman is not undeveloped man, but diverse. Could we make her as the man, sweet love were slain—his dearest bond is this. 'Not like to like, but like in difference; yet in the long years liker must they grow, the man be more of woman—she of man; he gain in sweetness and in moral height—she mental breadth, nor fail in childward care; till at last she set herself to man, like perfect music unto noble words. And so those twain, upon the skirts of time, sit side by side, full summed in all their powers, self-reverent each, and reverencing each, distinct in individualities, but like each other even as those who love,—then comes the statelier Eden back to man, then springs the crowning role of humankind. May these things be!'

WE DO NOT CLAIM

that Shaker Blood Syrup will cure everything but the fact that on the purity and vitality of the blood depends the vigor and health of the whole system, and that disease of various kinds is often only the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause, we are naturally led to the conclusion that a remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, eradicates scrofula and other impurities from it, as Shaker Blood Syrup undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use; hence the field of its usefulness is quite an extended one, and we are warranted in recommending it for all derangements of the system which are caused by an unnatural state of the Blood.

Gentlemen—I was a great sufferer from Salt-Rheum on my limbs for a dozen years previous to the summer of 1876, at which time I was cured by Shaker Blood Syrup The skin would become dry, chap, crack open bleed and itch intensely so that I could not help scratching, which of course made them worse. At the time I commenced taking Shaker Blood Syrup (in the summer of 1876) they were so bad that they discharged and I was obliged to keep them bandaged up with linen cloths. The skin was so tight by the heat of the disease that if I stooped over they would crack open and actually bring tears to my eyes. The first bottle benefited me so much that I continued taking it till I was cured. Hoping many others may learn the value of Shaker Blood Syrup, and receive as much benefit as I have I, am,

Very truly yours,
C. A. HOWARD, West 11th St., New York.

ROBLIN HOUSE,

Late Douglas House.

As the late proprietor of the Douglas House has removed to other premises and called it the New Douglas House, I beg to notify the public that I have reopened the Douglas House myself, under the name of the "ROBLIN HOUSE." As the house has always had the name of a First-Class Hotel, I shall spare no pains to make it as popular as it ever was. It has been thoroughly renovated and furnished with new furniture. A cordial invitation is given to all old patrons of the Douglas House, and all new ones who will favor me with a call.

THE RABBIT PEST.

From the letter of our special Australian correspondent published a few days ago it will be seen that business in Australia, like in Canada, is in a depressed state. Drought and the constant dying of sheep and cattle accounts for this in New South Wales to a large extent. At a time when the rabbit pest is demanding and receiving some attention in Canada it is interesting to know, from the same source, that in New South Wales alone there is a small army of 400 men engaged in killing them off at the rate of 6,000 a week. Only six years ago prizes were offered for tame rabbits at agricultural shows, so little were they dreaded. Now New South Wales pays about $300,000 a year for their extermination, and in New Zealand it is estimated that $7,000,000 is annually lost by them. The colony is described as being "infested" by millions of them. The subject is one which cannot too early be taken up in Canada as in the case of rabbits one does not know what a few years will bring forth.

AFTER THE ATTACKS made in certain quarters upon Mr. Hickson it must be satisfactory to him to read in Sir Henry Tyler's speech to the Grand Trunk shareholders. "Whatever complications they might meet with—and they might expect some—they might confidently feel that they had laid a solid foundation for increasing prosperity in future years. There might be rocks ahead, and they would require careful steering to avoid them. But they had a most careful General manager in Mr. Hickson, and he thought they might trust to him and to his staff to secure the best possible results from the management of their undertaking."

PERIODIDAL PUBLICATIONS.

The Chicago Current, in its issue of May 3, submits to its readers and the literary world, a poem which it has every reason to believe will prove as interesting a contribution to the literature of the year as anything that has been or will be offered. It is a pastoral poem, written by that great Florentine ruler, Lorenzo, The Magnificent, and translated for the first time into English by that distinguished scholar and poet, Mr. Edwin Arnold. The interest attaching to the original is increased because of its translation by so eminent a litterateur as the author of "The Light of Asia." Mr. Arnold discovered the Italian text during a sojourn last year in Italy, and spent many months of 1883 in the work of translation into English verse. The title is "La Nencia Da Barberino," and it was written by the illustrious Medicean about 1480, or as Mr. Arnold says, "the dawn of the Golden Age of Italian Art." It is remarkable for the dramatic force with which Lorenzo, chief of the scholars of his time, entered as Mr. Arnold in his preface also says, "into the very heart and soul of his peasant to depict a rural passion." The translation is in the original metre, and comprises four hundred lines.

Mr. John Magwood, Victoria Road, writes, "Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure is a splendid medicine. My customers say they never used anything so effectual. Good results immediately follow its use. I know its value from personal experience having been troubled for 9 or 10 years with dyspepsia, and since using it digestion goes on without that depressed feeling so well known to dyspeptics. I have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of Indigestion, Constipation, Heartburn, or any trouble arising from a disordered stomach.

James Moore, a prominent resident of [illegible], writes that he cured himself of Dyspepsia of a year's duration by one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and two bottles cured his wife who had been for two years a sufferer from the same disease. He conscientiously recommends it to all suffering from similar troubles.

A FOUL MURDER.

A Couple Brutally Killed in a Chicago Suburb.

THE CRIME A MYSTERY.

CHICAGO, ILL., May 6.—A murder trial which promises to be a cause celebre has just commenced here; and is not without interest to Canadians, as the accused is one Neil McKeague, the son of a farmer who lives near Thorold, Ont, This crime is shrouded in mystery. Sixteen miles north of Chicago lies the pretty little suburban village of Winnetka. In a handsome two storeyed cottage, isolated from the other houses, lived James L. Willson and his wife. Willson was 72 years old and his wife 82 years. They are wealthy, and the husband frequently came to the city to superintend his money matters. On Wednesday, February 13th, a young lady named Miss Emma Dwyer (whose custom it was to call at the house and remain with the old lady while Wilson was in the city), rang the door bell, but received no answer. The house was barred and no noise could be heard inside. She passed to the rear, and entered through a kitchen window. What a sight met her gaze! Blood was everywhere, on the walls, the ceiling, the furniture, the floor. The old man Wilson lay near the door of his bed-chamber, dead. Two bullets were lodged in his body. and the breast bone and nine ribs had been crushed in by the murderer jumping upon him. Upstairs in her bed room, was Mrs. Willson, beaten almost out of human semblance. The right arm lay outside the blood soaked coverlet. Her thin fingers were grasping a stout cane which had snapped in two when she defended herself. She had been beaten to death with a pair of iron tongs, which were found dripping with blood at her bedside. Her lower jaw was splintered, her eyes gouged, and her right arm broken in two places. The young woman was horrified, and ran to a butcher whose shop was within sight, and solicited his assistance. That person was Neil McKeague, the now prisoner. When she came to the shop she found McKeague standing in the doorway, looking apparently toward's Wilson's house.

THE OCEAN DISASTER.

The Collision of the State of Florida with a Barque.

VERY LARGE NUMBER LOST.

FATHER POINT, St. Lawrence, May 7.—The steamship Titania, from Glasgow, passed inward this morning. She has twenty-four the crew of the crew of the steamship State of Florida on board, which went to the bottom through a collision with a barque in mid ocean. Out of 167 persons only forty-four were saved, and of the barque's crew only the captain and two men. One hundred and twenty-three persons went down with the steamer and twelve with the barque, making a total loss of life of 135. The survivors will probably be landed at Quebec. The Titania remained here so short a time that only brief particulars could be obtained. The twenty other supposed survivors were in another boat It is supposed they were picked up by some other vessel. The barque's name is unknown by any of those on the Titania. The Titania will arrive at Quebec about 8 o'clock to-night, but only exchanges a pilot there and proceeds on to Montreal. It is probable the survivors will be sent ashore at Quebec with the pilot-boat and put in charge of the proper authorities.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The agents of the State Line Steamship Company have received despatches which are not consistent with the report made by the City of Rome that the ship which signalled her had aboard a portion of the crew of the State of Florida; but lead to the conclusion that the twenty who were not picked up by the Titania were rescued by another vessel.

QUEBEC, May 8.—An account of the disaster, which is gathered from conversation with the third officer and a member of the crew, is that the accident took place about eleven o'clock in the night, when everybody was in bed, the ship then being about 1,200 miles west of the most westerly point of Ireland. The night was very clear, although there was no moon, and the sea was as calm as glass, Suddenly those on watch saw a red light on the starboard bow bearing down on them. The order was given to "Stop and Reverse engines," the third officer called out "Collision," and immediately a barque, the Pomona, of Chatham, N.B.,

STRUCK THE SIDE OF THE STEAMER

with terrific force, knocking a hole six foot square in it. The barque sank instantaneously, many of the men going down in their beds, only the captain and two men being able to procure a small boat by means of which they escaped. Immediately after the collision took place the State of Florida began to settle down, and the captain gave the order to lower the boats. The passengers were aroused and told to save themselves. They rushed on deck immediately in a dazed and bewildered condition, and a complete panic ensued. The crew and passengers ran frantically to and fro, the women went into hysterics, most of the officers lost their heads and suddenly with a fearful plunge, the vessel taking with it the terror-stricken crowds on board. Fifteen minutes after the red light was seen 120 persons drowned.

CAREENED AND WENT DOWNWARDS

Four boats had time to become loaded, and in these were some fifty persons. One of the boats, however, was too heavily loaded and it capsized. Five men managed to crawl on top of the keel, which they clung to all night, the cold water breaking over them and chilling them to the bone. One unfortunate sailor named Donaldson became stuck fast under the bars of the boat and remained underneath all night. He could be heard moaning, but towards morning he became unconscious. One of the other boats rescued these people in the morning and released the imprisoned mariner by breaking in the bottom of the boat with their oars. The boats then got together and proceeded in a body. They had no water and for thirty-six hours they drifted on the water, suffering all agonies of extreme thirst. The vessel sank on the night of the 18th April, and they were picked up by the Therese, of Christiania, on Sunday at noon. A day or so after the Therese met the City of Rome, and signalled her to come and take some of the passengers, but she held on her course without coming near the vessel to make any enquiries or offer any help, and is commented on with great bitterness by the shipwrecked crew. The Louise of Cardiff, however, relieved the Therese of 24 of her load and on the 5th of May transferred them over to the Titania.

The Therese will not arrive in port for a couple of days, and pending its arrival it will be impossible to ascertain who were those who were lost on the barque Pomona, as the captain and the two sailors are on board of her. She belongs to Liverpool, although registered at Chatham, N. B., and had a crew of fourteen.

ONLY TWO WOMEN WERE SAVED.

The stewardess, Jane McFarlane, was only saved by the sacrifice of the life of the first engineer, a Mr. Bain, who returned on a ship from a boat and rescued her. He had not time to get into the boat, however, before the ship went down, carrying with her the gallant and heroic engineer.

Mr. James Bennett, of London, is the only Canadian saved from the wreck of the state of Florida. He said that he, Mr. King and Mr. Bethune got into the same boat, but they unfortunately cut the cable connecting the boat to the ship too suddenly and the boat immediately capsized. Five, including Mr. Bennet, clung on to the keel of the boat but neither Mr. King nor Bethune ever came to the surface being immediately chilled by the water which was cold The second steward of the vessel also stated that he knew Mr. Bethune very well and saw him getting into the boat. Mr. Mr. Matthews, late city editor of the Globe, was not on board—at least none of the officers were aware of the presence on the vessel of a gentleman of that name, and his name was not recorded on the list. The purser, who alone could have given accurate information on this point, was drowned.

The "constantly tired-out" feeling so often experienced is the result of impoverished blood and consequent enfeebled vitality. Ayer's Sarsaparilla feeds and enriches the blood, increases the appetite, and promotes digestion of the food and the assimilation of its strengthening qualities. The system being thus invigorated, the feeling rapidly changes to a grateful sense of strength and energy.

PRESBYTERIAN MISSIONS.

Necessity for Vigorous Operations in the Northwest.

ADDRESS BY REV. JAMES ROBERTSON

Rev. James Robertson, Superintendent of Presbyterian Missions in the Northwest, addressed the Presbyterian Congregations of Belleville Wednesday evening on the Mission operations of his church in the Northwest. The chair was occupied by the Rev. M. W. McLean, and Rev. Messrs. Mitchell of Belleville, Carmichael of Norwood, and Burton of Toronto were on the platform. Mr. Robertson spoke of the difficulty of conveying to an audience any correct impression of the extent of the country. The length of the prairie section was greater than the distance between Montreal and Chicago and the width greater than that between Montreal and Toronto. He stated that about 45,000 were said to have found a home in the Northwest last year. A large per centage of the new comers are Presbyterians, and hence the Church should minister to their spiritual wants. The progress of Christian work was rapid and satisfactory. The growth in 12 years was shown as follows:—

	1871	1883
Self sustaining congregations	1	16
Missionaries and Ministers	4	85
Mission Stations and congregations	9	250
Families	198	about 6000
Contributions	$2,195	$86,000

Fourteen new mission fields were occupied last year and 70 new stations organized, He complained that many fields with a large number of families were without supply last winter and advocated the continuous occupancy of every district that was settled. He urged the importance of prosecuting the work on several grounds. The country was destined to be important and every effort should be put forth to mould the public mind aright at the outset. The country had its disadvantages but many of these would disappear. The fuel problem was solved for abundance of excellent coal was found over wide areas in the west. The finest of the wheat and the best of beef could be produced and vegetables of large and fine flavor could be cultivated anywhere. Such a country was destined to be important although its climate might be at certain seasons somewhat severe. Hence the importance of Christian work now. Mr. Robertson held that every church should look after colonies of its own people. The people were doing their best to help themselves and should be encouraged. Their contributions last year averaged $37.64 per member and $47.57 per family. The vigorous prosecution of mission work now would help foreign mission work later on. Interesting illustrations were given of how Christian work elevates men or prevents them from lapsing. It was contended, too, that no church can live and prosper without active sympathy with church extension. Mr. Robertson advocated more liberal contributions for the home mission work, A generous support of Manitoba College and larger assistance for the Building Fund. He paid a high tribute to the scholarship, efficiency and zeal of the missionaries. The building fund is intended to aid congregations in the erection of churches and manses. The idea is to secure a fund of $100,000, out of which money can be loaned to congregations. When money loaned is repaid it will be reloaned to congregations in the newer districts. About $80,000 has already been subscribed and $25,000 paid up. The subscriptions extend over three years, About 40 churches and manses have been built at a cost of $80,000, two-thirds of which has been defrayed by the congregations and one-third by the fund. Mr. Robertson asked the congregation present to assist in the work and several subscriptions were obtained. Rev. Mr. McLean is appointed local treasurer of the fund, and will receive any donations or subscriptions that may be offered. Evidently the church is pushing its work with vigor and its members here should show appreciation of the good work done by timely aid.

[It looks as if Mr. Robertson must have been misreported in respect of the number he has given of immigrants into the Northwest—45,000 last year. The correct number would be many less than one-third of these.—ED. ONTARIO.]

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.
A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles.
E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

AN OSHKOSH WOMAN'S DISAPPOINTMENT.

From the Chicago News.

A neatly dressed but awkward woman of 20 odd summers sidled up to the Chief Clerk Coffeen's desk in the Superior Court yesterday, and stood on one foot, waiting for some one to address her.

"What can I do for you, madam?" asked the exquisite chief clerk, after laborously working his features into one of his most fascinating smiles.

"I—ah—that is, sir, please can I get a divorce?"

"Well," said Lester, a little startled at the unusual method taken by the lady in applying for one of the staple articles of the Superior Court, "I don't know about that. You had better consult a lawyer."

"I don't want no lawyer; I think lawyers are just horrid. I want a divorce, and I want it now."

"Well, we don't keep them in stock, madam, like ready-made clothes, but if you consult some lawyer who makes divorces a specialty (and there are plenty of them), I think you can have one made to order in time for the evening train."

"Well, I don't see what's the use of having half a dozen men in your old office if you can't get a divorce for a poor woman who has but two hours to spare before going back to Oshkosh," and with a disdainful shrug of her pretty shoulders the woman pranced out of the room with a poor opinion of Chicago's divorce mill.

S. Chadwick Arcadia Wayne Co. writes: 'I have had severe attacks of Asthma for several years. I commenced taking Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The first dose relieved me in one hour. I continued taking it in teaspoonful doses for a few days, and have not had an attack of it since, now nearly one year.'

The Weather Prophet looks for Storms this month. The wise men look for a blood purifier that will not injure his system; he can find what he wants in Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters, the greatest of all blood purifiers. In large bottles at 50 cents.

FACT STRANGER THAN FICTION. It is a fact that Alonzo Howe, of Tweed had a fever sore that afflicted him for thirty-five years. Six bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters cured him, which he considers almost a miracle. It was but the natural result of the remedy restoring pure blood and perfect secretion.

TRACKING THE CRIMINALS.

Abram B. Saylor, sworn, said: Live a short distance east of Gilbert Jones; was called upon on 21st December at eleven o'clock at night to go to his place; Dr. Noxon arrived there after I did; got a lantern and examined tracks under Jones' window, also near the bedroom window in which Lazier slept, and around the pantry window; the tracks went around the east end of the house to the lane; the tracks appeared to have been made by two persons; found one track on verandah; one track led out of the front gate, and the other through the yard to the gate; went west a short distance on road and turned south through my orchard; then through brickyard to railway track; then went west along the track for a short distance when the tracks turned south again; the tracks separated slightly for a time and then coming together went over the bridge together and through marsh to a point of land; the tracks at the house I covered with boxes; drove to McDonald's point before daylight; there I met E. Beddell, McDonald, and Chas. H Saylor; these parties returned to the marsh to track the footprints from where they left the land near my place; the tracks that went through Jones' yard were made by patch bottom boots; the other track that went through the gate was not made by a patch bottom boot; the tracks covered back of the house corresponded with a measure which Charles Saylor had; after daylight we followed the tracks again from the house to the bridge leading to the marsh; from there we went southerly over the marsh to Talcotts land; thence along over land and marsh to the clear ice on the lake near Johnston's island when they separated; the track I followed crossed the point of the Island, went to Talcott's island to a sand bar that leads to the Island; up the land to a lane that led to the road in front of Scott's house; lost the track here on account of travel on road; went eight or nine rods of this point and I saw a track that I thought corresponded with the other tracks I had examined; the measurement of the tracks were the same, that is of the smooth bottom boots; went to Hick's for breakfast and saw that his clock corresponded with the time of my watch; went to Jones' and saw that his clock was twenty minutes faster than my watch, on the night of the murder it snowed early in the evening, but when I examined the tracks first they were plain and appeared to have been freshly made; the tracks I examined at Jones' house and those on the lake were the same; saw by the tracks that there was a difference in the length of one of the patch bottom boots from the heel to the sole.

TO TOMPSITT'S HOUSE

Mr. McCarthy cross examined the witness. Between eight and nine o'clock on the night of the murder he said it was snowing and blowing. It was about eight o'clock when he returned from Bloomfield. This witness was in the box two hours and twenty minutes.

Elain Bedell gave evidence about the finding of the tracks. He said:—I traced the tracks from the road in front of Jones' house on that night to the railroad track; thence west to John Talcott's house; got Aaron McDonald then to assist me in continuing the search; followed the tracks south about half a mile towards Gasket Island; at Springbrook we missed the trail again on account of clear ice; he found tracks of one man latter on at Tubb's Island; thence along up Scott's lane until I got in line of Lowder's house; followed up to this house and found fresh tracks on the main road in front of the house which led on to Tompsitt's house; I arrested Tompsitt then and took him to Lowder's house, Chief of Police Babbitt was behind me in a sleigh; Tompsitt said to David Lowder, "do you remember me being at your house about ten last night;" David answered that he did; Babbitt thereupon arrested David Lowder; at the point near Springbrook several of the tracks were measured; George Lowder's boots were tried in tracks back of his house, and they corresponded; I noticed the difference then in the length of the shank of his boots am confident the boots produced made the tracks; Tompsitt's boots filled the other track I found back of Jones' house, and at different points along the trail in the direction of his house; when I was at Tompsitt's house he said he had been at John Lowder's and Alfred Hick's the night before.

THE COURT-ROOM CLEARED.

Mr. Dalton McCarthy having taken charge of the case for the defence, Mr. Dickson, of Belleville, was retained specially to defend the Lowder brothers.

Just before the court rose for lunch today, His Lordship, owing to the disorder that prevailed among the auditors throughout the morning, ordered the court room to be cleared, and after dinner only a limited number of persons were admitted. Thus many were disappointed in not being able to hear the trial after driving a great many miles in the road. When the court opened in the afternoon Mr. McCarthy resumed his cross-examination of the witness, Constable Edwin Bedell, but he was unable to make any material variation in his statement. He said he had heard that Aaron McDonald and Tompsitt were not on good terms. When the witness reached Tompsitt's house he appeared to be surprised that he should be arrested and said he knew nothing of the murder. Tompsitt told the constable that he had been at Lowder's on the previous night and that he could prove by Alfred Hicks, a neighbor, where he passed the night. When Bedell told the prisoner that a man had been shot, his face turned pale, but he noticed nothing unusual in his appearance prior to that.

Charles H. Saylor son of Adam Saylor, corroborated the evidence of Constable Bedell and his father in so far as the finding of the footprints in the snow was concerned. On the 23rd December the witness walked from Jones house to Hicks which occupied one hour and six minutes.

Stephen J. Bowerman's evidence was a resume of the story told by the previous witness who followed the tracks from the house where Lazier was shot. He also stated that it took him an hour and six minutes to follow the trail from Jones' to Hicks' house a day or two after the murder. This witness stated as did one or two others that no tracks were found leading to Jones' house as if made by the men before the murder which gave rise to the supposition that the men arrived before the snow storm and were concealed in some of the outbuildings before making the attack.

Aaron McDonald deposed that he was called up on the night of the murder by Constable Bedell to assist in tracing the footprints in the snow. The tracks he saw at Tolcott's Island, at Springbrook, at Tubb's Island, and through Scott's lane to Tompsitt's were the same; in the lane the party who made the tracks walked along a stick of timber and in leaving it jumped apparently to one side. In cross-examination by Mr. Dickson the witness swore that in his opinion the boots taken from Tompsitt's feet correspond with the tracks he found leading to his house.

ON BAD TERMS.

To Mr. McCarthy the witness McDonald stated that for the last ten or twelve years he had not been on good terms with Tompsitt. Once he was fined in Picton for assaulting the prisoner and again since that they exchanged some rank words. He boldly asserted that he had an ill feeling towards Tompsitt, but he would not care to see him hung. Witness was a farmer and only engaged in fishing occasionally for a pleasure. He thought Tompsitt was a fisherman. He could not say whether it was himself or Beddell that first spoke of Tompsitt as being the probable murderer on the night we were examining the tracks. When Beddell assisted McDonald the latter said he would go quietly with him if McDonald would go away. McDonald said he complied with prisoner's request and left the house. The witness McDonald in a lengthy cross-examination by Mr. McCarthy stood the test very well for over half an hour when he became nervous, and fainted. He was caught just in time to prevent him falling to the floor and was led out of the Court room.

Horace N. Babbitt, chief of police, of Picton, sworn, said, I was sent for about four o'clock the morning after the murder; with four others, I went from Jones house around to Lowder's barn when we found a track that came off the lake in the direction of the barn; saw another track going towards Tompsitt's house; when we got at Tompsitt's he was then in charge of Constable Bedell, with his night clothes on; I told him to dress himself; he put on a grey tweed suit; I took him with me; I also took the gun I found in the house; I went down Scotts lane about half way and traced the track to the road in the direction of Hick's house; I then went to the bridge just south of Lowder's and caught up the track I had previously seen and followed it into Lowder's barn, then to the shed and from there to the gate; inside of the gate I saw another footprint; I did not see any tracks leading from the house; I went back to the road where Bedell was and heard David Lowder say something about being with Tompsitt the night before; I then arrested him and took him to the house for his overcoat; I measured his boots but in his house David got me an old pair of boots with holes in the side and asked me to examine them; I took the prisoner Lowder to Bloomfield and left him in charge of Bedell and a magistrate, and went to Jones' house; I went behind his house and the footprints there covered compared

EXACTLY WITH THE MEASURES

I had taken of David Lowder's boots on his feet, I followed the track west a piece, where they went over the fence and on through the brickyard to the railway track; I lost the track here for a piece, but finally found them again west of the track leading to the bridge; at Springbrook they separate; the track going south west I followed up Scott's lane to the West Lake road in front of Tompsitt's house where I left off in the morning; searched Tompsitt's house but took away nothing; at Lowder's house I found a pair of patch bottom boots that answered the description of the tracks which led from Jones' house to Springbrook; I went outside and told Adam Saylor, J. P., that he had better take them to Bloomfield; George Lowder was arrested later on at Bloomfield on Sunday; when the test was made some of the tracks at Jones' compared with the patch bottom boots I found at Lowder's; again he took the shoes given him for Tompsitt's and they compared exactly with the other footprints found back of Jones'

The witness was cross-examined at length by counsel for the defence, but nothing more was elicited.

The court then adjourned.

TO-DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

PICTON, May 8.—The trial continues to grow in interest. The prisoners wear a calm and composed look displaying little nervousness. The rest of course scanned by everyone. Tompsitt had a brief interview with his wife and sister last night which was abruptly brought to a close when the Sheriff discovered them. To-day the two women came into court crying and after shaking hands with Tompsitt took seats near the docket. The evidence to-day was important, showing that on the night of the murder Tompsitt was at Alfred Hicks' house at eleven o'clock. Other witnesses furnished connecting links in the evidence regarding the trail from Jones' to the prisoners' houses. Mr. Clute is conducting the case for the Crown in a fair and impartial manner.

Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. am satisfied the medicine is not injurious will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use hi preparation. The truth is, the medical preparation stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. THROUGH SNOW AND SUNSHINE:

OR

TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

'So much the better for then you will have no scruples in ruining him.'

'I Mr. William?' cried Josiah in surprise.

'You; and your reward, my forbearance my refusal to brand you a felon, and transport you beyond the seas for the term of your natural life.'

'But though I hate him, he has never injured me as he has you. Why not strike the blow yourself?' said Nib.

'And place my own liberty in jeopardy? No, Josiah Nib, you have already forfeited yours; and if you would have me spare you yours must be the hand to relieve me of a foe, yours the hand to avenge my wrongs, and place my cousin's affections in my keeping. Refuse and you spend your Christmas in a prison.'

'I must consent,' groaned Josiah.

'Of course you must,' returned William. 'And now listen to the plan that is to destroy Farmer Fairfield and save yourself.'

Trembling, Josiah listened while William said—

'I knew that Harry Fairfield has insured his farm and stock for a heavy sum, Were it all destroyed by fire, suspicion might be excited as to foul play. Could suspicion become certainty that the farmer had wilfully set fire to the place, not only would he be plunged into poverty, but his character would be blasted, and he would be punished as an incendiary. Do you follow me?'

'Yes, yes,' gasped Josiah horrified.

'That is well. Now mark me. Farmer Fairfield's property must be consumed by flames to-night, and means must be contrived to prove that fire was wilfully caused by the owner of the place. Unless this is done, to morrow sees you charges with embezzlement.'

'No, no, Mr. William; I cannot do it.'

'Then I place you in the hands of the law.'

'What if I divulge what you wish me to do?' said Josiah.

'Who would believe you? It would make you appear to be even a greater scoundrel than, you are and embitter your judges against you. But you have decided to refuse the only means by which you can obtain mercy for yourself, and—'

'No, no,' gasped Josiah, 'It is a terrible deed, but it shall be done.'

The plot is very easy of accomplishment, and the reward your liberty. Tired with their revels, and half-stupified with ale, those on the farm will sleep soundly to night. Entrance to the kitchen is easy. The farmer's coat slightly burnt, with his tinder box and matches in his pocket, left close to where the fire commenced is all that is required. Why Josiah, who but a fool would endure transportation for life, when but an half hour cleverly employed saves you from a felon's doom and makes the man who can destroy you your friend for ever?'

'Oh, God, it is a fearful crime, but it must be done.'

'Ah it must,' cried Brierley. 'But some one comes this way; we must not be seen together. Come we will mature our plan as we go; but it must be done and that this very night.'

So saying he seized Josiah by the arm, and drew him along the lane in the opposite direction to that in which somebody was advancing.

The new comer was Tim the carter, who having imbibed more ale than was good for him, was staggering home to the village under the charge of Dolly, the dairymaid at the farm.

'Now do stand up, Tom,' cried Dolly, as the carter made a stumble. 'What a stupid you are. I'd never touch the ale if it made such a fool of me as it does you.'

'Only been drinking master's health, Dolly, for he's a jolly good fellow, you know, and it's Christmas time, and—'

'You are a stupid. Stand up, or I'll shake you that I will.'

'Don't be cross, Dolly. It's all owing to Christmas' you know. And—and—well, I'm blest, Dolly if you ain't a twin. Why which is you and which is yourself?'

And Tim stretched a hand out on either side to grasp at an imaginary form, lost his balance and went floundering in the snow under the hedge.

'Dear, dear,' cried Dolly. 'I'm half a mind to leave you here and let you sleep till you get sober.'

'These feathers ain't been shook up; the bed's very hard. I think they stuffed the chickens in along of the feathers, and I'm blest if the feathers ain't all flying about, and they're quite wet.'

And Tim grasped at the descending flakes.

'I won't put up with a hard bed when we're married. Where's the clothes; you got em all on your side.'

'Oh, you stupid drunken fellow,' said Dooly. 'I don't think I'll have anything more to say to you. that I don't. You ought to be ashamed of yourself to drink till you see two Dollys, and fancy the snow is a feather bed.

'Get up directly or I'll leave you where you are. Farmer would be angry if he knew I had left the farm.'

'He's a jolly good fellow, and you're a jolly good fellow, and we're all jolly good fellows. Just pull the clothes over my head, and—and tuck me in; it's awful cold and he's a jolly—jolly—jol—'

Dolly stooped and dragged him to his feet.

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail in the United States, Canada and England In this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M'f'g Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

Advertising Cheats!!!

'It has become so common to write the beginning of an article, in an elegant, interesting manner,

'Then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such

'And simply call attention to Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,

'To induce people

'To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else.'

'THE REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,

'Religious and secular, is

'Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines

'There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness

'And ability

'In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.'

Did She Die?

No

'She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years'

The doctors doing her no good;'

'And at last was cured by Hop Bitters the papers say so much about.'

'Indeed! Indeed!

'How thankful we should be for that medicine.'

A Daughter's Misery.

'Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery,

'From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility.

'Under the care of the best physicians

Who gave her disease various names,

'But no relief,

'And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had shunned for years before using it.'
—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

'My daughters say:

'How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters.'

'He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable'

'And we are so glad that he used your Bitters.' A LADY OF UTICA, N. Y.

THE EXPERIMENTS OF PROFS Dumas and Ralfe, of Paris, and D. Anderson, of London, and other eminent physiologists demonstrating the function of PHOSPHATES as excitants of nutrition and nerve power having brought these agents into general use, it ought not to be necessary to call the attention of invalids to WHEELER'S Phosphates and Calisaya, the best combination of these food elements, with Wild Cherry Bark, in existence. Its value in prostrate conditions of the system is obvious, and its prolonged use in obstinate cases that have resisted all ordinary treatment will clearly demonstrate its extraordinary merits.

ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL.

THE VOLTAIC BELT Co., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above.—N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

BOTH.

She was the laziest little woman
That ever set a mortal crazy,
'Twas marve'lous how my erring spirit
Could be subdued by one so lazy.
To monosyllables addicted,
To use all else exceeding loth,
Asked which of two things she preferred,
She only murmured "Both!"

It is no paradox to say so,
Her every movement was repose;
As on a summer day the ocean,
Slumbers the while it ebbs and flows.
Yet was there latent fire; her nature
That of the panther, not the sloth.
I asked her once which she resembled;
She only murmured "Both!"

Her person—well, 'twas simply perfect,
Matching the graces of her mind;
To perfect face and form she added
A keen perception; taste refined,
But when I challenged her to tell me,
What I knew myself, in troth,
Whether wit or beauty charmed me,
She only murmured "Both!"

Provoked at last and never hitting
This lazy little woman's point,
I scanned her armour and discovered
Haply therein one open joint.
In careless tone I asked her, knowing
Her word was binding as an oath,
"Shall love or friendship be between us?"
She smiled and murmured "Both!"

A long and interesting discussion took place in reference to this statement. The Treasurer reported that it showed a gratifying increase in the receipts of the committee. Sixty-four parishes sent contributions to this fund. Forty responded to the Epiphany appeal made by the Board of Domestic and Foreign Missions. The special amount for the Diocese of Algoma having fallen off by the sum of $396, attention was called to the fact that the forthcoming Ascension tide appeal was on behalf of the general work of the Church, unless special appropriations were made by contributing parishes. Until further arrangements are made in reference to the payment of the Episcopal stipend, the ammount required of the Diocese forms a first charge upon the funds of this committee. It was therefore felt desirable that parishes contributing should not forget this obligation.

The Treasurer reported that ten years had elapsed since, at the request of the late Bishop of Algoma, he had undertaken the work. During that time a sum of $10,579 has passed through his books.

Reports were also made concerning parishes in default in regard to the missionary meetings and the parochial collections.

A long discussion arose concerning the default of the parish of Ameliasburgh in reference to the collections of 1882-83. Explanations were read by the Ven. Archdeacon Bedford Jones from Rev. J. A. Morris.

It was moved and seconded, that this Board is of opinion that the statements made by Rev. J. A. Morris furnish no excuse for his failure to make the collections required by this Board.—Carried.

A resolution was also carried stating that Mr. Morris' defence virtually admitted the only statements made by the rural Dean, and directed that a copy of the resolutions should be forwarded to Mr. Morris.

Communications were then presented. One was read from Merrickville, thanking the Board for its past help and stating it would not need assistance in future.

WE DO NOT CLAIM

that Shaker Blood Syrup will cure everything but the fact that on the purity and vitality of the blood depends the vigor and health of the whole system, and that disease of various kinds is often only the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause, we are naturally led to the conclusion that a remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, eradicates scrofula and other impurities from it, as Shaker Blood Syrup undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use; hence the field of its usefulness is quite an extended one, and we are warranted in recommending it for all derangements of the system which are caused by an unnatural state of the Blood.

Gentlemen—I was a great sufferer from Salt-Rheum on my limbs, for a dozen years previous to the summer of 1876, at which time I was cured by Shaker Blood Syrup. The skin would become dry, chap, crack open bleed and itch intensely so that I could not help scratching, which of course made them worse. At the time I commenced taking Shaker Blood Syrup (in the summer of 1876) they were so bad that they discharged and I was obliged to keep them bandaged up with linen cloths. The skin was so tight by the heat of the disease that if I stooped over they would crack open and actually bring tears to my eyes. The first bottle benefited me so much that I continued taking it till I was cured. Hoping many others may learn the value of Shaker Blood Syrup, and receive as much benefit as I have, I am,

Very truly yours,
C. A. HOWARD, West 11th St., New York.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

TUPPER'S RETIREMENT.

Our esteemed local contemporary thinks the country sustains a loss in the retirement of Sir Charles Tupper from the Ministry. It appreciates "independent" opinion so highly, we will submit a little of it in order to show what a tremendous calamity to the country is the Minister's retirement. The Toronto World has this to say of the immaculate:—"Worse than all, there is over him and all his public services a taint of selfishness, a suspicion of a love of lucre, which he has not been careful to place himself above. The almost universal opinion is that he has made politics pay." The Toronto News pays Sir Charles its impartial and independent compliments as follows:—"Sir Tupper has for long been a source of weakness to the Cabinet. His brazen unscrupulousness and shameless corruption, his abuse of his position to the furtherance of his private ends, his unpopularity among the French supporters of the Ministry, and the disgust excited in Ontario by his intrigues for the reversion of the premiership have for some time rendered his withdrawal from the Cabinet desirable from a party point of view. His special responsibility for the iniquities of the Pacific railway thirty million job and the subsidies to provincial lines, rendered it absolutely necessary for the government to rid themselves of the burden of his presence in the Cabinet as soon as possible." The Montreal Witness is another journal which our local contemporary has of late quoted approvingly and it speaks thus: "His withdrawal will appreciably lessen the strength of the Government in the House, where, and in the country during an election campaign, much dependence has hitherto been placed upon his well-known debating powers by his colleagues and his party. As Minister of Railways he has been successful in defending to the satisfaction of a large party majority schemes and projects which, on the face of them, were indefensible." It speaks much more that is bad of Tupper but this is a fair specimen. The London Advertiser, a Reform paper, says in the course of a temperate article:—"The people of Canada are not yet, however, done with Sir Charles Tupper. A sumptuous residence has been provided for him, and here he will reside at the expense of the people of the Dominion till there is another change in the wheel. That his object in sitting in Parliament while his seat is legally vacant was merely to press the Pacific Railway loan is now quite evident. Should he at some time in the near future accept a seat in the directorate of the Canadian Pacific Railway his action will be more fully understood, and possibly more generally condemned."

Sir Charles' party friends, office seekers, and civil servants may get up banquets if they choose, but Tupper's record is before the people of Canada whose good opinion he has not.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE HAMILTON Spectator is disputing with a contemporary about its circulation. It's idle to make a fuss over so small a matter.

* * *

A YOUNG LADY of Brooklyn, a Miss Campbell, died after waltzing at a party. It is not stated whether or not she wore corsets, but "Bessie Bramble" had better ascertain before she again denounces the opponents of that article.

* * *

THE KINGSTON papers are indignant that a Salvation Army tent paid for by the citizens of that place, should be shipped to Syracuse by a man from Toronto. But where's the difference; the surplus funds are all sent to the United States.

THE OTTAWA Free Press is altogether astray in its estimate of the explosive power of the material in the cartridges found in the Parliament Buildings at Toronto. The contents, "dualin," was declared by the analyst to be a much more powerful explosive than dynamite and that's pretty bad. It will be noticed that a yesterday's telegram told of the explosion of a single cartridge in a dynamite factory in Ayershire, by which ten women were blown to atoms.

WE REMARKED the other day that to the uninitiated Wall street and its workings were impenetrable—an awesome mystery. It may be observed in support of this that the Toronto News had some wise remarks on the failure of the great bear, Keene, which leads the London Advertiser to intimate to the News man that he does not know what he is talking about. The News philosopher will probably retort that his western contemporary is a born idiot, while the public looks on and wonders how much either of them know of the hurly-burly commonwealth of stocks.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

ITS NOT BRED IN THE BONE.

In Norway a girl is not considered old enough to have a beau until she can make a nice loaf of white, light bread. Were the same test to be applied in Canada the prospects for an unprecedented crop of old maids would be of the most lurid description.—Hamilton Spectator.

Mr. John Magwood, Victoria Road, writes: "Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure is a splendid medicine. My customers say they never used anything so effectual. Good results immediately follow its use. I know its value from personal experience having been troubled for 9 or 10 years with dyspepsia, and since using it digestion goes on without that depressed feeling so well known to dyspeptics. I have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of Indigestion, Constipation, Heartburn, or any trouble arising from a disordered stomach.

Health is a duty, Disease a crime. Use Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters and be cured of all biliousness or liver trouble. 25 cents will buy a large bottle.

A DOUBLE BENEFIT

James Moore, a prominent resident of Leamington, writes that he cured himself of Dyspepsia of a year's duration by one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and two bottles cured his wife who had been for two years a sufferer from the same disease. He conscientiously recommends it to all suffering from similar troubles.

FATE OF THE ALLEGED FORGER,

From Our Own Correspondent.

TORONTO, May 9.—On May 2, F. Lewis, son of the manager of the Bank of Montreal, Peterboro, was arrested on the charge of having forged a consolidated Canadian Loan bond for one thousand pounds. Lewis was at one time clerk in the Receiver-General's office, and was superannuated in 1879. Yesterday afternoon the case was called at the police court here, but Lewis did not answer to his name. He was out on bail. The Crown Attorney said he was all ready with his witnesses from Ottawa and the Magistrate said he would have to order the forfeit of the bail. Lewis had not been seen. His lodgings were visited and the locked door was burst open when Lewis was discovered lying on a sofa. Asleep? Apparently—but no, he is dead! Called to appear at the bar of a higher Judge. It is supposed he died from an attack of paralysis.

DIOCESE OF ONTARIO.

Next Meeting of Synod to be Held in Ottawa, June 24.

At the meeting yesterday in Kingston of the Mission Board, Diocese of Ontario, communication was read from Rev. A. F. Echlin, Hillier, regarding the request of the vestry to sell a portion of church property. The committee regretted that they could not see their way to accede to the request.

Mr. Walkem explained that he had retired from the position of representing the Rev. A. F. Echlin in the suit with Rev. Mr. Hallowell, and that he was now simply representing the Synod of the Diocese. He considered that it was the duty of the parish, whose interests might be prejudiced by the suit, to support Mr. Echlin. Mr. Walkem made a lengthened explanation on the subject.

Rev. Mr. Forneri appeared and thanked the committee for passing a resolution at the last meeting sympathizing with the erection of the Memorial Church at Adolphustown.

His Lordship, in reply to enquiries, announced that he intended to call the next meeting of the Synod at the city of Ottawa, and after some discussion resolved that the time be fixed for the 24th of June, at Christ Church, Ottawa.

SPOKES FROM THE WHEEL.

Polo on bicycles is the latest novelty.

They are building a cinder track in Brantford.

Over 200 wheels will meet in Chicago on Decoration Day.

Look for the exciting short story to-morrow "Saved by a bicycle."

Wheelmen are expected to attend the races of the Belleville Club on May 26, from Kingston, Napanee, Madoc and other places.

Messrs. H. Corby, President of the Ramblers Wheel Club, and Geo. Thompson, yesterday received each an Expert Columbia bicycle from Boston. Which will you bet on?

A number of local wheelmen are subscribing for the "Western 'Cyclist" published at Ovid, Mich., for fifty cents per annum. This excellent wheelmen's journal has been enlarged to 16 pages and will be published fortnightly.

There are clubs in Ontario in the following among other places:—Ottawa, Brockville, Kingston, Napanee, Belleville, Madoc, Peterboro' Newcastle, Toronto (2), Guelph, London, St. Thomas, Hamilton, Paris, Goderich, Simcoe, Woodstock, Barrie, Brantford and Stratford.

A leading physician is credited with prescribing a good, strong dose of bicycle for a nervous, sedentary, billious, dyspeptic, inert patient. Its a sure cure. Bicycling is probably the most common-sense and exhilarating of exercise. The highest medical authorities on both sides of the Atlantic have written much upon it, and have unanimously advocated, often enthusiastically, its general adoption. Bicycling does not tire the rider, unless he be foolish enough to overdo it. It puts new life into him, and gently sends the invigorated blood coursing through the veins, not boisterously, but easily, and naturally. It tones up the system, it keeps a man out of doors, and is a complete gymnasium without the monotony of the gymnasium.

C. B. Hall Braville, Ill., says: 'I have sold at retail 156 bottles of Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, guaranteeing every bottle. I must say I never sold a medicine in my life that gave such universal satisfaction. In my own case with a badly ulcerated throat after a physician penciling it for several days to no effect, the Electric Oil cured it thoroughly in twenty-four hours, and in threatened croup in my children this winter, it never failed to relieve almost immediately.'

SPORTING NOTES.

Fitzgerald, the winner of the six days' walking match, received $9,456, which included $980 stake money; Rowell, second, $3,670, including $280 stake money; Panchot, $2,004; Noremac, $1,186; Herty, $847; Vint, $678, Elson, $58. The total receipts were $36 446, and the expenses $18,352.

Hazael, whose record of 600 miles has been beaten, says:—I am going to challenge Fitzgerald to a six days' match for $5,000. Even if there is not another man in the race it would be such a contest as was never seen before; but if we can induce Rowell to chip in $5,000 and enter I don't think Madison Square garden would be large enough to hold the people who would hurry to it.' Fitzgerald said that he should decline Hazael's challenge. He looked upon Charles Rowell as the best man in the world to make a race with.

Joe Pendegrast says that he will challenge Sullivan to box four rounds in Madison Square garden, or to fight in the old-fashioned style in the prize ring, for $1,000 or $2,500 a side.

If a few Grains of Common Sense could be infused into the thick noddles of those who perpetually and alternately irritate their stomachs and bowels with drastic purgatives they would use the highly accredited and healthful laxative and tonic Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, which causes 'good digestion to wait on appetite and health on both.

S. Chadwick Arcadia Wayne Co. writes: 'I have had severe attacks of Asthma for several years. I commenced taking Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The first dose relieved me in one hour. I continued taking it in teaspoonful doses for a few days, and have not had an attack of it since, now nearly one year.'

IT REMINDED HIM OF HIS MOTHER'S COOKING.

From the Philadelphia Call.

Mr. B.—These biscuits remind me of mother's.

Mrs. B.—Well, I declare! Have you gone crazy!

Mr. B.—Crazy, my dear? Of course not.

Mrs.—Well, I never expected to hear you say that any of my cooking resembled your mother's. She was a wonderful cook, I have no doubt, for you have said so a million times.

Mr. B.—Yes, she certainly was. In fact there was only one dish that she ever failed in.

Mrs. B.—What was that?

Mr. B.—Biscuits.

If you want fast colors and brilliant shade use the popular package Star Dyes

The "constantly tired-out" feeling so often experienced is the result of impoverished blood and consequent enfeebled vitality. Ayer's Sarsaparilla feeds and enriches the blood, increases the appetite, and promotes digestion of the food and the assimilation of its strengthening qualities. The system being thus invigorated, the feeling rapidly changes to a grateful sense of strength and energy.

CRUSHED BY THE CARS.

A little son of John Spinks, Toronto, had his foot crushed by a G. T. R. Express train some time ago. Two doctors attended him without benefit, and amputation was proposed, but Hagyard's Yellow Oil was tried, which gave prompt relief and effected a speedy cure even removing all stiffness of the joint.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues healed and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all this. Try it. Every bottle warranted.

Every one speaks highly of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters as a Stomach Liver and Kidney Medicine. 'The best family medicine we ever used,' say they all. Try a bottle this Spring as a blood purifier.

HAPPY THE BRIDE.

Yesterday morning it poured and rained,
From the clouds so thick and grey,
And she pouted and sighed, "The sun don't shine,
And I'm to be married to-day."

And he kissed her cheek and touched her hair,
Saying, "Don't look so sad and wan,
Remember the saying so old and sweet,
Happy the bride that the rain rains on."

A most commendable thing indeed,
For creatures like them, to be sure.

The Robin he sang "My Grandfather's Clock,"
A beautiful ballad, I ween,
And the Blackbird he sang in a baritone voice,
"See that my grave's kept green."

But when the Peewit attempted to sing,
"Wait till the clouds roll by,"
One of them grabbed a lumb of a brick,
And hit him a thump in the eye.

The above two pieces in the Toronto World are fair specimens of the daily contributions of Mr. Kernigan, a member of the World staff, who oftentimes produces lines far superior in merit to those contributed to the New York Journal and so frequently copied by exchanges.

CABLE BREVITIES.

A Mormon apostle in Vienna, has been sentenced to a month's imprisonment here for preaching the doctrines of his Church.

The Weather Prophet looks for Spring this month. The wise men look for a blood purifier that will not injure his system; he can find what he wants in Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters, the greatest of all blood purifiers. In large bottles at 50 cents.

FACT STRANGER THAN FICTION.

It is a fact that Alonzo Howe, of Tweed, had a fever sore that afflicted him for thirty-five years. Six bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters cured him, which he considers almost a miracle. It was but the natural result of the remedy restoring pure blood and perfect secretion

Ayer's Carthartic Pills are the best medicine that can be employed to correct irregularities of the stomach and bowels. Gentle, yet thorough, in their action, they cure constipation, stimulate the digestive organs and the appetite, and cleanse, build up, and strengthen the system

—OF THE—
Belleville Electric Light Company.

To be organized and under the control of local management, for the purpose of Lighting Stores, Hotels, Halls, Public Grounds, &c.

The Company is licensed to use the Thomson-Houston System, such as has been exhibited during the first two weeks in the several stores and on Front street, and much admired for its brilliancy, pure white color, steadiness in burning, and absence of flickering and frying, so objectionable in the lights of other systems. The Thomson-Houston System is well and widely known throughout the United States. It is the only perfect automatic self-regulating system of electric arc light in existence, and has carried off the first prizes whenever brought into competition with other systems in the United States.

The Belleville Electric Light Co., to be organized with a capital $10,000, divided into 1,000 shares of $10 each. The business is well established and on a paying basis. It has a newly equipped central lighting station, having ample room for the extension and enlargement of facilities for lighting as fast as required by the public demand for the light. It is provided with one 12 light dynamo, and another of 25 light capacity is now under way to provide for lights already contracted for.

STOCK SUBSCRIPTIONS.

It is now proposed to receive subscriptions for the capital stock of the Belleville Electric Light Co. The stock will be issued in shares of $10 each at par, fully paid and non-assessable. The financial success of the enterprise is fully assured. People with surplus funds that are earning but 3 or 3½ per cent will find this stock a good remunerative investment with a moral certainty of receiving from 10 per cent besides large increase of the stock.

A subscription book has been opened at the office of J. Parker Thomas, from whom any further information that may be required will be cheerfully furnished.

David Lowder Acquitted for Lack of Evidence.

CHAIN OF EVIDENCE TIGHTENING.

PICTON, May 8.—The trial of Joseph Tompsitt, David Lowder and George Lowder for the murder of Peter Lazier was resumed before Mr. Justice Patterson this morning at 9:30. The Court room was only comfortably filled the door being closed after all the seats had been taken up. The prisoner sat in the box and kept a close watch on the witness. Lowder's mother, father and sister were in the court Tompsitt's sister, Mrs. Sarah Pollard, wife of Dr. Pollard, and his wife when they came into court went up to the dock crying and shook hands with Tompsitt. The Sheriff stepped up and ordered the ladies to sit away from the prisoner so that he might not have communication with them, The interest in the proceedings is still very great. Crowds of people unable to gain admission to the court room are loafing about in the corridors and in the yard discussing the murder and the probable result of the trial.

F. G. McDonald, sworn, said: I live on Gasket Island; was aroused on the night of the murder and went to Bear Island between Talcott's and Johnston's; the tracks I saw there I followed to Springbrook at the point of separation when one track went south while the patch bottom boot print led east; the latter track I followed up to the road in front of Lowder's; went to Bloomfield afterwards; that afternoon saw two pair of shoes compared with the tracks between Talcott's and Springbrook; the pair of those produced (said to be Tompsitt's) with a flat bottom fitted the footprints in the snow exactly; have lived in that vicinity a number of years; the track from Springbrook was crooked; the prisoner's especially Tompsitt are familiar with that portion of the lake; Tompsitt is a fisherman and trapper; George Lowder is a bricklayer but don't know what calling his brother followed.

The witness was cross examined by both the lawyers for the defence going over the same ground very minutely.

FURTHER CORROBORATION.

Nathaniel B. Cole, sworn said: I live on south side of West Lake; after being called up I went and found ten tracks near Springbrook, where they very soon separated, one turning east and the other going south; I followed the one track to Scott's shed, when the trail was taken up by other parties, this track at a subsequent test corresponded with the flat bottom shoes got at Tompsitt's.

The prisoners had a hushed conversation with Mr. N. Gilbert about the boots, while Mr. McCarthy was conducting the cross-examination.

The testimony given by Mr. Cole was very clear in so far as the examination of the trail was concerned, the effect of his cross-examination being to strengthen his statement if anything. The snow was clear he said the most perfect tests were made. The witness noticed in the track spoken of that one of the uppers of the shoes were run over the sole a little, as was the case with Tompsitt's shoes produced.

James W. Talcott's evidence was in substance as follows:—Henry McDonald first informed me of the murder of Lazier between four and five in the morning, I found tracks on the marsh and on the land and assisted others in following up the trail from one end to the other; compared the shoes and the tracks and they corresponded exactly.

Wm. H. Leader, sworn, said:—I live north of Tompsitt's house; it was about daylight when I left home on the Saturday morning after the murder; did not notice any tracks until I got near Scott's lane; the track I followed on in the direction of Hick's lane; that was the only track I saw when I first went out; the track was slightly obliterated with light snow; did not find any tracks between Hick's and Nelson Harris' on the road towards Bloomfield.

Edward Scott's evidence was substantially as follows:—I live on the west side West Lake opposite Alfred Hick's; on the night of the murder I went to my barn between nine and ten o'clock when it was snowing very hard; next morning the tracks I made the night before could not be seen; in the morning I saw another track at the gate which appeared to have gone out of the lane to the middle of the road and then in the direction of my house; did not see any other tracks at that time, about five o'clock; later on in the morning Constable Babbitt came up and examined the tracks with a measure.

Alfred Hicks, sworn, deposed as follows:—I live at West Lake, nearly on the opposite side of the road from Scotts Tompsitt called at the front kitchen door of my house facing the road on the night of the murder, after I had gone to bed; don't know what time it was; prisoner came in and asked me if I was going to Picton on Saturday, I said I did not know; he wanted to know if he could ride with me if I went and I told him he could; the prisoner then left, going out of the same door in which he entered; I had visitors at my house on that night—Alfred Hicks and his wife—and they left about ten o'clock; did not notice any tracks next day.

Cross-examined by Mr. McCarthy—Prisoner Tompsitt was at my house after Hicks went away but don't know what time time it was; did not hear Chief McKinnon conversing with Mrs. Tompsitt on the Sunday following; Mrs. Tompsitt sent for me and I found McKinnon there; when I arrived she said 'What will I do.' I said I don't know what you mean; Chief McKinnon then spoke up stating that Tompsitt had made a confession and he came up for the revolver and cartridges; I told Mrs. Tompsitt if she had such things to give them up; she afterwards said she did not have them; I have done business with Tompsitt and personally always found him honest.

WOULD TAKE A CHICKEN.

Questioned by Mr. Clute—What is Tompsitt's character generally in the neighborhood? A—Not very honest I believe.

Q—What do you mean by that? A—I believe if he wanted a chicken or watermelon he would take it. (Laughter)

To Mr. McCarthy—When prisoner was at my house he appeared to talk in natural tone of voice.

When Mr. Hicks was relating the meeting he had with Chief McKinnon and Mrs. Tompsitt she began crying bitterly, at the same time displaying a great deal of nervousness.

Mrs. Alfred Hicks deposed that Tompsitt called at her place at ten minutes to eleven. When Tompsitt came in he made the remark that he did not think it was so late. She had not retired for the night yet but her husband had.

In her cross examination she said the gate was immediately in front of the kitchen door through which Tompsitt entered. When he came in she was in the kitchen with the light and after exchanging a few words Tompsitt stepped up to her husband's bedroom window and spoke to him. Tompsitt, if he had been at Lowder's that night, would have had to pass her door in order to get home.

Court rose for dinner.

AFTERNOON SITTING.

When the trial resumed after dinner, Mr. Clute recalled Mrs. Hicks. She said when Tompsitt came in there was snow on his cap. She thought his coat was dark and had the first button fastened.

George H. Pope, of Belleville, sworn, said: Peter Lazier and I married sisters; heard of the murder at eight o'clock on Saturday morning and started for Gilbert Jones': Chief McKinnon and Lazier's wife accompanied me; first thing I did was to go to Bloomfield; in the Town Hall Tompsitt and David Lowder were under arrest; McKinnon got their boots; the shoes produced came off Tompsitt's feet; several others and I drove up to the marsh along West Lake; drove to a place I think is called Johnstons Island; tracks there were pointed out to us by Frank, McDonald Talcott, and others, the boots and the footprints were compared; Tompsitt's boots fitted one of the tracks; the other boots taken from David Lowder would not fit the other track; Tompsitt's boots exactly fitted the track made by smooth bottom boots; several tests were made; the other track appeared to have been made by a patch bottom boot; the trail was followed up with further comparison of the Tompsitt boot; we returned then to Bloomfield and drove to Picton; on next day (Sunday) accompanied by Babbit and and McKinnon we drove to Adam H. Saylor's and got a pair of long boots which he identified; got Constable Bedell and went to Jones' house and examined tracks around the house: a number of tracks were protected; the long boot he was satisfied made part of the tracks he found there; saw same tracks behind a clump of bushes near the house; the tracks led from the house and apparently stopped behind the bushes as if to screen the party who made them, and then went out to the road; the right boot compared exactly with the track he found; I am as perfectly satisfied the boot produced made the track; McKinnon, Babbit and Bedell were with me when other tests were made in the marsh; the tracks there compared the same with the boots as those at Jones house; every conceivable test was made with the same result; both the right and left boot were subject to the test; the long boots produced, made the tracks towards Lowder's house; discovered difference in the length of the shank of one of them; had considerable experience as a lumber man in tracing people through the woods in the snow; if I wanted to find a man in the woods I always tracked him in the snow, knowing the shape of his boots.

THE SIZE OF THE BOOTS.

Cross-examined by Mr. McCarthy; Mr. McKinnon was not engaged at my expence to investigate the case; it was about four o'clock I think when I got to Bloomfield on Saturday afternoon; saw the four tracks at the north side of the bush next to the road, but only one of them was distinct enough to make the test with the boots; did not see the tracks at the house again until Saturday; the tracks were covered; the covers were removed and the boots fitted to the footprints; I examined one of these prints in the snow on the platform at the house; another track was found near the platform towards the entrance to the cellar; a third one was examined still further west; the footprint on the platform I compared with the long boots (said to belong to George Lowder); tested the length of the shank under Lazier's bed-room window; it was about dusk when I went to Bloomfield where the coroner's inquest was in session; It was not dark when I examined the tracks on the lake; the tracks were examined all along to the point where the two tracks separated; the shoes said to belong to prisoner. Tompsitt filled one of the tracks exactly; the shoes produced are to the best of my knowledge the ones that compared with that track; indentified the boots by a nail out of the heel, a break in the side, and by the upper of the right boot being run over the sole; had no hesitation in stating they were the boots; George Lowder was not under arrest when I was at Bloomfield; noticed peculiarity in shank before I knew there was such a man as George Lowder in existence; did not mention this discovery of mine to anyone; made that discovery before I met Babbitt on the lake; thought the difference in the length of the shank was about a quarter of an inch; had a rule and measured it, therefore was confident it was about quarter of an inch; there was a distinguishable difference in the length on the outside of the shank; there was not any very material difference from the outside and the inside of the shank; I identify the left long boot (said to belong to George Lowder); this boot had the longest shank. (The boots were measured by a compass and rule by Mr. McCarthy.) Mr. Pope objected to that sort of measurement and refused to say whether he was measuring it fairly or not, Mr. McCarthy thereupon appealed to the jury to say as to that when His Lordship objected on the ground that he could not ask the jury that question now. Mr. Pope was only willing to measure the boots as he had measured the prints in the snow, which did not meet Mr. McCarthy's idea. The prisoner's counsel postponed his mode of measurement until he entered upon the defence in accordance with the learned Judge's ruling.

To Mr. Dickson—The tests on the lake were made in various ways; sometimes the boot was set in the track, other times alongside and other tests were made by placing the boot in the print on the side; the difference in the length of the shank I discovered before I saw the boots.

Mr. Clute asked witness to measure the boots with the same rule that he used last December and explain it to the jury, which he did, showing a difference in the length of the shank of one of the boots of about a quarter of an inch.

Adam H. Saylor, J. P., of Bloomfield, sworn, said: Went to West Lake after the murder with John Fralick; at John Lowder's I got a pair of long boots; the long boots produced are the same ones; brought the boots out of the house and left them under the cutter seat at the Town Hall at Bloomfield with Fralick; he lives just opposite the Town Hall; I agreed to leave the boots with him; Tompsitt and David Lowder were then in custody; at the town hall George Lowder came out and said who has my boots; I told him I had them, and showed him across the road to the cutter where he would find them; George said he would know them if he saw them; I did not see him look at the boots in the cutter; at the town hall Tompsitt appeared to be anxious to talk to any person and every person around him; he volunteered a statement to me.

TOMPSITT'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Clute—What did he say? A.—He said—

Mr. McCarthy—Is that evidence admissable My Lord? I submit it is not, as the witness is a Magistrate and prisoner Tompsitt knew that at the time.

His Lordship—I don't know anything at present to make it inadmissable.

Mr. Clute quoted the law bearing on the point and the evidence was admitted.

Mr. Clute—What did Tompsitt say? A.—He said: If I had wanted money I would not have gone to Jones'. I would have gone to Ward's, who I believe had $1,000; I would not have gone to Jones' I would have gone to other places if I wanted money; and if I had I would not have left any person to tell the story."

While the witness was making this statement the people in the court room listened breathlessly, so that a pin, if dropped, could almost be heard.

John Fralick corroborated the previous witness regarding the finding of the boots at Lowder's. He gave the boots to his wife when he got home. Before George Lowder was arrested the witness had a conversation with him. George said the boots he had belonged to him and he would like to have them. Mr. Fralick told him he though Mr. Saylor was justified in taking them. Lowder said "well all right if you want them you can have them and welcome."

To Mr. Dickson—Don't know whether George Lowder saw the boots or not.

Mrs. Fralick, wife of the last witness, stated that her husband gave her the boots he brought home. Before her husband gave her the boots he went into the stable. During this time she saw a young man come into the yard and examine the boots in the cutter.

Wm. R. Brown, sworn said:—Am a school teacher at Bloomfield, on Thursday 24th April, Earnest Cooper, one of my scholars, brought me at noon two pieces of a revolver; think the pistol took a 32 calibre ball.

To Mr. McCarthy—Think that is a common size revolver.

John Mitchell, a boy about ten years of age, a pupil of Mr. Brown, swore that he saw Earnest Cooper find the cylinder of the revolver, which he took to his teacher. The other part of the revolver was found before that by Cooper. The cylinder they found in a field near a culvert on the cross road. The handle of the revolver was found about twelve feet distant from the cylinder,

Earnest Cooper, a small boy of about the same age, stated that he found the handle and barrel of the revolver under a bridge in the water a short distance from the school. It was about two feet under the bridge, The cylinder he found later on the same day. These things were found he said on the same road leading to Lowder's house and the Sand Banks.

To Mr. Dickson—The school house is near the Bloomfield station and is on the corner of the road.

TOMPSITT'S REVOLVER.

Mr. L. Peters, sworn, said: I live in Ameliasburg Township; on 15th November last I met Tompsitt on the platform at Kingston station; came home to Belleville together; we were talking about firearms, he showed me a revolver which he said was a 32 calibre; came down on street cars at Belleville to Ferry House to get across the bay; Tisdale would not take us over; it was about nine o'clock when we came out of Tisdale's boat house, a dog run out, Tompsitt took the pistol out of his right hip pocket and walked back through the gangway; before this I saw the revolver; it was a bright, nicely finished revolver; the one produced appeared to be about the same size but it was much brighter.

Mr. McCarthy asked the indulgence of the court to converse with Tompsitt, as he said 'this is all new evidence to us.'

The excitement was very high at this point, the occupants of the court room having just broken from a breathless silence of several minutes. While his counsel was talking to Tompsitt, his sister, Mrs. Dr. Pollard, who had been crying for some time began moaning aloud and in a few minutes fainted. A reporter and Mr. Clute bathed her face in water when she shortly after partially regained her consciousness and began crying out 'take me out,' 'take me out,' 'oh dear me,' 'oh dear me,' Dr. Ingersoll then removed her to an ante room. This occurrence created a profound sensation for a time.

Peters in the cross-examination said Tompsitt was a stranger to him when he met him in Kingston. He said that Tompsitt told him that once while asleep in a room in New York a woman called and opened the door of his room, stepped in and went out again. He said he put his hand on the revolver and to the witness made the remark that if he had put a couple of balls through her head that would have fixed her.

James Hicks said Tompsitt was riding with him on the road to Wellington when they met Gilbert Jones. Tompsitt said to him that it would be no knack to scare the old man (meaning Jones) out of his money.

Mrs. Phœbe Cunningham stated that she lived on the lake shore seven miles above Wellington, or about fifteen from Bloomfield. Tompsitt was at her place last fall after the middle of September, when a conversation took place about Gilbert Jones:—Tompsitt said:—"What did old Jones and his wife get married for. Witness said she did not know, it could not have been she said for money for they both had plenty of it, He said if a couple of masked men went to him and placed a revolver under his nose he could scare the money out of him easily. She said she did not know about that as he was pretty gritty. Her daughter said that would scare it out of any person. Mrs. Cunningham said she thought he (meaning Jones) would hang on to it as long as there was any chance of life. He said if he ever got in such a scrape as that he would shoot him so dead he would not know what did it before he would be caught. Her daughter said—'Why Joe, you would be hung.' He said—I don't care how soon.' Tompsitt had been complaining of being unhappy with his wife, which occasioned this conversation.

JESSE JAMES THE BANDIT.

Cross-examined—Had not been talking that day about the Quaker trial at Belleville; might have been talking about that trial before that; Tompsitt spoke of Jesse James in my house; did not know whether the book of the life of this robber was in my house or not. Tompsitt said he had read in this book something about a Quaker having to give up a grist to some poor man; Gilbert Jones was not mentioned at that time; when I heard of the murder the conversation Tompsitt had in my house was recalled to mind; I told several of this conversation after that; about a week ago I told McKinnon and he wrote it down in his book.

Albert Spencer, station master at Bloomfield, swore, said: Saw Gilbert Jones and Topsitt at the station the day of the murder; Jones was there nearly all the afternoon disposing of some hops, and got money, the time I saw Tompsitt he asked me if there was an express parcel there for him; I said there was not; there has not been such a parcel there since for him; that was about four o'clock; Jones got his money in freight shed before I saw Tompsitt; there were 15 or 20 people around the station at that time.

Cross-examined—Did not notice any person there whom I did not know; there were men stopping there engaged putting up telegraph poles; Tompsitt received an express parcel at the station before this in November.

To Mr. Clute.—It was a beehive for Markham,

Gregory B. Dougall stated that he saw Jones and Tompsitt at the station that day. Tompsitt he said walked up and down the platform looking into the shed Jerrie Miller on returning home that night picked up Tompsitt along the road about a quarter of a mile from Lowders. At Lowders, he jumped off and the witness drove on. If Tompsitt had, he said, remained on his sleigh, he could have taken him half a mile nearer his home before turning off the road.

Sandford White in his evidence stated that he met a conveyance on Saylor's hill on the road coming from Lowder's, going in the direction of Bloomfield. It was storming very hard then, shortly after eight o'clock the night of the murder. The rig was going very rapidly. Could not tell how many were in the rig or who they were. Saw George Lowder driving into Bloomfield between 7 and 8 o'clock the next morning, Saturday.

George White, a son of the last witness, corroberated his fathers testimony.

Aaron McDonald, the witness who fainted yesterday re-called and gave an explanation of a part of the evidence he furnished the day previous.

Mr. Dickson submitted that there was no evidence whatever against David Lowder. The only thing that connected George Lowder with the case was the footprints found in the snow. At the time George claimed the boots as his that fitted these tracks he had not seen the boots yet. It was simply talk he had heard that led him to believe the boots were his. It was possible that they might have belonged to any of his four brothers. He submitted, therefore, that there was no evidence against George either.

His Lordship thought that whatever evidence there was against George Lowder should be given to the jury. There was no evidence, however, against David Lowder except that he said he was with Thompsitt at ten o'clock the night of the murder. That did not establish anything in the absence of any other evidence. He there fore directed the Jury to return a verdict of not guilty against David Lowder, which was done. The prisoner acquitted then stepped out of the dock, and, walking to one side, thrust his hands deep down in his pockets and looked about the Court with a significent smile on his face.

The Court then adjourned until 9.30 to-morrow morning, when the defence will be entered upon.

Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Whenever the blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of an prevailing epidemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished power should be these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce all erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, biliousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. The fruit season is especially prone to produce irritation of the bowels and disorder of the digestive organs; both of which dangerous conditions can be completely removed by Holloway's corrective medicines.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally and the Ointment rubbed externally are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, surest. Holloway's Pills and Ointment purify the blood, remove obstructions to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the overgorged air tubes, and render respiration free without reducing the strength [illegible] irritating the nerves, or depressing the [illegible] Such as the ready means of saving [illegible] when afflicted with colds, coughs, [illegible] other complaints by which so many [illegible] seriously and permanently afflicted [illegible] tries.

THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. [illegible] am satisfied the medicine is not injurious [illegible] will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical profession stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of these happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

THROUGH SNOW AND SUNSHINE:

OR

TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

'Now Tim, will you go home straight if I leave you? I shall get into such trouble if the farmer finds I am not in the house.'

'I'm all right Dolly,' said Tim, 'You shan't get into a row. Give us a kiss,'

And Tim flinging his arms around her nearly bore her to the earth. Dolly complied with his request, advised him to be careful, tore herself away and hurried back to the farm.

Tim staggered on a few paces, and then paused and clutched at the hedge.

'I say, Dolly,' he exclaimed. 'Why, where is she? Just now there was two of her, and now there ain't one. Hallo! how these feathers are flying about. I'll mend the tick to-morrow. I'll—hallo! how the bed goes round.'

And Tim made a spring to lay himself on the top of the hedge, and fell beneath it, where he lay and soon was asleep.

A short time and the heavy snow flakes had covered him as with a sheet.

About an hour passed when William Brierley came cautiously along the lane, and paused near the spot where Tim, hidden by the snow, still slumbered, he looked anxiously towards the farm-house.

'Surely the fool's courage will not fail him,' he said. 'No, fear will nerve his hand and steel his heart.

He is in my power, and dare not rob me of my vengeance. Ah! Harry Fairfield, you little know the man you struck if you believe his vengeance would slumber—you little dream of the terrible vengeance that is mine.

'Ah!' he cried as a flash of light leaped suddenly up in the air, 'the flame is kindled that shall destroy him.

'Yes, yes, the farm is on fire, I triumph, I triumph! Ah; someone comes! I must not be seen. This tree will hide me.'

He sprang behind the trunk of a large tree that threw its snow covered branches over the lane, and crouched down in its shelter, as Josiah Nib, trembling in every limb, and pale as death, bounded down the lane, carrying in his hand a gun.

'Good heavens! what have I done—what have I done?' he gasped, pausing and looking back at the fire he had kindled.

'Oh! wretch that I am, can I survive this night?

'Oh, why do I hesitate to kill myself, and remorse, with this gun I took from the farm to defend my own worthless life if it were assailed?'

'Fool!' said Brierley, coming from his hiding place; 'why do you stay here? Away, away, I say, discovery will be ruin?'

'What harm has Harry Fairfield ever done to me that I should fire his farm and hide my own crime by planting evidence against an innocent man?'

'Idiot! have you not saved yourself, from transportation by the deed?' said Brierley.

'And have I not ruined the prospects—blighted the character blasted the very life of the noble hearted farmer to save myself and to minister to your revenge?

'William Brierley mine was the hand to kindle the flames but yours was the hand to plan, and the heart to plot.

'Not I alone am guilty, and if through this night's work I fall, we fall together!'

'Fool!' cried Brierley, 'why should you fall?. Who will suspect you? I hated Harry Fairfield.

'Here, here!' cried Tim, springing to his feet, partially sobered by his sleep in the snow.

'Ah!' cried Brierley, leaping round.

Josiah uttered a gasping cry, and turned to flee. But with a bound Tim sprang upon them.

'Accursed villains!' he cried. 'I have heard enough to show that you fire is the work of your hands, and, by Heaven! I will denounce you—drag you to justice or die in the attempt.'

Fool! you have learned too much,' cried Brierley, flinging Tim from him, and tearing the gun from Nib's hand; your babbling tongue must be silenced for ever.'

'Ah, coward!' cried Tim. Help, help!'

'Fool!' yelled Brierley, striking him a blow with the butt-end of the gun on the head, and felling him to the ground. 'Meddling fool, die!'

Again and again he struck at the head of Tim as he lay once more in the snow.

Then stopping down, he looked into his face and felt his bosom.

'He is silenced,' he said, 'and cannot harm us.'

'What—what have you done?' gasped Nib, horrified and powerless.

'Saved you from a gallows,' said Brierley. 'Fool, why do you stand quaking there?'

'Whose gun is this?'

'Harry Fairfield's,' was the reply.

'So much the better; it will serve our purpose now. There let it lay beside this corpse. Another and a fearful evidence against the man I hate.'

Then seizing Nib by the arm, he continued—

'Rouse yourself, fool! Put on a look of courage if you cannot feel it. Come you have enough to fear. Let's away.'

And half dragging the trembling Josiah along, he hurried through the deep snow towards the mill.

Every [illegible] who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age which makes such drafts upon the working energies [illegible] the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate degree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its state of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, such in Northrop and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never [illegible] if properly and judiciously administered. Prepared by Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all druggists.

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained a world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M'f'g Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

Advertising Cheats!!!

'It has become so common to write the beginning of an article, in an elegant, interesting manner,

'Then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such,

'And simply call attention to Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,

'To induce people

'To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else.'

'THE REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,

'Religious and secular, is

'Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines

'There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness

'And ability

'In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.'

Did She Die?

'No

'She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years.'

'The doctors doing her no good;'

'And at last was cured by Hop Bitters the papers say so much about.'

'Indeed! Indeed!

'How thankful we should be for that medicine.'

A Daughter's Misery.

'Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery,

'From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility,

'Under the care of the best physicians,

Who gave her disease various names,

'But no relief,

'And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters that we had shunned for years before using it.'

—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

'My daughters say:

'How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters.'

'He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable'

'And we are so glad that he used your Bitters.'

A LADY OF UTICA, N. Y.

THE EXPERIMENTS OF PROFS Dusart and Ralfe, of Paris, and D. Anderson, of London, and other eminent physiologists demonstrating the function of PHOSPHATES as excitants of nutrition and nerve power having brought these agents into general use, it ought not to be necessary to call the attention of invalids to WHEELER'S Phosphates and Calisaya, the best combination of these food elements, with Wild Cherry Bark, in existence. Its value in prostrate conditions of the system is obvious, and its prolonged use in obstinate cases that have resisted all ordinary treatment will clearly demonstrate its extraordinary merits.

ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL.

The VOLTAIC BELT Co., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above,—N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty days' trial is allowed.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrub for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists through out the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.
A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles.
E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

ARE THEATRES IMPROVING?

Dr. Talmage's Sermon Preached Last Sunday, May 4.

"Watchman, what of the night."—ISAIAH 21: 11.

As near as I can tell, it is about half past four o'clock in the morning. Signs of dawn all around the sky. Caverns full of darkness, but the mountains are being transfigured. The sun is coming up, although coming very slowly. Since the armies of civilization and Christianity started on their march, they have not fallen back an inch. There have been regiments cowardly, which have retreated and surrendered to the enemy, just as in all armies there are those unworthy the standard they carry; but the great host of God has been answering to the command given at the start of 'Forward march!' Have the entertainments and the recreations of the world kept abreast in the grand march of the ages? Are the novels of our day superior to those that are past? Is the dance of this decade an improvement upon the dance of other decades? Are the opera houses rendering grander music than that which they rendered in other times? Are parlor games more healthful than they used to be?

ARE THE THEATRES ADVANCING

in moral tone? In reply to this last question I give myself this morning in this series of discourses in answer to some of the absorbing questions of the day. Mark you, I am not to discuss whether the theatre is right or wrong. I am not to make wholesale attack upon tragedians and comedians. There are a hundred questions in regard to the theatre that might be asked which I shall not this morning answer, the most of them having been answered at some other time in this pulpit. You say that Henry Irving, and Edwin Booth, and John McCullough, and Joseph Jefferson are great actors, and are honorable men. I believe it. The question that I am to discuss to-day is: Are the theatres advancing in high moral tone? and I shall in no wise be diverted from the discussion. There are three or four reasons for answering this question in the negative, and the first is the combined and universal testimony of all the secular newspapers of the land that are worth anything. There is not a secular newspaper of any power in the United States which has not within the past few years, both in editorial and reportorial column, reprehended the styles of play most frequent. It is contrary to the financial interests of the secular newspaper severely to criticise the playhouse, because from it comes the largest advertising patronage, larger than from any other source, thousands and tens of thousands of dollars a year. When, therefore, the secular newspapers of the land, contrary to their financial interests, severely criticise the playhouse for imbecile and impure spectacular, their testimony is to me conclusive. On the negative side of the question I roll up all the respectable printing presses of America. Another reason for answering this question in the negative is the depraved advertisements on the bulletin boards and on the board fences and in the show windows from ocean to ocean. I take it for granted that those advertisements are honest, and that, night by night are depicted the scenes there advertised. Are those the scenes to which parents take their sons and daughters and young men their affianced? Would you allow in your parlor such brazen indecency enacted as is dramatized every night in some of the theatres of America, unless their advertisements be a libel? If the pictures be genuine, the scenes are damnable. That which is wrong in a parlor is wrong on a stage. It ought to require just as much completeness of apparel to be honorable in one place as to be honorable in another. If you, fathers and mothers, take your sons and daughters to see such Sodomite lack of robe, and then in after time the ploughshare of libertinism and profligacy should go through your own household, you will get what you deserve. Another reason for answering this question in the negative is the large

IMPORTATION OF BAD MORALS.

from foreign countries to the American stage. France sent one of her queens of the stage to this country, her infamy, instead of a shame, a boast. Never a more popular actress on the American stage, and never one more dissolute. Thousands and tens of thousands of professed Christian men and women went and burned incense before that goddess of debauchery. England, too, has sent her delectable specimens of ineffable sweetness commended by foreign princes, not as good as their mother. When I take into consideration this large importation of bad morals from foreign ports, I come to the conclusion that the American theatres are not, as a general thing, advancing in moral tone. The vast majority of the plays of the day are degenerate. Take the plays of the last fifteen years, and I will admit that one tenth of them are unobjectionable, but the nine tenths of them are unfit to be looked at by the families of America. Subtract from them the libertinism and the domestic intrigue and the innuendo and the vulgarity and the marital scandalism, and you leave those plays powerless in the dramatic market. Put side by side the plays, but I have taken the testimony of authentic witnesses, and I have seen the skillful analyses by critics—a score of critics—among them such men as Dr. Buckley, of New York, men who have read scores of the plays and who can report in regard to them—I take the testimony of those who witnessed the plays and then I take the testimony of the critics who like the theatre and who do not like it, I put them all together, and I find a moral decadence. If you who took your families to see East Lynne will now in your cooler moments read the manuscript of that play—read the printed play, and and go through the fetid and malodorous chapters in which dishonest womanhood is chased from iniquity to iniquity, you will be able to judge for yourself whether that is an improved drama. You might as well go into the grogshop of the village hotel and sit down among the bevy of the village loafers expecting to get moral elevation as to get any moral elevation from a play like the Ticket of Leave Man, full of villainous pictures and low slander. The play entitled A New Way to Pay Old Debts is a eulogy, a practical eulogy on deception practised on the bad, and men and women never come from seeing that play as pure as when they went in. She stoops to Conquer is as full of moral miasma as the Roman Campagna is full of typhus fever on a summer night. You may write Oliver Goldsmith above it and beneath it and at the close of each act, but you cannot cover up the profane and the salacious. The School for Scandal is rotten clear through with lasciviousness, and if a man should come into your house and take that play from under his arm and read it to your family, all the bones that were left in his body unbroken would not be worth mentioning. But who could mention all all the Don Cesars, and the barmaids, and the Peg Woffingtons, and the Courtleghs and the Lady Gay Spankers, and the poltrooms, and the scapegraces, and minns all excellency, plus all abomination, who gather men, women, boys and girls by tens of thousands every night in the lazaretto of the average American theatre. It is estimated that there are one thousand boys in Brooklyn every night breathing that pestilence. Hear it, ye whose sons stay out until 11 o'clock at night and you do not know where they are! Hear it ye philanthropists who want this generation better than the generations that have gone by! Once in a while a great tragedian will render King Lear or Merchant of Venice or Hamlet, before entranced audiences, but those plays compared with the imbecile and depraved plays on the American stage to-day are as the few drops of pure blood in a man who has passed out from yellow fever into Asiatic cholera and is now winding up with first class small pox. Now, I say the majority of the plays of this country being bad in their influences, I have a right to conclude that the theatres of America, take them as an average, are not coming to any very large moral improvement. Now, I demand that as men and women who love the best interests of society that we band together to snatch the drama from its debased surroundings. I demand that as philanthropists and Christians we

RESCUE THE DRAMA.

The drama is not the theatre. The theatre is a human institution. The drama is a literary expression of something which God implanted in nearly all our souls. People talk as though it were something built up entirely outside of us by the Congreves and the Sheridans and the Shakespeares of literature. Oh! no. It is an echo of something divinely put within us. You see it in your little children three or four years of age with dolls, and cradles, and the carts. You see it ten years after in the parlor charades. You see it after in the impersonations at the Academy of Music. You see it on Thanksgiving Day, when we decorate the house of God with the fruits and harvests of the earth, that spectacular arousing our gratitude. We see it on Easter morn, when we spell out on the walls of the House of God in flowers the words: 'He is risen,' that spectacular arousing our emotion. Every parent likes it, and demonstrates it when he goes to see the school exhibition with its dialogues and its droll costumes. It is evidenced in the torchlight procession amid great political excitement that torchlight procession only a dramatization of the political principles proclaimed. Shakespear dramatized only that which was in the world's heart. But this divine principle is not to be despoiled and dragged into the service of sin. It is our business to rescue it, to lift it up, to bring it back, to exalt it. Will you suppress it? You might as well try to suppress its Creator. Just as we cultivate the beautiful and sublime, in taste by bird-haunted glen and roystering stream and cascade let down over moss-covered rocks, and the day setting up its banners of victory in the east, and passing out the gates of the west setting every thing on fire, the Austerlitz and the Waterloo of a July thunder-storm blazing its batteries into a sultry afternoon and the round tear of the world wet on the cheek of the night—as by these things we try to culture a taste for the sublime and the beautiful, so we are to culture the dramatic taste by staccato passages in literature, by antithesis and synthesis, by all tragic passages in human life. We are to take this dramatic element and we are to HARNESS IT FOR GOD.

Because it has been taken into the service of sin is nothing against it. You might as well denounce music because in Corinth and Herculaneum it was used to demonstrate and set forth depravity and turpitude Shall we not enthrone music on the organ because music again and again has been trampled under the foot of impious dance? Because there are pollutions in art shall we turn our back upon Church's 'Niagara' or Power's 'Greek Slave,' or Rubens's 'Descent from the Cross,' or Michael Angelo's "Last Judgment?" Teachers want more of the dramatic element in your work, in your recital of the Bible scene, in the anecdote that you tell, in the descriptive gesture, in the impersonation of the character you present—you want more of the dramatic element. Oh, there are hundreds of people here who are trying to do good. Have less of the didactic element and have more of the dramatic. The tendency in our time is to drone religion, to moan religion, to croak religion, to sepulcherize religion, when it ought to be put in animated and spectacular manner. And you have a right to

CULTIVATE THAT ELEMENT

in your nature. Oh, young men preparing for Christian work, and though you may meet with mighty rebuff and caricature if you attempt it, and though you may be arraigned by church courts who will try to put you down, the Lord will start you and he will keep you all through, and great will be the reward for the assiduous and plucky. Oh, my friends, we want in all our work to freshen up. We want to freshen, up you in your sphere and I in mine. Great discussions in religious newspapers about

WHY PEOPLE DO NOT COME TO CHURCH.

I will tell you. You cannot take the old hackneyed phrases that have come snoring down through the centuries and arrest the attention of the masses. People in religious work do not want the sham flowers bought in the millinery shop, but the japonicas wet with the morning dew They do not want the bones of the extinct megatherium of the past, but the living reindeer caught last August at the edge of the Schroon Lake. We need, all of us, to drive out of our religious work the drowsy and the tedious and the didactic, and bring in the brightness, and the vivacity, and the holy sarcasm, and the sanctified wit, and the epigrammatic power, and the blood-red earnestness, and we will get it through the sanctified drama. But let me say to the hundreds of young men in the audience, do not let your fondness for the dramatic lead you into sin. While God has given you this faculty, cultivate it, and cultivate it in the right direction. Admire it when it is used for God. Abhor it when it is used for sin.

THE DRAMA OF YOUR LIFE

and mine will soon end. No encore will bring us back after the curtain has dropped. At the beginning of the drama stood a cradle; at the close of the drama will stand a grave; the intermediate acts banquet and burial, laughter and groans, songs and tears, processions bridal and funeral. It was not original with Shakespeare when he said,

'All the world's a stage
And all the men and women merely players'

He took it from Paul, who fifteen centuries before had said, 'We are a spectacle to the world and to the angels and to men.' A spectacle in a colliseum, fighting wild beasts in an amphitheatre Here we destroy a lion, there we grapple a gladiator. When we fall devils shout; when we rise angels sing.

WE DO NOT CLAIM

that Shaker Blood Syrup will cure everything but the fact that on the purity and vitality of the blood depends the vigor and health of the whole system, and that disease of various kinds is often only the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause, we are naturally led to the conclusion that a remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, eradicates scrofula and other impurities from it, as Shaker Blood Syrup undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use; hence the field of its usefulness is quite an extended one, and we are warranted in recommending it for all derangements of the system which are caused by an unnatural state of the Blood.

Gentlemen—I was a great sufferer from Salt-Rheum on my limbs, for a dozen years previous to the summer of 1876, at which time I was cured by Shaker Blood Syrup The skin would become dry, chap, crack open bleed and itch intensely so that I could not help scratching, which of course made them worse. At the time I commenced taking Shaker Blood Syrup (in the summer of 1876) they were so bad that they discharged and I was obliged to keep them bandaged up with linen cloths. The skin was so tight by the heat of the disease that if I stooped over they would crack open and actually bring tears to my eyes. The first bottle benefitted me so much that I continued taking it till I was cured. Hoping many others may learn the value of Shaker Blood Syrup, and receive as much benefit as I have, I am,

Very truly yours,
G. A. HOWARD, West 11th St., New York.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

WHAT WILL BE THE EFFECT?

It is announced by the management of the Central Ontario Railway that its track will reach the Coe Hill mine in Wollaston, on Saturday the 17th instant, and iron ore shipment on a large scale will begin at once, the cargoes to be put in vessels at Weller's Bay. This is a very grave fact for the people of this city, one that affects their business situation more seriously than anything that we have been called upon to announce for years. It will be remembered that we have made many allusions to this subject with the hope that our rulers Municipal and Legislative would do something to prevent the commercial shipwreck that threatens our city. We have borne with much folly in silence, and have waited the outcome with vain hope that in some way order would be evolved from the chaos that has existed. We have always felt that as the City Council was largely made up from the opposite political party, and our county delegation to Ottawa was exclusively Tory, our proper course was one of modest assistance to such schemes as would help the city in which our chief interests centre. It is time to tell the people of Belleville in plain words some plain and unpleasant facts. They are the following:—

1 The trade of the iron regions of Hastings and the adjoining counties is in the hands of a vigorous corporation that has left Belleville entirely to one side.

2 By the direct fault of our county members in the Dominion Parliament, this city has been deprived of any possibility of a connection that would preserve to her inhabitants and manufactures any share of the large trade certain to grow up with these rich mineral regions.

3 By the direct fault of these same legislative worthies the public treasury has been opened to assist roads that are calculated to still further divert trade from us and has been shut in our face against any expenditure that would help us.

4 Public money to the extent of over one million of dollars is being wasted in digging a canal in the wrong place to connect the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario, a proceeding that is quite certain to deprive Belleville of a large share of her marine trade now existing, and to effectually kill any chance of her ever becoming a Lake Ontario port.

Every man in our city who feels his property dropping in value, his business waning and his prospects for success fading knows that the above charges are true. This conviction is not confined to any particular party. The pocket of a Conservative is as sensitive as that of a Reformer, and it is high time that our people began to consider their grave situation, and call men and things by their proper names.

Beyond any question on account of his violence and personal animosity to certain people prominent in the Central Ontario road, the Minister of Customs has inflicted the heaviest blow to this city. He has been seconded ably by Messrs. Robertson and John White, while an array of smaller fry have uniformly worked in the same direction. It would transcend the limits of one newspaper article to take up and discuss all of the shameful facts we have set forth above. We shall, therefore, take occasion to again refer to them until we can present to our readers what we believe to be the truth concerning them, and, demonstrate where we think the fault belongs. A few words as to the first point, viz:—That the trade of the adjoining counties is in the hands of a vigorous corporation that has left Belleville entirely to one side.

A well built railway now traverses the County of Hastings from the Bay of Quite to the centre of the township of Wollaston and does not touch our city nor connect with it in any way that will benefit us. Its trade will go directly to Trenton and to the lake at Weller's Bay where magnificent docks have been erected and extensive railway buildings put up. Its proprietors have made large purchases of mineral lands in the north country, and like prudent men of business have guarded their interests so well that they can afford to laugh at the efforts to injure them. While these parties had a perfect right to do as they pleased with their money and to invest it where the chances of profit seemed best our public servants have been slaughtering us in a frantic endeavor to injure them, and as we shall try to show in a future article, they have only succeeded in cutting the ground from under our own feet and in many ways actually benefitting the people they vainly sought to annihilate. Opportunities that might have been turned to advantage have been neglected. The whole energy of the members of the Commons, the Minister of Customs, the city delegations, and the meddlers of every name has been directed towards some Quixotic plan to injure the Central Ontario road. They did not know exactly how to begin. They were blind to every chance to do something positively for Belleville's benefit and they have never succeeded in impeding the progress of that road for a single moment. It has been built despite their efforts and in the meantime Belleville's interests have been sacrificed.

Mr. John Magwood, Victoria Road, writes: 'Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure is a splendid medicine. My customers say they never used anything so effectual. Good results immediately follow its use. I know its value from personal experience having been troubled for 9 or 10 years with dyspepsia, and since using it digestion goes on without that depressed feeling so well known to dyspeptics. I have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of Indigestion, Constipation, Heartburn, or any trouble arising from a disordered stomach.

Health is a duty, Disease a crime. Use Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters and be cured of all biliousness or liver trouble. 25 cents will buy a large bottle.

A DOUBLE BENEFIT

James Moore, a prominent resident of Leamington, writes that he cured himself of Dyspepsia of a year's duration by one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and two bottles cured his wife who had been for two years a sufferer from the same disease. He conscientiously recommends it to all suffering from similar troubles.

The rev. gentleman is sound in not denouncing the theatre as something which should be blotted out but recognises its necessity and argues for its reformation and purity.

This was in reply to the toast of the Army and Navy at the Tupper banquet. As in the establishment of the Supreme Court Mr. Mackenzie aimed at convincing the world that we had Canadian Judges who could best administer and interpret Canadian laws. So in the Military College that we could raise up Canadian officers qualified to fill efficiently any military office in the gift of the country.

GORDON BROWN BEATEN.

In His Suit at Law Against the "Globe."

(From our own Correspondent.)

TORONTO, May 10.—It will be remembered that at the trial of the suit of Brown v. Nelson, the plaintiff was Gordon Brown, formerly Managing Director of the Globe, who sought to be released from an engagement into which he had entered to purchase over $30,000 worth of Globe stock, and that $20,000 which he had pledged as security, be returned to him. He pleaded that his dismissal from the position of Managing Director so crippled him that he should not be asked to carry out an agreement the basis of which was overturned. Judgment was then reserved and Mr. Justice Rose has just given judgment against Mr. Brown. It is stated here that now Mr. Brown will take an interest in a city paper and oppose the Globe vigorously.

MARINE.

The steamer Rothesay was sold at Kingston by the liquidators of the Exchange Bank whose creditors the St. Lawrence Steamboat Company were, for $15,000 to Chas. A NOTORIOUS BIGAMIST.

The man Neiveille, who entrapped the daughter of a Detroit theatrical manager into eloping with and marrying him a few days ago, and who is now in gaol in Toledo, Ohio, appears to have been a most consummate scoundrel. He admits having been twice married in the United States. It is alleged that he has wives scattered all over Canada and the States to the number of eight. He was sent to the penitentiary for the same crime six years ago. In an interview between Neiveille and his latest victim in Toledo gaol, the latter being accompanied by her sister and a lawyer, he concocted a most romantic story, claiming to be the real Sir Roger Tichborne.

C. B. Hall Braville, Ill., says: 'I have sold at retail 156 bottles of Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, guaranteeing every bottle. I must say I never sold a medicine in my life that gave such universal satisfaction. In my own case with a badly ulcerated throat after a physician pencilling it for several days to no effect, the Eclectric Oil cured it thoroughly in twenty-four hours, and in threatened croup in my children this winter, it never failed to relieve almost immediately.'

If a few Grains of Common Sense could be infused into the thick noddles of those who perpetually and alternately irritate their stomachs and bowels with drastic purgatives they would use the highly accredited and healthful laxative and tonic Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, which causes 'good digestion to wait on appetite and health on both.

S. Chadwick, Arcadia Wayne Co. writes: 'I have had severe attacks of Asthma for several years. I commenced taking Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The first dose relieved me in one hour. I continued taking it in teaspoonful doses for a few days, and have not had an attack of it since, now nearly one year.'

The "constantly tired-out" feeling so often experienced is the result of impoverished blood and consequent enfeebled vitality. Ayer's Sarsaparilla feeds and enriches the blood, increases the appetite, and promotes digestion of the food and the assimilation of its strengthening qualities. 'CRUSHED BY THE CARS.'

A little son of John Spinks, Toronto, had his foot crushed by a G. T. R. Express train some time ago. Two doctors attended him without benefit, and amputation was proposed, but Hagyard's Yellow Oil was tried, which gave prompt relief and effected a speedy cure even removing all stiffness of the joints.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues healed and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all this. Try it. Every bottle warranted.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

INCOME ASSESSMENT.

SIR,—I find that the impression has got abroad that I have been the principal cause of the large increase in the taxation of income that has been made by the assessor this year, and I ask that you will kindly allow me space to say that I have had nothing whatever to do with the matter; nor has the change of system.

At the informal meeting of the council, called to consider the assessment question before the subject came up in regular session, it was stated by those who caused the meeting to be called that under whatever system the assessment would be made it was the intention to make the income tax general and largely increase it.

The council passed no resolution instructing the assessor to increase the Income tax, whatever individuals may have done. Speaking for myself, I can say I have never seen the assessor's books nor had a conversation with him on the subject, except in regard to my own and my partner's income, which he increased one hundred and fifty per cent., at the suggestion of an alderman who was making it his business to dictate to the assessor, and who took good care while he caused my assessment to be raised to get his own cut down.

I am willing to shoulder anything I am responsible for, but in this matter I have had neither part nor lot. I may add that I will cheerfully pay the increased assessment if I find the increase has been equitably made all round. If the increase lowers the rate, and I think it should, I shall be satisfied.

Yours faithfully,
J. W. JOHNSON.

May 10th, 1884.

N. B.—Allow me to add that I think the assessment should be published yearly, and then the people would know whether each one was being dealt fairly with.

The Weather Prophet looks for Spring this month. The wire men look for a blood purifier that will not injure his system; he can find what he wants in Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters, the greatest of all blood purifiers. In large bottles at 50 cents.

FACT STRANGER THAN FICTION.

It is a fact that Alonzo Howe, of Tweed, had a fever sore that afflicted him for thirty-five years. Six bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters cured him, which he considers almost a miracle. It was but the natural result of the remedy restoring pure blood and perfect secretion.

Ayer's Carthartic Pills are the best medicine that can be employed to correct irregularities of the stomach and bowels. Gentle, yet thorough, in their action, they cure constipation, stimulate the digestive organs and the appetite, and cleanse, build up, and strengthen the system.

DANGER TRAPS.

Neglected colds are the fatal traps that ensnare many a victim beyond possibility of rescue. Asthma, Bronchitis and pulmonary complaints generally soon yield to its healing influence.

A FAVORITE EVERYWHERE.

Wherever introduced Hagyard's Yellow Oil finds friends, it is the old reliable household remedy for external and internal use in all aches, pains, lameness, and soreness of the flesh. A. L. Geen, a prominent druggist of Belleville, says, 'It is a great favorite here, and has good sale.'

WAS TOMPSITT HOME AFTER TEN?

The Prisoners Moved to Tears by Their Counsel's Pleading.

GREAT CROWDS AND EXCITEMENT.

(From our own Reporter.)

PICTON, May 9.—At 9:30 this morning the trial of Joseph Tompsitt and Geo. Lowder for the murder of Peter Lazier was resumed. The doors were closed after the seats had all been taken up, but large crowds assembled in front of the court building discussing the murder and the chances of the prisoners.

The defence opened their case by calling Mrs. Gilbert Jones, but as she was not present Constable Beddell was asked to take the box. He said: When I arrested Tompsitt there was dust on his gun apparently as if it had not been used for some time; when I arrested Tompsitt he did not put on the same suit of clothes that he first picked up, a dark suit; he afterwards put on a light suit.

Anson Benham testified: I was subpœnaed here by the crown; I live at West Lake near Tompsitt's house; I carry the mail; remember Saturday morning after the murder; rose before clear daylight and went to Hick's for water; Lowder said he had gone up the road that morning; at Lowder's I saw a track leading to the gate; could not say in which direction they went then.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clute—It was fairly light at that time; saw Lowder's track when I first got into road; could not swear whose track it was; there was a difference in the track made by Lowder and and the one going into Hick's; the latter appeared to be an older track than Lowder's; after I traced the track to the gate I did not follow it further; when I turned into the lane I followed the tracks towards the pump; not positive that I saw tracks inside the gate at Hick's.

Herbert S. Miller testified: I know Gilbert Jones, remember him selling hops to Ward; I am Ward's agent; Jones was paid in two different places for his hops; he was paid part at his own residence and part at Bloomfield station; saw him about eleven o'clock at Bloomfield; saw Ward pay him inside freight room about four o'clock in the afternoon; I closed the door very nearly before the money was paid in order to keep out the storm; the door was left open about two feet; did not see any person walking up and down the platform when the money changed hands; I saw Tompsitt at the south corner of the station when the money was counted; I did not see Tompsitt when the money was paid over; there were two or three present; I did not know when money was paid over; one man present trying to weigh aroused my suspicion; I did not know what business he had there.

Cross examined by Mr. Clute—Only saw Tompsitt once in the waiting room; the money was counted on a bale oppos to the room.

To Mr. McCarthy—I was not called here by the Crown; I was sworn at the preliminary trial.

Charles H. Watson, sworn, said: Have been a shoemaker 22 years; it is usual to have a difference in the length of the shank on patch bottom boots; perhaps a quarter to three-eights of an inch; noticed that last Saturday.

To Mr. McCarthy—The ordinary size of men's boots are from six to fourteen (laughter); size usually worn are number eight; there is a quarter of an inch difference in the size of a boot; a round toed boot is a common shape; the average size is eights; the low shoes produced, (said to be Tompsitt's) are not more than number eights.

To Mr. Dickson—The long boots are ordinary boots, quite common.

Cross examined by Mr. Clute—Have noticed before peculiarity in length of shank; T. Lowder wanted me last Friday to measure my stock and see if the length varied; the length did not vary.

To Mr. McCarthy—In repairing boots the great difficulty was to get them not to run over.

THE BLUE JACKET REVOLVER.

Hiram Welbanks gave his evidence substantially as follows:—I live in Picton, am a hardware merchant and sell revolvers; there is a difference in revolvers; the revolver produced which was found near the culvert was an ordinary revolver worth about $5; the size of the bullets are usually stamped; the plate on this revolver is silver of very good quality; this revolver is called a blue-jacket; they are commonly sold; I sell about a dozen revolver's a year of 22 and 32 calibre; more of the 22 calibre.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clute—I should think this revolver was a Smith & Wesson manufacture.

Walter Tully, sworn, said:—I am a shoe maker; have been here for five years, patch bottom boots are preferred for country wear; the long boot produced (said to belong to George Lowder) is a number six hand made; if boots are made by hand there is likely to be a difference in length of shank; there should not be a difference of more than a quarter of an inch; the length is usually about the same.

To Mr. McCarthy—I sell more of eights coarse fine boots than of any other; the shoe produced (said to be Tompsitt's) is an eight size.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clute—If there is a difference in the length of the shank it is by mistake.

Mrs. Gilbert Jones, recalled, affirmed as follows;—In the mask the man wore there were oblong holes for the eyes; that man had a revolver; had a lamp in my hand when I went to the door; the man with the mask appeared to be taller than than what he really was; with the mask on the man appeared to be as high as the door: the mask made him appear tall; I saw Tompsitt before, but don't remember ever seeing Lowder before; at the preliminary trial I said Tompsitt appeared to be shorter than the man with the mask at my house; the mask appeared to be part of an ordinary linen bag; my husband is five feet nine inches in height; the man with the mask appeared to be about the same height; I don't remember McKinnon stating that the man was not taller than Tompsitt.

E. Harris, the turnkey of the gaol, sworn said:—I measured the prisoner yesterday; can't say how tall Tompsitt was.

Mr. McCarthy—Well you had better measure the prisoners again.

GEO. LOWDER'S MOTHER.

Mrs. John Lowder, an aged woman, sworn, deposed as follows;—I am the mother of George Lowder; I live on the West Lake road leading to Bloomfield; Tompsitt lives on the same road; I have three children at home and my husband's father. The sons are George, David and Christopher; have other children but they were not at home that night; my husband fishes in company with Tompsitt; my husband is a fisherman, hunter and farmer he was engaged setting nets the afternoon of the murder; had dinner about the middle of the afternoon; sent around the house for a while and then went down to Horse point, returning about dark, before he returned Tompsitt came into my house on foot and stopped for supper; we all had supper together, including George and David Lowder, and her father-in-law; Mr. Streets came in while we were eating; it was about dark then; Tompsitt and my sons stopped all the evening talking; Tompsitt went away first, after twenty minutes to ten; my clock was slow ten minutes. I wound the clock at twenty minutes to ten and Tompsitt was there still; George went to the barn to feed the horses, after which Tompsitt went away; George returned to the house very shortly after; they went to bed then; heard of the murder at breakfast the next morning when Babbitt came to my house.

To Mr. Dickson—Christopher went to the barn to feed the horses before Babbitt came to my house.

Cross-examined, said:—I know Christopher went to the barn to feed the horses that morning because it was his custom; he started for the barn that morning; he got up first that morning and made the fire; I did not follow him and did not see where he went; it was blustry the afternoon of the murder and snowing after dark; I think I was out about eight o'clock that night, when it was snowing and drifting; can't say who left the house first the day of the murder; George and Christopher were drawing sawlogs; David went to the beech where the fishing nets were set; I saw my husband and Maston setting nets that morning (Friday) out on the Lake; there were three or four men there when I looked; Maston's son was the third man; it was near the point of Johnston's island where I saw them; my husband went out again between three and five o'clock to the fish pond on the night of the murder; the box or car in which the fish were kept was near Horse Point; returned about dark; it was storming then; I could go that round in about half an hour; Tompsitt had only been at my house fifteen or twenty minutes when my husband returned; I was engaged knitting that night after supper; the men were talking about taking their nets off the lake and fishing; the boys usually go to bed between nine and ten o'clock, Tompsitt usually stops at our house when he is passing; when George was out feeding the horses that night Tompsitt went out and he did not return. I usually look at the clock when I wind it; it was twenty minutes to ten when I wound the clock that (Friday) night; can't say what time it was when I wound the clock the night before; Thos. Streets went away after Tompsitt; it was about eleven o'clock when I went to bed; all the boys had gone to bed at this time; as soon as George came in from the barn he went to bed; on the Sunday after the murder McKinnon, Babbit, Pope, and others were at my house; can't say whether McKinnon asked for George Lowder's boots; can't say whether I told McKinnon on that Sunday that Streets was at my house on the night of the murder; I did not say to McKinnon that George and Tompsitt went out to the barn together; I might have stated to McKinnon that Tompsitt left my house Friday night at eight o'clock, I suspected McKinnon and concluded not to tell him all I knew; I did not tell him anything but the truth; I did mention some hour; I think I said half past eight or nine; I told McKinnon the truth about the time; if not I did not intend to tell a falsehood.

To Mr. McCarthy—McKinnon said he came to search the premises; John Lowder was present at that time; I told them we had a revolver about two years ago, but we did not keep it; I thought McKinnon was telling me a falsehood when he spoke about George and Tompsitt leaving together.

To His Lordship—The horses were fed later than usual that night because they were put in late and warm.

George Lowder broke down crying when his mother left the box, which caused Mrs. Lowder also to shed tears.

John Lowder on being sworn, corroborated his wife's statement about Tompsitt's visit that night. He said when Tompsitt left Christopher, took out his watch and it was ten minutes to ten.

The court resumed after dinner at 1:30. Ever since David Lowder's discharge his brother George in the dock appears more nervous and seems to realize the serious position in which he is placed more than he has yet done while Tompsitt wears a look of anxiety and uneasiness.

John Lowder was Cross-examined by Mr. Clute: Have lived at West Lake 37 years; came previously from Earnestville; Street's daughter is Tompsitt's wife on the morning of the murder I was out setting fish nets; I was close to Springbrook that day; I did not cross the bridge at Bowman's that day; I got home at three or four o'clock the first time I was out that day; it was about dark when I got back the second time, Tompsitt was there at that time; George left the house first that night about ten o'clock; Tompsitt asked what time it was before he left; Christopher held out the watch and I saw by it that it was ten minutes to ten; George was then at the barn; George went to bed first alone; Christopher got up next morning; on Friday I wore patch bottom boots that I bought last fall, in Picton; I did not hear McKinnon ask for Tompsitt's boots on the Saturday after the murder; it was not stated to McKinnon that Tompsitt left my house Friday about eight o'clock; McKinnon followed my track from the house to the wire fence at the marsh.

John Turner who keeps the St. James hotel in Trenton, remembered a stranger came to his house on the night of the 26th December; he wore light grey clothes; he was shown to a bed-room and the witness heard him leave between two and three o'clock in the morning.

Mr. McCarthy—Did you notice anything peculiar in his manner.

His Lordship—That is not evidence unless you prove something more.

The witness left the box without being questioned further.

DAVID LOWDER ON THE STAND.

David Lowder, the prisoner discharged yesterday, on being called said: Babbitt arrested me because I represented a big man, that is, larger than George; I was on the road when Babbitt came up and asked to look at my boots; he then arrested me; Tompsitt then said to me I want you to remember what time I left your place last (Friday) night; the afternoon of the murder I was hunting rabbits in the swamp; I went to my brother's and then to my own home; it was about dusk then, Tompsitt was there; I think Streets was there also; they were eating their tea then; I did not leave the house again that night; George left the house first to feed the horses; Tompsitt went out afterwards; Streets went out after George came back; I asked Tompsitt to stop over night but he refused; Christopher said it was ten minutes to ten when Tompsitt went out; George slept in the same room and bed with me; I don't think he got up that night; I would have heard him; he was in bed when I woke next morning.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clute: Tompsitt went out of the back door; I can't say that he went home; the clock was in the sitting room where Tompsitt and I spent the evening; it was ten minutes to ten when he got up to go home; he went into the kitchen and sat on the lounge for the moment; Christopher was there then and took out his watch; I heard him say it was ten minutes to ten; it was Tompsitt that asked for the time; the watch Christopher had was a gold one; I don't know whether I saw Tompsitt on Friday morning or not; that night Tompsitt said he had come from his place at Bloomfield; there was a house on that place but he did not occupy it; he kept bees there and the object of his visit to our place was to get us to take a load of bees out to that place; I heard Tompsitt ask George if he would take the bees out.

To Mr. McCarthy—I gave Richard Jackson a ride to his own house when I returning from the Sand Banks on Friday morning.

Thomas Stints, sworn, said: I live about a quarter of a mile from Lowder's; I live alone; Mr. Tompsitt is my daughter I saw Tompsitt at Lowder's on Friday night, John Lowder was not there; I stopped there until near ten o'clock; Tompsitt left a few minutes before me; it was snowing and drifting when I went home; my clock struck ten after I got home.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clute—I went to Lowder's to read the newspaper; The London Advertiser was there and I saw it, Lowder's also take the CHRONICLE, which I saw there on the Sunday following; on Friday night at Lowder's we were all in the kitchen; Christopher Lowder stood in front of Tompsitt when he asked him what time it was; the watch looked like a silver hunting case one; John Lowder was in the kitchen sitting near the table.

Sylvanus Lowder, sworn, said: David Lowder was at my house on the night of the 21st of December; I saw Tompsitt pass my house about three minutes after ten that night; I was then getting kindling wood; as Tompsitt passed he said 'take in your chimney or it will freeze,' I was able to recognize him when he passed the bars in front of my house; two of Jackson's children were at my house that night; they left for home at 8:30; I was reading a book that night and I wished to finish it; the clock struck ten when I finished it.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clute—I began to read the book about the middle of December; I retire at no particular time; my wife has a great deal of sewing to do and I sit up to keep her company; that night I forgot to get my kindling early; I was up that night and I thank God for it; I thought it was to be, that if I had not gone out that night Joseph Tompsitt would,

GO TO THE GALLOWS.

My house is about 5 rods from the road; I did not look for the tracks in the morning; my wife is unable to come to this trial to-day on account of illness.

Christopher Lowder, sworn, said: I fed fed the horses hay when I put them in the barn after hauling logs all day; afterwards father went to the lake; Tompsitt was there when he retired; I pulled out my watch and shoved it in front of Tompsitt at ten minutes to ten so that he could see; I slept in the front room by the box stove; if any person had gone out that night they would have been obliged to pass me; I got up first next morning.

To Mr. Dickson—George was only absent in the barn five or six minutes.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clute—I usually go down the path to the road and then along the road to the barn when going from the house; it was about seven o'clock in the morning when David was arrested; it was half past six when I went to the barn to feed the horses that morning.

Mrs. Way, sister of George Lowder, sworn, said: At the preliminary examination Mrs. Jones said she thought that the man with the mask at her house was larger than Tompsitt; when McKinnon was at my mother's house he took out a revolver and asked her if there was anything there like that; she told him there was not; a search of the house was made by him; I told mother not to say anything to him until she went to the trial; McKinnon asked for a pair of pants for George stating that they were going to set him to work in the cells; I gave him an old pair of pants; mother appeared very much excited and nervous.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clute—I cautioned my mother to be careful about what she said to McKinnon.

Turnkey Harris stated that George Lowder's height was 5 ft. 4½ in., and Tompsitt's 5 ft. 5¾ in. The latter had slippers on when he measured him.

That was all the evidence the defence offered except that Mr. McCarthy asked the privilege of calling Mrs. S. Lowder to-morrow and he proposed that Mr. Clute should go on with the rebuttal until the witness arrived.

Mr. Dickson asked for George Lowder's discharge on technical grounds.

His Lordship ruled that the evidence regarding him, whatever there was, should go to the Jury. The fact of one man with the revolver, and the other with the gun, who did strike or attempted to strike Lazier, showed that they both intended to use violent means if necessary to accomplish the object of their visit.

John Lowder, recalled by Mr. Dickson, stated that he had last December two double barrel guns and one single barrel.

REBUTTAL EVIDENCE.

Mr Clute then began the rebuttal.

Geo. H. Pope stated that at Lowder's house Sunday Mrs. John Lowder said George Lowder and Tompsitt went to the barn not later than eight o'clock on the night of the murder.

Mr. McCarty objected to the leading manner in which Mr. Clute questioned this witness in order to elicit the above information but his Lordship overruled the objection. He thought Mr. Clute's questions were quite proper.

In cross examination Mr. Pope said Mrs. Lowder seemed anxious to talk at that interview and he did not think McKinnon was taking any advantage of her.

Chief of Police Babbitt said he was present at that interview at Lowder's and heard Mrs. John Lowder say that Tompsitt left her house in the neighborhood of eight o'clock on the night of the murder.

In his cross-examination Babbitt testified that Mrs. Lowder said George returned from the barn at twenty minutes past eight. She said to Mr. McKinnon that David had his boots off and Tompsitt asked George to go out to the barn with him. The boys were all in bed at nine o'clock and she retired herself at ten. The witness said Chief McKinnon had not been telling him what to say in regard to this evidence.

Constable E. Bedell corroborated Babbitt.

Frank McDonald said he saw John Lowder at Cornelius Massou's the day after the murder, and he said Tompsitt left his house the night before at eight or half past but not later than nine o'clock.

Mr. Pope also said John Lowder told him when he was at his place that it was about eight o'clock when Tompsitt left and went to the barn with George and that David went to bed.

That was all the evidence Mr. Clute offered in rebuttal.

Mr. McCarthy called Christopher Lowder who swore that to the best of his knowledge no mention was made of eight o'clock at that interview.

The court rose at 6:15 until to-morrow.

ADDRESS OF COUNSEL.

PICTON, ONT., May 10.—The trial was resumed at 9:30 this morning. Only one witness was called for the defence, Mrs. Sylvanus Lowder corroborated her husband's statement that Tompsitt passed their house on his way home about ten o'clock This closed the case for the defence, when Mr. McCarthy addressed the jury, occupying two hours and forty minutes. The Court Room was not crowded the door being locked early in the day to prevent a rush and consequent confusion. There are tremendous crowds of people in town to hear the result of the trial. The excitement still runs very high. In the corridor's a large jostling crowd has congregated discussing the trial and the unusually strong case made out by the prosecution, Public opinion is divided but the weight of it is, against the prisoners, who were for the first time observed with when their lawyer was addressing the jury. Tompsitt's wife and little four year old daughter and his sister were moved to tears when the address began and in a few moments began moaning and crying so loudly that they had to be removed. The address was a masterly effort and moved many in the court room to tears. The court adjourned at 12:15 for lunch.

TEARS IN THEIR EYES

THE JURY RETIRE.

PICTON, May 10, 3:30.—After Mr. Clute's speech of about an hour and a quarter His Lordship charged the jury, were was then locked up to consider the verdict. A decision is not expected till late to-night, but the court will sit very late to receive it.

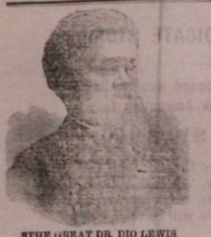
Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Whenever the blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of any prevailing epidemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished power should be these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce all erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, billiousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. The fruit season is especially prone to produce irritation of the bowels and disorder of the digestive organs; both of which dangerous conditions can be completely removed by Holloway's corrective medicines.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally and the Ointment rubbed externally are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, surest. Holloway's Pills and Ointment purify the blood, remove obstructions to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the overgorged air tubes, and render respiration free without reducing the strength [illegible] irritating the nerves, or depressing the [illegible]. Such as the ready means of saving [illegible] when afflicted with colds, coughs, [illegible] other complaints by which so many are [illegible]iously and permanently afflicted in most [illegible]tries.



THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS

HIS OUTSPOKEN OPINION.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. I am satisfied the medicine is not injurious and will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical profession stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of these happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

SAVED BY A BICYCLE.

"You think me rather young for such a responsible position? Well, perhaps so, for I am nothing more than a boy, being less than twenty years of age. But what think you of this white hair which I have had for four years? It looks strange to one unaware of its origin, and when I call to mind the circumstance that caused it I only wonder that I am alive to day.'

The speaker, a mere child in appearance save for his white hair, stood with his right index finger and thumb grasping the key of a telegraph instrument which had just ticked off to him an account of a terrible railway accident. Referring to it he said:

"I have had some trying experiences in my life as an operator. Four years ago I was telegraph operator at a small country station on a southwestern railroad. I had little to do, the despatches sent and received not averaging more than two a day, and those confined almost entirely to railroad matters. To enable me to leave the office at will I had attached a large tin cup to the sounder of my instrument so I could hear my call 'Q,' from any part of the village. When the south bound train arrived at noon one Saturday I hurriedly communicated with the conductor, and learning that he had nothing to send I prepared to quit my office for the afternoon, as no other train was due until seven o'clock. Locking the door I went away leaving the train standing at the depot, hot boxes detaining it longer than usual. Luckily I did not go beyony earshot of my instrument, repairing to a field near by to witness a baseball game. I frequently left the office for hours, but always kept within hearing distance, the tin cup sounder enabling me to distinquish my call several hundred feet away. Somehow I had misgivings on this occasion. I had an indefinable dread of some impending trouble. I was so ill at ease that I took little interest in the game. I kept my ears open, expecting, for some reason I will not try to explain, to be called to the office. Before I had been absent ten minutes, and while the train still stood at the depot, I heard my familiar call repeated in what seemed to me unusually rapid succession. Instead of walking leisurely, as was my wont, I ran to the office as fast as I could, and heard as I entered: 'Hold No. 4 at your station until special going north passes.'

'Involuntarily I glanced out of the window and saw the train I was ordered to hold disappearing around the curve a short distance away. I was not told at what time the special left the station south, which was only ten miles away, and I saw in my mind's eye the two trains rapidly approaching each other, quickly followed by a crash, screams of pain and flying debris. Suddenly I remembered, while tearing my hair and cursing my negligence that No. 4 had to stop at a wood yard two miles down the road to take on fuel. That would take a matter of five minutes, and if means of conveyance were at hand I might overtake it and avert a disaster. My first thought was a hand-car, my second a horse, but I did not know if the first was at the station, or the second was to be had in the village. Rushing out of the office I stumbled over my bicycle. Without a momemt's thougt I shoved it out of the door before me, and was on it in less time than it takes to count ten. In my odd moments I had practiced and had become quite an expert bicyelist. The country road paralleled the railroad for several miles, and the former was down grade the entire distance. I put my whole strength into the effort of propelling the machine, and had the saeisfactionof attaining a speed I had never accomplished before. My hat blew off and my coat was doffed through fear that it would retard my speed. I got within perhaps fifty yards of the now standing train when the engine whistle blew and the train started up. I redoubled my efforts and came along side the rear platform of the last car just as the the train was getting under full headway. With a falling side motion I threw my wheel against the side of the car just forward of the platform and grabbed the hand rail as it came in reach, at the same time letting go my hold on the bicycle. I caught the bell cord and gave it one vigorous pull, and as the train came to a halt, I gave the cord three jerks the signal to back, and fainted. The conductor found me where I had fallen. Suspecting something wrong he permitted the train to back to the station and getting there just as the special, loaded with the directors of the road and their families, swung around the curve into the station. I had brain fever and came near dying, not regaining my reasoning faculties for five weeks after my terrible experience. But the conductor said my hair was white when he found me on the rear of his train.'—Chicago News.

Every [illegible] who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the countless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age which makes such demands upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate degree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, such in Northrop and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never [illegible] properly and judiciously administered. IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In [illegible] way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Advertising Cheats!!!

'It has become so common to write the beginning of an article, in an elegant, interesting manner,

'Then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such.

'And simply call attention to Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,

'To induce people

'To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else.'

'THE REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,

'Religious and secular, is

'Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines

'There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness

'And ability

'In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.'

Did She Die?

'No!

'She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years'

'The doctors doing her no good;'

'And at last was cured by Hop Bitters the papers say so much about.'

'Indeed! Indeed!'

'How thankful we should be for that medicine.'

A Daughter's Misery.

'Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery,

'From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility,

'Under the care of the best physicians

'Who gave her disease various names,

'But no relief,

'And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters that we had shunned for years before using it.'—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

'My daughters say;

'How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters.'

'He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable'

'And we are so glad that he used your Bitters.' A LADY OF UTICA, N. Y.

FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition and are peculiar to nervous, irritable temperaments. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of dyspepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high-colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL

THE VOLTAIC BELT Co., Marshall Mich. will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above.—N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial is allowed.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding, Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.

HORACE FAIRBROTHER."

Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."

159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.

A. J. CRANE."

Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

JOSEPH WALDEN."

Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles.

E. BRAGDON."

Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

AROUSING THE PEOPLE

From Their Apathy Regarding Dominion Expendirure.

SPEECHES BY MACKENZIE AND HARDY

At the Toronto Reform Association meeting on Friday, Hon. Alexander Mackenzie, M. P., for East York, was called upon by the chairman to address the meeting. On rising Mr. Mackenzie was greeted with loud and prolonged cheering. He expressed regret that owing to the facts that he was under medical treatment and must refrain from using his voice, he would be unable to speak at length. He was glad to be with them to consult with them as as to the best means of advancing the cause they all had at heart, and though in the meantime he was forbidden to use his voice much, he hoped to be able to work with them yet in promoting that cause. He was delighted with the spirit manifested in the meeting. He thought with Mr. Robert Maclean (who had referred to the matter at an earlier stage of the meeting) that the apathy prevailing in the country last session was wonderful, and he was glad to see there was a rising feeling against the extraordinary profligacy of expenditure at Ottawa. Once let that feeling be roused and its results would astonish those who were abusing the power entrusted to them by the people. There was hardly a prediction to which he gave voice in 1878 which had not been already realized. Sir John Macdonald, though he was nominally in power, was a mere puppet, and was moved on the stage by his French majority. He (Sir John) was quite prepared to sacrifice his own Province or his own principles, if he had any—(cheers and laughter)—to do anything in fact, that would keep him in power. In speaking thus he was not saying anything behind Sir John's back which he had not said to his face, for he had often said that he believed the Primier's love of power was such that there was nothing, even of the most revolutionary character, he would agree with in order to retain it. It had been repeatedly said that if Reformers had bowed a little more to public opinion in 1878 they might be in office to day. When the Reformers were prepared to ask the people to submit to public opinion in 1878 they might be in office to-day. When the Reformers were prepared to ask the people to submit to evil principles in order that they might retain power, he would be unable to work with them. (Cheers.) If they believed in the goodness of God and in His superintendence of the universe, in the preponderance of good over evil they must believe that uprightness and honesty was as for an individual, wherever it might lead. (Cheers.) Referring to an expression of regret from Mr. Douglas that all Toronto was represented by Conservatives, Mr. Mackenzie said there was a gleam of light in the darkness, for two of the wards of the city were now represented in the Commons by an old Reformer, for he happened now to rank as one of the city members. (Cheers and laughter.) They would have to make St. Paul's and St. Matthew's Wards evangelizers among the others. It certainly was extraordinary, as Mr. Douglas said that three divisions of a city like Toronto, the centre of legal and educational institutions, should be represented by those who were retrogressive in political life. It was extraordinary also that Canada a new country, should recognise a free trade principles, when a country like England with all her traditions to overcome and Toryism strong should be so far in advance. (Hear, hear.) He expressed the hope that with the new executive, and with the organization which had been completed this evening, they would be able to effect some change in Toronto. He expressed the greatest pleasure at seeing his old friend, Hon. Mr. Anglin, present. No man had worked more faithfully or had done more to serve the party. (Loud cheers.) He was glad also to see Hon. Mr. Hardy present. He like most Brantford people, had the advantage over (Mr. Mackenzie) of being able to speak in a ten acre field as easily as in this room. (Cheers and laughter.) As a member of the Commons he had of course watched with intense interest the proceedings of the Local Legislature last session, and was heartily glad that the machinations of their enemies had resulted simply in strengthing the hands of Mr. Mowat and his Government—cheers—and that the gallows erected by the political Haman had been put to its proper use. (Renewed cheering.) Though he could not speak in review of the events of the session, he could promise them a masterly speech on that subject on next Tuesday week, when Sir Richard Cartwright would address a Toronto audience. Sir Richard had proven himself a most valuable member of the Reform party, and he trusted all the friends of Liberalism would turn out to hear his splendid address, for such he was sure it would be. He need not say how cordially he thanked them for their kind reception of him, and he hoped to be with them in many a battle yet to come. (Loud and prolonged applause).

RIGHT FOR A POLITICAL PARTY

VICTORIES FOR THE LIBERALS.

Hon. A. S. Hardy was received with tremendous applause. He had attended the meeting to bring the excuse of Mr. Mowat, who had promised to be present. Mr. Mowat was now busily engaged preparing the case upon the boundary dispute, and the matter took up all his time. He wished them to turn for a few minutes to the events which had occurred during the year, or since February, 1883. They would not forget that when the Mowat Government came out of the election campaign their ranks were somewhat thinned and indeed some persons had said that they were "a little battered." The election in Muskoka had not added anything to their vote. After their defeat in Muskoka the Liberal party throughout the country saw some slight evidences of the means which had been used by the Opposition during the month preceding the election. Reformers who had been luke-warm were set fairly ablaze by what was divulged of Tory methods in Muskoka. That contest marked the end of Liberal inactivity. After that, enthusiasm had prevailed wherever an opportunity presented itself. They had had a year of

EXTRAORDINARY EVENTS

so far as the Liberal House was concerned. Ever since "the sun went down" in Muskoka it would appear that the Liberal party in Ontario had been waging battles which resulted in a victory for them at every contest. (Cheers.) The Opposition proclaimed after the Muskoka election, that the Mowat Government dared not open a single constituency to elect a Treasurer. Since that time they had elected two Treasurers. (Hear, hear.) Further, they had proclaimed that the Government would not have a majority, but in the election trials the Government scored victories while the Opposition lost seats. They had not wrested a single constituency from the Government, although they did their utmost in the courts. (Cheers.) After that some by-elections were held when the Government held their own. (Cheers.) Then the Liberals held their own in every contest in November. These elections had been followed by the decision of the Privy Council in the escheat case, where they won only a point in law, but a great constitutional victory over their opponents at Ottawa. (Cheers.) That had been followed by the decision on the License question, which had been turned into a political question. Further than that—immediately after the House assembled, instead of having a majority of eight they had a majority of twelve on the first vote, which was afterwards raised to a majority of fifteen (Hear, hear.) This year the Opposition did not intend to allow the Mowat Government to occupy the Treasury benches more than a few days, and they expected to cross the floor of the House when by disclosures made on the floor of that House of the machinations of their emissaries in connection with members of Parliament. (Hear hear.) At least the leaders of the Opposition had the opportunity of denouncing what had been there disclosed, and disclaiming any sympathy with them, and especially with the two persons who had been arrested and upon whom the keys had been turned for the night (Cheers.) From these facts it could be easily seen that during the year and during the session, there were events of immense importance. After the close of the session, and before the members arrived at their homes the people received the result of another constitutional question—in connection with the dispute relating to the rivers and streams of this country. (Cheers.) During the year these events all proved victories for the Liberal party. (Cheers.) The hon. gentleman closed with a few remarks regarding the work of Reformers in Toronto, being loudly applauded as he resumed his seat.

THEY WERE THUNDERSTRUCK

WE DO NOT CLAIM

that Shaker Blood Syrup will cure everything but the fact that on the purity and vitality of the blood depends the vigor and health of the whole system, and that disease of various kinds is often simply the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause, we are naturally led to the conclusion that a remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, eradicates scrofula and other impurities from it, as Shaker Blood Syrup undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use; hence the field of its usefulness is quite an extended one, and we are warranted in recommending it for all derangements of the system which are caused by an unnatural state of the Blood.

Gentlemen—I was a sufferer from Salt Rheum on my limbs [illegible] years previous to the summer of 1877, at which time I was cured by Shaker Blood Syrup. The skin would become dry, crack open, bleed and itch intensely, so that I could not help scratching, which of course made them worse. At the time I commenced taking Shaker Blood Syrup (in the summer of 1877) they were so bad that they discharged a [illegible] [illegible] them [illegible]. The skin [illegible] so that if I stepped on them they would crack open and actually bring tears to my eyes. The first bottle benefited me so much that I continued taking it till I was cured. Hoping many others may learn the value of Shaker Blood Syrup, and receive as much benefit as I have, I am,

Very truly yours,

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

WHAT WILL BE THE EFFECT?

We desire to discuss with our readers the second fact which we mentioned on Saturday, viz.: "By the direct fault of our county members in the Dominion Parliament this city has been deprived of any possibility of a connection that would preserve to her merchants and manufacturers any share of the large trade certain to grow up with these rich mineral regions."

Messrs. Bowell, Robinson and White have been strong supporters of the Government at Ottawa. The member for North Hastings occupies a seat at the Executive Council table in an administration which has beaten all previous records in voting away money to aid the construction of railways. Lines to the hyperborean regions of Hudson's Bay have had funds showered upon them. The rocks and swamps north of Lake Superior are to be cut down and filled up with the people's millions. For every wild scheme the votes from the county of Hastings have been solidly given, and it was only when a legitimate opportunity to benefit their own county presented itself that these men were found wanting. A considerable sum of money was given last year to survey a line from Eldorado to Bancroft. It was derived from private sources, and was given upon the assurance that the influence of the Minister of Customs would beyond doubt secure such public aid as would insure the construction of a road to give Belleville an outlet north. It is an open secret that the engineers employed thereon made a full report which indicated that a new road would be feasible but expensive. It is no secret at all that the Minister of Customs did not carry out any such pledge. It will be argued, possibly, that a combination of circumstances made it impossible. It may be argued that no ordinary bonus would have secured the construction of so expensive a road as the report showed would be inevitable. Under such circumstances statesmanship would have been more seemly than the unspeakable folly which characterized the conduct of our county members. If it was a fact, as is generally admitted, that the construction of an independent road was impossible then the vital interests of our city required that some arrangement be effected with the proprietors of the Central Ontario road. We believe it is true that an offer was made by them to make the road north of Eldorado a common line on condition that a bonus of five or six thousand dollars per mile be granted. This was about the sum Mr. Bowell promised for the North Hastings extension. By giving it to the Central Ontario we would have secured the use of their line, now on the eve of completion. We understand that such a bonus would not now be accepted by that company if running powers for the North Hastings company were to be a condition therefor. It thus appears that all we required was offered at no greater expense to the public than the Minister of Customs indicated as possible to be obtained. It was merely a question between giving the money to the Central Ontario for a certainty or voting it at a venture to the Midland company in the hope (not very substantially founded) that they would construct the road. It would hardly seem to be a matter for hesitation. The interests at stake both here and in Madoc were of too great moment to be lost sight of for an instant. No private griefs, no personal malice, no low feeling of revenge should have been permitted to actuate a man who was for the time a trustee for the material concerns of thousands. The Minister of Customs was cast in too small a mould to rise above these petty feelings and the opportunity he had is gone, we fear never to return. His example was followed by Messrs. Robertson and White. This city never was struck such a blow before, and this came from her trusted representatives and should-be friends.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

To DAY is Arbor Day in Quebec Province and is a general public holiday.

* * *

THE MAJORITY against the Morrison Bill which proposed a horizontal reduction in the United States tariff was only five. And, too, it was opposed by such leading exponents of Democratic opinion as the New York Sun.

IT WOULD APPEAR that Mayor Boswell of Toronto, a prominent Conservative is dragging politics into the police promotions. This is the very abuse to which under council control police government is liable. Mr. Boswell was elected a second term unanimously and should not prove such a traitor to his high trust. Toronto will not stand anything like party feeling in its police government than which nothing is more powerful to impair the efficiency and discipline of the force. The Queen City has cause just at present to be proud of its police. The appointment to an inspectorship of a village constable, Johnston, over the heads of experienced city sergeants is an intolerable piece of partizanship and we do not wonder at the dissatisfaction.

Mr. John Magwood, Victoria Road, writes: 'Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure is a splendid medicine. My customers say they never used anything so effectual. Good results immediately follow its use. I know its value from personal experience having been troubled for 9 or 10 years with dispepsia, and since using it digestion goes on without that depressed feeling so well known to dyspeptics. I have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of Indigestion, Constipation, Heartburn, or any trouble arising from a disordered stomach.

Health is a duty. Disease a crime. Use Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters and be cured of all biliousness or liver trouble 25 cents will buy a large bottle.

A DOUBLE BENEFIT

James Moore, a prominent resident of Leamington, writes that he cured himself of Dyspepsia of a year's duration by one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and two bottles cured his wife who had been for two years a sufferer from the same disease. He conscientiously recommends it to all suffering from similar troubles.

Every one speaks highly of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters as a Stomach Liver and Kidney Medicine. 'The best family medicine we ever used,' say they all. Try a bottle this Spring as a blood purifier.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

OF COURSE HE DID

We believe that Mr. Blake spoke from his heart in advocating the Irish resolutions and certainly in doing so he voiced the honest sentiment of many Canadians, both of Irish and other origins, who love liberty and desire to see people of the other lands in possession of the same rights as they themselves enjoy.—Toronto News.

WHERE IS THE N. P.?

THE MEN RESPONSIBLE FOR IT.

Marriage is the great bar to the successful rivalry of women in the labor field. You train a girl for a profession. You start her in a good situation, and just at the time when a man would be beginning to get a firm foothold in his business the woman abandons it altogether.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A PARTY LOSS.

Sir Charles has made his choice. He is no doubt bidding good-by to Canada and Canadin politics. But his withdrawal, while not wholy unexpected, means a great blow at the supremacy of his party. BOTH TO DIE

Tompsitt and Lowder Sentenced To be Hanged June 10.

THE ADDRESSES OF COUNSEL.

The Judge Agrees with the Verdict.

AND HOLDS OUT NO HOPE.

How the Prisoners Took Their Fearful Sentence.

(From our own Reporter.)

PICTON, May 10.—The murder trial resumed this morning at 9:30, before Mr. Justice Patterson. From before daylight people began to arrive in town, and by 10 o'clock the streets and hotels were thronged with idle visitors anxious to catch the latest developments in the trial. Such a feeling of intense interest never before existed among the people of Prince Edward over a murder trial.

Mrs. Sylvanus Lowder, the witness who was ill yesterday took the stand on the opening of the court. She said:—I saw David Lowder about four o'clock on the afternoon of the murder; he was at my place; Birtie and Frand Jackson were also at my place that afternoon; I did not see any person else that afternoon or night; my husband went out that evening for kindling wood and I heard some one holler out at him; when he came in I asked him who it was, he said it was Tompsitt; that was about ten o'clock; went to bed shortly after.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clute—Bertie Jackson is about 21 years of age; I know it was after eight when she left; I heard Frank, a little boy, say that it was after eight when they got up to go away; when my husband went out he did not have his boots on; he was only out for a few minutes; he closed the door after him when he went out.

The counsel for the defence stated that was all the evidence they intended to call and the case closed.

ADDRESS OF THE COUNSEL.

Mr. Dalton McCarthy Q.C. in his address to the jury on behalf of the prisoners referred to the close confinement in which they had been kept during the whole week, and called their attention to the apparent hostility towards the accused as evidenced from the frequent gestures by the crowd in the room. The Jury were sworn, however, to try the case on the evidence, and he had no doubt they would do their duty. The murder, a most foul and dastardly crime, committed by masked men, quite naturally aroused the indignation of a peaceable community, who, he said, were anxious to bring the guilty parties to justice. The Crown only offered circumstantial evidence and he believed the prisoners wouldn't be sent to the gallows on such evidence. (Here Tompsitt's wife, daughter, and sister began crying and shrieking. They were taken from the room.) He did not think Mr. or Mrs. Jones wished to have the prisoners hung unless it could be proved they were guilty. He referred to cases where juries had convicted innocent parties on circumstantial evidence. There was not a tittle of direct evidence against the prisoners; in fact what little evidence there was, circumstantial throughout, appeared to point that they were not the guilty parties. Evidence of any kind was always uncertain. Witnesses are liable to give in their testimony, unintentionally more of what some other person had told them, than what they actually saw. Circumstantial evidence more than positive evidence was uncertain especially when relating to foot prints in the snow. He referred to Mrs. Gilbert Jones' statement that she did not think Tompsitt was as tall as the man with the mask at her house. That was an important point in the case. She also said the man who fired the shot was dressed in grey clothes, and the next fact was that Tompsitt was at Hicks' about eleven o'clock with dark clothes on. It would be hard he thought for the jury to reconcile themselves that Tompsitt was guilty. There was another break in the apparent chain of circumstantial evidence for the Crown, and that was that Mrs. Jones' clock on the day after the murder was not shown to be the same as at the time of the murder. But from the evidence they were asked to believe that the accused went from Jones' house to Hicks' in fifty minutes. other witnesses swore that they walked over the same course in daylight in 1h. and 6m. He did not believe the jury would place much credibility in that evidence, which he called manufactured evidence. With the deviations in the trail, it was a distance of over five miles, while the course walked by the witnesses was only four miles. If Tompsitt was the murderer he did not believe he could be as calm as he was when at Hicks. If he was guilty and if he had walked or run that distance in fifty minutes, he would naturally be excited and display some signs of nervousness. But it was sworn that he was perfectly calm and composed. Notwithstanding the great experts and experienced detectives engaged in the case, they could not recover the mask. He thought it peculiar that a 32 calibre revolver found along the trail, should be traced by the detectives to Tompsitt. If it had not been for those detectives who are working up a reputation for themselves, at the cost of other men's lives, that revolver would never have been found just where it was. He thought the evidence of Peters about the ownership of the pistol should not have been admissable It was not the practice in England or Ireland to admit such evidence. Tompsitt was asked to be sent to the scaffold on such evidence. That witness was not known and it was probable he manufactured his story out of whole cloth. A 32 calibre revolver was a common revolver. Peters swore that Tompsitt's revolver was a highly finished one, while the hardware merchant said the revolver found was an exceedingly common one. The principal chain there was in the evidence was the footprints. No man had sworn that the shoes in court were Tompsitt's. If he was wrong in making this statement there was evidence to show that they were exceedingly common boots. The whole case rests on that supposed trail. One man and only one man swears that he followed the tracks to Tompsitt's house, but that man was Aaron McDonald, who being an enemy of the prisoner's would be glad to see him convicted. A witness with such a feeling of animus should not be believed. Benham swore that the tracks did not lead up to the door but to the well where they usually got their water. It was all a supposition that Tompsitt made the tracks. The Jury should not think in that case be afraid to stand out against public opinion, which was so heated at present. Such a feeling of animus will subside in time The evidence, he said, was conclusive that there was no track from Scott's lane to Tompsitt's. It was strange that the detective and constables who were paid for such work, did not follow that trail from one end to the other. The old man Saylor said he found two tracks leading from the house to a brickyard, when he gave up the search. (His Lordship—He went below the railway to the bridge, I think.) Other witnesses gave such conflicting evidence about those tracks that the discrepancy was so great it was hard to tell which one to believe. The importance of that trail in this case was whether the prisoners made the tracks. The witnesses who made the tests substantially disagreed. When the life of a human being was at stake it was important that it should be proved the boots were Tompsitt's beyond a doubt. Pope, who, he thought, gave a reckless story, said at first he was not satisfied that Tompsitt's boots made the track, but with McKinnon later on at Johnston's Island he said he was satisfied Tompsitt's boots made the track. Why was this change of belief? Did McKinnon mislead or deceive Pope. The learned counsel here referred to Chief McKinnon's part in the affair in rather uncomplimentary language. He said he did not believe McKinnon's story. All the evidence about the tracks was too uncertain to grasp it as the truth. There was no Judge Lynch in this country and a man should not be hung and then tried afterwards. The country at large are anxious to have the guilty parties in this case convicted but they don't want to see innocent men hung. He gave the boots to the jury to measure the shank which they found differed in length in the shank about a quarter of an inch. He did not question the credibility of Mr. Pope's evidence about the length of the shank; he wished to point out that the difference was discovered in the snow, and they at once set about to get a pair of boots to fit the tracks. There was a little romance about this case as in all others. This woman, Mrs. Cunningham, related a conversation so exciting and emotional and which was so new to everybody else, that it was impossible to believe her. Her statement was a grand thing for the reporters, but he did not think her story was told in that friendly manner, common in a woman, towards a man on trial for murder. It was a very nice bit of evidence, and fit very well where it was wanted. He did not believe Mrs. Cunningham's manner while in the witness box was what it should have been, and it was for the jury to say whether her evidence was manufactured for a purpose or not. There was no more discrepancy in the evidence of the Lowder family than among other ordinary witnesses. They agreed, however, substantially in the important evidence which they gave. The evidence of Sylvanus Lowder and his wife about Tompsitt passing their house at ten that night was important. In conclusion, he said:—'It was a terrible thing that poor Lazier was shot. He left a widow with a proud heritage. He was a good man and led a Christian life. A man who stood up before such desperate masked men without a weapon, and without a harsh word, to save the lives of his two relatives was worthy of a monument as grand and beautiful as his spotless life deserved. But on that evidence was that poor wife, and daughter and sister who have just left the court weeping, and who have stuck to the prisoner so attentively throughout this trying ordeal, will you gentlemen of the jury send that man who is so near and dear to them to the gallows to have the black cap drawn over him on such shaky evidence as you have heard, and then some day find out that you have robbed those dear people of a man who was innocent. I therefore ask you to give the prisoner the benefit of what doubt there is and render a verdict for acquittal.' Mr. McCarthy in delivering his address which was an able effort occupied just two hours and forty minutes. In his peroration there were very few in the room who were not affected to tears by his pathetic appeal on behalf of prisoner Tompsitt, and a deadly silence crept over the crowd as he was uttering his concluding sentences.

The court rose for lunch.

SOME OF THE SCENES.

The excitement at this hour about the court house was almost indescribable. Those who were in the building preferred to retain their seats rather than leave for dinner, and as soon as the prisoners were taken to their cell a suppressed silence was broken by a noisy conversation for some minutes. A dark throng of people was continually arriving and leaving the grounds disappointed in not being able to get a glimpse of the prisoners. Every conceivable device was brought to bear on the constables to effect an entrance to the court house. In several instances people offered to pay $1 for the privilege of attending the trial during the afternoon, so intense was the desire to hear the addresses of counsel and His Lordship charge the jury. The evidence of the prosecution pointed so directly to the guilt of the prisoners and their defence being weak, the opinion was pretty generally expressed that the jury could not but find a verdict of guilty. Not only was the seating capacity of the room over-taxed, but on the steps in the corridors below were men packed tightly against each other, crowding and shouting in a vain attempt to elbow their way into court. Mrs. Tompsitt and her sister-in-law, who had been ordered from the room in the morning were seated at the door moaning hysterically, while the heart-rending cries of the sweet little daughter of Tompsitt caused many a tear to drop for the unfortunate people who were about to witness the death sentence of one so dear to them. It was a sight not soon to fade from the memory of those who witnessed it. Just inside the door were seated the members of the Lowder family, who, although every spark of hope for George had not deserted them, appeared to comprehend the serious position in which their affectionate and at one time innocent boy had been placed as the result of bad companionship. It was too late then to save him from punishment, but they hoped that the indefatigable efforts of their lawyers would save him from the gallows.

MR. DICKSON'S ADDRESS.

His Lordship returned to the bench in half an hour and Mr. Geo. D. Dickson, Q. C., rose to address the jury on behalf of the prisoner Lowder. He pointed out that the men who had committed this ruffianly act at Jones' were brought into the full glare of a lamp in the presence of two capable witnesses, who had given a pretty full description of their appearance. Mrs. Jones especially stated in her evidence that the men at her house appeared larger than the prisoners at the bar. That statement was an exceedingly important one. When a case depends on the trail the Crown should be submitted bring it home to the prisoners beyond any question of doubt. That was not done in this case for there were three distinct breaks in the trail, which should be considered as a separate matter from the footprints. When the question of the trail is in doubt as in this case, he thought it had a tendency to establish the prisoners innocence rather than their guilt. In regard to the question of footprints there was no positive evidence that the boots proposed belonged to the prisoner. George Lowder never saw the boots therefore there should be no importance attached to the point that he claimed a pair of boots he did not see. The Crown evidently wished to impress the Jury with the fact that the prisoners were then seen driving in the direction of Jones' house on the night of the murder. If that was true why was it they did not return to their homes in the same rig. There was no mask found. No gun or revolver along the trail, therefore, to his mind it was clear the tracks were never made by the guilty parties. First the Crown wanted the jury to believe that David Lowder was with Tompsitt, but, failing in this they wished to connect George with the murder. He referred to the various opportunities George had of escaping on Saturday after the murder if he wished, and which he no doubt would have done had he been guilty. Even if George Lowder was with Tompsitt it would have to be established that he intended to resort to violence in order to carry out the purpose for which they had banded together. The fact that George, if it was he, retreated after he had raised the gun, proved that he had no intention of doing an injury to the men there in order to get their money. If the jury found that George Lowder was with Tompsitt they would first have to arrive at the conclusion that the whole six members of the Lowder family were guilty of perjury. Such a serious accusation he did not think could be imputed to John Lowder a man 72 years of age. He thought the circumstantial evidence failed entirely in bringing conviction home to the prisoners and the positive testimony rather had a tendency to establish their innocence than their guilty. On these grounds he asked the jury to bring in a verdict in favor of the prisoners. Mr. Dickson occupied an hour and thirty minutes in the delivery of his address, which was closely listened to.

THE CROWN SUMS UP.

Mr. R C. Clute began his address for the Crown at twenty-five minutes to three. There was perfect order, everyone present by their deep silence and facial expression which they wore denoted their anxiety to catch every word which the Crown Prosecutor uttered to the jury. When once he got thoroughly under way there was such a lull in the room and in the yard beyond that the scratching of the reporter's pencils was the only audible sounds. The full rich voice of the talented barrister penetrated every part of the building. Avoiding all wearisome minuteness of detail he gave a concise recital of the evidence. In opening, reference was made to the foul murder of a man who lost his life in the defence of his friends, which made the circumstances of the case all the more melancholy. What were the men at Jones' house for was the first question. The facts showed they were there for the purpose of robbery, if not murder. Mrs. Jones looked back over her shoulder in fleeing from the assassins and saw the man with the gun striking Lazier, Mr. Jones swore that the man with the pistol was masked and did the shooting afterwards. Whoever he was it was not disputed that he did the shooting. Another undisputed fact was that it snowed the night of the murder. Abram Saylor, who was entitled to a great deal of praise for the prompt action he took in bringing the guilty parties to justice, examined the tracks leading from the house, and afterwards, accompanied by Bowerman, he found in going over the trail that there were two tracks. Aaron McDonald's evidence was reliable no doubt. He could not help the death of poor Lazier, therefore it was unfair for the counsel for the prisoners to say that his evidence should not be believed, because he was the first one to track the prints in the snow to Tompsitt's house. He swore there was no other track leading from the previous house, and he followed the trail back to a point when it had been left by others previous to that. Then Leader took it up to Hick's and others followed it along back covering every missing link to Jones' house. Babbit got a pair of boots that appeared as if they had been in the stable, and the tracks went to the stable. If these witnesses were to be believed there was a clear and distinct trail of the footprints from Jones' house to where the two prisoners lived. The boots taken from Tompsitt's feet filled one of the footprints in the snow and six or seven witnesses have pledged their oath that George Lowder's boots correspond with the other prints. The boots brought in court are sworn to as those boots. It was a question for the jury to say after hearing the evidence about George Lowder owning the boots, whether they are his or not Whether they belong to him or not they certainly made one of the footprints. It was shown by the evidence that an hour and five minutes after the murder Tompsitt was at Hicks' and how long did it take others to walk the same course? Just an hour and six minutes! And then there was the pistol. The Crown had established the fact that Tompsitt had a revolver early in the fall which corresponds with the one found under the culvert. Mr. McCarthy endeavor to point out a strange feature in the case by the Crown not being able to produce the mask and other articles, but he did not think it at all strange that the parties guilty of such a crime would not make some effort, however fruitless, to avoid their being detected. That revolver was not left at the culvert by accident. It was taken apart and thrown there in order that it might not be found. It was strange, it had been said, that there was dust on the gun the detectives found at Tompsitt's. Yes, but there was no dust on the gun at Lowder's, and it was Geo. Lowder who had the gun at Jones. The character of Tompsitt and his motive are all quite plain. He had all along had in his mind the idea that Jones had money and that it would be easy to scare it out of him. The line of defence was very peculiar. A learned judge once said the last refuge of defence for scoundrels was to prove an alibi and that was the defence offered in this case for the prisoners at the bar. Although all of the Lowder family were sworn none of them were asked whether the boots in court belonged to George. There could only be one significance in that ommission. He pointed out to the jury the many discripancies in the testimony of the Lowder family as regards the time Tompsitt left their house on the night of the murder. The credibility of this evidence was doubted from the fact that they told an altogether different story on Sunday after the murder to McKinnon and Pope. Mr. McCarthy insultingly referred to the principal witness who had been engaged working up the case. Mr. Clute asked the jury to make a note of the statements made against the character of such a man as Hugh McKinnon, a man who risked his own life on one occasion to capture the Youngs boys, who were armed in a barn, a man who ferrited out the Monnahan murder, and the Lucan and Biddulph tragedies. It was such a man as this that society owed a deep debt of gratitude for his talent and ability in guarding their safety against murderers and assassins. It appeared as if the very elements in this case were against the prisoners, and he thought it was a Providential dispensation that the prisoners at the bar were traced through the snow and arrested. On the night of that bloody murder there was sent from Heaven a covering of snow in which the prisoners at the bar imprinted their guilty footsteps. It was a crime he said for the defence to put Mrs. Tompsitt between her husband and the jury, and ask for his discharge on grounds of sympathy. With these remarks he left the case in their hands confident that they would find the prisoners guilty of the crime with which they stood charged.

A DISGRACEFUL SCENE.

When Mr. Clute had finished his address the crowd in the room gave vent to their feelings by applauding. Some of those about the reporter's desk thought the clapping of hands was intended as a tribute to the eloquent and able address of the learned counsel while His Lordship took the demonstration as a display of animus against the prisoners. In charging the jury the learned Judge spoke of the unseemly conduct of the audience in giving such a demonstration as had just been witnessed. It was a disgrace, he said, to the administration of justice that such distasteful conduct should be indulged in. But he hoped that such a demonstration would not have any effect on the jury in determining their verdict.

HIS LORDSHIP'S CHARGE.

His Lordship in reviewing the evidence for the benefit of the jury said the main question was the identity of the prisoners at the bar, the evidence about the footprints being valuable merely in its bearing on that question. He commended the action of Abram Saylor and those with him who so promptly and intelligently began the search for the guilty parties. Continuing His Lordship made the following points: It was reasonable to suppose that the guilty parties had previously concealed themselves about the premises long enough to have their tracks going to the house obliterated by the falling snow. He did not think the evidence showed that if one was acquitted the other ought to be also. That was a popular mistake. One of the prisoner might be found guilty and the other acquitted. Mrs. Jones thought the men were taller than the prisoners, but in the excitement of the moment could she accurately tell the size of the assailants? As to the variation in the evidence as to the time Tompsitt left the Lowders' place there was always a strong temptation for relatives to concoct a story to try and save members of their family. As to whether, one only having fired the fatal shot, both could be guilty of murder. The law on that point was that if two persons combine themselves together to do an act and in prosecuting that act murder is committed the man who did the shooting of course would be guilty, but the other would not be guilty of murder unless it was shown that the murder was committed in prosecuting the act for which they had combined together. The evidence of Mrs. Jones was that she saw the man with the gun clubbing Lazier. If he had struck that man on the temple he would no doubt have killed him and the man with the pistol would claim to be innocent. It was a question to consider whether if the the two men there had combined together to use violence if resistance was offered. Mr. Dickson very properly pointed out to the jury that the man with the gun desisted and retreated before the shot was fired, but it was for the jury to say whether that was a fact or not. Mrs. Jones swore that there were two shots fired. As she was returning to her bed-room she saw the man striking Lazier with the gun. When she returned Lazier was dead. Before convicting the prisoners they should be satisfied of their guilt.

His Lordship's charge occupied an hour and seven minutes.

Mr. Dickson to His Lordship—You did not say anything about the nature of circumstantial evidence.

His Lordship—No. If I had said anything I would have told them that often circumstantial evidence was stronger than positive evidence.

THE JURY RETIRES.

It was about ten minutes past five o'clock when the jury retired. Before doing so one of them asked that they might be allowed to take the map of the trail the boots and the revolver with them, which was granted.

TERRIBLE SUSPENSE.

A good many rose to leave the court room as soon as the jury retired, but those who lingered behind to await the verdict could not help but feel the importance of that hour to the prisoners who now began to look nervous and show signs of uneasiness. Lowder sat to the right of Tompsitt with a firm hold of the railing and the dock. His lips were tightly drawn, his gaze was one constant stare at the door of the jury room, while the prespiration stood out in large beads on his boyish face. Tompsitt looked ghastly as his large blue eyes rolled up now and again at the members of the press, while he nervously twisted a pocket handkerchief about his fingers. Lowder's eyes were filled with tears, but his companion, older in years with a more hardened appearance, maintained his composure as stubbornly as it was possible for any human being under the circumstances. Thus the portentous moments dragged by and six o'clock arrived but no verdict. The sun was slowly descending behind the hill to the west, and night was approaching. Some were of the opinion that the jury would be locked up all night while there were those who did not think it would be an hour before the verdict would be rendered.

At 6:30 there was a sharp rap at the door and John W. Fagan, foreman, led the jury out into the room. There was not a sound to be heard.

GUILTY OF MURDER.

When they were asked if they had agreed upon their verdict the foreman with a trembling voice said they had, and the prisoners were found guilty with a recommendation to mercy.

Mr. Clute then rose and asked that the sentence of the court be passed upon the prisoners at the bar in accordance with the verdict.

His Lordship called upon the prisoners severally to stand up, and said; 'Joseph Tompsitt have you anything to say why the sentence of the court should not be passed upon you?'

WHAT THEY SAID.

The prisoner said: 'I will take it like a man I did not do it.' With these few words he fell back and completely broke down.

His Lordship—George Lowder have you anything to say, to which Lowder replied: 'I have nothing to say. I am not guilty of the charge. If you are going to hang Tompsitt I would rather be laid away than lose my liberty for life.

His Lordship then addressed them as follows: You and each of you have been found guilty of murder by the jury. I dont think they could have conscientiously done otherwise from the evidence. They have also brought in a recommendation to mercy. The law of the land allows me to pass but one sentence, but from the circumstances of the case I may be permitted to say that I can hold out no inducement whatever that mercy will be extended. I therefore order that you be taken to the place of confinement from whence you came and on the tenth day of June, 1884 you be taken to the place of execution and there hanged by the neck until each of you are dead, and may God have mercy on you.

While sentence was being passed Lowder rose and interrupted His Lordship with a remark that he had no ill feeling against the jury, but the judge told him he had no occasion to say anything more. When the sentence had been passed Thompsitt rose and said: 'Thank you, judge.'

SAD FAREWELLS.

The prisoners were then ordered to step out of the box. They both walked tremblingly across the floor and at the top of the stairs Tompsitt met his wife, daughter and sister, who were crying bitterly, and giving vent to their agonized feeling in hysterical shrieks. The bewildered wife clasped the doomed man in her arms and in a few seconds of silent embrace they kissed each other fondly and his wife bid him farewell. His sister and daughter both kissed him and bid him good-bye

David Lowder took his brother by the hand and with a good deal of emphasis said: 'George good-bye, God knows I know you are innocent.' The two doomed men were then hurried down stairs and in a few seconds were lost to view behind the iron bars. The crowd then slowly dispersed and until late into the night the excited people congregated about the main streets of the town discussing the sequel of one of the most atrocious murders in Ontario ever brought home to the guilty parties.

PREVIOUS EXECUTIONS.

A long time ago a negro murderer was executed in this county and later an Indian was arrested for murder but evaded the law's penalty by hanging himself in his cell by his braces.

THE CONDEMNED MEN.

Tompsitt a man of about 35, is considered by those who know him as a hard case. He was a fisherman and trapper, is married and has one child, aged about four years. George Lowder is a mere lad of about 21 or 22 and used to help his aged and partially blind father in fishing and trapping. While the jurors were out the prisoners were temporarily removed from the court room, and their way out he as though in anticipation of conviction, leaned over towards Chief McKinnon and said in a low tone, 'I hope your soul will be sent to hell the way you have sent mine there.'

After the prisoners were sentenced and removed to the gaol they completely broke down crying and moaning all night. They have since continued this way.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. am satisfied the medicine is not injurious will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use preparation. The truth is, the medical preparation stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. THROUGH SNOW AND SUNSHINE:

OR

TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

CHAPTER III.

It was Christmas morning. The snow had ceased to fall, and the sickly sunbeam forcing a passage throug the heavy clouds, fell on a scene of wide-spread ruin, desolation and despair.

Where the old farm-house had stood, where the well filled barns and large stables had reared their heads, now lay only a heap of blackened, charred, and smoking ruins.

Amid heaps of rubish and white snow trodden into black slush, stood with tearful eyes and sorrowful faces, the rustics, who the eve before, had been so happy and joyous.

All was changed. Even the proud, upright form of the young farmer was bent with sorrow.

'Oh, this is a bitter blow,' he murmured, as he gazed upon the terrible scene: 'yesterday, all so joyous, to-day ruin and desolation.'

And the young farmer bowed his head sorrowfully on his hands.

At this moment a hand was laid on his shoulder and the voice of Brierley said—

'This is a sad change, farmer—very sad.

Harry recoiled as if stung by a serpent.

'You—you here, Mr. Brierley?' he said, 'Have you come to feast your eyes on my ruin, and triumph in my misery?'

'Not so, farmer. Yesterday you were a proud and prosperous man, to-day you are ruined and despairing. Yesterday I hated you, but to-day I pity you. I would not have held out one hand to save you from sinking, but now I offer you two to pull you up. Give me your hand, farmer, and if I can do anything to assist you, command me.'

'Mr. Brierley, we have, perhaps, both been hasty and uncharitable to each other but let bygones be bygones. I thank you for your offer, but must decline it.'

'This is pride, Harry. I tell you I would be your friend. Can I assist you?'

'No I thank you. It is true the old farm is gone, and the pleantiful harvest has perished, but I thank heaven that I am insured, and though I feel pained at the loss of the old home, and at the thoughts of the many it will injure this bitter winter, and yet I am not a ruined man.'

'Well, I am glad to hear it, and yet I fear——'

And William Brierley paused abruptly.

'Fear what?' asked Harry.

'That the fire occurring so soon after your effecting the insurance will lead to a deal of inquiry and trouble.'

'Wherefore?' asked Harry in surprise.

'Because insurance companies are always on the lookout for some means to escape payment, and if, the fire occurring so quickly, they could make it appear the work of an incendiary, depend upon it they would only be too glad to do so to save their gold; but, of course, you have nothing to fear in that direction. Your character is too high for suspicion.'

'Heaven knows it has always been so.' said Harry.

'Well I am sorry for you, farmer, and if you see cause to alter your decision, and will accept aid from me. I hope, you will do so. Yesterday we were foes; let our quarrel be forgotten, and give me your hand?'

'Willingly,' said Harry, extending his hand, 'for though I do not fear a foe, I would rather possess a friend. There is one favor though I will ask of you; since now I can not employ the men discharged at the mill, that you will suffer them to return to their work?'

'They shall,' said Brierley. 'Once more believe in my sympathy and my willingness to aid you.'

Harry bowed his head and turned away.

'The fool believes in my sincerity,' muttered Brierely to himself. 'So much the better, since, should a suspicion of the truth pass through his mind, he would now instantly spurn it. Easy, forgiving fool to believe that my enmity slumbers. I hate him, but I must play the hypocrite to further my own ends. Hallo! Mary comes this way to condole with her rustic lover. Ah, but that love shall be blighted; the idol of her soul held up to infamy and disgrace, she will become mine.'

Thus muttering to himself, he left the spot.

Mary Brierley, to whom the sad news of the fire had been carried, had hastened off to the scene of the conflagration.

'Oh, Harry—Harry!' said the poor girl, her eyes filling with tears.

'Mary, the old farm is gone!'

'Oh, Harry, how did it happen?'

'That I know not,' he replied. 'I was aroused by the smell of fire, and hurried down to find the place in flames. All the hands that slept on the farm were asleep, and I had only time to wake them, and then it was too late to do aught but watch the destruction.

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained a world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail in the United States, Canada and England. In ... way bringing it within the reach of all class at a trifling cost compared with the benefits which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M. Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable temprements. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of despepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high-colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrub for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world Price 25 cents a bottle.

ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL

The VOLTAIC BELT Co., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above,—N. B.—No risk is incurred,as thirty day's trial allowed.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co.s. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the error and indiscretion of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood. &c., I will send a receipt, that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self addressed envelope to the Rev, JOSEPH T. INMAN Station D, New York City. d&w

AYER'S

Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

The huge mountain has labored in travail and brought forth,as usual, the mouse. It is now a settled fact that intelligent christians will not use the "degraded and vulgarized term" Hallelujah for the next half a century. Belleville and vicinity must hear no more of the joyful sound of salvation lest they become paradised; but in the future they must welcome only such missionaries of the Cross as will aim at suppressing emotion and making men more intelligent. Henceforth the humble christian who so far transgresses the rules of propriety as to shout his Redeemer's praise in the courts of the Lord, or clap his hands for joy is to be considered a fanatic and a pest to the churches, and ought to be transported to some lone isle of the trackless sea. These "self-constituted Hallelujah Bands" and so called christian workers" must cease at once to live and work, to be remembered only by the evil they have done. In this letter I wish to point out a few of the gross mistakes and misrepresentations made by the "Signs of the Times" either from ignorance or prejudice.

1. He asserts that these "new lights" scarcely deign to consult the Truth—the old fashioned method of saving souls—but that their success lies in singing inferior hymns, performing ridiculous antics, &c. How does this statement correspond with the real matter of fact? Never is a service of the Band carried on without careful and prayerful reading of God's Word with an earnest application to the circumstances and needs of the audience. True they are unlike the majority of "learned preachers" who waste nearly two hours each Lord's Day in explaining all the absurdities of Agnosticism, Materialism, etc, and five days of the week in loading their guns for the succeeding Sabbath instead of "feeding the flock of Christ,' over which they have been placed with the manna of the Word and allowing the "truth to make them free"—free from ignorance and sin. All praise is due to the Band for holding forth the word of life to perishing men without much embellishment of their own and it is mostly because the live members of the church have become disgusted with the labored discussion in some pulpits of abstruse metaphysical and scientific subjects, and the spinning out of fine threads of doctrinal differences, that they so willingly rally around these zealous evangelists who portray in simple pointed language the terrors of the law as well as the unsearchable riches of the love of Christ to persuade men of their ungodliness and win them to Christ. God's word and the Holy Ghost they (the Band) recognize as the only true agencies in saving souls and not their expositions—not the arts and sciences. This surely cannot be different from the old fashioned method. These men ought not to be called "new lights." An old minister, who has been a christian for seventy-five years, testified at a recent meeting "This kind of meeting is no new departure and just like those we were accustomed to have over fifty years ago in camp-meetings and school houses." Another Christian gentleman of 57 years experience said "I see nothing novel in these services. It is simply a revival of old time religion."

2. He further asserts that these workers are subject to "no authority in Heaven or earth." They believe they are just as much under the inspiration and guidance of the God of Heaven as any evangelistic workers, and their fruits support their claim. I wonder at the writer's ignorance of the character and statue of the Band. Does he not know that the Captain and one Lieutenant are regularly ordained Elders, and the other Lieutenant a local preacher in good standing, in the Methodist Church, and as such are responsible to the proper authorities for orthodox teaching and efficient work? Mostly all, if not all the members of the Band are valuable members of different churches, and subject to the ministers of the gospel, and are liable to expulsion if their conduct is improper and unchristian. We do not make the veracity of "Signs of the Times" culpable for this egregious blunder, but his ignorance.

3. He falsely asserts that "old veterans of the cross have been crowded into the back ground." On the contrary wherever the Band goes its leaders urge the importance and necessity of such being in the van in testimony and work. They are invariably held up as "grand witnesses of the power of God, grace in the heart," although equal importance is attached to the testifying of young converts. Where workers are willing, they find ample scope in the services of the Band, but when cold professors of religion will sit in the back pews and not only refuse to assist but also sneer at younger ones who are zealous in the work, and thus become stumbling blocks in the way, they are "reproved and exhorted with all long suffering," and kindly but firmly urged like the "elder to come out and make merry with their friends, "for the dead is alive again and the lost found." "Better for a man that a mill stone were hanged about his neck and that he were cast into the sea than that he should offend one of these little ones."

4. He urges the reporter to go around are search out how many have already backsliden and thinks it will tend to an early discouragement and disbandment. We don't feel free to discuss the solidity and stability of those who have professed conversion in Hallelujah Services as God alone knows how many were really converted and at whose door lies the fault of any falling away from grace; but let it suffice for me to state that if the church of God had taken into account all those who have backslidden in past ages, according to his principles, there would be no Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist, or any other denomination in existence at the present time. Only let Christians be careful to have their own souls delivered from "blood guiltiness." "Then said they unto Him, Lord, are there few that be saved? And He said unto them, Strive to enter in at the straight gate, for many, I say unto you will seek to enter in, and shall not be able,"—St. Luke xiii, 23, 24.

I pray that "Signs of the Times" may soon move from Grumbling Row up into Hallelujah Street. Thanks for your valuable space.

J. C. FERGUSON.

HEREDITARY SCROFULA.

Are you aware that in your blood the taint of scrofula has a prominent place? This is true of every one. It is liable at any time, on the slightest provocation, to develop itself in some insiduous disease. Consumption and many other diseases are outgrowths of this impurity of the blood. Shaker Blood Syrup has a wonderful power over all scrofulus troubles, as the remarkable testimonials we have received unmistakably prove.

We refer by permission to Mrs. P. Elliott, Hanover, Maine, who was cured by Shaker blood Syrup of 11 Scrofula Sores, the severity of which confined her to the house for two years. Six months, previous to taking Shaker Blood Syrup she could not get about her room without crutches. Her friend says I did not think it possible for her to live many months she was reduced to a mere skeleton. Her cure is hardly less than a miracle. There is no doubt that in Shaker Blood Syrup, we have the most remarkable medicine that has ever been produced, and a positive cure for Syphilis and Scrofula in their numerous forms.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

WHAT WILL BE THE EFFECT?

In the two previous articles we drew attention to the neglect of our representatives in properly guarding our interests in railway matters. We have demonstrated that they had a chance to get us a direct line north at a moderate outlay, which outlay would have came from the public treasury. We all know that our city has been almost bankrupted by the payments to railways which have been practically a damage to us. What we need is a direct line to the rear of the county. All are agreed upon that, and all are agreed that if we are deprived of our natural trade with the back townships Belleville may as well be walled up. Our third charge it will be remembered was this:—

> "By the direct fault of these same legislative worthies (Messrs. Bowell, Robertson and White) the public treasury has been opened to assist roads that are calculated to still further divert trade from us, and has been shut in our face against any expenditure that would help us."

The Napanee, Tamworth and Quebec R. R. receives a bonus at the instance of Mr. John White to build a line from the village of Tamworth to the village of Bridgewater, there to connect with the line into Madoc. Mr. Bowell's government proposed the grant and Mr. Alexander Robertson voted for it. The Napanee road has been voted about $160,000 in all from the public treasury to aid Napanee town in securing an entrance into our circumscribed territory, to draw another section of our trade away, and our representatives all supported it. A similar sum of $160,000 has been voted for a road that is to come into the northern townships from the county of Victoria to give the Lindsay and Peterboro' merchants a hold on these regions. Mr. Bowell's government proposed it and Messrs. Robertson and White dare not say nay. They voted for it. North Victoria sends Mr Hector Cameron to Parliament and it would seem he can get such sums better than such orthodox Tories as our members. Belleville has good reason to remember Mr. Cameron as Mr. Bickford's attorney and partner in gobbling the bonuses we voted so lavishly to the Grand Junction. He is still ready to knife us, and our men are either too weak or too willing to stand against his attacks. The large sum of $320,000 has thus been furnished from the public chest to be laid out between Napanee and Bridgewater and Snowdon and Bancroft. The direct effect of all of this expenditure is to hurt Belleville and Madoc. Part of the Napanee money was voted last year and in the meantime the county of Lennox elected Mr. Allison to oppose the Government; Hastings sends three strong Tories to Ottawa. Less money than the above sum would have secured us all we needed, all we asked. Our members, although one of them sat in the Cabinet, could not get us a dollar in our extremity. They could all vote for the prodigal outlays in other directions. They were not staggered by the thirty millions to the C. P. R. They were willing to buy Quebec support at the enormous cost asked for it. But these practical statesmen could not be expected to make any especial effort when so trivial an issue as the vital interests of their constituents, neighbors and friends presented itself. The member for West Hastings made a weak appeal for something which he evidently did not expect to get, and meekly ate his leek and we do not remember to have heard the clarion voice of Mr. John White rising in angry protest. That Rupert of debate seems to have been conveniently quiet at a critical moment.

And so the humiliating truth has once more to be admitted. Belleville has been sold into Egypt by friends of the family. Everything for us failed and everything against us seemed to have its way. How do the people of this city and county, irrespective of party, like the picture?

THE LAZIER MURDER.

The long trial of the two men, Joseph Tompsitt and George Lowder, charged at the Picton assizes with the murder of Peter Lazier, of Belleville, at Bloomfield on the night of December 21st last has resulted in a verdict of guilty with a recommendation to mercy, and sentence of death has been pronounced upon both. Many think that it was impossible to secure a fair trial for the prisoners in the county where the feeling ran so high, but as their counsel did not ask that the trial should take place elsewhere, it is to be presumed they were satisfied that the oaths of the jurymen were a sufficient protection. We cannot reconcile the verdict and the recommendation. If, as the jury found, these two men committed so unprovoked, foul and outrageous a murder as was the killing of Peter Lazier what mercy are they entitled to under the law? It seems as if it was an effort to shoulder upon the Executive the responsibility of taking the lives of the two for the one they took. But two and three men have often been hanged for the killing of one and when equally responsible are equally guilty. It is unlikely that the Minister of Justice will interfere with the sentence of the court as it is to be noted the presiding judge concurred in the verdict.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

OF COURSE NOT.

The Dominion Government treats the Provinces as if they were serfs, who should be constantly looking to Ottawa for pity for support—dependents to be patronized, encouraged or repulsed, as the party interests or the humor of the Ottawa Government dictate. Such relations between Federal and Provincial Governments can not be expected to last.—Montreal Herald.

As Age Creeps on Apace the various functions of the body grow weaker in their performance. Old people who suffer from increasing indigestion, torpidity of the liver, and constipation, should give renewed impetus to the action of the stomach, bile-secreting organ and bowels, with Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, from which aid is never sought in vain. It works wonders as a blood purifier.

Health is a duty, Disease a crime. Use Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters and be cured of all biliousness or liver trouble. 25 cents will buy a large bottle.

THE subject of mesalliances is vexing the soul of the bachelor editor of the Bobcaygeon Independent AND Midland Counties Advertiser who deplores the English system which leaves to "individual whims and fancies" the choice of a help meet. The moulder of Midland public opinion doubtless wishes to dispose of his property and retire gracefully into a government situation as he suggests the creation of an officer to be called the "Official Coupler," whose duty it would be to assort all marriageable persons with due regard to mental temperament, physical condition, social position, age, religion, and all that sort of thing." Its about time for this propagator of advanced thought to whistle "down brakes."

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

Look at the Morning Express for a Forecast of the Weather.

Prof. Carpmael, Supt. of the Toronto Observatory writes:—The Superintendents of some of the leading railroads in Canada having agreed to cooperate with me, a system of Weather Train Signals has been arranged, which, if found to work advantageously may hereafter be extended. The signals consist of discs arranged to display a sun, moon or star. The sun is to indicate fine weather, the moon to indicate local showers, and the star wet. They will be carried on morning trains leaving railroad centres, so that all those who see the morning express trains will have the forecast as far as rain is concerned. I trust that the system will be found to work satisfactorily and to be of use to the farming community. The thanks of the public are due to the railroad managers, for their kindly cooperation, without which it would have been impossible for anything to have been done in this matter.

It cures Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and Torpidity of the Liver, Constipation, and all diseases arising from Impure Blood, Female complaints, etc.

DUKE OF DUBLIN.

The report that Prince Albert Victor of Wales is to be raised to the peerage as the Duke of Dublin, says the St. James's Gazette, requires confirmation His Royal Highness's father being already Earl of Dublin by creation of her present Majesty in 1850. Such creation is not an absolute bar to a similar one. Substantially identical titles have before now been conferred on different persons; the grant of the existing earldom of Leicester in 1837, before that of 1784 had become extinct, being a case in point. The number of historical titles at the disposal of the sovereign just now is not excessive, especially if the choice be restricted as it has been in later time, to titles which have already been borne by princes of the blood. At present there is no Duke of York, no Duke of Gloucester, or of Aumerle. A few weeks will decide the question as to whether the dukedom of Albany and the earldom of Clarence be dormant or extinct. Prince Leopold was the first who ever bore the title of Earl of Clarence.

ENGLAND AND GORDON.

Vote of Censure Again Moved in the Commons.

GRAHAM TO COMMAND EXPEDITION

CAIRO, May 12.—It is stated that Zebehr Pasha has declared he will not rest until he has killed Gen. Gordon. It is rumored here that Gen. Gordon had under consideration the propriety of abandoning Khartoum on the 19th of last month.

EFFORTS TO REACH GEN. GORDON.

It is reported that efforts are now being made to send messengers to Gen. Gordon by all routes, including Massowah, with Earl Granville's message of April 24th, asking Gen. Gordon how many troops he requires, but not positively promising any assistance.

MOTION OF CENSURE.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach moved again his motion of May 2nd that the House regrets that the course of the Government has not tended to promote the success of Gen Gordon's mission and that steps to secure his personal safety have been delayed. The motion was received with prolonged cheers. Hicks-Beach sharply reviewed the course of the Government in the matter, and said England now demands that Gen. Gordon and those who trusted him shall be rescued.

MR. GLADSTONE'S DEFENCE.

Mr. Gladstone was greeted with hearty and long continued applause when he rose to reply. He denied that the Government had deserted General Gordon, and claimed the real object of the motion was to displace the Government. He referred to the official despatches to prove Gen. Gordon's security, and said the Government declines to be driven on without considering the blood honor, and treasure of England, and the Government also declines to enter upon a vast scheme of conquest to please a captious Opposition.

GEN. WOLSELEY NOT TO COMMAND.

LONDON, May 13.—The report that Gen. Wolseley would command the expedition for the relief of Khartom is denied. Gen. Graham will command the expedition if his health, which was injured during the Asia campaign, permits.

NO ESCAPE.

CAIRO, May 13.—Rumors have reached here that Gen. Gordon left Khartoum recently, and returned there in three days, finding escape impossible.

John R. Vart, Hamilton, says: 'McGregor's Speedy Cure for Dyspepsia and Indigestion is cheap at fifty times the price asked for it. I am a commercial man, and travel continually, and would no more leave home without a bottle of McGregor's Speedy Cure in my valise than I would of leaving my team at home and going on foot.' Free trial bottles at A. L. Geen's wholesale and retail Drug Store Regular Size fifty cents and one dollar.

A WARM CAMPAIGN.

'We are going to have a pretty warm campaign,' said Col. Morganhead to McFlail, the reporter.

'Yes, I think so. Who do you think will be nominated for Governor?'

'Can't tell; but I know one thing.'

'What's that?'

'I'm not a candidate, although I have received several letters from prominent men asking me to run; but to tell you the truth, I wouldn't have the office.

'I am sorry to hear that, for I have heard several men mention your name favorably, and I contemplate publishing their views.'

'Don't do it, please, for as I tell you, I wouldn't be a candidate for anything. Say,' calling the reporter, who started across the street.

'Well.'

'Go ahead and publish the interviews.'

'And say that you positively decline?'

'Yes.'

'All right.'

'Say.'

'Well.'

'Needn't say that I positively decline. Just say that I don't want the office.'

'All right.'

'Say.'

'Well.'

'Needn't say that even. I don't want to put you to any trouble. Hold on a minute. Just say that if elected I would strive to discharge my duty.'—Arkansaw Traveler.

ON THE NEXT BLOCK.

From the Detroit Free Press.

After walking up and down several times past a Gratiot avenue clothing dealer's yesterday a stranger halted and said to the man at the door:—

'Do you remember me, sir?'

'Not shur exactly, my frendt. Who vhas you?'

'I'm the man who paid you $28 for a suit of bottle-green clothes last October and inside of a week the moths ate 'em up.'

'You doan' say so!

'You bet I do, and I'm here to get satisfaction!'

'My frendt, you made a dreadful mistake. All der moths in dis store vhas in der sky-blue suits for $14. If dot man on der next block keeps his in der pottle green suits for $28 dot vhas all right. No two do peesness alike. Only, if you go up there, I vhish you to tell him for me pefore you punch his head dot if he keeps his moths in der pottle green suits he vhill soon haf to shut up shop. PROSPECTUS

—OF THE—

Belleville Electric Light Company,

To be organized and under the control of local management, for the purpose of Lighting Stores, Hotels, Halls, Public Grounds, &c.

The Company is licensed to use the Thomson-Houston System, such as has been exhibited during the last two weeks in the several stores and on Front street, and much admired for its brilliancy, pure white color, steadiness in burning, and absence of flickering and frying, so objectionable in the lights of other systems. The Thomson-Houston System is well and widely known throughout the United States. It is the only perfect automatic self-regulating system of electric arc light in existence, and has carried off the first prize whenever brought into competition with other systems in the United States.

The Belleville Electric Light Co., to be organized with a capital $10,000, divided into 1,000 shares of $10 each. The business is well established and on a paying basis. It has a newly equipped central lighting station, having ample room for the extension and enlargement of facilities for lighting as fast as required by the public demand for the light. It is provided with one 12 light dynamo, and another of 25 light capacity is now under way to provide for lights already contracted for.

STOCK SUBSCRIPTIONS.

It is now proposed to receive subscriptions for the capital stock of the Belleville Electric Light Co. The stock will be issued in shares of $10 each at par fully paid and non-assessable. The financial success of the enterprise is fully assured. People with surplus funds that are earning but 3 or 3½ per cent will find this stock a good remunerative investment with a moral certainty of receiving from 10 per cent besides large increase of the stock.

A subscription book has been opened at the office of J. Parker Thomas, from whom any further information that may be required will be cheerfully furnished.

As the late proprietor of the Douglas House has removed to other premises and called it the New Douglas House, I beg to notify the public that I have reopened the Douglas House myself, under the name of the "ROBLIN HOUSE." TYENDINAGA COUNCIL.

At the meeting of the council on Tuesday, the 29th of April at which the members were all present. The Reeve introduced a By-law for appointing a Court of Revision for the present year; also a By-law for assuming a bridge over Mud Creek in the 1st con., in lieu of one over same stream on York road to be assumed by the county. The petition of John W Berry, Peter Bell Peter Gould and Bartholomew Callery were laid over till June meeting; and that of Sam. Runnals till May meeting. It was resolved that James P. Walsh receive $7 for taking up and replacing a bridge between lots 25 and 26, 4th con., and that the bill of H. P. Redner for medical attendance $1 50 be paid. The bill of the clerk, for postage $3 08 was ordered to be paid. It was resolved that P. W. Meagher receive for nursing, medical attendance and burial of John Green $10; and the widow Cooper, poor and destitute, $4. A motion that James Jordon receive $25 for expense of a survey between the 220 and 80 acre ranges of lots in the 4th con. was defeated by an amendment that the $25 be not paid Mr. Jordon for said survey as the road allowance between said ranges of lots was not established by such survey. The bill of John Taylor for wood, $4, was ordered to be paid. Resolved that the Road Surveyor's salary for this year be $75, and that John C. Meagher, assessor, receive $75 on his salary. The poor on the list were ordered to be paid their quarterly allowance. The by-laws introduced by the Reeve were read in committee and approved. Council adjourned till last Tuesday in May.

Burke, rector, and Rev. E. W. Ford, Bogart. There was a large congregation present. The Bishop delivered the usual admonition to the persons presenting themselves, several of whom were pupils from the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, after which they were duly confirmed by the laying on of hands. He besought them to ever cherish the same friendly spirit with God and continue to grow in grace more and more until they entered the kingdom of glory. His address was an admirable one and the ceremony very impressive. There were twenty confirmed in all—sixteen males and four females. Of this number nine were from the Institute.

A NICE INTRODUCTION

Between Billy Edwards and Charley Mitchell.

SLUGGING IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 12.—Between 7,000 and 8000 persons witnessed a glove fight here this evening between Charles Mitchell and Billy Edwards. The latter appeared over trained. Mitchell was the picture of health and weighed 151. Edwards weighs 186. The men had never seen each other before and responded promptly to "time." After preliminary sparring, Edwards led off with a blow at Mitchell's body, which did not take full effect, but set the mob howling. Edwards hit again with his left, but was neatly stopped and received a counter in the head. He danced off with Mitchell after him, when he fell under the ropes in the corner. While he was on his knees Mitchell hit him twice in the face. The crowd yelled foul and Capt. Williams insisted upon a rest.

At the opening of the second round Edwards hit a short with his left and Mitchell returned a hard right hander on his opponent's face. Mitchell followed up with a crusher with his right, and Edwards went down under it. Edwards received a couple of additional taps going down each time, but getting in a good one on Mitchell's forehead. After this Edwards seemed to lose his grip, and Mitchell went for him right and left, knocking him down four times within as many minutes. Capt. Williams then interposed and separated the men in spite of the unwillingness manifested by Mitchell to obey his orders.

For the third round Edwards came up smiling but very groggy. He was promptly floored with Mitchell with a right-hander.

Capt. Williams then stopped the fight and the match was declared a draw. Edwards was completely used up and could scarcely stand. Mitchell showed a great improvement in style since his last exhibition here and is anxious to meet Sullivan again.

SPOKES FROM THE WHEEL.

Mark Twain is learning to ride a bicycle. Wanderers Bicycle Club of Toronto has now 101 active members.

Prizes senior and junior, will be offered in bicycle races at the next central fair in Kingston.

The best "one day" record in Canada was made by a member who covered the distance from Toronto to Belleville (116 miles) in less than 15 hours actual riding.

A large contingent of Wheelmen were in the Bicycle Park last evening. One rider was thrown from his wheel by a little girl running out suddenly on the track and the wonder is the child escaped injury. The little ones will be closely looked after in future. It is in contemplation to light the park by electric light.

For fifteen years the city weigher of Salema has suffered with paralysis in both legs, making it impossible for him to walk unaided or to lift his legs, and, even with the aid of a crutch it was exceedingly hard to drag himself along. As an experiment, he was advised to try tricycling. Incredible as it may seem, he became a tricyclist, and can propel his machine as well as many who have the perfect use of their legs. He has sufficient strength to push down upon the pedals, and as one pedal goes down the other pedal lifts the other leg.

Sir Sharles Dilke prophesies that cycling will be the "future diversion" of all large towns. Whatever may be its future says the Pall Mall Gazette, cycling certainly has already obtained a recognized place among English institutions. Its economic value is widely recognized; and while the French Government is proposing to mount rural postmen on tricycles, Mr. Whiteley has already adopted that method for distributing his goods. The Queen, it appears, "has been for some time a tricyclist, and her children and grandchildren are cyclists," and the lost prodigy of the British crown—the Khedive Tewfik—is we may add, a tricyclist also, and, what is more, cycling touches political interests at home.

At the meeting of those interested in the formation of a lacrosse club last night the attendance was so small the promoters decided to adjourn until Wednesday (tomorrow) evening. There ought to be a good meeting.

CHRISTANS MASSACRED.

DUBLIN, May 12.—On May 4th a band of natives attacked a congregation of worshippers at the Norwegian mission at Inhlabatki. Three persons were killed. Though the missionaries were spared the marauders returned at night and killed all the Christians they could find.

The "[illegible]" [illegible] is often experienced in [illegible] of [illegible] blood and [illegible]. Ayer's Sarsaparilla feeds and enriches the blood, increases the appetite, and promotes digestion of the food and the assimilation of its strengthening qualities. The system being thus invigorated, the feeling rapidly gives way to a grateful sense of strength and energy.

CRUSHED BY THE CARS.

A little son of John Sparks, Toronto, had his foot crushed by a G. T. R. Express train some time ago. Two doctors attended him without benefit, and amputation was proposed, but Hagyard's Yellow Oil was tried, which gave prompt relief and effected a speedy cure even removing all stiffness of the joint.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

HALLELUJAH ONCE MORE.

SIR:—My attention was called last evening to a couple of articles published in your paper entitled 'Letters to the Editor.' The writer of those articles subscribed himself 'Signs of the Times.' He might better have written an article he would not be ashamed to sign his proper name to, thereby saving his cowardice such conspicuity. He might just as well have given his name for the opinion prevails in Canifton pretty generally that the Mr. S.O.T.T. is no less a person than one of the resident ministers. I am also satisfied that this is a correct idea. The reason why I wish to reply to the article is because I have taken part in the meetings your correspondent so stoutly condemns. If 'Signs of the Times' is the person I think he is he never favored us with his presence at any of our meetings that I know of, but took an outside position with the rest of the fault finders, so the public may easily judge how much he knew of the way the meetings were conducted. Why he finds fault with the term 'Hallelujah' is more than I can account for. It is but a short (original) way of saying, 'Praise ye the Lord.' He says the common use of the term by boys &c. on the streets should exclude it from use for a half century by intelligent persons. This seems like very poor logic. The same argument would exclude God, Christ, and Saviour from use, because profane persons use them on the streets. He challenges us of being self appointed. Well let us look at the following scriptures and see if the Hallelujah Band have no Divine authority on their side which will justify them in their meetings:—Rev. 22—17; John 7—37; Isaiah 55—1; Mark 9—38; also the woman who met the Saviour at the well and went into the city, and invited its citizens to Christ without church authority. Will Mr. Signs of the Times please tell us wherein Christ disapproved of her invitations to the people?

We are glad that our Judge is not so fallible and uncharitable as our critics. Please note Matt. 5, 11—12. Our idea of characteristics of a true revival is this: "The power of God manifested in the saving of souls." We find no place in the word of God condemning the method of the Hallelujah Band nor approving of the method of any particular denominational church. [illegible] to preach the gospel, and [illegible] blessed the labourers of women as well as those of men. The apostle Paul was not particular to formality and so don't he is a good authority as Mr. Signs of the Times. 1st Cor. 9—22 'To the weak became I as weak, that I might gain the weak: I am made all things to all men that I might by all means gain some.' Surely Mr. Signs of the Times ought to know that all methods and music were new ones. If his logic be carried out strictly we would have to discard every thing that is new. What a fearful state of affairs this would entail. The next thing we find Mr. Signs of the Times judging our motives. My advice to our friend is to [illegible] deluded Hallelujah Band. The next time he preaches let him please take the following text: 1st Cor. xiii. 1. We wish to inform him kindly that the Hallelujah Band scarcely, if ever, conducts a meeting without reading the scriptures, which is not the case hardly ever in prayer class, or fellowship meeting in the church, but ought to be. We also think that the Hallelujah Band are about as reliable as preachers who argue that horses have souls as well as men. Why should not the tambourine be as acceptable to God as the rams horn by which the walls of Jericho were demolished?

Mr. Signs of the Times in your next article about the Hallelujah Band be sure and let your inferences be strictly on the side of truth, and speak kindly to the 'benighted ones' and pray for us more, for the 'fervent prayer of the faithful availeth much.' Please don't forget that the Hallelujah Band have bibles and read them sometimes, at least. Also in your next article write close enough to God's word to clinch your arguments with scriptures as you go along. Don't act the part of an infidel by [illegible] with everything and giving no advice how to get the Hallelujah Band in the right way. Please give us the scripture advice of the matter. In closing I would thank the editor, kindly, for the space he has given this article, also would advise Mr. Sign of the Times to assume another name if he is ashamed of his own.

No one should be without it. I have tried it with horses in cases of cuts, wounds, &c., and I think it equally as good for horse as for man.

PARNELL'S RETURN.

LONDON, May 12.—Mr. Parnell returned to London this evening just in time to hear Mr. Gladstone's speech in the House of Commons. He looks tired and worn after his hurried journey to France to attend the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Tompson, who died suddenly at Nice on the 5th inst.

The Weather Prophet looks for Spring this month. The wise man looks for a blood purifier that will not injure his system; he can find what he wants in Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters, the greatest of all blood purifiers. In large bottles at 50 cents.

FACT STRANGER THAN FICTION.

It is a fact that Alonzo Howe, of Tweed, had a fever sore that afflicted him for thirty-five years. Six bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters cured him, which he considers almost a miracle. It was but the natural result of the remedy restoring pure blood and perfect secretion.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the best medicine that can be employed to correct irregularities of the stomach and bowels. Gentle, yet thorough, in their action, they cure constipation, stimulate the digestive organs and the appetite, and cleanse, build up, and strengthen the system.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues, healed and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all this. Try it. Every bottle warranted.

ONLY.

Only a heart to offer,
  Red with the flush of love;
Only a life to proffer,
  A faith that naught may move.

Only a few ambitions,
  Crowned with a dream of gold;
Only the laboured treasurer,
  The future's hand may hold.

Only a mind where duty
  Shrinks not, nor is afraid;
Only the inner beauty
  For which great Plato prayed.

These are the gifts I offer;
  These are the gifts I claim—
Wealth in our mutual coffer,
  Grace for our mutual name.

DANGER TRAPS.

Neglected colds are the fatal traps that ensnare many a victim beyond possibility of rescue. Take a cold or cough in time and it is easily conquered by that safe and pleasant remedy Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Asthma, Bronchitis and pulmonary complaints generally soon yield to its healing influence.

Sir Theodore Martin, the biographer of the Prince Consort, and the literary man-of-all work of the Queen, is collecting material for a life of the late Duke of Albany.

A FAVORITE EVERYWHERE.

Wherever introduced Hagyard's Yellow Oil finds friends, it is the old reliable household remedy for external and internal use in all aches, pains lameness, and soreness of the flesh. A. L. Geen, a prominent druggist of Belleville, says: "It is a great favorite here, and has good sale."

Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Whenever the blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of any prevailing epedemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished power should be these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce all erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, biliousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. The fruit season is especially prone to produce irritation of the bowels and disorder of the digestive organs; both of which dangerous conditions can be completely removed by Holloway's corrective medicines.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally and the Ointment rubbed externally are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is pidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, surest. THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS,

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. I am satisfied the medicine is not injurious and will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical profession stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of these happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

THROUGH SNOW AND SUNSHINE:

OR

TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

'Could it have been set on fire!' said Mary.

'That cannot be; I have no enemy. It must have been accidental, and all was safe when I retired, and I was the last up on the premises.'

'It is a sad, cruel blow,' sighed Mary; and to fall at a season of peace and good-will.'

'Aye, my darling; it was but yesterday I resolved, upon your father's return, to our union, but this fire has not only destroyed the house to which I hoped to convey my bride but has blackened my prospects of winning you at his hands.'

'Think it not, Harry, My father respects you even were it otherwise, my love is yours, dear Harry, and when you claim my hand I will give it, let come what may.'

'Bless you for that assurance, Mary, Certain of your love, I defy all misfortune.'

He raised her hand to his lips, as a slow cavalcade wound out of the lane into the space before the farm.

First came Squire Danvers, the justice of the peace, followed by two parish officers one of them carried a gun, and four rustics carrying between them the blood-stained and saturated body of Tim the carter after whom followed Dolly weeping passionately.

'Great Heavens! what is this?' cried the farmer. 'What fresh trouble has come into this quiet village?'

The cvalcade paused and Danvers motioned them to lay the body of the ground.

Then placing his hands on the shoulder of the young farmer he said—

'Harry Fairfield, you know this man?'

'Merciful heavens!' cried Harry! it is my carter—Tim.'

When did you see him last?'

But a short time before I retired last night. He drank too much and remained till the last, and I had to appear angry with him to rouse him to get home.'

'You were the last that saw him here. Look at this gun.'

The officer held it before him.

It is mine; there is my name on the stock, It is covered with blood! What means this?,

While Harry was looking at the gun, Brierley and Josiah Nib joined the throng.

'Be careful,' whispered Brierley to his companion; 'a word—a look may betray you.'

'How will it end?' whispered Nib.

'In a rope around your neck, fool, unless you are bold,'

'When was this gun in your possession?' asked the justice.

'When? Why, late last night when I loaded it and placed it behind the kitchen door.'

'Harry Fairfield said the justice, sternly, 'this gun, with the bloodstains on its stock, preserved by the manner in which it lay, half covered by the carter's smock was found beside the murdered body of this poor man in yonder lane. He was the last here, you were the last who saw the gun; the man is found murdered; the weapon is yours, and I must do my duty.

'What—what do your words convey?' cried Mary.

'That at the present moment, suspicion points to Harry Fairfield.'

'No, no!' cried Mary, clinging to her lover; 'this cannot be. He a murderer? Impossible!'

'I a murderer!' cried Harry, 'Good Heaven! who would think me guilty of such a crime?'

'As well might you accuse him of setting fire to his farm to obtain the insurance, because he only effected it a few weeks before it was burned down,' said Brierley, in pointed tone. 'Why, one suspicion is as good as another, were it not that both are so preposterous.'

'And the man who would commit one crime would not hesitate at the other,' said Josiah. 'But then Harry Fairfield is not that man; he is too good, too honest too respectable.'

'Too good, too noble!' cried Mary. No, never would he be guilty of such a deed; my soul upon it never by thought was he guilty of such a crime.'

'No, not even in thought,' said Harry.

'Harry Fairfield,' said the squire, it is not for me to judge but simply to do my duty. A murder has been committed; the weapon by which the deed was perpetrated, was yours, and was in your possession a short time before. Hence suspicion points to you.

'Why not order the officers to search yonder ruins for proofs that he set fire to his farm?' sneered Brierley. 'One crime is just as likely as the other.'

And it was with a thrill of joy the villain perceived that his words told, for the officers hurried a way among the ruins.

'Oh, Mary, Mary!' cried Harry, 'do not believe me guilty?'

'Believe you guilty, Harry? sooner would I believe my own hand struck the blow that deprived the poor wretch of life. But bear up, Harry! Heaven will not allow an innocent man to suffer, but will, ere long, unmask the assassin. You are innocent, I know it.'

'Heaven bless you, my dear one! Yes Heaven will shield me, and prove me as guiltless of this crime as a babe unborn.'

And he clasped the poor girl to his bosom as she buried her head on his shoulder.

'We don't see anything about the place except this coat, sir,' said the officer, holding up the garment. 'It was lying just under the hedge there, opposite the barn, where the fire evidently first commenced. It's the farmer's coat—the one he wore yesterday.'

Every ... who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such drafts upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate degree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrop and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never ... properly and judiciously administered. IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England In ... way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M'f'g Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable temperaments. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of dyspepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world Price 25 cents a bottle.

ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL.

The VOLTAIC BELT Co., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above.—N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial allowed.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the error and indiscretion of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a receipt, that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self addressed envelope to the Rev. JOSEPH T. INMAN Station D, New York City. d&w

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.
A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles.
E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, [illegible] 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE G. T. R. AND WAGES.

G. T. R. Engineer sends a communication which is altogether too long for publication. He deals with the cry raised against the recent reduction of wages and points out that two years ago when times were good the company conceded an advance of wages along the entire line. Now that prosperous times have been replaced by depression and the order of the day is a general curtailment of expenses from which railway men, in common with others, share. The Grand Trunk reduction circular did not apply to those who were not benefitted by the advance in 1882 nor to the Midland Division. In 1882 when Mr. Hickson asked a committee of Locomotive Engineers if, when depression came, they would submit to a reduction if they were advanced, they gave him to understand that they would. "G. T. R. Engineer" discusses the question is Mr. Hickson now justified in asking them to share the very considerable advance of 1882 with the Company, now that the revenue has decreased and the country is in a depressed condition, and answers that he is justified and this is the opinion of the committee of Engineers. The correspondent continues: The men at once notified their committee to offer Mr. Hickson a reduction of five per cent. on the wages of all engineers on the main line of G.T.R. for six months to take effect 1st of April. Now that we have done as we think our duty, and acted honorable in fulfilling our agreement we are assailed on all sides with taunts "for caving in," and being "a cowardly crowd," thus causing others to be reduced who otherwise would not have been, and that, if we had said no we won't give in, the company would not have forced it, our organization was so strong, they would not fight us. Now, I will say right here, we do our own business without the assistance of outsiders, and we consider no one's business but our own. Our motto is "Sobriety, Truth, Justice, and Morality." Our rule "Do unto others as ye would they should do unto you, and so fulfil the law." When our officials make an agreement with us we expect them to act by it, and shall do likewise, regardless of sneers and taunts of others and we shall ever endeavor to act our part honorably. In the above lies the great secrets of the success of the organization of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and so long as an honorable course is pursued, and we are met frankly and friendly by the officers of railways no difficulty will be experienced in coming to an amicable settlement of all disputes."

OBITUARY.

Died at her father's residence, near Grafton, on the morning of Saturday, April 26th, 1884, Susie, youngest daughter of Samuel Massey, aged 25 years 6 months and 25 days. Deceased was born at the present family residence, on Oct. 1st 1858. She was happily converted to God at about the age of thirteen, at a camp meeting, held near the Massey Church, and from that time till her eyes opened upon the beatitudes of "the land beyond the skies," her personal experience of salvation was an undoubted fact, and her life was full of goodness.

She received her early education at the country school, near home, after which she attended Alexandra College and Cobourg Collegiate Institute. After having attended the County Model School she began teaching a few miles from home. She was truly earnest in her work and was dearly beloved by her pupils.

Being attacked by congestion of the lungs, she returned to her father's roof, never again to leave it until borne therefrom by sorrowing friends. She lingered for two weeks, continually growing worse, until about eight o'clock on the morning of the 26th, when, surrounded by the members of the family, and the robins singing at the window, and the sun shining in heavenly splendor upon her dying bed, her spirit passed to the God who gave it. Her remains were interred in the cemetery within sight of her home, and there within the grave, which overlooks the waters of Lake Ontario, lies the body of one who was a dutiful daughter, a loving sister, and a faithful friend. There are few qualities either intellectual, social or spiritual which were not eminently cultivated during her brief stay here. We have never known a lady possessed of a more amiable spirit. These characteristics attracted around her a very large circle of friends whose deepest feelings were abundantly manifest when the mystic tie was broken by the ruthless hand of death.

Gone from our gaze the dear one we loved,
To bloom far more fair in gardens above;
To dwell there with angels in heavenly light,
Where pain never comes the dear one to blight.

Gone from our side in Heaven to dwell,
Where never is breathed the sad word farewell;
Adieu to the ear is a sound never heard,
Never is whispered the sad, parting word.

Gone from our sight to sleep 'neath the rod,
Her spirit to dwell with the angels of God;
Ah! Yes she has crossed death's mystic tide
Rejoicing, and safe to the further side.

A SCHOOL MATE.

H. A. McLaughlin, Norland, writes: "I am sold out of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. It sells well, and I find in every instance it has proven satisfactory. I have reason to believe it the best preparation of the kind in the market." It cures Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and Torpidity of the Liver, Constipation, and all diseases arising from Impure Blood, Female complaints, etc.

HEREDITARY SCROFULA.

Are you aware that in your blood the taint of scrofula has a prominent place? This is true of every one. It is liable at any time, on the slightest provocation, to develop itself in some insidious disease. Consumption and many other diseases are outgrowths of this impurity of the blood. Shaker Blood Syrup has a wonderful power over all scrofulous troubles, as the remarkable testimonials we have received unmistakably prove.

We refer by permission to Mrs. P. Elliott, Hanover, Maine, who was cured by Shaker Blood Syrup of 11 Scrofula Sores, the severity of which confined her to the house for two years. Six months, previous to taking Shaker Blood Syrup, she could not get about her room without crutches. Her friend says I did not think it possible for her to live many months she was reduced to a mere skeleton. Her cure is hardly less than a miracle. There is no doubt that in Shaker Blood Syrup, we have the most remarkable medicine that has ever been produced, and a positive cure for Syphilis and Scrofula in their numerous forms.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the waste by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

The reason why "Nonesuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless Second, It saves more than half the labor. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all Druggists.

Belleville Electric Light Company,

To be organized and under the control of local management, for the purpose of Lighting Stores, Hotels, Halls, Public Grounds, &c.

The Company is licensed to use the Thomson-Houston System, such as has been exhibited during the last two weeks in the several stores and on Front street, and much admired for its brilliancy, pure white color, steadiness in burning, and absence of flickering and frying, so objectionable in the lights of other systems. The Thomson-Houston System is well and widely known throughout the United States. It is the only perfect automatic self-regulating system of electric arc light in existence, and has carried off the first prize whenever brought into competition with other systems in the United States.

The Belleville Electric Light Co., to be organized with a capital $10000, divided into 1,000 shares of $10 each. The business is well established and on a paying basis. It has a newly equipped central lighting station, having ample room for the extension and enlargement of facilities for lighting as fast as required by the public demand for the light. It is provided with one 12 light dynamo and another of 25 light capacity is now under way to provide for lights already contracted for.

STOCK SUBSCRIPTIONS.

It is now proposed to receive subscriptions for the capital stock of the Belleville Electric Light Co. The stock will be issued in shares of $10 each at par fully paid and non-assessable. The financial success of the enterprise is fully assured. People with surplus funds that are earning but 3 or 3½ per cent will find this stock a good remunerative investment with a moral certainty of receiving from 10 per cent besides large increase of the stock.

A subscription book has been opened at the office of J. Parker Thomas, from whom any further information that may be required will be cheerfully furnished.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

WHAT WILL BE THE EFFECT?

The last accusation against our public servants is by no means the least of the list. There is no doubt it is a matter which will be found to do us a lasting and great injury:—

> Public money to the extent of over one million of dollars is being wasted in digging a canal in the wrong place to connect the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario, a proceeding that is quite certain to deprive Belleville of a large share of her marine trade now existing, and to effectually kill any chance of her becoming a Lake Ontario port.

We will state the Murray canal business in a few words. By one route a canal can be made from deep water in the Bay of Quinte to deep water in Weller's Bay by a cutting of less than two miles. The south end will be in a magnificent harbor, the finest on the lake, perfectly sheltered, easy of access in any bad wind and in every way desirable. By the other the cutting will be over six miles into a bad harbor, requiring very expensive digging to make it at all fit for traffic, and out of which vessels bound for Lake Ontario would have to be towed if quick despatch was needed. By one route the towage of outgoing vessels would be say two miles, by the other eleven. With such facts, and they are facts, who would think that any sane man would hesitate as to the choice. And yet what are the facts? The government of the Dominion of Canada, in defiance of the opinion of the Chief Engineer, in defiance of nature, of the requirements of trade, of the protests of experienced marine men are deliberately building the long way around. The two motives that were the real course of this selection need not be here specified. They are on every man's tongue who understands the subject. They would not be more public if painted upon every fence post along the dreary bay and quicksand between Dead Creek and Brighton. What we are concerned about is that so vast a sum as twelve or thirteen hundred thousand dollars should be thus worthlessly thrown away. Who believes for a moment that any vessel will deliberately undertake eleven miles each way of in and out towage to carry cargoes to Belleville from Lake Ontario. She will rather put into Weller's Bay, and unload at the docks there. The very people who were to be so punished by the Presqu'Ile route will benefit by the public folly. They will stop freight at their landing which would naturally be seeking Belleville, and that would certainly come here if the canal was short and direct. And let it be seriously remembered that if a large port is thus built up at Weller's Bay, as there will be and we are hemmed in by the Chinese policy now being pursued, we will gradually lose all our grain and lumber shipments by water.

It is the old, old story over again but in more serious form than before. The protests of our own people have not been heeded. Even so good a Tory as Mr. George D. Dickson once undertook to talk a little common sense to his colleagues in the Council and was almost read out of the party therefor. He has perhaps concluded since, that humbug and folly must have their period and that he had better stand mutely by while the fit is on.

We have endeavored to give the readers of THE ONTARIO the facts as they exist. We have "naught extenuated and naught set down in malice." We have told the humiliating story as we believe it presents itself to every thinking man in the city. We have endeavored to fix the responsibility where it chiefly belongs. But it does not altogether attach to the members who misrepresent the three ridings of this county. It is partly the bad effect of too much partizanship and too little stamina among our citizens. If our representatives knew that we could not be trifled with without resenting it they would be more alive to their first duty. We should teach them unmistakably that public interest must be superior to private malice. We must show them that if they would be wise builders for the future they will need to have a wider horizon than the bounds of their own little spitefulness. Every blow given for revenge has a rebound. In this case the public course of the Minister of Customs has been framed to hurt people who now appear to have been actually benefitted by his every bad move. He and his colleagues in the representation of Hastings were trustees and guardians of the public interest. They seem to have only succeeded in proving false to their trust.

SHOT AT BY BURGLARS.

Narrow escape of a Shannonville Hotel Keeper.

SHANNONVILLE, May 14.—At an early hour this morning, about two o'clock, burglars broke open Mr. Hiram Holden's store here and were attempting to open the vault with crowbars when the inmates of the house were aroused. Mr. Holden hurriedly ran to the top of the stairs and fired which had the effect of scaring away the thieves. There were two in number. They afterwards effected an entrance into James Doman's hotel at the Grand Trunk depot and while searching about the house found his pants in his room which they made off with, one of them retreating through the window. As the landlord was coming down stairs with a lamp in his hand one of the scoundrels turned and fired. The ball struck the lamp, smashing it to atoms. The pants were found in the yard, minus a small amount of silver in one of the pockets.

This is the second time within a month Mr. Holden's place has been entered at night by burglars.

MARRYING A MARRIED MAN.

A Once Famous Beauty Convicted of Bigamy.

TWO FULL GROWN FOOLS AND THEIR LETTERS.

A telegram from New York says: Anna E. Hawes was convicted of bigamy in Brooklyn yesterday. She married Nathan L. Hawes knowing he had a wife living. Hawes is under sentence for the same crime. Mrs. Hawes is about 35 years of age, dresses very attractively, and is the possessor of several aliases, having been known as Anna Whitmore, Ann Wellingford, Anna Tiffany, Anna Collier, Anna Redheffer and Anna Gentilee. In court she wore brown kid gloves, a beaded and lace hat, brocaded silk basque, a black silk dress and solitaire diamond ear-rings.

Mrs. Cecelia Hawes, the first wife of Nathan L. H. Hawes, testified that her marriage took place on July 11th, 1869. She discovered a letter from prisoner to her husband, and then wrote prisoner a note in which she made these odd statements: 'What does Mr. Hawes represent himself to be—married or single? I have made up my mind to write and tell you that he is married and living with his wife, and always has, since he was married. We have been married nearly fifteen years, and the most of our trouble has been about his going with other women. You are not the first one he has gone with. There are three to my knowledge beside you. I have lived it down so far, as I have always had too much pride to expose things to the public, but now things are going too far, I can stand it no longer. He has told me more than once that you had offered him $10,000 to leave the country with you. If that is the case you must certainly know that he is a married man. I saw one of your letters to him, but kept it to myself for a long while. It was a funny letter for a married man to receive from any one beside his wife.' The following day the accused called on Mrs. Hawes, who produced her marriage certificate and showed it to her; the prisoner, she said, looked at it and went away. Forty-eight letters written by Hawes to the accused were read. In one letter he called the prisoner "My own darling baby," and says, "Oh, baby, God alone knows how hard it is for me to part from you. My own love believe your boy when he tells you that the time shall be short until he can call you his own. I know my sweet Annie would not harm her baby if she knew it. Baby, I leave my love in your hands, and God forbid that you should be anything but the sweet, gentle, loving, true-hearted little woman I have always found you. My darling, I may not be very outspoken in my love, but if you could look into my heart you would be content."

LU'S LOVING LETTERS.

NEW YORK, Oct 12, 1883.

My Own Precious Darling wife,—Oh, how I only long to take you in my arms and kiss away all those sorrowful tears, that go to my heart like a knife! They make your boy feel so sad. The happiest moments of my life are with my sweet, loving pet, who is so bright and sparkling. Your little letter, though short, is very sweet, and, though few in words, contains volumes in sweet meaning, and I thank you from my heart, darling. The time will be short, darling, when all will be well, and I will follow the promptings of my heart and fly to your gentle arms and lay my head upon your shoulder and feel at rest. And oh, what a sweet rest it will be! With a sweet kiss and all the love of a heart that is already your own, I am, and always will be, your loving, hubby and true boy.

LU.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13, 1883.

My Darling Baby Love—Dear Annie,—Your boy has so much to do that he does not know what he is about. Can his precious baby come down to-day about 4½ to see him? My own precious one you are remembered by Lu and you will forgive him for this short little note. Won't you, pet? With a kiss for my baby, I am her own dear little hubby and her boy.

LU.

Hawes in his cross examination swore that he wrote most of the letters at the dictation of the accused. She schooled him as to the style and manner in which he would address her.

Mr. Hawes further testified:—I made the defendant's acquaintance on the street. I was acquainted with her about two months when she spoke about marriage. I knew her by the name of Whitemore, and she told me that she was divorced. I told her that I was already married. This was in the latter part of September. She said it would not make any difference. She threatened to go and see my wife if I did not marry her. She also made an offer to settle the matter for $25. She also said that I could go to Indiana and get a divorce. I was only married to this woman once, according to my recollection. The marriage ceremony, I understand, was performed on two other occasions, when I did not know what I was doing. I was discharged from the employment of the American Bank Note Company, but not for stealing. My wife never had trouble with me on account of other women.

MRS. WALLINGFORD'S LETTERS.

The following letters written by Mrs. Wallingford to Hawes were put in evidence:

NEW YORK, Dec. 29, 1883.

My Own Precious Darling Husband:—Your two letters of the 26th and 28th Dec. were duly received and they were the only two unkind and unwelcome letters I ever received from my baby. Darling, I think your unkind acts is more than my heart can bear without your cruel letters. You ask me to destroy all the letters I have from you. That request, darling, I cannot grant, for they are all I have from you, and those that are dear I will keep, and those two last unkind and cruel ones I will keep also. Lu, another request you ask of me and that is to keep your secrets. A secret of yours I have not, for that is something you have never entrusted with me. Darling, you speak of my love for you growing less. It is no less for you now than it ever was, but your unkind acts and your cruel letters to me have made my confidence grow less. But, Darling, I hope you will see the day that you will change and be your own true self again.

Lu, my darling, your cruel acts and letters are more than I can stand. God above knows, Lu, that I have never done anything to cause your coldness and unkindness toward me. But why speak of this now to one who has changed as you, Lu? Darling Lu, how often have I told you while you were true, good and kind to me, that you could thoroughly depend on me for anything that was in my power? But, darling, it seems that you neither care for my kindness, nor desire my confidence. Now, darling, what on earth do you wish me to do?

Darling with many kisses I remain your own devoted little wife,

ANNA.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31, 1883.

To My Own Precious Darling Husband,—Darling, you say I have never written you a kind letter, but, precious one, you were so kind and loving yesterday, that it has left me more happy than ever before in my life, and, darling, when I think of to-day being the last day that you are to be away from me, it seems to me, darling, I cannot wait until to-morrow to come. But wait for my sweet, darling little husband to come—wait? Yes, with pleasure until to-morrow, when my darling sweet husband will be with me until the immutable laws of time and nature are fulfilled and either you or I are gathered to our fathers. Then, and not until then, I hope we will be inseperable.

This day, darling, is not only the last you will be away from me, but the last of the old year, and I sincerely trust the last of all your trouble and vexation, and may the new year dawn upon you more propitiously than ever before and continue throughout the year, bright, prosperous, and free from all care and trouble, and with me to share your joys and sorrows.

And that there may never again come over you a cloud of sorrow, of pain, or any affliction, and I know, darling one, with me, the cloud, should it gather, will be dispersed by my loving arms and words. And, darling, when you do return to my loving arms you will have no occasion to find fault with your loving Annie, who will be true, and live only for her precious baby, and then I know he will fully return his loving gifts and live the same for his loving and devoted little wife. Accept one more kiss from your own trusting, loving little wife.

ANNIE.

To my own sweet love and precious darling husband. Good-by for a little longer.

FIVE YEARS IN PRISON.

After a brief absence, the jury returned with a verdict of guilty. Mrs. Wallingford exhibited no emotion when the verdict was rendered, but on her return to the jail she broke down and wept bitterly. She will be sentenced next week. This is the first conviction under the new statute. The extreme penalty is five years in prison.

Among Misses Wallingford's aliases are Whitmore, Cellier, Tiffany, Gentiles, and Radheiffer. She says she is only 38 years old. She formerly represented herself as the daughter of a Southern planter, whose fortune, she said, had been swept away during the rebellion, and for years she was a claimant of $300,000 or more from the national government. She has been engaged in almost constant litigation, but this is believed to be the first occasion that she has been behind prison bars.

COMPARED TO PONTIUS PILATE.

LONDON, May 13.—A despatch received from Karosko at Cairo says that unless reinforcements are sent immediately the garrison will be compelled to surrender. Fourteen thousand troops at Assouan will be ordered to Karosko.

In the commons to-day in the debate on the Hicks Beach motion of censure, Henry Chaplin, conservative, pronounced the conduct of the Government in relation to Gordon as "an undying disgrace and dishonor to England."

Randolph Churchill made a bitter attack upon the Government's policy. He believed that all England would say "Aye" to the question whether Gordon should be rescued. Gladstone would either have to submit to this demand or resign.

Forster, liberal, made a vehement speech attacking the policy of the Government. He was frequently interrupted by vociferous cheers.

Hartington defended the Government. He denied it was neglecting to take steps to secure the safety of Gordon, and said an expedition to crush El Mahdi was beyond the responsibility of the Government.

Randolph Churchill compared Gladstone's speech with the declaration of Pontius Pilate publicly washing his hands of the blood of a just man.

Joseph Cowen, who favors home rule for Ireland, violently attacked the Government.

The motion of censure was rejected by a vote of 303 to 275. The Parnellites voted with the minority. The small majority for the Government is looked upon as the sensation of the present session.

Thousands vainly endeavored to gain admission to the galleries of the house during the debate. The popular expression of feeling is strongly in opposition to the Government. Up to the last moment the Liberals had relied on the Irish vote. This is the fourth motion for censure that has been [illegible] on this season and shows a fast dwindling away of the Government's majority.

PETITION TO REPRIEVE GEORGE LOWDER—THE SCOTT ACT—TEMPERANCE.—THE McGILL SUICIDE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PICTON, May 14.—A petition is in circulation for the purpose of introducing the Scott Act in Picton, and a goodly number of signatures have already been attached.

I understand that a petition will shortly be issued asking for a reprieve for the prisoner Lowder, who was sentenced with Tompsitt to be hanged on the 10th of June. Considerable sympathy is expressed for him owing to his extreme youthfulness.

No cause has been assigned for the rash act, except that he has been living in a very despondent state of mind for some time, on account of his having frozen his feet and legs last winter while going home in a state of intoxication.

MECHANICS INSTITUTE.

Satisfactory Exhibit at The Annual Meeting.

PRESIDENT McLEAN'S ADDRESS.

The annual meeting of the Mechanics Institute was held last evening, the President, Rev. M. W. McLean, in the chair. There was a good attendance and the greatest satisfaction was expressed with the encouraging reports submitted. The Treasurer, Mr. W. N. Ponton, in his report showed that the cash on hand was $60.43 with all the debts paid. This is the most satisfactory report of any Institute in the Province. The election of officers resulted as follows: Rev. M. W. McLean re-elected President by acclamation; Mr. John Bell, Q.C., and Ald. G. S. Tickell, vice-Presidents; Mr. J. L. Biggar, Treasurer. Directors—Messrs. T. Ritchie, Wm. Tennant, Judge Lazier, John Taylor, J. C. Jamieson, W. N. Ponton, and P. J. M. Anderson.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The President, Rev. M. W. McLean, delivered his annual address as follows:—In presenting their eighth annual report the President is glad to be able to congratulate the members on the prosperity that has attended the Institute during the past year. Twelve months ago the balance on hand amounted to $26.93, with an account of $50 and some rent to pay. To-day the net balance is, practically, $60.43. The receipts from all sources during the past year aggregate $1,1718 63, the expenditure $1,658 20. The sum of $246 was paid for the purchase of new books for the library. The expenditure on capital account reached $380 07. The financial condition of the Institution is thus not only healthy it is highly encouraging, especially so when we consider that two years ago it was practically bankrupt, being burdened with a debt of $1,500. Its present position has not been reached without energetic and persistent effort. And it is only fair to say that it is largely owing to the timely liberality of Messrs. J. Bell, Q. C., and T. Ritchie in opening the subscription sheet with liberal subscriptions, and also to the exertions of Messrs. J. L. Biggar and W. N. Ponton, that the Institute is now not only but has also a handsome amount put to the account of capital. There are about 2,070 vols. in the library; of these there were 2,914 issues during the year, classified as follows: fiction 1,000; Miscellaneous 750; History 475; Voyages and Travels Biography 140; Science and Art 100; Religious Literature 50; Poetry and the Drama 90; Books of Reference consulted. The above figures are suggestive when we remember that a few years ago the issues of the works of fiction trebled those of all the other classes combined. During the past year the issues of miscellaneous literature and history alone, not to mention the other branches, largely exceeded those of works of fiction. The directors are glad to notice this significant evidence of a growing taste for the study of standard works, replete with instruction, stimulating to the mind, and having a refining influence on the life. It is gratifying to know that the efforts of the Institute in endeavoring to bring first class books in all branches of knowledge within the reach of those who could not otherwise benefit by them, are being more and more appreciated. The reading room, which has been well attended, contains 14 newspapers, 14 monthly and weekly periodicals and 4 quarterly magazines. With a first class library, and well furnished reading and recreation rooms, the Institute ought to attract, in a city like this, a very large addition to its membership. Our efficient Treasurer, Mr. W. N. Ponton, has found it necessary to resign a position which claimed from him a large amount of his time and labour, both of which he has cheerfully given. The directors note with thanks the generosity of the City Council in continuing as in the past the annual grant of $200. Mr. Alex. Robertson, M. P., has kindly supplied the Institute with Parliamentary papers during the past session. The hon. Senator Flint has made the handsome donation of an edition of the Encyclopedia Brittannica dated 1798. The thanks of the Institute are tendered to these gentlemen. Your directors are glad to testify to the faithful and efficient services rendered by the Secretary-Librarian, Mr. Joseph Maiden. The Board of Directors beg to recommend that the name of Senator Flint be added to the roll of the life members of the Institute.

FREE FROM DEBT,

The report was adopted.

The President was also made a life member with Senator Flint.

CABLE BREVITIES.

Mr. Bolton, Crown Solicitor at Dublin, is reported bankrupt with liabilities of £150,000.

The Emperor of Germany refuses to sanction the betrothal of Princess Victoria to Prince Alexander of Bulgaria.

A circular has been issued to Irish Nationalists in America by James Stephens, stating that as the time has arrived when a union of all Irishmen is possible, he has consented to again resume the leadership, and that a conference of Irish leaders will meet in Paris on receipt of an answer from America. He declares that before he dies Ireland shall be an independent republic.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues healed and the system invigorated. Thomas' Elixir will do all this. Try it. Every bottle warranted.

The "constantly tired-out" feeling so often experienced is the result of impoverished blood and consequent enfeebled vitality. Ayer's Sarsaparilla feeds and enriches the blood, increases the appetite and promotes digestion of the food and the assimilation of its strengthening qualities. The system being thus invigorated, the feeling rapidly changes to a grateful sense of strength and energy.

CRUSHED BY THE CARS.

A little son of John Spinks, Toronto, had his foot crushed by a G. T. R. Express train some time ago. Two doctors attended him without benefit, and amputation was proposed, but Hagyard's Yellow Oil was tried, which gave prompt relief and effected a speedy cure even removing all stiffness of the joint.

PUBLIC SCHOOL BOARD.

Mr. Francis asked to remain Longer—Temperance—Fire Drill—Home Study

A meeting of the School Board was held last night, the chairman, Mr. W. Johnston presiding. Those present were: Messrs. Wensley, Richards, Tracy, Diamond, Hayne, Moore and Macoun.

Dr. Tracy gave notice of a motion for the appointment of a truant officer.

The committee on school management recommended that the resignation of Mr. Francis, mathematical teacher of the High School, be not accepted, but that he be requested to complete his term of engagement. The committee submitted a memorial which they had drafted to the Minister of Education in compliance with the sentiment of the local temperance societies, praying for the incorporation of lessons on temperance in the new series of readers; also for a few practical lessons on hygiene in the same readers. The report was adopted.

CONDITION OF QUEEN ST.

Mr. Wensley called the attention of the Board to the dilapidated condition of Queen Street just rear of the Central School. Mr. Macoun was sorry that the repairs had not been made before, but he thought the Board of Works would attend to it now. The chairman was sure the Street Inspector would repair the road if the Board called his attention to it.

FIRE DRILL.

Dr. Tracy moved, seconded by J. Diamond, that fire drill be introduced into the public schools. The doctor thought it was necessary that the children of the Central School especially should be trained in fire drill, as in case of fire very many lives would undoubtedly be lost. The resolution was unanimously carried.

The report of the Head Master of the High School for April was submitted showing the standing of the school and the attendance to be 151.

HOME WORK.

The Chairman stated there was a growing feeling in the city that the scholars were given too much home work at nights. He said complaints had frequently been made to him by parents on this subject and he had promised to ask the Board to discuss the question.

Mr. Diamond pointed out that the prerogative of the teachers was being tampered with too much now-a-days by School Boards. He thought the night lessons now were very poorly attended to, and if the pupils wished to gain a practical education they should study, and study hard when of the proper age.

Mr. Macoun stated that very frequently parents did questions for children at home and sent them to school with them on paper the next morning without the slightest knowledge of the theory of working them. That was certainly an injury to the pupil. He advocated more practical teaching in the schools.

As the attendance of members was small it was agreed to postpone the discussion in this matter until another meeting.

LEGAL AND LITERARY CHOU-CHOU.

The members of the Legal and Literary Society assembled last evening in the dining hall of St. George's restaurant to partake of a repast to which they had been invited by the President, Mr. J. J. B. Flint. After dining sumptuously of the good things placed before them the President took the chair, and the vice Presidents, Messrs. P. J. M. Anderson and W. N. Ponton, the vice chairs, when a number of toasts were proposed, heartily drunk and ably responded to. The toasts were interspersed with songs by the President, Messrs. Bogle, Halliwell and G. H. Anderson and choruses by the Society. The remarks of the President in reply to his toast were eloquent and instructive and were closely listened to by all present for to him is largely due the success of the Society in the past. After drinking the health of the host and hostess and giving three bumpers for the President and vice-Presidents the final meeting of the Legal and Literary Society for Easter Term was brought to a close.

J. H. Eads, Shefford, P. Q., writes: "I have been troubled with liver complaint for several years, and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it with horses in cases of cuts, wounds, &c., and I think it equally as good for horse as for man.

THE RASCALLY NEVELLE.

MORE ABOUT HIS CHECKERED CAREER OF CRIME.

The longest term for which Neveille alias Newbold (who formerly lived in Belleville) can be sentenced in Ohio is 10 years, but there is also a perjury charge against him. A Toledo paper says that the woman calling herself Shaw, whom Neveille introduced there as his sister, is really one of his numerous wives, and that he married her at Paterson, N. J. He was arrested at Newark for bigamy, but escaped through the station house window. It is said that Neveille was at Plymouth, O., during the winter of '72-3, and sent to Canada for his old father and mother and had them come and live with him. After spending all their money the graceless reprobate turned the old people out in the cold in the dead of winter, with snow on the ground, and the old couple were taken in and cared for by the neighbors.

Besides his versatility in the matter of wives, Neveille seems to have been a handy man at all trades. During the past few years he has been employed as soldier, baker, preacher, railroad brakeman, book agent, dealer in patent medicines, restaurant waiter, coachman, agent for a shirt factory, and probably a dozen other occupations not included in the accounts of his checkered career thus far published.

The Weather Prophet looks for Spring this month. The wise men look for a blood purifier that will not injure his system; he can find what he wants in Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters, the greatest of all blood purifiers. In large bottles at 50 cents.

FACT STRANGER THAN FICTION.

It is a fact that Alonzo Howe, of Tweed, had a fever sore that afflicted him for thirty-five years. Six bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters cured him, which he considers almost a miracle. It was but the natural result of the remedy restoring pure blood and perfect secretion.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the best medicine that can be employed to correct irregularities of the stomach and bowels. Gentle, yet thorough, in their action, they cure constipation, stimulate the digestive organs and the appetite, and cleanse, build up, and strengthen the system

"UNCLE JOSH."

The Hamilton Times of yesterday thus thus endorses the "Joshua Whitcomb" Company which will be in Belleville next Tuesday evening. It was a large and decidedly appreciative audience that welcomed the old time favorite, Mr. Den. Thompson, in the Grand Opera House last evening. Mr. Thompson's reception was particularly hearty. Uncle Josh has lost none of his power to move and amuse his audiences, and to the moralist it might be matter for congratulation that, at a time when vicious literature and questionable plays are bidding for public endorsation and receiving ministerial and other condemnation, a wholesome pure and manly character like that of Josh possesses such a deep and continuing hold on the public mind. The crossing sweeper, Tot (Miss Wilson), was a genuine favorite, acting her part with naturalness and vivacity. The company was an evenly balanced one, all the members being thoroughly at home in their parts. An unusual feature of the evening was the performance of Den's own orchestra, the playing of which was far superior to the ordinary run of orchestral music. Mr. Nickerson's coronet solos were something remarkable, and showed him to be a complete master of his instrument.

THOUSANDS SAY SO.

Mr. W. Atkins, Girard Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctors bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by R. TEMPLETON.

It seems queer, but it is true, than the stuff that makes a man tight frequently loosens his tongue.

—The old custom requiring saleswomen in dry and fancy goods stores to stand all day long without rest or relief is being suspended by more humane rules in many of our leading business houses. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is highly praised by those who have not yet been freed from the old necessity of constant standing; and is a genuine blessing in every such case, as well as to the tired out house-keeper who must be on her feet all day.

Girls shouldn't whistle. It reveals to the young men that they have wind enough to make excellent scolds.

DANGER TRAPS.

Neglected colds are the fatal traps that ensnare many a victim beyond possibility of rescue. Take a cold or cough in time and it is easily conquered by that safe and pleasant remedy Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Asthma, Bronchitis and pulmonary complaints generally soon yield to its healing influence.

"Its a cold day when I cant catch a fly," said the base-ballist, as he gently took a ant one from his coffee.

A FAVORITE EVERYWHERE.

Wherever introduced Hagyard's Yellow Oil finds friends, it is the old reliable household remedy for external and internal use in all aches, pains, lameness, and soreness of the flesh. A. L. Geen, a prominent druggist of Belleville, says, "It is a great favorite here, and has good sale.

"Rents are high this year," murmured C. D. Rusal as he gloomily surveyed a split in the back of his coat.

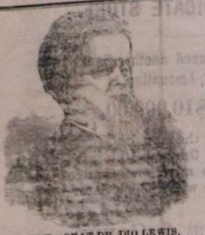
Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Whenever the blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of an prevailing epidemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished power should be these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce all erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, biliousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. The fruit season is especially prone to produce irritation of the bowels and disorder of the digestive organs; both of which dangerous conditions can be completely removed by Holloway's corrective medicines.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally and the Ointment rubbed externally are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, surest. Holloway's Pills and Ointment purify the blood, remove obstructions to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the overgorged air tubes, and render respiration free without reducing the strength irritating the nerves, or depressing the [illegible] Such as the ready means of saving [illegible] when afflicted with colds, coughs, [illegible] other complaints by which so many [illegible] iously and permanently afflicted [illegible] tries.



THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. I am satisfied the medicine is not injurious and will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical profession stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of these happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

THROUGH SNOW AND SUNSHINE: OR TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

Harry looked at the coat.

'Yes that is my coat, but how it came there I know not, since I threw it off in the kitchen when I loaded my gun.'

The justice examined the coat narrowly for any signs of bloodspots.

'There is nothing here to criminate you, farmer,' he said. 'at least on the outside. what is this in your pocket?'

He thrust his hand into the pocket and drew out the tinder box and several matches.

Brierley gave a start.

'That looks black against him,' he said. Then he added quickly—

'There is nothing there, I think, justice, to add to this ridiculous charge.'

'Silence sir!' returned the squire; 'such a remark is uncalled for, after the one you inadvertantly suffered to escape you.

'This tinder box and matches in his coat pocket and the coat discovered near the spot where the fire originated, added to the circumstances of the murder all points to the fact that Harry Fairfield, to obtain the insurance, fired his farm, was detected by his carter, and to hide one crime committed another,

'I hope I am wrong, but upon these suspicions I order him into custody.'

'Order me to prison!' cried Harry. 'Impossible! I am innocent—as Heaven is my judge, I am innocent!'

'Squire Danvers,' said Brierley, 'myself and Harry Fairfield have never been on friendly terms, but I would stake my existence on his innocence, and therefore I will offer to be his bail, even to the utmost frathing I possess.'

'Oh, William, how can I thank you?, cried Mary.

'Murder is not a bailable offence,' said the justice. Now men do your duty.'

'No, no!' cried Mary; 'He shall not go.'

'Miss Brierley, he must go to prison on suspicion of incendiary and murder.'

'Oh, Heaven! why am I tried thus?' moaned Harry. 'This heart—this heart is free from crime. Mary, friends, neighbors, you all know me; you do not believe me guilty? Here—here on the scene of my ruined home, I swear I am innocent!'

And the officers tore Mary from his hold and she fell back in a swoon into Brierley's arms, Harry Fairfield sunk upon his knees and seizing Mary's hand, looked beseechingly up into her pale, rigid face.

'Mary, Mary!' he cried 'come what may never believe me guilty.'

Brierley turned a look of devilish triumph upon Josiah, and muttered to himself—

'He struck me; I have returned the blow, The hour of my triumph has come, and she will now be mine!'

CHAPTER IV.

Three years had passed away since the incidents recorded in the last chapter.

A modern brick building has been raised on the ruins of the old farm house,

Poor Tim the carter, though at first thought to be dead, under the skillful treatment of the parish doctor, slowly recovered his health and strength; yet all the incidents that transpired between his leaving the farm on the Christmas Eve till he awoke to consciousness some weeks after, were an utter blank in his memory.

Many a time would he attempt to recall them as he sat in his little cottage with Dolly, now Mrs. Tim Whipall, put never could he get one gleam of the real facts to enter his brain, and never would, said the old doctor, unless some incidents of a similar nature should occur to arouse the dormant faculty.

Under the guise of interest and unbounded friendship for the man he hated, William Brierley did all that was possible to bring the crime of incendiarism home to harry, and after a long trial, the young farmer was found guilty, and sentenced to transportation for life.

This sentence prostrated poor Mary for many months, and threw a gloom over the village; but so kind, so attentive was William, that never for a single instant did the real truth flash across the mind of the poor girl.

There was but one that really knew him to be the villain and hypocrite he was, and that was Josiah Nib, once his slave, but now his master.

No sooner did Josiah feel himself secure by the conviction of of the innocent man, than his manner changed; and where he had pleaded and begged, he now bullied and threatened, and so played on the purse of William as to threaten to drain it to the very dregs.

Mary's father had died, as firmly believing in the guilt of Harry as his daughter did in his innocence, leaving her all his wealth, but a considerable sum annually to William for carrying on the business of the mill; at the same time expressing a wish that they should mary.

But despite many appeals so mary to bestow her hand upon him, William had failed to obtain the consent of the girl.

Thus things stood at Hazleberry three long years after the fire a [illegible] farm.

Attired in deep mourning, looking with a dreamy expression from a window of the mill toward the farm. sat Mary Brierley.

'There years,' she murmured, 'three long years, come Christmas, of misery and suffering to him. Oh, Heaven, to what a fearful doom is he consigned? Lifelong toil in a convict settlement, separated from all he loved. Oh, that I could gaze upon his face once more, but that, also, I never can. To me he is dead—dead!'

Every [illegible] who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate pegree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrop and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never of proply and judiciously adm[illegible] ered. IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England in [illegible] way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefits which are derived from the use of the treatment. FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable temperaments. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of despepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high-colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrub for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world Price 25 cents a bottle.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that such sp thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co.'s. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the error and indiscretion of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood &c., I will send a receipt, that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City. d&w

ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL.

The VOLTAIC BELT Co., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above,—N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial allowed.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

A HORRIBLE HONEYMOON.

The Bridegroom Killed by the Stepfather of His Wife.

WHEELING, W. Va., May 13.—A terrible tragedy has been committed at Petersburg, Grant county, this state. Another lynching may follow, which will be the fourth in this state within ten days. Lawrence Spillier, a farmer living back of Petersburg, had a handsome stepdaughter, to which he played the part of Bluebeard, keeping her shut up whenever practicable. The country was full of rumors concerning their relations to each other, and it became a matter of surprise when Edward Taylor, who worked for Spiller, demanded her hand in marriage. Spiller refused point blank, and threatened to kill Taylor if he found him again on the premises. On Friday night the girl disappeared, having eloped with Taylor and gone to Petersburg.

Spiller armed himself and followed, vowing death to the man if caught. At Petersburg he learned that they were married and were lodging with a man named Williams. Spiller went to Williams' house, and was told the newly married couple had retired and were asleep. Forcing his way to the room he entered, awaking Taylor with the noise he made. The bridegroom sat up in bed and Spiller levelled a revolver at him. The wife begged piteously for his life, but Spiller fired the bullet entering his heart and killing him instantly.

Spiller then attacked the wife, hammering her over the head with a revolver, and bitterly denouncing her for deserting him. Leaving her for dead he rushed from the house, mounted his horse and fled. Williams gave the alarm and an armed posse started in pursuit. Spiller had returned home, where he was arrested and taken back to jail.

The news came by messenger, and at the time he left the town the indignation and excitment were intense. Mrs. Taylor was then in a dying condition, and the Courier feared mob law in the event of her death.

THE BIG FAILURE.

300 OF THE DOMINION BOLT COMPANY THROWN OUT OF EMPLOYMENT.

TORONTO, May 15.—Mr. Livingston, Manager of the Dominion Bolt Company, Toronto, which has just failed, was interviewed by a News reporter. In the course of the conversation he was asked:—

'What are the liabilities of the company?'

'About $200,000, I think.'

'And your assets?'

'Something over $300,000. This, however, includes the land, buildings, stock and plant of the company.'

'How many employees have you had in your employ?'

'Previous to this year the company gave employment to about 300 men, and in the premises we now occupy there are plant and machinery fitted for keeping a much larger number busy.'

The following are among the principal creditors:—

Exchange Bank of Montreal, $105,000; Canada Permanent Loan Company, $40,000; Hamilton Rolling Mills Company, $40,000; Federal Bank about the same amount.

Stock to the amount of $250,000 has been subscribed and paid in full; therefore, nothing can be recovered from the shareholders; consequently, the only assets are the lands, buildings and plant.

ALCOHOL NOT SO INJURIOUS TO MEN OF LITTLE BRAINS.

Pall Mall Gazette.

Men of low intellectual endowment with a taste for strong drink derive much comfort from the result of one of the latest experiments which the French Temperance Society has been making on the alcoholization of pigs. The experiments, which were commenced in 1879 on a number of pigs of the so called Anglo-Chinese breed have been continued ever since. Each pig kept in a separate sty, but twice a day they were all fed together in an adjoining yard. Alcohol was mixed with their food and after each meal they all fell into a deep sleep, but showed no signs of excitment, except now and then a slight muscular trembling. The difference of the effect of alcohol on human beings and pigs is believed to arise from the smallness of a pig's brains, for the larger the brain the more dangerous the effect of intoxication. Hence, although the companions of St. Anthony may occasionally indulge in their taste for juniper, they are in no danger of being attacked by delirium tremens.

MARRIED ON HIS DEATHBED.

PHILADELPHIA, May 14.—John W. Sexton, prominent as a banker and broker in this city for years, died last night. The evening preceding his death a sad scene was enacted at his bedside. When it became known that dissolution was at hand, Miss Caroline C. Thorn, to whom Mr. Sexton was engaged, expressed a willingness to be left his widow. A clergyman who was present performed the sacred rite, and Miss Thorne was made a wife and widow within twenty four hours. The lady has been for some time past superintendent of the female employees of the United States mint.

Why go limping and pining about your corns, when a 25 cent bottle of Holloway's Corn Cure will remove them. Give it a trial and you will not regret it. The young hasten. ill also find in this re worth trying.

SIDNEY COUNCIL.

Robertson, M.P., a railway map of the Dominion, for the use of the municipality.—Acknowledged with thanks. Bolger, Surveyor, regarding survey on town line between Sidney and Murray.—Clerk to correspond with council. Moved by Mr. Holgate and seconded by Mr. Fenn that the petition of John Bush and others asking a reduction on billiard tables be not entertained. Yeas,—Wilmot, Fenn an Holgate. Nays,—Bleecker and Bird. The petition of Judge Fralick and others, laid over from last meeting, was taken up and granted. The clerk was instructed to advertise the Court of Revision for Monday the 26th May, at 10 o'clock a. m., Council to meet at 9 o'clock, a.m. sharp.

HEREDITARY SCROFULA.

Are you aware that in your blood the taint of scrofula has a prominent place? This is true of every one. It is liable at any time, on the slightest provocation, to develop itself in some insiduous disease. Consumption and many other diseases are outgrowths of this impurity of the blood, Shaker Blood Syrup has a wonderful power over all scrofulus troubles, as the remarkable testimonials we have received unmistakably prove.

We refer by permission to Mrs. P. Elliott, Hanover, Maine, who was cured by Shaker Blood Syrup of 11 Scrofula Sores, the severity of which confined her to the house for two years. Six months, previous to taking Shaker Blood Syrup, she could not get about her room without crutches. Her friend says I did not think it possible for her to live many months she was reduced to a mere skeleton. Her cure is hardly less than a miricle. There is no doubt that in Shaker Blood Syrup, we have the most remarkable medicine that has ever been produced, and a positive cure for Syphilis and Scrofula in their numerous forms.

The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless Second, It saves more than half the labor Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all Druggists.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

THE COUNTRY'S PROSPERITY.

Times have changed. We do not now a-days see the columns of leading Dominion Government newspaper organs largely taken up with notices of new industries attributed in every case in flaming head-lines to the Government's policy. We see no reports of Ministerial speeches in which the extraordinary prosperity of the country is set forth in grandiloquent language a la Tilley and Tupper. The Minister of Protection and Prosperity is struck dumb by the gaunt figure of Hard Times his ally of a few years ago who this financial genius undertook amid the plaudits of a depressed people to permanently strangle. Sir Leonard Tilley has probably discovered by this time that he cannot even with the assistance of a manufacturers association, work independently of the ebb and flow of the commercial tide. Winter soup kitchens rise up against him. Mechanics given "a holiday" in midwinter, workmen thrown out of employment, curtailed production of manufactures, the bankruptcy of such large manufactories as the Nova Scotia Steel Coy., the Toronto Bolt and Iron Works—industries whose existence depended entirely on the trade policy we were assured—the unprecedently large failures the distressed who swarm for civic aid in our large centres, railway reports, bank reports, Boards of Trade reports, decreasing revenue—all these are proofs of the failure of the Government's policy in averting depression and improving the condition of men. The Liberal leaders told the country at the time that what has come about would be the case but their opponents insisted that the Liberals were wrong and incompetent. We insist now that the evidences of time, undisputed facts, prove the Tories of this country to have been wrong and leave them open to the charge of being an incompetent set. And they are a reckless, improvident, and extravagant set and the country is suffering and will suffer from their administration.

At the annual meeting of the Corn Exchange, Toronto, on Tuesday the Committee of Management of this important commercial body submitted their annual report which began as follows :—

> "Your committee of management, in presenting their eighteenth annual report, exceedingly regret that it is not of a more congratulatory character. The past year has been one which is likely to be long remembered by every member of the association, as being the most unsatisfactory from a business point of view in the history of this association.

The year 1883 authoritatively declared to be THE MOST UNSATISFACTORY from a business point of view IN EIGHTEEN YEARS.

The report proceeds to say that American millers have sent large quantities of flour into this country "to the serious interference with, and loss of, business of our millers and dealers in grain and flour." All this notwithstanding the duty of fifty cents per barrel on flour imposed under the tariff.

Again, if it was 1878 instead of 1884 in which, according to a Mail report of the other day, "a meeting of carpenters and joiners was held to consider 'the present unsatisfactorg state of wages,'" what a cry would be raised against Sir Richard Cartwright! But although compelled to report in its local columns that there was "a large attendance" at this meeting there is no indignant editorial comment concluding with the invitation to place in power a Conservative Government, "the friends of the workingmen." These are only a few of the indications and proofs that when Sir Leonard Tilley sails on the 24th for England he will leave behind him depressed industries run on short time by half paid workmen with the notable and numerous exceptions of those employing at the present time no workmen at all. The times have sadly changed.

OUR NORTHERN TOWNSHIPS.

Our highly esteemed contemporary is allowing its columns to be used to bad purpose to the detriment of our northern townships. It rehashes old charges against the Government with reference to Mr. Coe and the mining lands and then applying them indiscriminately to all lands avers that "there is not now a good lot open for location or purchase for a party wishing to settle" in Faraday. This is a statement unsupported by facts, and one calculated to do much harm to that township. Little does our contemporary care, however, for the interests of the township if it can find a field for lying about the Local Government. In its issue of yesterday a correspondent in Faraday says :—"Settlers, I am glad to say, still continue to come into the municipality, and the population now exceeds a thousand." If there is no lot open fit to settle upon where are these numerous settlers locating? In the swamps? We believe Faraday has plenty of good land to offer settlers and prefer to believe the statement of the Intelligencer's correspondent that new settlers are plentiful to the editorial statement to the contrary.

SEVENTEEN BRIGANDS SHOT.

QUERRATOCO, Mexico, May 14.—Seventeen brigands, who wrecked and robbed a train on the Mexican Central Railroad last November, were shot yesterday. The Mayor of New Laredo, who was implicated, was not among the number. He will probably escape the penalty of his crime. A number of others are awaiting trial and probably a dozen more will be shot.

As Age Creepson Apace, the various functions of the body grow weaker in their performance. Old people who suffer from increasing indigestion, torpidity of the liver, and constipation, should give renewed impetus to the action of the stomach, bile-secreting organ and bowels with Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, from which aid is never sought in vain. It works wonders as a blood purifier.

A CURE FOR CUTS, SORES, ETC.

The finest healing compound under the sun is McGregor and Parker's Carbolic Cerate. There is no sore but will succumb to its wonderful healing properties. It is an invaluable dressing for scalds, festers etc. Price twenty-five cents at A. L. Geen's wholesale and retail Drug Store.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues, healed and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all his. Try it. Every bottle warranted.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A GENERAL IMPRESSION exists that slow-grown timber is the strongest, but this opinion does not, it is said, stand the test of experiments.

THE HAMILTON Times gives reasons why any Canadian young man, with the enterprise of a mouse, should keep out of the mounted police.

MR. PIPES, Premier of the Nova Scotia Government, will it is said contest Cumberland for the Dominion Parliament in the Liberal interest.

IN THE Paris Bon Marche, where 2,000 persons are said to be employed, each girl has a room to herself. There is also a drawing room with piano and so on.

IT IS the intention to appeal against Mr. Justice Cameron's decision confirming Mr. Guillett, M. P. for West Northumberland, in his seat. This is the case in which 'Rhoddy Pringle" did a little betting of a peculiar kind.

RUMOR has it that the Queen's Birthday will be chosen for the announcement of the impending Cabinet changes at Ottawa. This is the same day that Sir Charles and Sir Leonard were knighted five years ago. Is it possible that Macpherson will receive a tin-pot title also!

GOVERNMENT ESPIONAGE.

A SPY SET UPON THE MOVEMENTS OF OTTAWA CIVIL SERVANTS.

There is excitment in CivilCervice circles at Ottawa over the discovery that the Government has employed Dominion policemen in plain clothes to hang around bar rooms and other places where civil servants congregate, for the purpose of watching and reporting on their conduct. As a result three members of the civil service, whose conduct after hours was not good have been discharged, and it is said several others are to be suspended. There is great indignation over the matter among civil servants who contend that it is none of the Government's business how they employ their time outside of office hours.

A DAY'S CRIME.

SIX MURDERS REPORTED FROM THE OTHER SIDE YESTERDAY.

At Raton, N. M., Arthur Manley, a wealthy young English cattle owner, shot and killed D. B. Griffin, who had called to kill him.

DOMESTIC TRAGEDY.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Isaac C. Edreli, chemist, of this city, aged 60, who for some time has been living apart from his wife, called on her last evening and asked her to come back to him. She refused, when he drew a revolver and fired at her as she turned to leave the room, the ball taking effect in her spine. He then fired at his little son, five years old, shooting him through the head, killing him instantly. Upon reaching the street he put the pistol to his own temple and fired the third time, and fell dead on the sidewalk. The physician says Mrs. Edreli has a chance of recovery. She was shot very much in the manner which President Garfield was wounded.

MURDERED IN A COURT ROOM.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—At a picnic Sunday last, Henry Casey, a respectable young man, was accused by Julia Sweeny of having criminally assaulted her. The case came up for a preliminary hearing in a justice's court at Redwood city yesterday. During the proceedings the father of the girl drew a revolver and fired three shoots at Casey, each ball taking effect. Casey died at midnight. Much sympathy is expressed for the family of the young man, as the evidence showed the charge of assault to be ill-founded.

A CHICAGO ALDERMAN SHOT.

CHICAGO, May 14.—Last night in a saloon Ald. Gaynor of the Ninth ward was fatally shot by James Davis, a ward politician. It is stated the cause was the alderman's refusal to drink with his assailant.

CABLE BREVITIES.

In the House of Commons Mr. George Anderson, advanced Liberal member for Glasgow, gave notice that he should shortly make a motion to condemn the existence of the House of Lords. This announcement was received with great hilarity.

Osman Digna has killed twenty one of the friendly Arabs and taken forty women prisoners. He captured many cattle. Five rebels were killed. The tribes attacked are determined to avenge the death of their comrades and recover the women.

The engineer of an express train was killed and thirty-one passengers injured by a railway accident near Paris Tuesday night.

A monster petition for the restoration of Valentine Baker to his colonelcy in the Hussars is in preparation. It has already received over 12,000 signatures, including nearly every officer in the army and many peers, members of Parliament, clergymen, and professional men. It is stated that the Prince of Wales has sceeded in obtaining the Queen's consent to the Pasha's pardon and restoration.

G. A. Dixon, Frankville, Ont., says: 'I was cured of chronic bronchitis, that troubled me for seventeen years, by the use of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil." See that the signature of Northrop & Lyman is on the back of the wrapper, and you will get the genuine Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil.

No other preparation so concentrated and combines blood-purifying, vitalizing, enriching and invigorating qualities as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Quality should be considered when making comparisons.

FAIR EVIDENCE FOR EVERYBODY.

Depressed Stocks close up Big Firms one after the other

METROPOLITAN BANK SUSPENDED.

Tremendous Rum on National Bank met.

GREAT ANXIETY AND EXCITEMENT.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The scene on the Stock Exchange this morning was one of the most intense excitement. there was a rush to sell stocks, partly for the account of brokers, who soon announced their inability to meet their engagements. Before 10:15 Nelson, Robinson, & Co. and Goff & Randall suspended. At 10:45 a. m., O. M. Bogart & Co., announced their suspension. The Chairman of the Stock Exchange announced that the Second National Bank is solvent and worthy of confidence. At 11 a. m. J. C. Williams, and Hatchs & Foote suspended. At 10:40 the Metropolitan Bank suspended. Its capital was $3,000,000. George J. Seney is president. Secretary Folger is in town. He telegraphed to Washington ordering the immediate payment of the 127th, call for bonds. If necessary he will order another call for ten millions. A meeting of the Clearing House Association was called for 1:30 p. m. to consider the financial situation. The banks are crowded with anxious depositers It is impossible to get near any one in authority as yet. The Metropolitan Bank was a half million debtor at the Clearing House this morning.

BIG RUN ON A BANK.

The Second National bank was opened at 9.30 a. m. to-day, half an hour earlier than usual. Two tellers were employed to facilitate payment, one for men and one for women. All ladies who came were paid, the last one leaving the bank at 5 o'clock. The men's window was kept open until near 6 o'clock, until every man presenting a cheque was paid in full. The difficulty of getting in kept away many lady depositors but in spite of all inconveniences amidst the run, over 100 customers pushed their way in and made deposits and one new account was opened. The certificate of the examiner that the bank was solvent attracted much attention. The bank has about 4,000 depositors, but together with the securities given by Mr. Eno their assets amounted to a million or more over the total amount deposited with them. Mr. Panchot, member of the Union League club, entered the bank about 3.30 p.m. bearing a flour sack half filled with bank notes which he deposited, at the same time remarking to cashier Roberts that he thought the bank needed ready money. Amos B. Eno has stated in public he will back the bank to the full amount of its deposit account, which is $4,180,000, and to-day deposited $2 000,000 to meet the present emergency.

The Phœnix Bank refused to certify the cheques of Hatch & Foote. This was the immediate cause of their suspension. The suspended houses are surrounded by dense masses of humanity, and many disconsolate faces gaze on the closed doors.

NOT SINCE BLACK FRIDAY

has Wall Street presented such scenes as it witnessed this morning. Among the crowd are several well-dressed ladies, some of whom are present from motives other than curiosity. The news of the disasters spread with lightning rapidity. Private carriages from the up-town districts have been flying through the streets. Many now stand outside the doors of the banks and banking houses. The directors of nearly all, the banks are in session, or in their buildings ready for emergency. The doors of the Stock Exchange are guarded by policemen, and the galleries are being cleared of visitors. The cause of the failures is generally put down to the depression of the market.

JAY GOULD ON DECK.

Gould and a bull clique have tried hard to hold the market, but they could not take the avalanche of stocks and to-day they let the market take its course. A secret meeting was held at the house of Jay Gould to-night attended by Russel Sage, Frank Work, Sidney Dillon and C. J. Osborne to discuss, it was said, the situation and devise means for averting panic to-morrow and sustaining the market at any cost.

THE METROPOLITAN TO RESUME

The special committee of the Clearing House appointed to enquire into the character and value of the securities offered by the Metropolitan Bank, held a six hours' session to-night. Shortly after midnight the meeting broke up, and it was given out for publication that the Clearing House Committee have made examination of the Metropolitan bank, and find the assets justify them in recommending to the Loan Committee to advance the amount required to enable it immediately to resume business. The bank will be opened to-morrow morning for business as usual.

OWE $12,000,000.

TORONTO, May 15.—About half-past ten last night the night guard at the Mercer Reformatory discovered an inmate named Mary Ann Aannah alias Edison dead in her cell, suspended by her apron from the bars. About 7:30 o'clock last night the ambulence arrived at the hospital with the apparently lifeless body of a man, 42 years of age named Wm. The marks on his neck appeared to the hospital physicians to be similar to those made by a hangman who understood his business. The unfortunate man was beastly drunk.

Rev. H. I. Allen goes to Conference next week. How the circuits will be re-adjusted and who will be sent to labor among us are topics daily discussed.

Spring has arrived and with it an apparent desire on the part of the citizens to beautify their homes. Messrs. Sprague and Bradshaw have enclosed their lawns with fences that are highly ornamental to the village.

From the manner in which the villagers are cleaning up yards and premises one would be led to think that there existed a spirit of rivalry among all for the reputation of possessing the model premises for neatness and cleanliness.

PICTON POINTERS.

From our own Correspondent.

PICTON, May 15.—Our enterprising townsman, Mr. J. Mottashed, the original proprietor of the Royal Hotel, is making preparation for the manufacturing of sodawater and other temperance drinks. He has purchased some of the best machinery obtainable and will employ a practical man from Toronto.

CRUSHED BY THE CARS.

A little son of John Spinks, Toronto, had his foot crushed by a G. T. R. Express train some time ago. Two doctors attended him without benefit, and amputation was proposed, but Hagyard's Yellow Oil was tried, which gave prompt relief and effected a speedy cure even removing all stiffness of the joint.

A DOUBLE BENEFIT

James Moore, a prominent resident of Leamington, writes that he cured himself of Dyspepsia of a year's duration by one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and two bottles cured his wife who had been for two years a sufferer from the same disease. He conscientiously recommends it to all suffering from similar troubles.

Every one speaks highly of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters as a Stomach Liver and Kidney Medicine. 'The best family medicine we ever used,' say they all. Try a bottle this Spring as a blood purifier.

It is now the property of Hannan Meyers, his great grand son. The firearm is highly prized as a relic of one of those noble pioneers in whose honor the celebration at Adolphustown will be held this summer.

From Supplement No. 2 to the report of the Inland Revenue Department it is seen that in 42 tests by the gas Inspector of the illuminating power of gas in Belleville none were found below the standard. Of 67 tests for sulphuretted hydrogen it was present in 28. Of 79 tests in Montreal and 45 in Halifax no trace of sulphuretted hydrogen was found, while of 89 tests in Quebec it was found present 84 times. It is explained that at Belleville the presence of sulpuretted hydrogen was due to alterations which were being made. During the year in Belleville there were 3 weight measures rejected, 29 measures of capacity, 6 equal armed balances, 27 platform scales, weigh bridges, etc. The fees collected for gas inspection were $44 25. Of 70 gas meters presented for verification, 10 were correct, 7 fast, 41 slow. Of these 11 were rejected.

STOCKS.—The Felt hat market in Belleville at present is in an excited state prices running low on account of the very large stocks on hand. Desirable styles are going off fast at Hyman's at 15 per cent. discounts, while those not quite so good are going off at very low rates. Should the demand so continue for a couple of weeks stocks will all be cleared out. The largest and best assorted stock we find is held by S. A. Hyman.

SPORTING NOTES.

Re-organization of the Oka Lacrosse Club.

AND ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The meeting last night to re-organize the Oka Lacrosse Club for the season was well attended. Mr. Kinney was chosen chairman and Mr. Frank Phippen Secy pro tem. The election of officers was then proceeded with resulting as follows:—

President, A. Coleman; 1st Vice-President, A. J. Maguro; 2nd Vice-President, W. Henderson; Secy-Treas., W. Linklater Captain, C. Kinney.

Executive Committee:—The President and Captain and Messrs. R. Arnott, H. Wallace and J. Burbridge.

The President having taken the chair it was resolved that the fee expected of each member should be one dollar. A committee was appointed to see after the grounds. It was resolved that the uniform be similar to that of last year.

The Club starts out in full war paint with an evident determination to make things hum. The high reputation of the Okas in former years is to be sustained and enhanced. Necessarily the playing team will have new blood—always a healthy sign, and most of the old players will face the flags. Each of the newly-elected officers expressed their intention of doing all in their power for the club. The meeting adjourned till Monday evening next when reports will be received and other business transacted.

HAVE THEY CONFESSED?

STATEMENT THAT TOMPSITT AND LOWDER ACKNOWLEDGE THEIR GUILT.

PICTON, May 15.—It is stated now that Joseph Tompsitt does not deny being at Jones on the night of the murder, but he says Lowder did the shooting. Lowder repudiates this with the statement that he was in the road when the shot was fired. The Lowder's feel that in trying to save Tompsitt George has been made to suffer more than he otherwise would have, while Tompsitt's friends assert that the Lowder's have been shoving the blame all on him. It is the general belief that both the prisoners will make a confession before the day of execution. One of the witnesses for the defence has stated since the trial that he was quite positive both the prisoners was at Jones' the night of the murder. The petition which is being circulated to to have their sentence commuted is not being generally signed.

DANGEROUSLY HURT

A Frenchman struck by a falling tree and injured.

A French Canadian named Trombly in the employ of Mr. Jas. Buck, was engaged this morning near Sidney station felling a large tree which when falling struck a smaller tree tearing it up by the roots. Looking only to avoid the cut tree Trombly failed to notice the other which struck him heavily, breaking three of his ribs, injuring his spine, and inflicting internal injureies, the nature of which are not yet ascertained. Dr. Wilson was sent for and attended the wounded man who was brought to the city at noon and taken to Mrs. Domineau's boarding house.

A GOOD WORK.

Mr. Geo. Buskin is in the city for the purpose of obtaining means to carry on the gospel mission to the men employed on the Canadian Pacific Railway. For some time past Mr. Buskin has carried on the work of disseminating the gospel among the laborers engaged on the construction work along the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Algoma district, and also among the lumbermen working in the same section. There can be no question of the usefulness of such a mission which being non-denominational should receive the support of all classes. We trust Mr. Buskin will not go away empty handed.

A JUDGE ON TEMPERANCE.

Judge Boyd, one of the Dominion License Commissioners, in opening the General Sessions of the Peace at Toronto referring to the Dominion and Provincial Acts said the decrease in the number of licenses granted showed a tendency in the public mind to prohibition. If the temperance wave kept on rolling as at present, in a few years total abolition of the liquor traffic will be the result.

J. H. Eads, Shefford, P. Q., writes: "I have been troubled with liver complaint for several years, and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it with horses in cases of cuts, wounds, &c., and I think it equally as good for horse as for man.

Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Whenever the blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of an prevailing epedemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished power should be these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce ail erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, billiousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. am satisfied the medicine is not injurious will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use bi preparation. The truth is, the medical profession stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of these happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

THROUGH SNOW AND SUNSHINE: OR TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

She covered her face with her hands and burst into tears. And while she sat absorbed in her grief, the door of the apartment opened, and William Brierley entered. Approaching the grieving girl, he took her hand.

'Sorrowing, Mary?' he said. 'Oh how it pains my heart to see you in grief. Would that I might comfort you.'

'I shall never know comfot more, William,' she said sadly.

'Nay' do not speak thus. Of what use is it to repine for that which is wholy lost? If cruel destiny has robbed you of one heart it gives you another whose love is as true. Oh, Mary, give me but one word of love.'

'William,' returned the young woman, 'I have no love to give. I gave it once; bestowed it on one unwrothy, perhaps, though I cannot believe it, and gave it forever.'

'Oh, that such a love was mine,' said Brierley. 'Mary, your love is yet your own to bestow; I ask it, I implore it for myself, give me the right to comfort and protect you; be mine, and my whole life shall prove how deeply dear you are to me.'

'William,' she said, I will not deny that your conduct since my father's death has caused me lo look upon you as the best friend I have in the world; and though I respect, I cannot love you as a wife should love. My heart is Harry's in his exile, and my hand is all I can bestow.'

'Give me but that hand and I will teach you to love me afterwards. Nay, Mary, do not let me plead in vain, say you will be my wife.'

If a wife without love, if a hand without a heart will suffice you, why—why——'

'You consent, you consent,' cried William eagerly; 'you will be mine?'

'I will,'

William caught her to his bosom.

Thanks, thanks,' he cried. 'Oh, you know I have longed for this moment. Now, now am I happy.'

'If the possession of a broken hearted woman can make you so. There, release me, my heart is too cold to respond to your caresses.'

She tore herself away from his hold and tried to leave the room.

'One word, one promise more. Do not delay my happiness; say you will be mine in one month—you will wed me on Christmas Day.'

'It matters not when the sacrifice is made. I will go to the altar when you bid me.'

'Then on Christhmas Day you are mine and I am happy.'

'And I, Oh, well, I shall never know happiness again.'

And so saying with a deep sigh, Mary Brierley turned from his presence.

'Ha, ha, ha!' laughed Brierley, as he strode joyously up and down the room. 'At length fullfillment of my hopes is at hand. Mary, I love you better than any other woman, but I love your gold better the all. Already I seem to clutch it within my grasp. Its glitter outshines the glare of the burning farm, and its chink deadens the groans of your convict lover. It will stifle the voice of accusing conscience, and sparkle the last drop in my cup of vengeance.'

He turned to leave the room, when the door was flung open, and Josiah Nib confronted him.

William Brierley recoiled.

'You here?' he exclaimed. 'How dare you intrude thus upon my privacy?'

'I dare a great deal, Mr. William Brierley,' said Josiah.

'Too much. Let me tell you, Nib, you had better be careful, or you may intrude too far.'

'And if I do,' said Josiah, 'what then?'

'We shall quarrel,' said William.

'No, we shall not,' said Josiah, with provoking cooiness; 'we can't afford to quarrel, at least you cannot, Mr. Brierley, not now.'

'What do you mean?' cried William.

'That it might be a very unforlunate thing for you to quarrel with me just when you have won the pretty Mary's promise to bestow her hand and fortune on you.'

Rascal, you have been listening'

'Well villain, and if I have?' reqlied Josiah.

'By Heaven, this is too much. I will not endure it.'

'But you must, Mr. Brierley. The time has long gone by when I was your servant; now I am your equal. I committed a crime and placed myself in your power; you commitred another and placed yourself in mine. You did all but murder, transported an innocent man, and have repeatedly forged the name of the woman——'

'Peace, I say,' cried William. 'Think you I would have your words reach the ears of my cousin? Contemptable eavesdropper, but if you think what you have overheard you will wring more payment from me for your silence you are mistaken.'

'Now this is unkind, ungratful,' said Nib. 'Here you are, at the present moment positively a beggar, without enough to refund the amount of the smallest cheque you have forged, and yet you begrudge to pay me for silence when one word of mine could prevent your possessing a pretty wife and thirty thousand pounds.'

Every [illegible] who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligtnt eye the colorless faces of more tham fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate degree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrop and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never [illegible] of proply and judiciously administered. IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained a world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In [illegible] way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M'f'g Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable temprament. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of despepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high-colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrub for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world Price 25 cents a bottle.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the error and indiscretion of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a receipt, that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City. d&w

Address as above,—N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial allowed restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

THE SONG OF THE SEASON.

"Only a bonnet," the milliner said—
A feathered thing for a female head—
A bunch of ribbon a bit of lace
To perch with indescribab'e grace
Above a pretty feminine face.

'Only a bonnet," a husband sobbed.
As he frowned the frown of a man who's robbed
But he gave up his dollars big and bright,
And dreamed of mother-in-law that night,
And swore next day a powerful sight.

"Only a bonnet," that Sunday morn
Aroused a tempest of female scorn,
As it swept along, serene and new,
Adown the street and the church door through
And found its way to the family pew,'

"Only a bonnet," the women said,
As they saw the bauble upon her head;
Some of them groaned—some of them sighed—
Some of them moaned—some of the cried—
And some of them swooned in their pews and died.

VICTORIA UNIVERSITY.

THE SCRIPTURAL DOCTRINE OF RETRIBUTION DISCUSSED.

At the recent convocation of Victoria University, Prof. Shaw, LL.B., of Wesley College, Montreal, lectured.

Prof. Shaw chose for his theme, "Retribution," and handled the subject in an able manner. He believes in what is known as the old orthodox view on this subject, which he defended in an able manner, refuting the objections which are usually presented by the opponents of the doctrine. Assuming the great truths of the Bible as to the divine existence and attributes, he considered the first, the scriptural doctrine of retribution. In this he discerned eight propositions:—1. The punishment of the wicked reaches beyond this life. 2. It begins in Hades or the intermediate state. 3. It does not necessarily imply corporal suffering. 4. It implies confirmed antagonism to God. 5. It implies in the other world a career of sin, itself meriting corresponding punishment. 6. It is more than remorse, it is a positive and judicial infliction of punitive suffering. 7. Only a minority of the race will be consigned to its torments. 8. It is everlasting. He thought there was not much serious danger of the 35,000 Methodist ministers in the world becoming latitudinarian. On the contrary, he claimed that Methodism was becoming the most conservative champion of orthodoxy. He exhorted the members of the Theological Union to present the doctrine of retribution with great tenderness and affection, and so show like the great evangelists of all the Churches, that they were more concerned in saving souls than even saving a creed.

SLEEPING TOGETHER.

Somebody has said that more quarrels occur between brothers, between sisters, between hired girls, between clerks in stores, between apprentices in mechanics' shops, between hired men, between husbands and wives, owing to electrical changes which their nervous systems undergo by lodging together night after night under the same bed clothes, than by any other disturbing cause. There is nothing, says the Scientific American, that will so derange the nervous system of a person who is eliminative in nervous force than to lie all night in bed with another person who is absorbant in nervous force. The absorber will go to sleep and rest; while the eliminator will be tumbling and tossing, restless and nervous and wake up in the morning, fretful, peevise, faultfinding, and discouraged. No persons, no matter who they are, should sleep habitually together. One will thrive and the other will lose.

ONLY A PRINTER.

Who was the Earl of Stanhope? He was only a printer. What is Prince Frederick William, married to the Princess Royal of England? He, too, was only a printer. Who was William Caxton, one of the fathers of literature? He was only a printer. Who were J. P. Norris, N. P. Willis, J. Gales, C. Richardson, Horace Greeley, Bayard Taylor, Charles Dickens, Thiers, Jerrold, George D. Prentice, Bishop Kavanagh, General Dix, and who are ex-Vice President Schuyler Colfax, General Phil Sheridan, James G. Blaine, Senators Cameron Plumb and Niles and scores of others equally brilliant who served their time at the "case"? They were only printers. What was Benjamin Franklin? He was only a printer. Everybody cannot afford to be a printer.

A NATURAL MISTAKE.

Passenger (in Pullman car)—Fare, sir! Fare?

Conductor—Yes, sir. Haven't you a ticket?

Passenger—No; I had not time to get one; but I just paid my fare.

Conductor—Paid your fare! Why, who to?

Passenger—That gentleman there.

Conductor—He is only the porter. He probably regarded what you gave him as a fee. He has nothing to do with the fare.

Passenger—Dear, dear! I thought from his actions that he owned the whole railroad.—Call.

HEREDITARY SCROFULA.

Are you aware that in your blood the taint of scrofula has a prominent place? This is true of every one. It is liable at any time, on the slightest provocation, to develop itself in some insidious disease. Consumption and many other diseases are outgrowths of this impurity of the blood, Shaker Blood Syrup has a wonderful power over all scrofulus troubles, as the remarkable testimonials we have received unmistakably prove.

We refer by permission to Mrs. P. Elliott, Hanover, Maine, who was cured by Shaker Blood Syrup of 11 Scrofula Sores, the severity of which confined her to the house for two years. Six months, previous to taking Shaker Blood Syrup, she could not get about her room without crutches. Her friend says I did not think it possible for her to live many months she was reduced to a mere skeleton. Her cure is hardly less than a miricle. There is no doubt that in Shaker Blood Syrup, we have the most remarkable medicine that has ever been produced, and a positive cure for Syphilis and Scrofula in their numerous forms.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

FREE MASONRY.

Mr. W. Kirkpatrick, a prominent Free Mason and Odd Fellow of Brooklyn, lectured a few evenings ago on "Free Masonry in its Relation to the State, to the Family, and to Society." He vigorously defended the order against the attacks now being made against it by Pope Leo, and contended that Free Masons and Odd Fellows were law abiding as regards the Government, patriotic towards the country in which they live, and faithful in their family relations. The New York Sun in a leading article on the subject says:—"The Masons do not seem to be alarmed by the Papal encyclical against their order. They declare that it will do them more good than harm, and attract to their ranks many Protestants for each Catholic it prevents from joining them. Very likely that may be the case in this country, for the attack of the Pope will bring the order into universal prominence, and opponents of Rome may seize this opportunity to become Masons in order to exhibit their hostility to the Roman Catholic Church.

Yet in times past the opposition to Masonry was by no means confined to the Roman Church. In 1828 an Anti-Masonic party, which grew out of the excitement over the disappearance of Morgan, polled thirty three thousand votes for its candidate for Governor of New York, and two years later the party and its allies cast about four times that number of ballots. In 1831 a National Anti-Masonic Convention nominated William Wirt of Maryland for President and Amos Ellmaker of Pennsylvania for Vice-President; and the people of Vermont gave them their seven electoral votes. Political anti-Masonry, however, soon died out, leaving no sign; and the order thriving under persecution, has since grown steadily and rapidly in the United States. Now many clergymen are included among the members, and the only strong and conspicuous opposition to Masonry comes from the Roman Church. Nor is the hostility of that Church to the order a new thing. It has been frequently manifested during the last century and a half, and the Popes have often used their efforts to suppress it. The Council of Trent, indeed, three hundred years ago, denounced all such secret societies; and the theory of the Roman Church is that associations and brotherhoods for moral and religious purposes should be formed within the Church and under its sanction. But Masonry has flourished despite those assaults, and hence the Masons are now rather indifferent to the anathemas of Pope Leo.

However it may be with some of the French and German Masonic writers, the Masons of this country have certainly not been inimical to revealed religion. But it is easy to understand the increasing hostility of the Roman Church to the order, because it is a compact, secret organization beyond its control and out of harmony with its principles and general purposes. That Church is, of necessity, the implacable enemy of all such orders."

MACDONALD STREET.

On May 2nd the Streets Committee decided that Macdonald Street should be opened to the bay immediately. This was disallowed by the Executive Committee at its next meeting the Chairman opposing it upon the City Solicitor raising the bugbear of possible law suits. Solicitor Henderson might explain how law suits could possibly arise out of the opening up of a street that has been laid out for city purposes since the year one. Many wonder whether Mr. Chisholm, for whose benefit the street is kept closed, is deceiving the City Solicitor or the Solicitor humbugging the city. Mr. Chisholm was to remove the trees in the way, but the trees remain and he is sowing the ground.

We do not see why the Finance Committee should have interfered at all with the recommendation of the Board of Works. The residents of the locality desire the street opened up at once. The interests of that quarter of the city demand it. The building operations of the Woman's Christian Association cannot go on unless this street is opened and there is no reason why it should be kept closed a week longer. The Board of Works should insist upon its report.

THE SCOTT ACT.

The Globe thus sums up the result of the investigation into the working of the Scott Act in King county, Nova Scotia, by the special correspondent:—In this county the Scott Act has undeniably effected some good results. If any liquor is sold it is sold secretly and in small quantities. No drunkenness is to be seen, for the reasons that drink is hard to get, and that if a man should happen to make a beast of himself it is at least as much the interest of the person who sold him liquor that he should be taken care of till sober as it is his own. At least one hotel-keeper in Sussex is of opinion that the separation of the hotel and the liquor business is good for the former.

As Age Creeps on Apace, the various functions of the body grow weaker in their performance. Old people who suffer from increasing indigestion, torpidity of the liver, and constipation, should give renewed impetus to the action of the stomach, bile-secreting organ and bowels, with Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, from which aid is never sought in vain. It works wonders as a blood purifier.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

IT TOOK a Chicago court six days to find a jury to try a Canadian said to be guilty of murder. It took a Canadian court just two days to try, convict and sentence to death an American guilty of the same atrocious crime. Ergo the Canadian people are marked by a higher civilization.

IT WOULD APPEAR that there has been a misunderstanding about the appointment of Col. Middleton to the command of the Canadian Militia. The Imperial military authorities do not like the treatment accorded Gen. Luard nor Sir John's threat against that officer uttered in the House of Commons. Although it is undoubtedly to our advantage to have the assistance of a capable, courteous officer from the British service it is just possible that we could get along very nicely by appointing a resident Canadian to the post.

IT HAS ALWAYS seemed to us that the American's have not in their system responsible governmet so nearly as we have. The members of the Executive Government have not seats in Congress, and are chosen by the President who cannot, practically, be removed during his term. Mr. G. W. Curtis, editor of Harper's Magazine, questions in the June number whether the American system of selecting the Chief Magistrate is surer than the English method to bring the real chief of a party to the Executive chair.

PERIODIDAL PUBLICATIONS.

The June number of Harper's Magazine brings with it the first breath of summer in two of its descriptive papers. One of these "Biarritz," by Lucy C. Lillie, is full of the charm and romance of the Basque coast, and is beautifully illustrated by C. S. Reinhart; the other, "The North Shore," by John A. Butler, illustrated by Charles Graham, describes the north shore of Lake Superior, and gives a delightful retrospect of the old voyageurs and fur-traders.

In the Easy Chair of the coming Harper's (for June), Mr. George William Curtis will discourse delightfully, as is his wont of progress, international copyright, Mr. Gladstone and other topics.

A love story by H. C. Bunner, entitled "The Red Silk Handkerchief." will appear in the June Century.

In the June Century the Rev. Dr. Charles S. Robinson will continue his series of open letters by a consideration of the subject on church music from the stand point of the choirs.

"Life and Death," a poem by C. P. Cranch, is to be the subject of a a full-page original engraving by Elbridge Kingsley, in the June Century.

Those who propose to make the great lakes their travel-ground this summer will be attracted by a paper on "The North Shore" of Lake Superior in the next (June) Harper's, illustrated by Mr. C. Graham.

Louisa M. Alcott, J. T. Trowbridge, Lucy Carcom, Maurice Thompson, Helen Gray Cone, Palmer Cox, Mrs. S. B. Herrick, E. S. Brooks, and Susan Anna Brown are announced as among the contributors to the June St. Nicholas.

Mr. C. S. Reinhart, the well-known American artist in black-and-white, who has been living in Paris for some years engaged chiefly upon work for the Harper periodicals, has recently made some interesting drawings of French summer resort and sea-side life, to accompany a series of papers in Harper's Magazine. The first of these, on "Biarritz," by Mrs. Luck C. Lillie, will appear in the June Number.

The Electra published in Lousville Ky., at $2.00 a year, edited by Misses Wilson and Leyburn, is opening Vol. II, with increasingly bright prospects. In September, 1883, "At home and Abroad," so long published in North Carolina, was bought by the publisher of Electra, and merged into it, and now the "Ladies' Pearl" and Electra are consolidated. We would especially commend Electra to all. As a family journal it is wideawake, charming, interesting, and is particaliy adapted to the cultivation of the older young people. Each number is illustrated with a handsome steel engraving. Send 10 cents for sample copy.

THE PANIC IN NEW YORK.

No Reason for any Widespread Alarm.

MORE SUSPENSIONS AND FAILURES.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The Herald says there was fortunately a large conservative element in the market yesterday that did not loose confidence. There may be and doubtless will be, more failures and suspensions, but we do not see that there is any reason for widespread alarm.

CONDITION OF THE BANK.

The Metropolitan bank resumed this morning only a few persons drew out their money. Vice-President Jacques has been elected president. The bank cleared all right.

A few minutes before noon to-day the doors of the Metropolitan bank were thrown open. A number of the depositors hurried eagerly in to draw their money, Everything passed off quietly and in an orderly manner, The officials had provided against a run, but the experiences of the first hour showed that there was no need of being apprehensive. From 12 till 1 there was a steady demand at the paying teller's, window, but the depositors who were waiting for their money never reached half a hundred in number.

The run on the Second National bank has stopped.

One of the most exciting runs of the day was upon the Union Trust Company, though it was not a circumstance to the famous run of 1873. The officers stated that the institution was one of the strongest in the city, and the run would not trouble it in the least.

There was a run this morning on the Irish Emigrant Savings bank, about 200 depositors withdrawing their accounts. The bank was not embarrassed.

The Atlantic State bank of Brooklyn did not resume to-day. Some of its depositors are embarrassed. and a number of them gathered at the institution to-day. They became very indignant when they could not get their money.

Large sums were drawn out of the savings banks to-day. They were prepared for the run and were not disturbed.

There were no unusual withdrawals from the national banks.

MORE ASSIGNMENTS.

H. H. Mullen & Co., brokers, have made an assignment. Wheeler & Simmons & Co. have failed. Wheeler was cashier of the Luna Valley Bank, and all the firm's funds were there.

UNION BANK SUSPENDED.

QUINCY, Ill., May 15.—The Union Bank has suspended. When the Marine Bank of New York failed the Union transferred its account to the Metropolitan, and the closing of the doors of that bank caused the suspension. The officers of the bank are confident depositors will be paid in full. The Bank will not probably resume business.

REPORTED BANK CLOSING.

PITTSBURG, May 15.—Bradford despatches report the closing of the doors of the Luna Valley Bank to prevent a run. Its affairs are reported in excellent shape.

A RESULT.

LAPORTE, In., May 15.—Chas. Leasing, private banker here, closed his doors this afternoon, He claims to have $8,000 locked up in the Metropolitan Bank in New York.

AT MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, May 15.—Montreal people will come out of the New York crash all right with one or two exceptions. said a gentleman to-day, one of the veterans of the Stock Exchange.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

BUT HE'S HAD A SOFT THING.

Gen. Grant is not given to poetry, but he could very appropriately parody a much line and say:—"I know a bank where hard times grow."

OUR GRAIN TRADE.

No little excitement has been caused among grain shippers and forwarding companies at this port, by the manner in which they find themselves completely handicapped by Welland's tolls, in competing with Erie's free canal for the through grain trade of the west, at a time, too, when we have an immense quantity of tonnage in port, begging for bread, and a number of barges idle at Kingston.—Montreal Gazette.

PHILOSOPHICAL RESEARCH.

It is astonishing how long it takes a hired girl to scrub a front window.—Peter X.

THE MAIL'S EVERYDAY WRITING.

In this every day working world we are apt to think that the heroic deeds which thrilled antiquity have passed away for ever. To think that there is no Eleazar left to kill Antiochus the king, by throwing himself under the royal elephant, no Marcus Curtius to leap into the yawning chasm to avert disaster to Rome, no Leonidas to face certain death to preserve his country from the hordes of Xerxes, no Horatius to defend the bridge from the victorious Lars Porsena; but every day, in what some call these degenerate times, we have instances of heroism less ostentatious but none the less magnificent.—Toronto Mail.

THE ENGLISH HOUSE OF LORDS.

Intellectually the great majority of their lordships are simply beneath contempt, for in any useful walk of life not one in ten of them could earn his bread and butter though it were to save him from the gallows or from something worse. And yet these are the men of whom drivelling and too often professedly religious people have been in the habit of saying when any piece of specially useful and progressive legislation had to be barred and burked, "Thank God for the House of Lords!" Those who feel in that way are decidly thankful for small mercies.—Toronto Globe.

THE BICYCLE POET AND HIS BOY.

Come, boy, let's mount our merry wheels,
And forth upon the road;
The very air has virtue in't
To stir the sluggish blood;
Left foot on step—three vigorous hops—
Now jump—ah! that's the mount;
And now the pedals agitate—
Who says we're "no account"?

The scent of flowers is in the air;
The bobolink on the fence
Remarks that, next to airy flight,
This wheeling is immense;
The squirrel sees us—tries a race—
Who'll win it, he or we?
Aha, my boy, he's distanced and
Skedaddles up a tree.

Look out! a rock—ah, that's too bad!
You should have blown your nose
Before you started—why, that bump
Looks like a full blown rose;
Well, never mind—we have to creep
Before we learn to walk;
When once you get your steed in hand,
You'll find, he'll never balk,

You'll say "The poetry's too much";
Too bad! I didn't think!
A new beginner on the wheel
Should never rhyme nor wink;
You're mother'll say I did it—well,
I'm sorry—such a nose!
You've heard my poetry—I shall hear
Your mother's vigorous prose.

IRVING AND GLADSTONE.

Mr. Henry Irving was a visitor to the House of Commons Tuesday, and while he was sitting in the strangers' gallery he was observed by Mr. Gladstone. The Premier beckoned to the tragedian to come down to the body of the hall, and, going with him into the lobby, had an effusive and animated chat lasting nearly half an hour. Mr. Gladstone enquired with great interest and particularly as to the details of the actor's American trip, and especially as to his opinion of American institutions and public men, and seemed much pleased and impressed by Mr. Irving's spirited and intelligent account of his observations.

Many ladies admire gray hair—on some other person. But few care to try its effect on their own charms. Nor need they, since Ayer's Hair Vigor prevents the hair from turning gray, and restores gray hair to its original color. It cleanses the scalp, prevents the formation of dandruff, and wonderfully stimulates the growth of the hair.

CLERICAL ASSOCIATION.

The Bay of Quinte Clerical Association met this week at Marmora to discuss matters pertaining to the welfare of the church. Service was held in the church on Tuesday evening, at which addresses were delivered by Revds. Elliott, of Clark's Mills, and Osborne, of Milford. The Holy Communion was celebrated at 8 o'clock the next morning at which there were present five clergymen and ten communicants, and at ten o'clock the Litany was sung. The Association immediately afterwards met at Mr. Bentley's, Postmaster, and discussed several religious topics, principally the lessons which may be learned from the success of religious bodies outside the Church of England. In compliance with the request of Rev. Mr. Loucks the next meeting will be held at Picton in August. Several clergymen were unable to attend the meeting on account of parochial duties, but the session was both pleasant and profitable to those who were present. In the evening a hearty service was held in the church, at which Rev. T. Godden, of Stirling, and Rev. J. W. Burke, of this city, delivered addresses.

LIMESTONE CITY.

Mrs. H. Dumble, mother-in law of Mayor McCammon is dead.

The question having arisen as to the right of the Collegiate Institute to call its commercial department, a Technical and Commercial College, the Minister of Education has decided that, while having the right to teach all the advertised branches the name must be changed to that of the Commercial Department of the Institute.

CRUSHED BY THE CARS.

A little son of John Spinks, Toronto, had his foot crushed by a G. T. R. Express train some time ago. Two doctors attended him without benefit, and amputation was proposed, but Hagyard's Yellow Oil was tried, which gave prompt relief and effected a speedy cure even removing all stiffness of the joint.

A DOUBLE BENEFIT

James Moore, a prominent resident of Leamington, writes that he cured himself of Dyspepsia of a year's duration by one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and two bottles cured his wife who had been for two years a sufferer from the same disease. He conscientiously recommends it to all suffering from similar troubles.

Every one speaks highly of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters as a Stomach Liver and Kidney Medicine. 'The best family medicine we ever used,' say they all. Try a bottle this Spring as a blood purifier.

It cures Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and Torpidity of the Liver, Constipation, and all diseases arising from Impure Blood, Female complaints, etc.

CIVIC COMMITTEES.

The Board of Works Committee met last evening and endorsed the following accounts:—Street Inspector's Pay Sheet, $262.21; J. W. Walker, for nails, $31 75, and J. W. Walker for blasting powder used in protecting the upper bridge last spring, $10.85.

The Fire Committee granted $25 to the Chemical engine No. 6, to aid in finishing their building, and passed James Miner's of $16.67 for four month's services as stoker for No. 1 fire engine. At the suggestion of the Chairman, $75 was granted to defray the expenses of the firemen's celebration on the 26th inst. He stated that the Oddfellow's Band, having decided to leave the city on that day, the firemen would have to bring a band from a distance at an additional expense, which would be partly borne by the Bicycle Club. Peter Milne's tender for wood was $5.75 per cord for hard wood cut and split, pine wood cut $2 75, uncut $2.50, and 25 cents extra for carrying it into the shed or hall. T. Valequet's tender was the same virtually—$6 for hard wood and $3 for soft wood delivered. The committee agreed to divide the orders between these two dealers. A letter was read from Chief Engineer Campbell pointing out the importance of a water tank in front of the Central School, when a supply could be had at any time in case the school, the gaol or any of the surrounding churches were on fire. As at present situated the firemen would be obliged to get water from the river, which would be in many cases too great a distance to save either of the buildings mentioned, The matter was left in abeyance until next meeting.

The Harbor and Ferry Committee passed an account of R. Watters for setting out the buoys, and $1.40 to J. W. Walker for spikes. Mr. F. Clarke, Government Inspector of dredging, stated to the committee that there was a clear depth of seven feet of water from the end of the docks to the foot of Dundas Street, along the eastern side. The Committee instructed Mr. Clarke and the Harbor Master to examine to-day the bar west of the light house and ascertain what dredging would be required to allow the ferry to run across there throughout the season.

Since receiving sentence the prisoners are under guard day and night.

The ladies of St. Mark's church Deseronto, will give an excursion to Picton on the 10th of June, the day fixed for the execution. The date of the excursion was announced some days before the murderers were sentenced, and the ladies are not likely to advertise the hanging as an attraction. At all events executions take place early in the morning.

There are two petitions in circulation, asking to have the sentence commuted to imprisonment for life one for both Tompsitt and Louder and the other in favor of Louder only.

FRANK BEZO's HARD LUCK.

Thrown into a Ditch and Robbed by bad Samaritans.

Frank Bezo, of Napanee, charged Eli. Gordenier, Elizabeth Babcock, Richard Duesberry and his wife at the police court this morning with robbing him of about $8, a watch and chain, two rings and a breast pin on the 7th inst. Bezo, when he reached Belleville on the day in question, began drinking, and in the afternoon entered a house at the foot of Front Street. From here he was thrown out into the ditch receiving several cuts about the face. The accused were called to his assistance and took him in and washed the blood off his face. He swore that afterwards he felt the girl Gordenier feeling in his pockets after his money. Duesberry and his wife were discharged, and the other two were remanded until Monday.

A MAD ELOPEMENT.

A Couple Touched with Mormonism Quit the County.

The latest sensation in this county is the reported elopement of a married man of Madoc with a wife and mother living in Foxboro. He leaves a wife and four children with no means of support, and she a husband and three children. Both have been on intimate terms for some time. When the enraged husband heard this he caused a separation with his wife a few weeks ago and took the children. She proved faithful to the last to the Madoc lover and on Monday they left for the States. The affair has caused a profound sensation both in Foxboro and Madoc, where the parties are well known. The deserted husband talks of shooting his rival.

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS

In order to avoid expense which would be caused by the duplicating of examinations the County Board of Examiners has decided to require all candidates for district third class certificates in July on the subjects of reading, spelling and etymology, grammar and composition, history, geography, arithmetic and mensuration and literature (Gray's Elegy and Goldsmith's Traveller.) This change will make no real difference in the standard for district third class certificates, except in literature, the Elegy and the Traveller being substituted for the fourth reader. The answers of the candidates will, of course, be read and valued by the Board which will at the examination decide what percentage of marks must be obtained by successful candidates. The answers of candidates for county third class certificates will, as heretofore, be read in Toronto.

The Springfield Wheelmen's Gazette, is a large monthly magazine, full of matter interesting and important to wheelmen. In opening the second volume the determination is expressed to improve upon the first volume satisfactory, as that was. A number of the following items are extracted from the May issue.

J. H. Kads, Sheffard, P. Q., writes: 'I have been troubled with liver complaint for several years, and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it with horses in cases of cuts, wounds, &c., and I think it equally as good for horse as for man.

UNWILLING MISS JONES.

SHE CAN HOLD HER TONGUE UNTIL THE JUDGMENT DAY.

Miss Rebecca Jones mounted the witness box in the Surrogate's Court, New York, yesterday, and, after a deep courtesy to the Surrogate, seated herself firmly, clinched her hands, compressed her lips, and darted defiance all round. Miss Jones was an old and confidential servant of Mr. Hamersley, whose will is being contested. At the last hearing she strenuously refused to testify to anything concerning him.

'Did you read a letter from Mrs. Hamersley asking you to testify in this case?' inquired Mr. Bartlett, counsel for contestants.

'No, I didn't. I opened it, but I didn't read it. I never could read Mrs. Hamersley's writing, anyhow.'

Mr. Bartlett read the letter privately to her, and she accompanied the reading with disdainful shrugs of her shoulders.

'Now,' said Mr. Bartlett, 'when did you first enter Mr. Hamersley's employ?'

'I refuse to answer.'

'In what capacity were you employed?'

'I refuse to answer.'

'Now tell us,' said Mr. Bartlett, not at all ruffled, 'where you were employed.'

'Mr. Bartlett,' said Miss Jones, shaking her finger at him, 'I told you before I refuse to answer. You can put all your questions into a bundle and I refuse them all. How would you like when you are dead to have an old friend tell all your ins and outs? I won't tell you a word about Mr. Hammersley. My lips are sealed forever and I want you—'

'If you won't talk,' interrupted the Surrogate, 'please keep quiet.'

'No,' said Miss Jones, 'I won't talk and I can't keep quiet.'

'Do you know,' said the Surrogate, 'that your persistency exposes you to be locked up? Do you think you could stand that?'

'Yes, I do; and I want you to understand——'

'About how long would you stand it?' interrupted the Court.

Then Miss Jones lost patience. 'Till the Resurrection Day,' she exclaimed, 'as I told you before. Then I should be away from here and have peace and rest.'

Mr. Bartlett then moved for Miss Jones committal. He said he didn't want to be harsh with her, and would do all he could. Finally she was paroled until the 19th, at 11 a.m. If she then still refuses to testify she will be committed until she has changed her mind.

THE METHODIST CHURCH.

HOW THE CIRCUITS IN BELLEVILLE ARE READJUSTED.

TRENTON, May 16.—The united District Meeting of the Methodist Church commenced here yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The meeting was opened with singing, after which the Rev. Mr. Howard read Psa'm 104, Rev. Mr. Kerts and Rev. Mr. Rice leading in prayer. The meeting, composed of ministers and of lay representatives of the several denominations embraced in the union, proceeded to elect a chairman by ballot. The following ministers were before the meeting: Revs. Messrs. Fish, Kerts, Williams, Rice and Clarkson. The ballot finally resulted in the election of Mr. Kerts.

Rev. W. J. Young was elected Secy. The names of the delegates were then called for. The report of a special committe re-adjusting the boundaries of the several circuits embraced in the district was taken up seriatim. Belleville City was first considered, and after some discussion a motion prevailed that Belleville Centre and Belleville West circuits remain as they now exist, and the Tabernacle absorb the Bible Christian circuit and Belleville North absorb the Kingston Road appointment which formerly was embraced in Belleville Centre circuit.

The next circuit considered was Trenton over which a lengthy discussion, occupying the remainder of the afternoon, followed. Before closing the session at six o'clock a motion to allow the matter of Trenton circuit to stand till a later period of the meeting prevailed. The meeting then adjourned to meet at Grace Church in East Trenton at 7:30 o'clock.

Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Whenever the blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of an prevailing epedemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished power should be these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce all erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, billiousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. The fruit season is especially prone to produce irritation of the bowels and disorder of the digestive organs; both of which dangerous conditions can be completely removed by Holloway's corrective medicines.

THROUGH SNOW AND SUNSHINE:

OR

TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

Josiah Nib, you were a cringing cur when powerless, and in your fancied strength you are a cruel and exacting hound. Have you no mercy ?'

'William Brierley, what mercy had you on me ? Would anything less than the ruin of my very hopes of salvation satisfy you? No, you have made me what I am, and you shall abide the consequences of your deed.

On Christmas Day you will become the husband of Mary, and her fortune shall be your own, thirty thousand pounds. On Christmas Eve pay me fifteen thousand and I will leave the country, and trouble you no more.'

'No, nor yet a fifteenth part shall you have greedy villain,' cried William.

'Then not one farthing shall you possess, nor her hand either, for I—'

'Wretch, What would you do?' cried William Brierley, springing upon Nib, and seizing him by the throat. 'What should prevent me strangling you, and flinging your worthless carcase into the mill stream ?'

'This !' exclaimed Josiah Nib, drawing a pistol from his bosom, and placing its muzzle against the forehead of Brierley.

Brierley released his hold and recoiled.

'I am not so defenseless as you imagine, you see,' said Josiah, 'Experience has taught me always to be prepared for treachery in a hypocrite and a scoundrel.

'Confound you,' hissed Brierley.

'Bless me rather for saving you from committing another crime. There's no harm done so now let's again to business.'

And Josiah cooly returned the pistol to his busom, Just leaving the stock of the weapon sticking out, so as to be ready to his hand.

'If I were a greedy or unforgiving man, I should now demand more, but I will take the fifteen thousand if paid on the eve of the wedding. I will not wait till after, oh, no !—the day before, or the girl shall be warned in time. I will not trust you William Brierley, and I would not be present at the sacrifice. Now do you consent ?'

A strange light flashed in Brierley's eyes and he said—

'I must.'

'Of course you must,' said Nib, 'and a very wise conclusion you have come to; see what you will gain by it, a pretty wife, fifteen thousand pounds and a release forever from the only man who could ever bring you to a felon's dock.'

'Enough, leave me ; I have much to think of, and would be alone,' said Brierley.

'Since we now understand each other, I will not trespass further,' said Nib. 'Farewell, William Brierley, you wil not forget fifteen thousand pounds, on the eve before the wedding—on Christmas Eve, remember.'

And so saying Josiah flung open the door and passed from the room,

Brierley watched him till he closed the door.

'A malediction on him !' he hissed between his clinched teeth. 'Oh, fool that I was to think the worm I trod on would not turn and sting me. The hateful parasite will cling to me till every farthing is gone, and he has dragged me down to the lowest depths of ruin and despair.

'But no, I am not yet crushed and broken. I will foil him yet. One month gives me the woman I love and the wealth I covet, and It shall also give me release from the man I fear—the viper born of my bitter vengeance.'

CHAPTER V.

It was towards evening of the day before Christmas the day appointed for the marriage of William Brierley and Mary, that a man, haggard, pale and ragged, entered the village of Hazleberry, in the midst of a heavy fall of snow.

He had evidently traveled far and seen much privation.

Ther were few of the villagers about, and those he appeared anxious to shun.

Turning into the lane that led towards the farm, he paused and looked with surprise and curiosity at the new building that had been erected on the ruins of the old farm-house.

Then he turned with a sigh to gaze at the distant mill.

'That is not changed,' he said; 'no, that is not changed, but is she? Does Mary still believe me innocent, or has she too, changed in these three years? God help me, what years of misery and despair have they been to me,'

And as the man drew his hand across his eyes and threw up the brim of his hat, few would have recognized in those sunken cheeks the once happy features of Harry Fairfield.

'Ah,' he continued, 'the homestead is changed like myself, only that is a proud and noble building, while I am a crushed and broken-spirited man—a fugitive from justice, a hunted convict, without home, friends, or the means to obtain a meal. After three years of sleepless nights and toilsome days, I stand here once more in my native village to feel a greater outcast, a more friendless wretch than when chained to my fellow man. I toiled a convict in Van Dieman's Land.'

He sat down behind the tree where Brierley had hidden on the night of the fire, and buried his face in his hands.

Every [illegible] who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate pegree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrup and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never [illegible] of proply and judiciously administered. IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained a world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable temperaments. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of dyspepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrub for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world Price 25 cents a bottle.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co.s. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the error and indiscretion of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a receipt, that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN Station D, New York City. d&w

ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL.

The VOLTAIC BELT Co., Marshall, Mich., will send Dr. Dye's Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belts and Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to men (young or old) who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality and kindred troubles, guaranteeing speedy and complete restoration of health and manly vigor. Address as above,—N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty day's trial allowed

AYER'S
Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

IS LIFE WORTH LIVING?

Dr. Talmage's Sermon, Preached Last Morning, May 11, 1884.

"Where doth a living man complain?"—LAMENTATIONS 3 : 39.

If we leave to the evolutionists to guess where we came from and to the theologians to prophecy where we are going to, we still have left for consideration the important fact that we are here. There may be some doubt about where the river rises and some doubt where the river empties, but there can be no doubt about the fact that we are sailing on it. So I am not surprised that everybody asks the question 'is life worth living?' Solomon in his unhappy moments says it is not. 'Vanity,' 'vexation of spirit,' 'no good,' are his estimate. The fact is that Solomon was at one time a polygamist, and that soured his disposition. One wife makes a man happy; more than one makes him wretched, But Solomon was converted from polygamy to monogamy, and the last words he ever wrote, as far as we can read them, were the words of 'mountains of spices.' But Jeremiah says in my text life is worth living. In a book supposed to be doleful, and lugubrious, and sepulchral, and entitled 'Lamentations,' he plainly intimates that the blessing of merely living is so great and grand a blessing that though a man have piled on him all misfortunes and disasters he has no right to complain. The author of my text cries out in startling intonation to all lands and to all centuries, 'Wherefore doth a living man complain?'

A DIVERSITY OF OPINION

in our time as well as in olden time. Here is a young man of light hair and blue eyes, and sound digestion, and generous salary, happily affianced, and on the way to become a partner in a commercial firm of which he is an important clerk. Ask him whether life is worth living. He will laugh in your face and say, 'Yes, yes, yes!' Here is a man who has come to the forties. He is at the tip top of the hill of life. Every step has been a stumble and a bruise. The people he trusted have turned out deserters, and the money he has honestly made he has been cheated out of. His nerves are out of tune. He has poor appetite, and all the food he does eat does not assimilate. Forty miles climbing up the hill of life have been to him like climbing the Matterhorn, and there are forty miles yet to go down, and descent is always more dangerous than ascent. Ask him whether life is worth living, and he will drawl out in shivering and lugubrious and appalling negative, 'No, no, no!'

HOW ARE WE TO DECIDE

this matter righteously and intelligently? If you ask me 'Is life worth living?' I answer, it all depends upon the kind of life you live. In the first place, I remark, that a life of mere money getting is always a failure, because you will never get as much as you want. The poorest people in this country are the millionaires, and next to them those who have half a million. There is not a scissors grinder on the streets of New York or Brooklyn that is so anxious to make money as these men who have piled up fortunes year after in storehouses, in government securities, in tenement houses, in whole city blocks. You ought to see them jump when they hear the fire-bell ring. You ought to see them in their excitement when a Marine Bank explodes. You ought to see their agitation when there is proposed a reformation in the tariff. Their nerves tremble like harp-strings, but no music in the vibration. They read the reports from Wall Street in the morning with a concernment that threatens paralysis or apoplexy, or, more probably, they have a telegraph or a telephone in their own house, so they catch every breath of change in the money market. The disease of accumulation has eaten into them—eaten into their heart, into their lungs, into their spleen, into their liver, into their bones.

Chemists have sometimes analyzed the human body, and they say it is so much magnesia, so much lime, so much chlorate of potassium. If some Christian chemist would analyze one of these financial behemoths he would find he was made up of copper, and gold, and silver, and zinc, and lead, and coal, and iron. That is not a life worth living. There are too many earthquakes in it it, too many agonies in it, too many perditions in it. They build their castles, and they open their picture galleries, and they summon prima donnas, and they offer every inducement for Happiness to come and live there, but

HAPPINESS WILL NOT COME.

They send footmaned and postillioned equipage to bring her; she will not ride to their door. They send princely escort; she will not take their arm. They make their gateways triumphal arches; she will not ride under them. They set a golden throne before a golden plate; she turns away from the banquet. They call to her from upholstered balcony; she will not listen. Mark you, this is the failure of those who have had large accumulation. And then you must take into consideration that the vast majority of those who make the dominant idea of life money getting fall far short of affluence. It is estimated that only about two out of a hundred business men have anything worthy the name of success. A man who spends his life with the one dominant idea of financial accumulation spends a life not worth living So the idea of worldly approval. If that be dominate in a man's life he is miserable The two most unfortunate men in this country for the next six months will be the two men nominated for the Presidency. The reservoirs of abuse, and distribe, and malediction are gradually filling now, gallon above gallon, hogshead above hogshead, and about midsummer these two reservoirs will be brimming full and a hose will be attached to each one, and it will play away on these nominees, and they will have to stand it, and take the abuse and the falsehood, and the caricature, and the anathema, and the caterwauling, and they will be rolled in it and rolled over and over in it until they are choked and submerged, and strangulated, and at every sign of returning consciousness they will be barked at by all the hounds of political parties from ocean to ocean. And yet, there are a hundred men today struggling for that privilege and there are thousands of men who are helping them in the struggle. Now, that is not a life worth living. You can get slandered and abused cheaper than that. Take it on a smaller scale. Do not be so ambitious to have a whole reservoir rolled over on you. But what you see in the matter of high political preferment you see in every community in the struggle for what is called

SOCIAL POSITION.

Tens of thousands of people trying to get into that realm, and they are under terrific tension. What is social position? It is a difficult thing to define, but we all know what it is. Good morals and intelligence are not necessary, but wealth, or show of wealth, is absolutely dispensable. There are men to-day as notorious for their libertinism as the night is famous for its darkness who move in what is called high social position. There are hundreds of out and out rakes in American society whose names are mentioned among the distinguished guests at the great levees. They have annexed all the known vices and are longing for other worlds of diabolism to conquer. Good morals are not necessary in many of the exalted circles of society. Neither is intelligence necessary. You find in that realm men who would not know an adverb from an adjective if they met it a hundred times a day. There are thousands to-day in that realm who are anxious to keep in it. There are thousands in that realm who are nervous for fear they will fall out of it, and there are changes going on every year, and every month, and every hour which involve heartbreaks that are never reported. High social life is constantly in a flutter about the delicate question as to whom they shall let in and whom they shall push out, and the battle is going on—pier mirror against pier mirror, chandelier against chandelier, wine cellar against wine cellar, wardrobe against wardrobe, equipage against equipage. Uncertainty and insecurity dominant in that realm, wretchedness enthroned, torture at a premium, and a life not worth living. A life of sin, a life of pride, a life of indulgence, a life of worldliness, a life devoted to the world, the flesh, and the devil is a failure, a dead failure, an indefinite failure. But I shall show you

A LIFE THAT IS WORTH LIVING.

A young man says:—'I am here. I am not responsible for my ancestry; others decided that. I am not responsible for my temperament; God gave me that. But here I am, in the afternoon of the century, at twenty years of age. I have two lamps to light me—a golden lamp and a silver lamp—a golden set on the sapphire mantel of the day, a silver lamp set on the jet mantel of the night. Yes, I have that at twenty years of age which defies all inventory of valuables—a soul, with capacity to choose or reject, to rejoice or to suffer, to love or to hate. Plato says it is immortal. Seneca says it is immortal. Confucius says it is immortal. An old book among the family relics—a book with leathern cover almost worn out, and pages almost obliterated by oft perusal, joins to the other books in saying I am immortal. I have eighty years for a lifetime, sixty years yet to live. I may not live an hour, but then I must lay out my plans intelligently and for a long life. Now, I understand my opportunities and my responsibilities. That young man enters life. He is buffeted, he is tried, he is perplexed. A grave opens on this side and a grave opens on that side. He falls, but he rises again. He gets into a hard battle, but he gets the victory. The main course of his life is in the right direction. He blesses everybody he comes in contact with. God forgives his mistakes, and makes everlasting record of his holy endeavors, and at the close of it God says to him: 'Well done, good and faithful servant; enter into the joys of thy Lord.' My brother, my sister, I do not care whether that man dies at thirty, forty fifty, sixty, seventy or eighty years of age; you can chisel right under his name on the tombstone these words. 'His life was worth living.' I would not find it hard to persuade you that the poor lad, Peter Cooper, making glue for a living, and then amassing a great fortune until he could build a philanthropy which has had its echo in ten thousand philanthropies all over the country—I would not find it hard to persuade you that his life was worth living. Neither would I find it hard to persuade you that the life of Susannah Wesley was worth living. She sent out one son to organize Methodism and the other son to ring his anthems all through the ages. I would not find it hard work to persuade you that the life of Frances Leere was worth living as she established in England a school for the scientific nursing of the sick, and then when the war broke out between France and Germany went to the front, and with her own hands scraped the mud off the bodies of the soldiers dying in the trenches, and with her weak arm—standing one night in the hospital—pushing back a German soldier to his couch, as, all frenzied with his wounds, he rushed toward the door, and said, 'Let me go, let me go to my liebe mutter.' Major-generals standing back to let pass this angel of mercy. Neither would I have hard work to persuade you that Grace Darling lived a life worth living—the heroine of the life-boat. You are not wondering that the Duchess of Northumberland came to see her, and that people of all lands asked for her lighthouse, and that the proprietor of the Adelphi Theatre in London offered her a hundred dollars a night just to sit in the lifeboat while some shipwreck scene was being enacted.

THE TRUE TEST.

But I know the thought in the minds of hundreds here to-day. You say: 'While I know all these lived lives worth living, I don't think my life amounts to much.' Ah, my friends, whether your life is conspicious or inconspicious, it is worth living, if you live aright. And I want my next sentence to go down into the depths of all your souls. You are to be rewarded, not according to the greatness of your work, but according to the holy industries with which you employed the talents you really possessed. The majority of the crowns of heaven will be given to people with ten talents, for most of them were tempted to serve themselves. The vast majority of the crowns of heaven will be given to people who had one talent and gave it all to God. And remember that our life here is introductory to another. It is the vestibule to a palace; but who despises the door of a Madeline because there are grander glories within? Your life if rightly lived is the first bar of an eternal oratorio, and who despises the first note of Haydn's symphonies? And the life you live now is all the worth more living because it opens into a life that shall never end, and the last letter of the word 'time' is the first letter of the word 'eternity!'

HEREDITARY SCROFULA.

Are you aware that in your blood the taint of scrofula has a prominent place? This is true of every one. It is liable at any time, on the slightest provocation, to develop itself in some insiduous disease. Consumption and many other diseases are outgrowths of this impurity of the blood, Shaker Blood Syrup has a wonderful power over all scrofulus troubles, as the remarkable testimonials we have received unmistakably prove.

We refer by permission to Mrs. P. Elliott, Hanover, Maine, who was cured by Shaker Blood Syrup of 11 Scrofula Sores, the severity of which confined her to the house for two years. Six months, previous to taking Shaker Blood Syrup she could not get about her room without crutches. Her friend says I did not think it possible for her to live many months she was reduced to a mere skeleton. Her cure is hardly less than a miricle. There is no doubt that in Shaker Blood Syrup, we have the most remarkable medicine that has ever been produced, and a positive cure for Syphilis and Scrofula in their numerous forms.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

IMPORTANT ADMISSIONS.

Although Tory journals do not appear anxious to discuss the liquor license question in its relation to Dominion versus Provincial jurisdiction, there are two points about it to which the Ottawa correspondent of the Globe draws timely attention that may well be noted. Sir John Macdonald himself has admitted that the Crooks Act is valid and sufficient. In the course of his speech on Mr. Hounde's resolution during the session just ended Mr. Davies said :—

"If the penalties under the Federal Act are suspended (as the Government proposed), no man can be punished for selling liquor. Therefore the hon. gentleman is going to bring about a state of confusion worse than has ever existed—worse than the Prime Minister stated last year, though erroneously, existed in the Dominion. If the penalties are repealed, how will the indiscriminate sale of liquors be prevented ?

"Sir John Macdonald—By the Provincial law.

"Mr. Davies - Then, if the Provincial law is good, what does he insist upon this law for ? If the Provincial law is good, then the hon. gentleman who moved this resolution is correct in his statement, that this is a deliberate attempt to usurp the rights which the Local Legislatures posses, and which they have exercised for sixteen years."

Here the Premier admits that the Provincial law is valid and sufficient. The decision of the Privy Council in the Hodge case has left him no alternative, and it is clear that he would not have ventured to issue his bulldozing license circular while Parliament was sitting. But the Government organs now say that both Local and Dominion Governments have jurisdidiction over the liquor traffic. The leading legal authority of their party does not endorse this view. In the course of discussion on the amendments to the bill of 1883, Mr. Dalton McCarthy in the House of Commons on 17th April last said :—

"If the Local Legislatures have power, then they have exclusive power, for this Parliament will have no power. If this Parliament has power , under the interpretation of the British North America Act, as I read it, and as I think it has been interpreted in every case, where this Parliament has power the Local Parliaments have not, and vice versa.

"Mr. Girouard—Suppose a case was put before the Supreme Court in which both the Federal Parliament and the Local Legislatures have concurrent jurisdiction ?

"Mr. McCarthy—There can be no such thing"

Here we have Sir John Macdonald admitting that the Ontario license law is valid, and Mr. Dalton McCarthy declaring that if the Provincial Legislature has power over the subject matter the Ontario Government has no power. How can the Ministerialists reconcile the statements of their leaders, and still insist that the Federal license law is valid and should be enforced ? The fact is, Sir John Macdonald made a terrible blunder when he sought to usurp authority over the liquor traffic. This blunder he would gladly retrieve, if it could be done without humiliating himself in the eyes of his followers, and confessing his utter lack of legal knowledge and political shrewdness. He has now got himself and his party into an exceedingly awkward position with regard to the license question, and the Liberal party, from a political point of view, can ask for nothing better than that Sir John and his friends should persevere in their efforts to destroy the independence of the Provinces, and bring about legislative union.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A YOUNG MAN was found lying on a stoop in New York and taken to the police station on a charge of drunkenness. Before the Magistrate he said, "I was not drunk. I went to a party and became dizzy from dancing. There were ten girls to one fellow, and you can imagine that my lot was not a happy one."

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

A CORRECT INFERENCE.

Mr. Mackenzie's speech also abounded with references to "principle" from which we may infer that the conservative party is governed by no principle.—Brockville Times.

QUEEN CITY NOTES.

The new Arcade will be very attractive. If crowded streets and extensive building operations indicate prosperity then Toronto may be described as prosperous.

The cry of wretched streets will soon be over. The block pavement is down on the principal thoroughfares, and fine avenues are being made with boulevards in the centre of the streets, after the style of Boston.

The beautiful grounds around the Lieut. Governor's residence are surrounded by a solid fence six feet high. When the people pay to much to keep the grounds in order they ought to he allowed at least to look at them as they pass.

The dead walls of Toronto are covered with the sensational advertisements of the newspapers. The News has raked up some old blood and thunder show pictures in Chicago and uses them extensively. It claims the largest circulation ; the Mail poster alongside does the same and the Globe's overhead says it is ahead of all others. The poor advertiser is to be pitied.

CANADIAN NOTES.

It is reported that Hon. D. L. Macpherson, Minister of the Interior has resigned.

A second Convention of Scott Act supporters in Barrie have decided that the campaign shall be proceeded with.

The Presbyterian Synod of Ottawa and Montreal have adopted an overture deploring the intensity of party politics.

Large meetings of North-West halfbreeds are being held to protest against the action of the Government in reference to half-breed and miners' claims.

DICKENS AND HIS CHILDREN.

Miss Dickens writes of her father's fondness for children that he was never too busy to speak with them—even in the midst of his most important literary tasks. "He had a peculiar tone of voice and way of speaking for each of the children, who could tell without being called by name which was the one addressed. He had funny songs which he used to sing to them before they went to bed. One in particular, about an old man who caught cold and rheumatism while driving in an omnibus, was a great favorite, and, as it was accompanied by sneezes, coughs, and funny gesticulations, it had to be sung over and over again before the small audience was satisfied. I can see him now through the mist of years with a child nearly always on his knee, his bright and beautiful eyes full of life and fun. I can hear his clear and sweet voice as he sang to those children, as if he had no other occupation in the world but to amuse them."

GRAINS OF GOLD.

There is no sweeter repose than that which is purchased by labour.

The art of life is to know how to enjoy a little, and to endure much.

A wise man reflects before he speaks, and reflects on what he has uttered.

The head however strong it may be, can accomplish nothing against the heart.

The wise man looks for happiness beyond the narrow ken of personal interest.

All the scholastic scaffolding falls as a ruin edifice before one single word—faith.

By taking revenge a man is but even with his enemy ; but in passing it over he is superior.

The discovery of what is true, and the practice of what is good are the two most important objects of life.

Pleasure may be aptly compared to many great books, which increase in real value in the proportion they are abridged.

Nothing makes the world seem so spacious as to have friends at a distance ; they make the latitudes and longitudes.

If you want to gain a reputation for eccentricity, and to be universally dreaded, if not hated, blurt out the plain truth on all occasions.

Don't ask to be everlastingly amused ; it is the mark of a baby mind, when a young man cares for nothing but fun and frolic.

THE EARLY FLY.

Peace, buzzing harbinger of balmy spring !
  Gyrations devious
Can only cripple thy rheumatic wing,
Or leave thee but a poor, frost-bitten thing.
  Thou art too previous !

Go, hie thee to some sunny window ledge,
  And dream of June,
Of sunburned noses, bald and shaven heads,
Of tonsured priests, of restless sinners' beds.
  Thou art too soon.

Wait, till our flesh be cooked to suit thy taste,
  Lest thou regret it.
Forbear this greedy and unseemly haste ;
Thou'rt out of season, wanton and unchaste.
  And don't forget it !

Wait, fell destroyer of our slumber sweet,
  Till by and by ;
Till summer stirs our blood to fever heat,
And frenzy trails from thy persistent feet.
  Thou art too fly !

No other preparation so concentrates and combines blood-purifying, vitalizing, enriching and invigorating qualities as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Quality should be considered when making comparisons.

FAIR EVIDENCE FOR EVERYBODY.

No one can doubt the great merits of Polson's Nerviline, it has been placed in the market in 10 cent bottles, just to give the opportunity of testing its wonderful power over all kinds of pain. This is the best evidence of its efficiency, for every person can try for themselves. Polson's Nerviline is positive (it cannot fail) cure for cramps, headache, colds, neuralgia, and the hosts of pains that flesh is heir to. Good to take good to rub on. Go to any drug store and buy a 10 cent sample bottle. Large bottles 25 cents.

A LOST CHORD.

Seated one day at the organ,
  I was weary and ill at ease,
And my fingers wandered idly,
  Over the noisy keys.

I do not know what I was playing,
  Or what I was dreaming then ;
But I struck one chord of music,
  Like the sound of a great Amen.

It flooded the crimson twilight,
  Like the close of an Angel's Psalm,
And it lay on my fevered spirit,
  With a touch of infinite calm

It quieted pain and sorrow,
  Like love overcoming strife ;
It seemed the harmonious echo,
  From our discordant life.

It linked all perplexed meanings,
  Into one perfect peace,
And trembled away into silence,
  As if it were loth to cease.

I have sought, but I seek it vainly,
  That one lost chord divine,
Which came from the soul of the organ,
  And entered into mine.

It may be that Death's bright angel,
  Will speak in that chord again,
It may be that only in Heaven,
  I shall hear that grand Amen.

CRUSHED BY THE CARS.

A little son of John Spinks, Toronto, had his foot crushed by a G. T. R. Express train some time ago. Two doctors attended him without benefit, and amputation was proposed, but Hagyard's Yellow Oil was tried, which gave prompt relief and effected a speedy cure even removing all stiffness of the joint.

A DOUBLE BENEFIT

James Moore, a prominent resident of Leamington, writes that he cured himself of Dyspepsia of a year's duration by one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and two bottles cured his wife who had been for two years a sufferer from the same disease. PICTON DISTRICT.

Annual and Provisional Meeting at Wellington.

ELECTIONS AND APPOINTMENTS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The annual meeting of the Picton District of the Methodist Church of Canada assembled in the beautiful village of Wellington on the Thursday inst. the Rev. J. S. Clarke presiding. The several reports showed considerable progress in the spiritual and financial department of the church's work.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Rev. J. A. Chapman, M. A., Secretary of the district; Stationing committee, Rev. J. A. Jewell, B. A.; Sabbath School committee, Rev. W. Tomblin; Missionary committee, H. St. Gafford.

The Revs. S. G. Rorke and R. Whittington passed creditable examinations and were cordially recommended to the Conference to be continued on trial. The Evangelistic service of Tuesday evening addressed by Revs. C. Clarke, Jewell, and Whittington, and the temperance meeting of Wednesday addressed by Revs. Cragg, Tomblin, McCanus and Reynolds, were well attended and were seasons of great interest. The Provisional meeting of the Methodist church met on Thursday. The Rev. Mr. Clarke, being elected to the chair, opened the meeting with some well chosen remarks. The attendance of the ministers and delegates of both branches of the church now uniting on this district was large, and though matters both delicate and difficult came under review, yet the most delightful spirit of harmony pervaded the meeting throughout.

The work of the re-construction of the circuits resulted in a surplus of one married and a deficiency of one single man, and it is believed that the circuits on the whole are put in better form than before.

The following elections took place:—Secretary of District—Rev. J. W. Pickett; Stationary Committee—Rev. J. A. Chapman; S. S Committee—Rev. W. H. Palmer, and J. S. Louden for the Missionary Committee of the United Church

The meeting was brought to a close in the evening, and all separated with the conviction that the union now taking place would give greater impetus to the cause of God than ever!

BELLEVILLE DISTRICT.

Concluding Session of the Provisional Meeting.

DELEGATES TO CONFERENCE FROM CITY.

From our own Correspondent.

TRENTON, May 17.—The Provisional district meeting of the United Methodist Church closed here at noon yesterday. The work of the session was revised and adopted. Rev. Mr. Stratton, of Stirling, was appointed a member of the stationary committee, and Rev J. C. Ash, of Shannonville, was chosen as one of the Sabbath School Committee. Revds. Fish, (Trenton), Walker, (Stirling,) and Messrs R. L. Lazier, (Shannonville), and F. D. O'Flynn, (Madoc), were appointed a committee for the sale of church property. Deseronto was separated from the Belleville district and attached to the Napanee district, while the Belleville district was divided into two sections, north and south, with Madoc as the headquarters for the former. The Stationing Committee will fix the matters of detail in the separation of this county.

The following named from the City of Belleville were elected on the lay delegation to the United Annual Conference of the Bay of Quinte at Napanee next month:—Messrs. Richardson I Diamond, Thos. Lingham, J. Powley, Wm. Connors, Lazier, Harris, W. Gordon and G. S. Johnson

Before the close of the meeting the following resolution was unanimously carried:—Moved by G. S Johnson, seconded by John Francis, that this Provinsional District Meeting of the United Methodist Church cannot close its session without recording our earnest sympathy with the movement for the suppression of intemperance throughout our Dominion and that we would gladly see the Temperance Act submitted in the localities we represent and pledge ourselves to give it our earnest support, also asking all earnest christians for their prayers to Almighty God for the suppression of the deadly curse of intemperance.

The sessions were characterized by a harmony and good feeling that bids fair for United Methodism.

No one should be without it. I have tried it with horses in cases of cuts, wounds &c., and I think it equally as good for horses as for man.

AN ENJOYABLE TIME.

Spent at Albert College Entertainment Last Night.

The brilliantly lighted appearance of the University buildings crowning College Hill last evening told all Belleville that something unusual was in progress at "Old Albert." Reference to the public prints showed that a musical and literary exhibition followed by a social and scientific conversazione, under the control of the College authorities and the Murchison Club of this city, was "booked" for the College rooms that evening. A select audience from the city and suburbs soon found its way into the spacious chapel, and at a few minutes past eight the Chairman, President Jaques, called upon Misses Vermilyea and Campbell to open the evening's entertainment with a pianoforte duet which was pleasingly rendered by these young ladies. Miss Huntley followed singing in her attractive style "When the Quiet Moon." This young lady appeared again during the evening in a vocal duet and displayed throughout a marked improvement over earlier performances. Mrs. Carnovski and Prof. Stanistreet then were called upon the rostra and rendered a vocal duet in such form as to elicit a hearty encore. Two readings were given by Mr. Allen McFee, our well-known city reader, with the fine effect he usually creates. The violin solos by Mr. Smyth were thoroughly appreciated, all agreeing that his violin at least, was a "human cratur." The solos by Miss Soper, Miss Coverly, and Miss Brintnell were the treats of the evening and were deservedly well received. At the close of this portion of the program the rooms were thrown open to all visitors. In the reception room were many microscopic views of rarity under the control of Mr. Thos. Wills and Miss Bell. Mr. Greenleaf displayed his fine electric apparatus in the natural science room and many enjoyed (?) the "shock." The museum was opened and well patronized by the company. When the guests separated at midnight all voted the entertainment one of the best ever enjoyed at Albert.

FACT STRANGER THAN FICTION.

It is a fact that Alonzo Howe, of Tweed, had a fever sore that afflicted him for thirty-five years. Six bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters cured him, which he considers almost a miracle. It was but the natural result of the remedy restoring pure blood and perfect secretion.

"UNCLE JOSH."

The Toronto Globe of yesterday says of Joshua Whitcomb:—Uncle Joshua, as he is familiarly called, is as crazy after fires, yet as anxious to sell his pumpkins, as sprightly in his cotillion, as sympathetic with his little Tot, yet as decided as he throws the drunkard out the window, as the many who have seen him so well remember. The play was welcomed by a goodly-sized audience, who enjoyed what was given with the same relish noticeable upon the first presentation of the play in the city years ago.

"Uncle Josh" will be on deck in Belleville for the first time on Tuesday the 20th, and an unique play performed in an inimitable manner can be witnessed before the season closes.

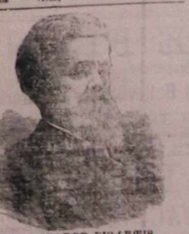
Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Whenever th blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of an prevailing epidemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished, power should be these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce all erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, billiousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. The fruit season is especially prone to produce irritation of the bowels and disorder of the digestive organs; both of which dangerous conditions can be completely removed by Holloway's corrective medicines.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally and the Ointment rubbed externally are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is pidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, surest. Holloway's Pills and Ointment purify the blood, remove obstructions to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the overgorged air tubes, and render respiration free without reducing the strength irritating the nerves, or depressing the [illegible]. Such as the ready means of saving [illegible] ny when afflicted with colds, coughs, [illegible] ruitis other complaints by which so many are [illegible] ously and permanently afll [illegible] u mos [illegible] ries.



THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemn I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. I am satisfied the medicine is not injurious and will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical profession stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of these happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

THROUGH SNOW AND SUNSHINE:

OR

TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

It was not till a couple of voices broke on his ear, and he saw that the speakers were too close for him to flee without observation, that he became aware of their presence.

Shrinking back further into the shelter of the huge trunk, he waited for them to pass.

It was Tim Whipall and Dolly, on their way home.

'This be the exact spot, Tim,' said Dolly shaking the snow from her shawl, 'where you lay down to sleep, when you got so drunk on Christmas Eve three years ago.'

'And a dear drunk it was, Dolly,' replied Tim. 'But I never can remember anything about it. However, it's been a lesson to me never to get drunk again, and I never will.'

'If it hadn't been for that promise, Tim, I'd never have been Mrs. Whipall. Why, Tim, if you were to spend your evenings in the alehouse as you used to do when you came a-courting me, and I was Farmer Fairfield's dairymaid, I'd run away and leave you to yourself, and then you'd know the miss of me. Tim; you'd know what a jewel you'd lost, and have to look out for another.'

'And suppose I get one, old woman, what then?' asked Tim, smiling.

'What then? Why it wouldn't be good for her, that's all; There'd be such a shine in Hazelberry than would not have been seen the likes of since poor Harry Fairfield was accused of setting fire to his farm and killing poor Tim Whipall—no, that there wouldn't.'

'Oh, I thought you couldn't stand the loss of me, Dolly, though I bean't much of a chap after all. But there's no fear of that; I make you too good a husband for you to run away, and all I hope is as Mr. William at the mill may be as good to Miss Mary. Of course it ain't for me to say anything agin it, but I'm sorry she's to marry him to-morrow. Folks say he's turned a decent sort of chap, but I don't like him for all that.'

'Nor I, Tim; and I don't believe but that with all his talk and all his sorrow, he was glad when poor Harry Fairfield was sent away over the seas never to return any more.'

'He had no right to be sent away.

'He never set the farm on fire, and I'll never believe he was the man as hit me on the head, though it was his gun as did it; I've always said so and I say it now, and I'd fight any man in the village as would contradict me.

'I'm always wishing I could remember that night. If I could, I believe I'd recollect something very different, but I can't and so an innocent man suffers.'

'God bless you for that belief, Tim Whipall,' said Harry, confronting the startled pair.

'Why, who be ye, measter, frightening honest folks in this way?' cried Tim.

'A starved, broken-hearted, life-wearied man,' replied Harry.

'Starved?' cried Dolly. 'Well you do look as if a meal would do you good. We be poor folks ourselves but we won't deny you a crust and a jug of milk if you will come to our cottage. Poor chap but you do look sadly. Have you journeyed far?'

'Yes, thousands of miles to gaze once more on my native village, to look upon a face I once loved, ere I bid farewell to a world which cruelty, oppression, and falsehood have made hateful to to me.'

'Thy native village?' said Tim, looking keenly in his face. Why, boy and man, I have lived in Hazleberry thirty years, and never seen thy face afore, and yet—why, no, and yet there is—it can't be my old master; no, no, he be across the seas, poor fellow, transported for a crime he never committed.'

'Alas, my poor honest Tim,' cried Harry 'It is indeed the wreck of the man you once called master, who now stands before you.'

'Harry Fairfield!' gasped Dolly. 'Great Heaven! yes, it is he; I know him now. Oh, Tim, it is master, poor innocent master.'

'Farmer—Farmer Fairfield,' exclaimed Tim, 'and sick hungry and in rags. Farmer Fairfield, and I not know him, ah, I know him now.

'Oh, farmer, farmer, dang it, I'm so glad to see thee back again, that—that—dang it I' I ha' been sleeping with the window open and I've cought a cold in my eyes, and can't speak plain.

'Dolly, tell Master Harry how glad I be for bless me if I can.'

And the poor honest fellow drew the sleeve of his smock frock over his eyes, and clasped the hand of the poor convict.

'Glad to see him, Tim,' gasped Dolly; 'Why I'm so glad that I could laugh and dance, only I can't, Tim, you see I—I——'

And Dolly burst into tears, and with an hysterical sob, flung both her plump arms around the young farmer's neck, and looked through her blinding tears into his careworn face.

'I did not expect this from you, Tim,' said Harry, as he shook the honest carter's hand; 'you whom I was accused of attempting to murder on this very spot.'

'But it was a lie, farmer,' said Tim; 'and though I don't know the man as did it, I'll swear it wasn't you.'

'Heaven knows it was not,' said Harry.

Every [illegible] who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate degree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrup and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never of properly and judiciously administered. Prepared by Northrup & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all drugists.

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England thus bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M'g Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrub for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world Price 25 cents a bottle.

FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable tempraments. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of dyspepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high-colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully,
HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

LOVE'S RESURRECTION DAY.

Round among the quiet graves,
When the sun was low,
Love went grieving—Love who saves—
Did the sleepers know?

At his touch the flowers awoke,
At his tender call
Birds into sweet singing broke.
And it did befall,

From the blooming, bursting sod,
All Love's dead arose.
And went flying up to God
By a way love knows.

WYCLIFFE COLLEGE.

ANNUAL CONVOCATION—PROPOSED ADDITION TO BUILDING.

The closing exercies in connection with the fifth convocation of Wycliff Anglican College, Toronto, were held Thursday. The lecture room and library were thrown into one apartment, which was crowded. The graduating class this year numbers three: Allen P. Kennedy, of Jamacia, W. J. Armitage, of Toronto, and J. Ardill.

Col. Gzowski made an address. He congratulated the friends of the college on the fact that although the building was not by any means as large as its growing necessities required, yet there was not a farthing of debt on it. (Cheers.) He was also happy to state that the endowment fund was steadily increasing and the maintenance fund had been equal to all their wants. He thanked the friends in and out of Toronto for their liberal support and hoped soon to see the contemplated additions to the college completed.

Hon. Edward Blake made an address full of hope for the future of Wyckliffe, and he adverted to the great good which resulted, in his opinion, to the young men of all theological colleges who were brought together in the halls of the provincial college for their secular training. Mr. Blake said that in addition to an increase in the staff of professors, an addition 45 feet long with 17 bedrooms upstairs, was an immediate requirement. He stated that three gentlemen had promised $1000 each for this purpose, and it remained for other friends to subscribe the balance. Although Wyckliffe was primarily intended to supply the home dioceses, yet its graduates were to be found in Huron, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, New York state and now they were in demand in far-off Jamaica. (Cheers.)

COURTSHIP IN SIBERIA.

In Northern Siberia if a young native desires to marry he goes to the father of the girl of his choice, and a price is agreed upon, one-half of which is then paid down The prospective son-in-law at once takes up his residence with the family of his lady love and resides with them a year. If at the end of the year, he still desires to marry the girl he can pay the other half of the price, and they are married upon the next visit of the priest. If on the other hand, he concludes that he does not want her after the year's acquaintance, he is under no obligation to make good his vows of love, and the only disadvantage he labors under is the loss of the half he paid at the start.

BUTTER PRODUCING MILK.

Creameries are learning that they cannot afford to pay the same price per quart for milk, regardless of its butter-producing value. By following this absurd practice, they discourage the improvement of dairy animals, and defraud their best customers or patrons. When all are compelled to adopt the more rational and just plan, suggested by these tests, the number of dairy farmers who will deem it wise to retain a scrub bull at the head of their native herds will rapidly diminish. We have a surfeit of argument in behalf of improved stock, but such arguments are usually brushed aside by the conservative farmer as the production of mere theorists. The pocket argument may prove more effective. I hope these tests may go on until some plan is generally introduced by which the actual money value of the different breeds may be determinep.

Formerly butter was chiefly made in the country on the farms; now it is an undetermined problem whether more is produced in the country from the milk of cows, or in towns and cities from lard and tallow. One needs to be a very good judge of this universal article of food, to determine the ingredients of which each pound he buys is made. This proves that much of the imitation or city made is very good, or much of the real butter, the product of the cow, is very poor.—Country Gentleman

As Age Creeps on Apace, the various functions of the body grow weaker in their performance. Old people who suffer from increasing indigestion, torpidity of the liver, and constipation, should give renewed impetus to the action of the stomach, bile-secreting organ and bowels, with Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, from which aid is never sought in vain. It works wonders as a blood purifier.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, "convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wasted Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

ORIGIN OF THE IRISH POTATO.

A correspondent writes to the N. Y. Sun as follows:—Sir: 'A' bets that the common or Irish potato was first discovered in Virginia, taken from there to Ireland, cultivated, and brought back in an improved state, thus making it a natural product of America.

'B' bets that the common or Irish potato is a native of Ireland, and was introduced into this country from there. Who wins? The Sun's historical editor replies:—

Neither wins. Sir Walter Raleigh took the potato to England from Virginia in 1586, but it had been carried to Spain from Quito year's before that, and taken from Spain to Italy, where it was a common article of food before Raleigh found it in Virginia. It was sent to Flanders from Italy. Its occurrence in Virginia, it is thought, was due to a recent introduction by the Spaniards. There is no proof that it was in cultivation by the aborigines of this country or those of Mexico. It grows wild to-day in Peru and Chili, and elsewhere.

HEREDITARY SCROFULA.

Are you aware that in your blood the taint of scrofula has a prominent place? This is true of every one. It is liable at any time, on the slightest provocation, to develop itself in some insiduous disease. Consumption and many other diseases are outgrowths of this impurity of the blood, Shaker Blood Syrup has a wonderful power over all scrofulus troubles, as the remarkable testimonials we have received unmistakably prove.

We refer by permission to Mrs. P. Elliott, Hanover, Maine, who was cured by Shaker Blood Syrup of 11 Scrofula Sores, the severity of which confined her to the house for two years. Six months, previous to taking Shaker Blood Syrup, she could not get about her room without crutches. Her friend says I did not think it possible for her to live many months she was reduced to a mere skeleton. Her cure is hardly less than a miricle. There is no doubt that in Shaker Blood Syrup, we have the most remarkable medicine that has ever been produced, and a positive cure for Syphilis and Scrofula in their numerous forms.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

RAILWAYS IN NORTH HASTINGS.

A thinly disguised correspondent of our local contemporary atones for the faithlessness of our county representatives in the Commons regarding railway matters by abusing the Mowat Government. That style of argument is too convincing altogether. A correspondent from Faraday writes on this subject as follows:—

"When the North Hastings extension project was agitated last fall, some of the promoters visited this region to work the affair up. The people here took some interest in the matter, not that any except the very sanguine, really expected that it would be built as an independent line; but it was supposed that the Dominion subsidy would be granted, and that it would either cause the Central Ontario people to extend their line to Bancroft so as to head off the other parties, or else that an arrangement might be made to unite the roads and secure the grant. In either case we would have had a railroad to Bancroft, and taking this view, several residents of this part of the country subscribed towards the preliminary survey.

Our reasons for thinking that the grant would be made were evident enough. We knew that other roads of far less importance had received such assistance, and we judged that Mr. Bowell and Mr. White should have influence enough with Sir John to secure the very moderate amount of aid expected. Even the most inveterate "Grits" did not suppose that these gentlemen stood so low in the estimation of their leader and in the councils of their party as to be unable to secure the bonus without difficulty. Judge then our surprise on finding that no bonus whatever had been granted towards the extension of the North Hastings and that a bonus to an extension of the Victoria R. R. from Haliburton to Bancroft had been given. The business men of Belleville and Madoc may estimate the probability of their being cut off from the trade of the back country by this road, from the fact that the already existing portion of the Victoria from Kinmount to Haliburton does not pay running expenses, and that it is rumored that the rails are to be taken up between these points and the road abandoned.

The only chance we have left for railway communication is the Central Ontario and so far as I can learn it is yet undecided which way that road will be extended. What the people of Madoc and Belleville will think of the failure of our representatives to do anything, it is hard to say. Whatever view is taken of the matter it looks equally bad for Bowell, and the people of North Hastings will now doubtless regret their action "of two years ago in rejecting a live man like Wm. Coe in favor of so helpless and incapable a man when the interests of his constituents are at stake.

The result of the failure of the scheme so extensively advertised last fall, has been very depressing to the people here, as railway communication is absolutely necessary to the developement of this part of the country. As all our business connections are with Madoc and Belleville, we would of course prefer direct communication with these places; but we will be thankful for any road, and it is quite likely that fair arrangements may be made for running powers over the Central Ontario Railroad from Eldorado, should that road reach here."

PERIODICAL PUBLICATIONS.

Kenyon Cox will appear in the June Century in the double role of artist and poet, with a full-page engraving illustrating some quaint verses.

President Eliot, of Harvard, will discuss in the June Century the question, "What is a Liberal Education?" Among other things he makes a strong plea for the study of English, and in a historical review of the changes in university curricula shows what a hard fight was necessary to procure the introduction of Greek three centuries ago.

The North American Review for June opens with an article on 'Harboring Conspiracy,' by Prof. Henry Wade Rogers, who examines, in the light of international law, the diplomatic history of the Uited States and the national constitution, the question is to how far our governwent may and must go in suppressing plots againt governments with which we are at peace, Henry D. Loyd, in the same number of the Review, shows how every branch of production is coming under the control of "Lords of Industry," corporations and monopolies. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps has an article marked by rare philosophic force upon the "Struggle for Immortality." Other articles of not less importance are: "Sociological Fallacies," by Prof. Summer, 'The Rise and Fall of Authority by President J. C. Welling: 'Walt Whitman." by Walker Kennedy; and a symposium on "Expert Testimony," by Rossiter Johnson, Dr. W. W. Godding, T. O Connor Sloane and Dr. Charles L. Dana.

THE ESTIMATED cost of government in Canada, counting everything, is $15,000,000 a year.

THE ONTARIO License Commissioners of Hamilton have passed the following resolution: "The bar-room of every such licensed tovern or saloon within the said city shall have at least one window facing upon a street, and such window or windows during said prohibited hours shall not be covered by any blind or shutter, but shall be left wholly uncovered and exposed, and during said period the bar-room itself shall be closed.

SOME TIME ago we observed that by a singular coincidence the letter "M" commenced the names of not a few of the leading lights in the Canadian political firmament. We recalled Messrs. Mowat, Meredith, Macdonald, Miller, Mackenzie, Macpherson, Mousseau, Mercier and others. A similar observation has been made regarding the letter "G" which introduces the following prominent men:—Messrs. Gladstone, Grevy, Grant, Granville, Graham, Gordon, Gambetta, and Garibaldi.

IN DISCHARGING the jury that acquitted Wrightman charged at London with the murder of Grant Silcox, Mr. Justice Burton said he was afraid there had been a miscarriage of justice, owing to the bungling manner in which the preliminary steps had been taken. The murdered man in this case before dying uttered the words "It was Wrightman." This case contrasts with Judge Patterson's commendation of the way in which the preliminary steps in the Lazier murder case were taken.

EPISODE AT WHITBY.

A Young Salvationist Skips out with a Female Soldier.

WHITBY, May 18.—This town is highly excited over the amorous propensities of George Story, a young man from Lindsay. Story has been in the town for a few weeks, and has filled every position in the Salvation Army except the captaincy. He could beat the soul-stirring drum in a manner that would win him distinction in a fife and drum corps. Story accompanied his exhortations at times with sand-jigs, and he was one of the drawing cards in the army. But Whitby will know him no more. A father and mother mourns the loss of a daughter, and the propietor of the Ontario House mourns the loss of a board bill. Story has skipped out with a young lady who has taken a very prominent part in the army proceedings. She was well known in the town and her escapade has caused a great deal of gossip.

WOMEN AS PREACHERS

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—The Methodist Episcopal Conference to-day took up the report of the committee on itinerancy relative to licensing women to preach. The report takes the ground that it is inexpedient to take action as to licensing women to preach, or ordaining them. Rev. Dr. Ives of Central New York offered a substitute setting forth that the conference is not prepared to sanction the ordaining of women, but approves of licensing them to exhort and preach under authority of the quarterly conference, After debate the substitute was lost, 126 to 222, and the resort adopted.

THE CHEESE MARKET.

The market in New York last week was rather moderate and uncertain, but the market continued to lean over toward buyers and the tone is certainly somewhat easier. Predisposed to look for a shading, shippers were encouraged by the lower range of cost at the ordinary markets, and they moved accordingly with bidding to-day slow, low, and cautious. Some lots have been engaged on a basis of 13c for fancy, but all these have yet to be examined and there seems to be a fear or an impression that they will prove more or less faulty, as the offerings show 12¾ as a top asking rate and some first rate goods sold at 12½c. On qualities below there is no fixed rates at all, and cost is simply a matter of negotiation though the tendency is mainly in buyers' favor. The cable quotation is unchanged but private advices are weak.

The receipt and exports of cheese since May 1st (the beginning of the trade year) compare as follows:

	Recta. Pkgs.	Expts. Lbs.
For week ending May 13	25,410	752,940
Same week 1883	25,8'2	772,360
Since May 1, 1884	43,306	1,539,767
Same time last year	42,558	1,263,388

BANCROFT CORRESPONDENCE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

BANCROFT, May 17.—On the 16th inst. this place was visited with a heavy fall of snow, lasting for several hours, generally in this district summer does not open out until after a good fall of the "beautiful," in the month of May, and people say the sooner it comes the better. Although it has been long delayed this season, vegitation though not forward is vigorous, the wet seasons suiting the soil of these parts. This fall of snow, according to the observations at the meterological station here completes the amount to ten feet for the winter of 1883-84. This seemingly large amount is not so much as has fallen in other places.

The Central Ontario Railway will be in a position to carry freight in a few days, as the rails are laid nearly to the last crossing on the Hastings road, north, this will, indeed, be a boon to the settlers who have had to pay so heavily for years for the transportation of heavy goods. In reference to railways about which there is at present so much agitation, the people of Madoc and Belleville ought to consider that for this north country those places are the natural outlet for their intercourse with the front. Their business connections are all in that direction. The law courts they must attend, the registry, and in fact all their other affinities and usages are confirmed in this groove, and they are conservative enough in this respect to desire no change, therefore it is desired that agitation shall not cease irrespective of politics until sufficient aid is obtained to place Hastings North and Belleville in due connection.

CRUSHED BY THE CARS.

A little son of John Spinks, Toronto, had his foot crushed by a G. T. R. Express train some time ago. Two doctors attended him without benefit. and amputation was proposed, but Hagyard's Yellow Oil was tried, which gave prompt relief and effected a speedy cure even removing all stiffness of the joint.

A DOUBLE BENEFIT

James Moore, a prominent resident of Leamington, writes that he cured himself of Dyspepsia of a year's duration by one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and two bottles cured his wife who had been for two years a sufferer from the same disease. He conscientiously recommends it to all suffering from similar troubles.

Every one speaks highly of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters as a Stomach Liver and Kidney Medicine. 'The best family medicine we ever used,' say they all. Try a bottle this Spring as a blood purifier.

INCOME AND PERSONALITY BEAR IT.

Series of Carefully Prepared and Valuable Tables.

On Saturday the City Assessor, Mr. F. Mackay, after three months' hard work, closed his labour in connection with the city assessment for 1884, and as will be seen by the figures below the result on the whole appears to be satisfactory. In three of the wards a decrease in the value of real estate is shown, but Mr. Mackay accounts for this from the fact that in Murney Ward as well as in a portion of the other wards, his valuation was placed on the property while the snow was on the ground and therefore he had not the opportunity of arriving at its correct value; but the total assessment shows an increase over last year of about $300,000, A * represents decrease:

The population it may safely said has not been correctly taken as it is the general opinion that the inhabitants of the city now number about 11,000. The Assessor in an interview with a reporter of THE ONTARIO stated that in no case did he take transient boarders as residents of the city while all the pupils at Loretto were absent on their holidays when he took the census. The statement therefore that the population is on the decrease is decidedly misleading. Mr. Mackay said that there were very few empty houses in the city and those that usually rent from $7 to $9 a month are in great demand, on account of their scarcity.

The number of children in the city between the ages of 5 and 16 years is 1791.

There are, according to these returns, only 229 dogs and one bitch, 256 cattle, 57 hogs and 439 horses.

SPORTING NEWS.

The adjourned meeting of the Oka Lacrosse Club will be held this evening at No. 2 Armory. At this meeting final arrangements for the season will be made and the ball set rolling.

At Napanee on Saturday in the match between the Napanee club and the Institute team, the toss was won by the Institute boys and they selected the north goal playing up the field with the wind. The ball was kicked off at 2:15 by the opposite side, and the rubber soon forced its way toward the Napanee goal, where it was kicked off by one of them securing a corner kick for Belleville. A. L. Waggoner made the kick and the ball passed between the flags. but the goal was not allowed. Play continued and another goal was made by them and disallowed but, at last, by a nice kick from Areby McLaren the Institute boys succeeded in scoring a goal after 19 minutes play. Shortly after, half time was called and, after 6 minutes rest, the ball went flying in every direction and from that time until the expiration of the contest the playing was very exciting and spirited, it seeming to be the determination of the Napanee boys to bring the result of the match to a tie or a victory, but in that they were disappointed. When time was called the victory was accorded the Institute boys by 1 goal to 0. The playing of W. Thompson, H. Dunning F. Young, H Daly, E. Pierson and N. Libbie, (goal keeper.) for the Napanee Club was really good, in fact, all acquitted themselves well. For the Institute club the individual playing of A. S. Waggoner, A. J. McLaren, W. Nurse, J. McKenzie, and S. Avarell was all that could be desired. The goal keeper, D. S. Canniff. assisted by his back and half backs R. Mathison, jr., J. Taylor, H. Sutherland and J Hadden, had an easy time of it although their playing would doubtless have been equally as good. After the game the visiting team was entertained to dinner. Mr. Warner, late of Cobourg University; acted as referee, and Mr. Fralick for the Napanee Club, and Mr. Brown for the home team as umpires.

The Oxford University team defeated the Australian cricketers by seven wickets.

J. H. Eads, Shefford, P. Q., writes: 'I have been troubled with liver complaint for several years and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it with horses in cases of cuts, wounds, &c.,—and I think it equally as good for horse as for man.

A DART FROM DEATH

Strikes Dead Stephen Gillum Without Warning

Stephen Fryler Gillum, nephew of Major Gillum died very suddenly at his residence on Taylor's hill, at six o'clock Saturday evening, of apoplexy. He was on the market Saturday morning and appeared to be in good health. At the tea table he was noticed to have a strange look but before his wife could catch him he fell over on the floor dead. The death was a remarkably sudden one, his this being first attack and was a terrible shock to his wife and four children. Deceased was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and was forty-one years of age.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Sermon by the New Pastor, Rev. J. J. Baker.

Rev. J.J. Baker, of McMaster Hall, Toronto, having accepted a call from the congregation of the Baptist Church, has entered upon his duties. He comes to Belleville very highly recommended and there is no doubt he will meet with that encouragement to which his ability and religious training entitles him. Last evening he preached a thoughtful sermon from the words: "And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up"—St. John 3-xiv. In these very words he said the Saviour referred to the manner of his death, and so in the same way was the brazen serpent lifted up for a purpose as an antidote to death. Moses was told to erect this serpent so that those who looked at it might live. It was a specific cure for those bitten in the wilderness, and God would have them live in this way by looking to Christ Jesus for salvation. "He that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out." The serpent was placed in the air so that all who chose might see it and be saved. Christ came into the world at the time when he was most needed. The cure for sin was a voluntary one but those who neglected it perished. The same was the case to-day. He exhorted them to put their trust in Him and have everlasting life.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.

It the Governor General proclaims a positive postponement of the celebration of the Queen's Birthday thereby tending to throw all existing arrangements throughout the country to the winds, it will indicate a lack of a proper conception of the fitness of things on his part. The holiday must now be kept whether in one way or the other. The Ontario Jockey Club announces that its meeting will take place as advertised proclamation, or no proclamation.

It will be learned with satisfaction from the proclamation in another column that His Worship, the Mayor, takes the sensible view that it is now too late to change Monday 26th from a holiday, and accordingly Belleville will honor Her Majesty as loyally on the 26th, as if some caprice had not emanated from the precincts of Windsor.

"UNCLE JOSH."

"The play and the actors appeal at once and directly to the feelings, and a phase of real life is presented to the audience in one of its most realistic forms."—Globe of May 17.

"Mr. Denman Thompson played to another delighted audience last night in "Joshua Whitcomb."—Mail May 17.

Press notices in the case of Den. Thompson are superfluous as he has a continental reputation as one of the best character actors on the stage, He is said to be well supported and a word should be said about his orchestra which it is claimed is the finest travelling. It has been greeted with repeated encores in other places and the cornet soloist is compared with Levy and Arbucle, such is his reputation.

This company appears in Belleville tomorrow evening.

THE ANNUAL DRILL.

It is learned from Capt. Ponton, Adjutant of the 49th Battalion, that the Brigade Camp for No. 4 District ordered to assemble for annual drill at Trenton on June 23, will last till July 4, inclusive, and include the following named corps only:—16th, 45th and 49th. There will be no cavalry and no artillery. This camp will be a very small one, considerably smaller than that of last year.

THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS.

A meeting of the Commercial Travellers Association was organized on Saturday evening. The officers appointed were: W. A. Hungerford, President; A. F. White, first vice-President; N. D. McArthur, second vice President; Sandford Johnston, Sec.-Treas; Executive Committee: Donald McLean, A. H. Vannorman, J. R. Mizel, J. M. Ross, and F. F. Brunum.

The Association decided to appeal to the Court of Revision against their assessment on income tax, and a committee composed of Messrs. Fred White, Sandford Johnston and Donald McLean with power to add to their numbers was appointed to lay their grievance before the aldermen.

FACT STRANGER THAN FICTION.

It is a fact that Alonzo Howe, of Tweed, had a fever sore that afflicted him for thirty-five years. Six bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters cured him, which he considers almost a miracle. It was but the natural result of the remedy restoring pure blood and perfect secretion.

The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labor. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficent For sale by all Druggists.

Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Whenever the blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of an prevailing epidemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished power should be ... these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce all erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, biliousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. The fruit season is especially prone to produce irritation of the bowels and disorder of the digestive organs; both of which dangerous conditions can be completely removed by Holloway's corrective medicines.

THE GREAT DR, DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. ... am satisfied the medicine is not injurious ... will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use ... preparation. The truth is, the medical preparation stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of these happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

THROUGH SNOW AND SUNSHINE:

OR

TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

'Ah, and so will all the world know in good time,' sobbed Dolly. 'Heaven will bring the truth to light at last. But you look ill, and you are in want, in days gone by, you helped us, and we'll help you now, won't we Tim?'

'Won't we, lass, won't we?' cried Tim. 'I'll work all the hours there be, and we'll share our last crust with him. Come, farmer, come home home with us. There's a bit of bacon in the pot: come and share it with us. Why, the first mouthful would choke I if you didn't.'

'My good honest people,' said Harry, in a husky voice; 'I can appreciate your kindness, and I thank you for it. But for the words I overheard as I lay hidden behind that tree, I had not revealed myself to you.'

'And why not, farmer? We don't believe what the world would say of you,' said Dolly.

'I will tell you, my kind friends. The sentence passed upon me was transportation for life. I was sent to the convict settlement to work in chains, but the longing to gaze for an instant on the face of my beloved Mary became stronger day by day and I resolved to escape.'

'And you have done it, hurrah!' cried Tim.

'Yes I escaped, reached England, and landed on my native shores, a beggar, and with the knowledge that every moment is frought with the danger of arrest and heavier punishment.'

'But they shan't arrest you.'

'My good friend, I know that you would shield me as far as your power goes, but of what avail is that? No, Tim, I cannot hope to baffle my enemies long. I came here to see, to speak but one word if possible to poor Mary, to hear from her own lips, that she still believes me innocent; they may drag me back to my chains then, if they will, for I shall have nothing further to live for.'

'Yes you have, farme,' cried Tim; 'you have to live to prove the lie that sent you across the seas.'

'Vain hope,' moaned Harry.

'But ye'll come home with us, farmer?' sobbed Dolly. 'Well hide you in our cottage.'

'Do not urge me, friends.' I will to the mill and seek an interview with Mary. Then I will give myself up to justice, for what care I for liberty or even life. if as I say, Mary to-morrow becomes the wife of another?'

'Give yourself up,' cried Tim: if you do, may I be hanged. Now look here farmer. time was when there was not a man in Hazlebberry as could stand afore you, as Master Brierley at the mill knows full well but you ain't so strong as you was, and if you don't come and let us take care of you may I never eat hard dumplings again, if me and Dolly don't carry you home, won't we missis?'

'We will' and I'd like to see the man as would prevent us,' answered Dolly. 'But you will come, farmer, and I will go and let Miss Mary know you are in the village, for if you was to go to the mill and Master Brierley was to see you he would have you arrested directly.

He be a smooth-spoken fellow, but there's no good in his heart, and with all his pretense, I believe he did more to fix the fire,'and poor Tim's misfortune on you than anybody else.'

'Did he, ah, did he?' cried Tim. 'I remember the look he gave you and the threat he uttered when you struck him, farmer, and I say he's a snake in the grass and so is his lickspittle follower, Josiah Nib.'

'You must keep clear of them two, and then I don't believe there's a man Hazleberry but would stand your friend, so come along.'

Harry still hesitated

'You wont, won't you?' said Dolly. 'Here Tim, catch hold of him him on one side and I'll take the other, and here's ten good finger nails for the face of the man who says you shan't come.'

'And here are a couple of fists to back 'em. Come farmer come you must, or hang me if I don't take you on my back and carry you.'

'God bless you my friends,' said Harry the tears starting to his eyes; 'and may your kindness meet it's reward.'

So saying, with Tin on one side and Dolly on the other, he suffered himself to be led away from the spot.

CHAPTER VI.

The shades of night had fallen on the snow-clad village of Hazlebberry.

The machinery of the old mill was at rest.

Refreshed by the substantial, though plain and homely meal placed before him by the good cottagers, Harry resolved to visit the mill that night, since an attempt on the part of Dolly to obtain an interview with Mary had failed.

Tim would have prevailed on Harry to wait, but the young farmer shook his head saying—

'Tim, to-morrow she will be the wife of another. I must see her ere she is led to the altar, I will risk even life itsself, to hold her in my arms for a moment, to tell her that while breath is left, my prayers are for her alone.'

Every ... who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies ... the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate degree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrup and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never ... of properly and judiciously administered. Prepared by Northrup & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all drugists.

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrub for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world Price 25 cents a bottle.

FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable tempraments. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of despepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high-colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully,

HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

AN EXPLANATION.

He came to ask for something? Yes!
A trifle! He could not express
Himself exactly, so * * * * he staid
Some time. You wondered what delayed?
You see * * * * I know it's childishness
To stand here blushing at my dress;
But—but it was a foolishness
That I've been trying to evade.
He came to ask!
'Twas very simple; can't you guess!
It had a "y" and "e" and "s."
He's so resolved, I can't dissuade
Him any longer, I'm afraid.
I'm here, mamma, dear, to confess—
He came to ask! —Life.

EXPERT CRITICISM.

THE GLARING FAULT THAT THE HORSE REPORTER DISCOVERED IN A LOVE STORY.

(From the Chicago Tribune.)

'Good day, gentlemen.'

A very nice looking young man stood in the doorway of the editorial room and gazed in a benign way at the occupants of the apartment.

'Would it be possible for me to sell the Tribune a story?' he continued.

'What kind of a story have you ground out?' asked the horse reporter.

'The story,' said the visitor, 'is one in which the triumph of love is depicted, and ——

'It isn't one of these 'and as Ethel stood there in the soft moonlight, her lithe figure sharply outlined against the western sky, there was a loud crash in Coastcliff Castle, and the girl knew that her mother had dropped the doughnut jar' kind of stories, is it? because they won't do,' said the horse reporter.

'There is nothing at all about doughnuts in the story,' replied the visitor, rather haughtily, 'but if you like I can read a portion of it.'

'All right.'

'Where shall I begin?'

'Anywhere,' replied the horse reporter. 'Suppose you give us the last sentence of it.'

'I should hardly think—'

'Oh never mind about that. We do all the thinking for young authors that come up here.'

The visitor seated himself and read as follows:

'For answer Gladys' beautiful eyes dropped, but she gave him both her hands, and there under the heavy fruited trees, the golden bees flying all about them, and the air filled with their dreamy monotone, he drew her upon his breast, and raising her ringlets to his lips, kissed the reverently,'

'That's the last sentence, is it?' asked the horse reporter.

'Yes sir.'

'I should hope it was. It makes me tired to read about such ducks.'

'Why I don't see—,' began the author.

'Of course you don't. Probably you were the hero of the novel. Did you ever hear of Thompson's colt,'

The visitor admitted his ignorance concerning the historic animal.

'Well Thompson's colt,' continued the horse reporter, 'was such an idiot that he swam across the river to get a drink. Now, that fellow in your story is a dead match for him.'

'I don't understand—'

'Probably not.' It is not to be expected of literary people. But I will tell you; this young fellow in your story is out under an apple tree holding a girl's hand, isn't he?

'Yes.'

'And according to the story, he raised her long ringlets to his lips and kissed them reverently. That's right?

'Certainly.'

'Now, what do you think of a young man that would go nibbling around a girl's back hair when she had her face with her? Such stories do not possess the fidelity to nature that should ever charterize the work of genius. No my genial imbecile; you cannot get the weight of this powerful journal on the side of any such young man as your story depicts. We were once young and up to the apple tree racket ourselves.'

'Good day,' said the author, starting for the door.

'So long was the response. 'Make George act like a white man in your story, and come around again.'

THE CAFE VOLTAIRE, PARIS.

Any man who knew the Cafe Voltaire knew that he was going to dine, not only on the fat of the land, but on the best morsels of that fat, at any of the threescore tables hidden away in their boxes like cabinets. Suggestive things could be seen in every nook and corner of the glorious old place—from the remarkable personage with pink ribbons and fluffy lace who sat at the comptoir, as one passed up the grand escalier, to the unobtrusive garcon-in-chief, whose pride it was to know every client entering the savory penetralia—a servant who grades the guests by the quality of the wine they drink. The privacy of a duke or a Vanderbilt could not exceed the impressive seclusion of the favored clientele, for whose coming certain cabinets always seemed in waiting. When seated therein, the solemn state of a prince could not be more perfect in the ancestral hall. Candelabra light the compact rooms; while engravings decorate the panels; the centre of the shining marquetry floor is covered with a rug adjusted to the size of the table; a square window, draped with thick stuff curtains, giver air, not light, to the scene. The chairs, high-backed and carved, suggest the spoil of luckless grands seigneurs, victims of the teachings of the patron saint, M. Arouet de Voltaire. Repose and luxury are the surroundings, and the feast insensibly takes the same tone.—From the Novel "Trajan," in The Manhattan.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

THE MINING LANDS OF HASTINGS.

Our local contemporary declines to be held responsible for the statements of its correspondent "Faraday," and repudiates the assertion that, "there is not now a good lot open for location or purchase for a party wishing to settle in Faraday." Nevertheless in commenting on the communication our contemporary said :—

In this communication the case is stated so clearly and so fully that no words of ours could add force to our correspondents narration.

We see no reason why our contemtemporary should not be held strictly responsible for every word in a letter fathered in this manner, and its attempt to make us believe that it has not been belittling Faraday and its resources is clumsy in the extreme.

We put one correspondent against another and pointed out that its regular Faraday correspondent wrote and our contemporary printed a letter in which the following statement occurs :—

"Settlers, I am glad to say, still continue to come into the municipality, and the population now exceeds a thousand."

We believe this correspondent in preference to the one to whose narration the Intelligencer could "add nothing.' It could add nothing to a statement highly damaging to the best interests of Faraday and North Hastings, a statement copied into the Mail and circulated throughout the land. Our contemporary asks us what we have to say to the charges. We have no personal knowledge any more than our neighbor has of the matter, but we know the explanation given below to be accurate and believe it to be satisfactory. The plain facts are there given for the first time.

THE COE CHARGES.

Below we reproduce from Saturday's Globe the facts relating to the charges against the Government brought by Mr. Wood M. P. P., respecting the Coe mining lands :—

"A correspondent who signs himself 'Settler in Faraday' has written an angry letter to the Belleville Intelligencer, charging the Ontario Government with effecting the sale of a large block of land in the townships of Limerick, Wollaston, and Faraday to Mr. William Coe, of Madoc, to the great hurt of settlers and settlement in North Hastings. The transaction is not very clearly stated by the writer, but he seeks to convey the impression that the Government has acted dishonestly and corruptly ; that Mr. Coe is a trickster) a monopolist, and a soulless grasper ; and that faith has been broken with the settler, who is now at Mr. Coe's mercy. This Faraday correspondent does not undertake to substantiate anything. * * * * *
Mr. Coe is one of the best known men in Hastings. He is a practical and enterprising miner, and has done more than any one else to utilize the mineral wealth of his county. Having prospected for and discovered some valuable fields of iron ore in the townships of Wollaston, Limerick and Faraday, he organized a strong company of capitalists for their development. It was seen that the success of the undertaking must depend on the facilities with which the iron markets could be reached, and to this end the company resolved to build a railway. The charter of the Central Ontario was procured, and with their own means they have built a first-class road of ninety miles in length, from Weller's Bay, on Lake Ontario, to the mining lands in the township of Wollaston. They neither asked for nor received any aid from the Government nor the municipalities, although their road confers great advantages on the farmers and lumbermen of the county, and gives a largely enhanced value to the Crown lands there.

The ores taken from the mines of the Company are of a superior quality, and have been eagerly sought after and used in considerable quantities by furnacemen and owners of smelting works in the United States. It is from these magnetic ores, when reduced by charcoal, Sir William Logan observes in his Geology of Canada, that the finest iron in the world is manufactured ; and it cannot be doubted, he adds, that skilled capital and labor will one day make the iron mines of Canada great sources of national wealth. Mr. Coe and his partners are of the same opinion, and they have been anxious to establish in the vicinity of the mines smelting works of sufficient capacity to reduce the ore as fast as it is taken out, But as enormous quantities of charcoal are required for smelting purposes the company were anxious to be possessed of a permanent supply of fuel in their own right and accordingly they, two years ago, applied to the Department of Crown Lands for the purchase of 100,000 acres of land in the three townships in which their mining lands are situated. Subsequently, in a petition on the subject to the Governor in Council, they represented that—

"They must have sufficient territory to make them independent in their supplies of charcoal for some years, as otherwise the capital expended in the erection of expensive works would be lost, as it would never do to depend for their supplies of this article outside of their own property, as their having command of this article is as much a necessity as having the iron ore itself."

The Comissioner of Crown Lands favoured the application so far as it related to lands unfit for agricultural purposes, but ordered an examination of them to be made by an experienced and reliable inspecting officer of his department. The report of this officer, which was made lot by lot, showed that of 100,000 acres applied for there were 51,533 acres unfit for settlement." Mr. Pardee's share in the transaction, and the reasons which influenced him, are stated in his report to the Executive Council :—

"The undersigned is of opinion that the application, so far as it relates to the lands reported unfit for settlement, should be granted and the following considerations occur to him as some of the reasons therefor :—

"The erection and conducting of smelting furnaces, as contemplated by the applicants would undoubtedly provide employment for a large number of men, as well in connection with the cutting and hauling of wood for the manufacture of charcoal, as in connection with the furnaces themselves ; would provide a market for a large amount of labor ; would induce immigration into the country adjacent to the mines and aid materially its settlement, which in fact could not probably be brought about so rapidly in any other way and besides would, in the opinion of the undersigned add to the value of the land in the surrounding townships.

"The lands being of little or no value from an agricultural point of view, would in all probability never be occupied for farming purposes, and could not therefor be put to better use than to assist in the project mentioned in the present application, the granting of which would not reduce the amount of cultivable land open for settlement. These lands are at present also subjtct to injury from bush fires, and if not sold or disposed of for some such purpose as that proposed in the application, would yeild nothing to the public revenue, and would be of little benefit in any way to the Province.

"The desirability is conceded of aiding in every legitimate and proper way in the development of the mineral resources of the Province, and the establishment of smelting works in connection with the mines in question would give a great impetus to the mining industries of Ontario. It would also contribute to the prosperity of the country in other ways. Hitherto the iron ore produced in the Province has been exported to the United States and if re-imported it is in the shape of pig iron and other raw forms, or in the manufactured article itself, whereas if the ore can be successfully smelted at the place of production, as the applicants allege, and as the undersigned believes, not only would the cost of transportation both ways be saved, but the necessary labor and capital would be employed within our own Province."

REGULATING IMMIGRATION.

THE ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY OF MONTREAL TAKES ACTION.

Montreal, May 20.—A general meeting of the St. George's Society was held last night to receive the report of the investigation into the cases of immigrants reported to have been induced to leave England by misrepresentations. After receiving the statements of some immigrants present, and a full discussion by the meeting, including some of the city clergymen, the following resolution was adopted : —"That this meeting directs St. George's Society to put itself into communication with the other national societies with the object of devising means of of establishing public opinion in England as to the class of immigrants who are needed in this country, and also of impressing on the Dominion Government the absolute necessity of providing some shelter for needy immigrants on their arrival

FOR BREACH OF PROMISE.

He doubts her Affection and Retreats—$250 Damages.

Montreal, May 20.—Judgement in the case of Demers vs. Hebert was rendered in in the Superior Court yesterday. Mr. F. X. Hebert, a man of fifty, courted Miss Rose D. Demers, of thirty-five ; and at last the matter came to this point, that a notary was called in to draw up a marriage contract, Hebert was going to provide an annuity of $200 to his wife in case of his dying first ; but, owing to the persistence of her father and herself, he concluded to settle on his wife the house in which they were going to live. Suspecting from this incident that she 'she did not love him.' but had more interested motives for wanting his hand, Hebert consulted his notary, who confirmed his fears. He then went to his cure, who advised him to postpone the money until an understanding was arrived at. Herbert then went to the young lady, told her what he thought about the sincerity of her affection, and asked to see her trousseau in order to pay for it and so be rid of the engagement. She refused, and showed much grief at the situation, He left ; and after waiting nearly three months, she sent a reminder to her intended, in the shape of a lawyer's letter demanding damages. After that, Herbert made some advances with a view to renewing the courtship, and she asked him to visit her at her father's house. But the negotiations fell through, the law was invoked; and yesterday Judge Mathieu condemned Herbert to pay $250 to Miss Demers as damages for breach of promise. His Honor remarked that the gentleman should have assured himself of the lady's affection before going so far as to sign a marriage contract.

WHAT'S IN A NAME

Scrofula so called from the Latin scrofa, a pig, from the supposition that the disease came from eating swine's flesh It is often inherited from parents, and leads to abcesses, ulcerous sores, debility, king's evil and consumption. The case of the Rev. Wm. Stout, of Wairton, who suffered 23 years from scrofulous abscesses, is one of the most remarkable on record. Burdock Blood Bitters cured him after the best medical skill had failed.

STRICKEN WITH REMORSE.

WILLIAM CARON ATTEMPTS TO TAKE HIS LIFE.

Montreal, May 20.—Yesterday afternoon when William Caron reached his home on St. Elizabeth street, after a long morning spent in fishing, the first thing he heard was that his younger brother had died while he was so enjoying himself. The natural grief which this announcement caused was intensified, no doubt, by the stirring of an accusing conscience and crying out that if he could not see his brother alive he would see him dead, William started for the river. Another brother ran to the police station, and the sergeant in charge sent out the biggest policeman to put a stop to the theatened suicide. He did it. Instead, therefore of consigning himself to the cold waters of the river, stern fate and the policeman consigned William to a whitewashed cell. This morning the Magistrate sent him up to stand his trial before a jury.

SWEET-MINDED WOMEN.

So great is the influence of a sweet minded woman on those around her that it is almost boundless. It is to her that friends come in seasons of sickness and sorrow for help and comfort. One soothing touch of her kindly hands works wonders in the feverish child ; a few words let fall from her lips in the ear of a sorrowing sister do much to raise the load of grief that is bowing its victim down to the dust in anguish. The husband comes home worn out with the pressure of business and feeling irritable with the world in general, but when he enters the cosy sitting-room and sees the blaze of the bright fire and meets his wife's smiling face he succumbs in a moment to the soothing influences, which act as the balm of Gilead to his wounded spirit. We are all wearied with combatting with the realities of life. The rough schoolboy flies in rage from the taunts of his companions to find solace in the mother's smile ; the little one, full of grief, with its own large trouble, finds a haven of rest on its mother's breast ; and so one may go on with instances of the influence a sweet-minded woman has in the social life with which she is connected. Beauty is an insignificant power when compared with hers.—[London Truth.

A SAD CALAMITY.

Three Persons Roasted Alive at Sharbot Lake.

A GIRL FATALLY INJURED

Sharbot Lake, May 19.—George Peters' house was burned at 1 o'clock this morning. Peters and his daughter of 8 years and a young woman named Brigden were burned to death. The fire was caused by a coal oil lamp falling down stairs from the hands of Peters, firing the stairway. A son of 18 got up and threw a pail of water on, spreading the flames rapidly. Mrs. Peters made her way down stairs through the flames, followed by her daughter of 20, who it is feared is fatally burned about the back and shoulders. Mrs. Peters was slightly burned about the shoulder. Her son and some workmen boarders made their escape, but Peters, his little daughter and Miss Bridgen perished in the flames upstairs. Very little of the bodies can be found. The household effects and clothing were burned.

INFLUENCE OF WOMAN'S SOCIETY.

It is better for you, says Thackeray, to pass an evening once or twice in a lady's drawing room, even though the conversation is slow, and you know the girl's songs by heart, than in a club, tavern, or the pit of a theatre. All amusements of youth to which virtuous women are not admitted, rely on it, are deleterious in their nature. All men who avoid female society have dull perceptions. and are stupid, or have gross tastes, and revolt against what is pure. Your club swaggerers, who are sucking the butts of billiard cues all night, call female society insipid. Poetry is insipid to a yokel, beauty has no charms for a blind man ; music does not please a poor beast who does not know one tune from another ; and as a true epicure is hardly ever tired of water-souchy and brown bread and butter, I protest I can sit for a whole night talking to a well-regulated, kindly woman about her girl coming out, or her boy at Eton, and like the evening's entertainment. One of the great benefits a man may derive from women's society is that he is bound to be respectful to them. The habit is of great good to your moral man, depend upon it. Our education makes us the most eminently selfish men in the world. We fight for ourselves, we push for ourselves, we yawn for ourselves, we light our pipes and say we wont go out. We prefer ourselves and our ease ; and the greatest good that comes to a man from a woman's society is that he has to think of somebody besides himself, somebody to whom he is bound to be constantly attentive and respectful.

THE SECRET OUT

The secret of beauty has been at last revealed. Without good health, pure blood and a fair clear skin none can possess good looks. STOCKS. — The Felt hat market in Belleville at present is in an excited state prices running low on account of the very large stocks on hand. Desirable styles are going off fast at Hyman's at 15 per cent. discounts, while those not quite so good are going off at very low rates. Should the demand so continue for a couple of weeks stocks will all be cleared out. The largest and best assorted stock we find is held by S. A. Hyman.

SPOKES FROM THE WHEEL.

I'm going to win something on the 26th.—54 Cooper.

I am now a full blown wheelman.—"Ted" Corby.

It is proposed to make a direct road for cyclists from London to Brighton.

Some wheels from Kingston and Napanee are expected here on the 26th.

A wholesome run into the country was enjoyed by several riders on Sunday.

It is expected that 2 000 bicycles will attend the Washington meeting of the League of American Wheelmen.

The latest owners of wheels are Messrs. Knight, Cooper and Scantlebury. Mr. Knight rides a 52 Burlington, Mr. Cooper a 54 Pilot, and Mr. Scantlebury a 50 Pilot.

Mr. David Yorke of Cobourg riding a 56 and Mr. Richardson of Trenton riding a 50 and Mr. Weir of Madoc have signified their intention of competing in the open races here. The more the merrier.

Speaking of the Belleville Tournament the Mail says, "The program seems to have been got up with much judgment." Ahem—have a cigar? The Mail misstates the date. It the 26th not the 24th.

The interest in the approaching races is getting warm and will reach fever heat this week. A query sometimes put "who's the favorite in the betting for the Corby Cup," is out of place, as amateur bicycling is not accompanied by betting and the races are governed only by a spirit of pleasant rivalry.

ACCIDENT AT WALLBRIDGE.

WALLBRIDGE, May 20.—A boy about fifteen years old, son of Mr. MacGregor who lives on Mr. Daniel Wright's farm near here, met with a serious accident while leading a young horse from the field on Sunday evening. The horse became frightened while passing over a fence, and dragged the boy some distance by the halter, but finally releasing himself ran away. The boy's arm was found to be broken below the elbow and he was at once taken to Frankford where the fractured limb was attended to. He is doing well.

Measles and chicken pox have made their appearance in this locality, one or two families being affected so far.

The Hallelujah Band conducted a series of very successful meetings in Frankford on Sunday last.

CITY COUNCIL.

Ald. Diamond's Assessment Resolution Lost.

NEW STANDS FOR CARTERS.

A regular meeting of the City Council was held last night, His Worship the Mayor in the chair. Present—Ald. Petrie, Clarke, Alford, J. W. Johnson, Tickell, Baker, Graham, Pringle, L. Johnson, Cooper, Diamond, Macoun, Vandusen, Hanley, LaRoche, Pringle, Davis, Biggar and Pope.

The Harbor Master reported that he had examined the bar west of the light house house, and found on an average seven feet of water across the shoal. The length that would be necessary to dredge in order to allow the ferry to run on that route all the season would be a quarter of a mile. The bar he said was composed of gravel stone and clay.

PETITIONS AND REPORTS.

Geo. Cummins and others petitioned the Council asking for repairs to the west side of Great St. James Street.

Ald. Biggar presented a petition from the Opera House Company with reference to taxes,

A petition from A. R. Dougal and one hundred and eighty others, asking that the drain on Hotel Street be covered where it is not covered, which they claimed was necessary from a sanitary point of view.

The authorities of the Kingston hospital intimated that no patients would be received into the hospital from municipalities who did not contribute towards the support of the same.

The Women's Christian Association reported that their disbursements for the month of April were $143.76.

THE FIREMEN'S PARADE.

The report of the Executive Committee appropriating $60 for the firemen's celebration on the Queen's Birthday, was opposed by Ald. Macoun, who, under the circumstances thought the grant should be increased to $75. Ald. Diamond did not think it advisable to raise the grant more than it had been in years past, $60, Ald. Alford was in favor of making the sum $75 this year, which was carried.

Ald. Pope said the western dial of the city clock was broken and any storm was liable to blow out pieces of the glass, which would be certain death to any person they might fall upon.

Ald. Petrie said a new dial would be purchased as soon as the weather was favorable.

The answer to Ald. Diamond, Ald. Macoun said the repairs to No. 1 fire station would be completed in a few days to the satisfaction of the committee, when a new lease would be drawn up by next meeting of council.

THE ASSESSMENT QUESTION.

Ald. Diamond introduced a By-law amending a rule of the council compelling the Executive Committee to bring down their estimates by the last Monday in April. His amendment proposed that the estimates should be brought down at as early a date as possible when the assessment and collections take place within the same year. The amendment was strongly opposed by Ald. Vandusen, Pope, J. W. Johnson and Biggar. They concluded during discussion, that the present mode of assessing was a correct one, and a great improvement over the old system advocated by Ald. Diamond. After a great deal of discussion the amendment was lost on the following division:

Yeas: Ald, Baker, Clarke, Diamond, L. Johnson, Macoun and Petrie—6.

Nays: Ald. Alford, Biggar, Cooper, Graham, Hanley, J. W. Johnson, Pope, Pringle, Tickell and Vandusen—10.

CARTERS STANDS.

A By-law introduced by Ald. Tickell, fixed the three carter's stands, as follows; one on the north side of Campbell Street along the old opera house block; another on the south side of Hotel Street along Geen's drug store; and a third one on the east side of Pinnacle Street running northerly from Campbell Street to the steps leading to the court house. There was a great deal of discussion over the propriety of the selection of these stands when the by-law was finally referred to the By-law Committee.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Ald. Diamond moved that tenders be asked for printing the auditors report; carried.

Ald. Alford gave notice of a motion withdrawing any offer that had been made to the Rathbun Company for the sale of Mill Island.

Ald Diamond asked the different Chairman of the other Committees to furnish him by next meeting with a statement of the monies they require for the current year.

The Council adjourned.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.

The Governor General's private Secretary writes that the celebration of Her Majesty's birthday on the 28th of June has reference to the official celebration only. This was the surmise of the ONTARIO last week. The 24th of May will be the public celebration. The banks will have to keep the 28th of June, and will not have to observe the 24th of May.

J. H Eads Sherbrooke, P. Q., writes: "I have been troubled with liver complaint for several years and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until I tried Dr Thomas' Electric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it with horses in cases of cuts, wounds, &c.—and I think it equally as good for horse as for man.

He will be trained on the Rochester track by Billey Black and sold, providing a satisfactory offer is made. He is one of the best if not the best trotters raised in this county.

Three sprint runners and palace dry goods clerks wagered fifty cents each yesterday in a contest on the bicycle track. The stipulations were that the winning man should take the "pot," the distance to be three times around the course. The inclemency of the weather, no doubt, had the effect of making the gate receipts what they were, nil, but after half an hours' hard struggle the excitement subsided and the winning man started for home without his shoes to get an application of St. Jacobs Oil. There are no fears for his recovery, but he wants leave of absence for a month.

STAGE NOTES.

A London cable letter of Saturday says:—To-night there was standing room only at the Lyceum, notwithstanding that it is the fourth week of Richelieu. In spite of all reports to the contrary, Mr. Barrett will play the same part for five weeks

The Italian opera moves quietly in expectation of the reappearance of the very big guns. Albani has been highly welcomed, and Sembrich is still popular. Patti is taking it easy in her Welsh home.

Mr. Henry E Abbey proposes to manage the Lyceum Theatre in person next fall. He pins his faith in the success of the venture upon the prestige of Mary Anderson, and has abandoned Lawrence Barrett, who will hereafter conduct his own affairs.

Mr. Irving's "Impressions of America," by Joseph Hattom, is fairly well received by the press, which publishes copious extracts containing Mr. Irving's remarks. The book is pronounced entertaining, with too many accounts of receptions and quotations of criticising, but containing much that is novel and interesting. Another biography of Mr. Irving, by Frederick Daly appears to-day.

The Tribune special says:—Mr. Irving's welcome continues most brilliant. Private invitations have been so numerous as to become embarrassing. He is engrossed in preparations for re-opening the Lyceum Theatre.

A DREADFUL CALMITY.

A What, escaping from its keepers, was walking down the street and occasionally mingling in a feeble way with the Human Beings who jostled by when it met a lonely It surrounded by a newmarket.

'Ah, deah boy,' said the What, 'wah's mattah with you? Twousahs bag like a sailahs, dont y' know?'

'Alas,' replied the heart-broken It. 'Dweadful isn't it? Y' see, they come home new lawst night don't y' know, and my valet he pulled them on the tongs to stwetch them and he's made perfect bags of them, don't y' know. An' I just want to die, deah boy, pon honah, I do now.'

And shedding a tear as large as a pea, the unhappy It was drowned in its briny depths.

TREBELLI IN TORONTO.

Speaking of last night's concert the World says of the prima donna:—Mme. Trebelli received an enthusiastic greeting on her appearance. She sang Di Tanti Palpiti by Rossini. She has a voice of unprecedented fullness and breadth of tone, and her several solos were sung in a very artistic manner, and were highly appreciated by her hearers, but her voice can scarcely be said to be a sympathetic one. It seemed to lack that quality which controls the feelings of an audience and holds them under its sway. Notwithstanding this, however, her numbers were executed with great vivacity and fervor, and the audience showed their appreciation of her efforts by repeated recalls. For an encore she gave Gound's Chantez Dormez Pure.

IMPORTANT CHANGES

There are two periods in the life of every female when the system undergoes great changes. First, the change from childhood to womanhood; next, that of womanhood to old age. These are critical changes of life, and the system should be nourished and regulated by that matchless tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters. It is invaluable in all diseases peculiar to females.

FRAUDULENT TRANSACTIONS

There are many frauds perpetrated in medicine, and many advertised remedies worse than useless. Not so with Hagyard's Yellow Oil. It remains as ever the best internal and external medicine for all pain, soreness and injuries with which human flesh is afflicted.

A pushing London tradesman has asked through the papers for twenty bald-headed men willing to have an advertisement of a patent medicine burned on the backs of their heads.

THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. am satisfied the medicine is not injurious will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use the preparation. The truth is, the medical preparation stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of these happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

THROUGH SNOW AND SUNSHINE:

OR

TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

'Well,' said Tim, 'if you will go you must I suppose; but you shan't go alone. If danger assails you, I'll be there to help you. I heard from Joe Grist that Brierley said that he was going to Diptown to-night, and shouldn't get back till late, so there ain't much fear of running against him, but there's that sneak Nib. If he recognises you, you may want a friend.'

You are a good fellow to show much kindness to a man who for aught you know struck you down.'

'Don't you talk that way, farmer, because if you swore you did, I wouldn't believe you.'

'God bless you, Tim,' he said. 'I have one friend at least, in this world.'

'Two, Master Harry—myself and Tim; and I'll stick up for you. see if I don't,' said Dolly.

Harry could only express his thanks by a fervent pressure of the hand, and then he and Tim stole out of the cottage and turned their steps towards the mill.

One solitary light streamed from the window of an upper apartment of the mill.

All the rest was in darkness.

On this light Harry fixed his eyes. He knew it to be the apartment of Mary, and his heart beat almost audibly as he gazed toward it.

'And to-morrow she will be another's,' he muttered to himself. 'Does she ever give one thought to the man who loves her so dearly?'

A deep sigh broke from his lips.

'Master Harry, it won't do for you to come upon her too sudden like,' said Tim.

'We'll get into the mill by the little door in the wheel-house, and get up through the trap into the corn floor, and then I'll find my way up to her room and break your presence quietly to her, for if she should see you before she knows you've returned, it may spoil all.'

'True Tim. I will leave it to you.'

'You had better, seeing as how I'm an older married man now, and aint so likely to make a mess of it as you are. All's quite. Keep close to the wall. Here we are, and the door's on the latch. It's precious dark, but if you go steady, you'll be all right.'

And Tim pulled open the little door, and drew Harry into the dark wheel-house.

'Now wait until I get a light,' said Tim, or you'll be slipping through on to the stones and get under the wheel.'

And Tim by means of a flint and steel, struck a light and ignited a piece of candle.

They saw the ladder leading to a trap door leading to the corn floor, and looking down perceived, the large grinding stones through an opening at their feet. Holding the candle, Tim mounted the ladder, listened, raised the trap and peered into the layge apartment, in which were many sacks of corn.

'All right,' he said, leaping through the trap.

The next moment the young farmer stood by his side.

Don't let down tee trap, in case we should want to get out of this sharp,' said Tim.

'Now, you take the light and stay here, while I crawl up the stairs to Mary's door.

'I don't want the light, Iknow the way to the living room well enough—the stairs are juse out side the door yonder, you know.'

'Yes, yes,' said Harry, But be careful how you break the news of my escape, and implore her to see me, if but for one moment.'

'Let me alone for that. She'll see you. I wish it was you she was going to marry to-morrow instead of that Brierley.'

'No more Tim, the thought is agony to me. And yet it is selfish of me to envy another that which I cannot myself possess.

Tim did not reply, but crossed the apartment towards a door that opened on to a staircase leading to the upper apartments.

His hand was on the latch, when he paused and drew back quickly. The sound of heavy footsteps fell plainly on his ears.

With his face pale as death, and his heart beating, Tim sprang back to the side of Harry.

'Someone comes. Quick; put out the light. Hide yourself in the wheel-house, Away or you will be discovered.'

'No, I will see her if I die the next instant,' replied Harry.

'You will betray yourelf, cried Tim, blowing out the light, 'Quick—quick!'

And as he spoke he forced Hary back to the trap. A light streamed into the apartment through the crack of the door. Urged by Tim Harry hastily descended the ladder to the wheel-house.

Tim was about to follow but it was too late to do so without being seen. As the door opened, and the light of a lamp streamed over the place, the carter sprang behind some sacks of corn and crouched down.

Only just in time, for Brierley entered, holding a lamp in one hand and a gun in the other. His face was pale, and his eyes shone with an unnatural gleam. His hand too, trembled violently as he set the lamp down on a bench, just opposite the door, and looked around the place.

Examining the gun, he placed it between two of the sacks of corn, ane paced up and down the floor. Then he paused and looked at the trap door.

Every ho walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more tham fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate degree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrup and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the xact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never of proply and judicirusly adm ns ered. Prepared by Northrup & Lyman, oronto, and sold by all drugists.

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrub for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world Price 25 cents a bottle.]

FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable tempraments. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of despepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high-colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co s. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully,

HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

I DOUBT IT.

When a pair of red lips are upturned to your own.
With no one to gossip about it,
Do you pray for endurance to leave them alone?
Well, maybe you do—but I doubt it.

When a sly little hand you're premitted to seize
With a velvety softness about it,
Do you think you can drop it with never a squeeze?
Well, maybe you can—but I doubt it.

When a tapering waist is in reach of your arm,
With a wonderful plumpness about it,
Do you argue the point 'twixt the good and the harm?
Well, maybe you do—but I doubt it.

And if by these tricks you should capture a heart,
With a womanly sweetness about it,
Will you guard it, and keep, it and act the good part?
Well, maybe you will but I doubt it.

A LAKESIDE MUSING.

(From the Chicago Tribune

'My husband!'

'My darling wife!'

The murmurous gurgling of a large, octagonal, high water kiss was the only sound that broke the silence which followed these words; and as the woman stood there, close pressed in the arms of the man for whose sake she had given up all the comforts of a happy home, with two hired girls and a clothes wringer, all nature seemed hushed in that deep, impressive silence which is so characteristic of being still. The ruddy glow of an October sunset still lingered in the western sky, and as the rose light that flamed up from below the horizon fell upon the earth it limned in rich colors the haggard outlines of last year's hoopskirt that lay cold and pallid on the grassy sward that stretched away to the west of Perkinsville-on-Bitter-Creek.

That pretty Annie afterwards should have fallen in love with Lord Ronald Hetherly was not strange, but that she should have consented to a secret marriage none of her friends would have believed. Overcome by her passionate wooing, she had agreed that their union should remain a secret until Lord Ronald's father, a man of 70, had stepped out into the great hereafter in search of the unknowable what. But she had tired of waiting, and had decided to demand of her husband that their marriage be made public. He had met her at the old trysting-place in the dell beyond the haystack, and it was under these circumstances that the words with which this chapter opens were spoken.

Twining her arms about her husband's neck, Annie looked to him with tender wistfulness. 'When will you acknowledge me as your wife?' she asked.

For answer he drew her up to him and kissed her lovingly, but she did not return his embrace, 'I have a right to know she said.' 'I am not impatient, only let the time be fixed You will do that, will you not?'

'Yes,' he says, 'I will proclaim our union to all the world in time.'

'But when,' she asked; 'when will you do this?'

Glancing hastily at the headlines of a paper which he holds in his hands, Lord Ronald says to her in low, sepulchral tones that thrill her very soul:

'When the Jeannette inquiry is concluded.'

ALCOHOLISM AND DEATH.

Our esteemed contemporary the Hamilton Spectator refuses to be classed as an advocate of intemperance, and says temperance is a good thing. Then proceeding to define it's position says:

> We contend that the prohibition advocates are extravagant in language and wrong in aim. We have endeavored to show of late that if they would strive to improve domestic cooking and in other ways to attract men to their own firesides, they would do more for real temperance than by making excited harrangues on public platforms.

This is rather intemperate language of itself. It is too general; too sweeping. Are all prohibition advocates extravagant in language? Do they all make "excited public harangues?" We think the majority of temperance men are temperate and charitable in speech. Our contemporary thinks that it finds all the deaths resulting from an abuse of liquor under the head of "alcoholism" in statistical returns, but every one knows that the habit induces dozens of diseases and facilitates the fatal progress of many others. Apoplexy may mean one thing or another, but it often means a direct result from over indulgence in strong liquor. No physician ever records "softening of the brain" in his certificate of the cause of death, but we all know that the disease is too often caused by strong drink. Our contemporary is decidedly wrong in its premises.

Reports from the west, says the Winnipeg Sun, say the wheat is looking well. At Maple Creek, the blades of a forty-acre field were three inches high. The weather along the line is not warm but the farmers are satisfied with it. In Southern Manitoba seeding is over. The wheat acreage everywhere has been largely increased and more land than usual devoted to roots and barley.

There is an invention spoken of which it is thought may abolish the bit. It is called the carrago, or anti horse torture. It is composed of a steel band placed over the front bone of the horse's nose, and to this appliance the reins are attached. The inventor claims for the substitute for the bit that it gives complete control to the driver over the horse without inflicting the least discomfort or torture on the animal itself. It has been tried with satisfactory results.

The Dominion fisheries statistics for last year have just been issued. The total catch was $16,958,192, an increase of $134,100 over the previous year. The increases were in Nova Scotia, Quebec, and Ontario, the other Provinces showing a greater or less decrease, the greatest being in Prince Edward Island, where the catch was about 30 per cent. less than last year. The largest catch was of cod, the value of which was no less than $4,507,110. The value of fish caught in Ontario was $1,027,032 or $201,575 more than last year. The most valuable fish in Ontario is trout, the catch of which was worth $354,692, or about 75 per cent. more than last year.

HOW THE GIRLS GO TO GLORY.

The Mayor o. St. Paul is an accommodating person. He has fixed things to suit both the preachers and the saloonaties, having decreed that the saloons shall be closed on Sunday in the forenoon, while church services are being held, and open in the afternoon. This arrangement gives the bartender a chance to go to church.—Hamilton Spectator.

THEY WERE ENGAGED TWICE.

BUT SHE AT LENGTH SUES HIM FOR BREACH OF PROMISE.

An interesting case tried at the London assizes was that of Frank v. Munro, in which the plaintiff, Miss Frank, claimed $5,000 for breach of promise of marriage. Miss Frank lives in Strathroy, and is 25 years of age. Defendant is an employee of the C. P. R. He was engaged to Miss Frank some years ago and went to the Northwest, and she heard nothing of him for three years, when he returned and was accepted as a lover the second time. The day was fixed for the marriage, but defendant suddenly disappeared and she did not see him again until the trial. The jury assessed the damages at $1,000.

THE FRANCHISE BILL CARRIED FOR IRELAND.

Sir Stafford Northcote and about twenty of his followers left the house without voting, and Gladstone was sustained by a vote of 332 to 137.

SHARBOT LAKE TRAGEDY.

Additional Particulars of the Fire Which Consumed Three.

AND BURNED OTHERS BADLY.

Further particulars of the holocaust at Sharbot Lake are given in the Whig. The sufferers are at the house of Mrs. Reynolds. Maggie Peters was the most severely burned, Her arms were a mass of blisters, and in places the flesh was exposed and blackened. Her back, too, was black from her neck down, and filled with soot. It was one great livid sore. Her sufferings were intense, but she was quite conscious.

ESCAPE OF THE WOMEN

After the fire had been burning briskly she and her mother, a woman of fifty, escaped down the stairway, and in passing the flames their night clothes were ignited and partially burned off. Not seeing the other occupant members of the family coming out, Maggie rushed back, climbed the stairway and tried to open the window at the head of it. While thus engaged she fell backward, partially suffocated Her night dress again took fire. As she fell down the stairs her back was greatly injured, the skin being scraped off. She happily fell on her feet and rushed out of the building. She was quickly removed to a neighbor's house, and Dr. Coutlee did all he could to alleviate her sufferings. Three inches of cotton batting had to be placed over the wounds before she could lie down. She was wrapped in batting soaked in oil, and was easier yesterday morning. She will be removed to the General Hospital. Mrs. Peters was not so badly burned. Her arms and shoulders were scorched and she was greatly shocked by the event When she ran down down the stairway she alarmed her two sons, sleeping below, and told one of them to throw a pail of water on

THE BURNING OIL.

This he did instead of smothering it out. The sons safely escaped, Mrs. Peters says the lamp was on the floor, and that she and Peters were up. The lamp was upset but how she would not tell, The boarders were in an extension to the house, and when the alarm was given lit out. One of them lost $16, most of it in silver coin, Some of it was afterwards found and blackened quarters were traded off for bright ones with persons who desired relics of the tragedy, All the inmates escaped in their night clothing. Those who perished in the flames were:—George Peters aged 60, Mary Ann Brigden aged 16 and Christina Peters aged 16.

RECOVERY OF THE BODIES.

The bodies of the girls were burned to a crisp, only a few charred bones remaining. During the day these were picked up and placed in a box 4x2 feet. The remains of Mary Ann Brigden were found lying across those of Peters, whose body was not so badly burned. He legs and head were gone however. The sons are anxious to have an inquest held. Peters was a worthless character and continually drunk. The hotel keeper at the Lake has refused to give him liquor for three months.

VERDICT FOR THE PAPER.

GIVEN IN A CLERICAL LIBEL SUIT AT LONDON.

A London Ontario telegram says:—At the assizes here the libel suit of Rev. Father Connelly against Wallace Graham, of the Parkhill Gazette, was heard. The alleged libel consisted of Graham publishing a paragraph stating that a Dr. McIlhargey, who had died from an overdose of morphine, had taken it himself in consequence of Father Connolly threatening to excommunicate him if he married his Protestant sweetheart. This Father Connolly denied in toto, and claimed $3,000 damages. Defendant put in the plea that it was a street rumor and he published it as such, not having time to verify it. The jury found for the defendant.

A DESPERATE SUICIDE.

How an Old Man Ended His Long Life.

VERY DELIBERATE IN PURPOSE.

Montreal, May 21.—Saul Bull, of Farnham Glen had attained to the age of 87, and for many years he peddled through the County of Brome. He went with a wooden leg, made by himself, having lost his limb at an early age. He was a man of active and sober habits, and was living with his son, Horsey Bull, at the time of his suicide. There was a little workshop near the house in which the old man worked in making shoes and mittens and in which shop he had a bed placed, being desirious of living and sleeping alone. On the day of the suicide he appeared to be in his usual health, but was very reticent. He had changed his clothing and had carefully attended to his toilet. At dinner he appeared to be more hearty than usual, and gave no sign. He returned to the workshop after dinner, and wrote a letter in which he stated that as Christ his saviour was pierced with a lance and was crucified, so it was his duty to cut himself with a lance and then hang himself. He then, with a lancet which he carried about with him and with which he used to blood people many years ago, made several and placed a sap bucket to catch the blood near the bed upon which he lay. It would appear that when the wound ceased to bleed he had carefully washed his throat then pushing aside the boards across the rafters above, he had placed a stout stick across the opening, upon which he tied some leather reins, making a noose, which he adjusted around his neck with great care. This must have occurred about three o'clock in the afternoon. At six o'clock, not responding to the call for supper a member of the family went to the workshop and was horrorstruck to find the old man hanging by the neck quite dead. His wooden leg rested on the floor and his other leg was bent, He must have leaned upon the reins, and, being enfeebled with the loss of blood, he evidently, from the placid expression of his countenance, had died almost without a struggle. The body was immediately taken down, and Dr. Fuller who had been sent for, appeared speedily upon the scene and pronounced life to be extinct There was about a pint of blood in the sap bucket, In the letter which he left behind him he gave instructions about his interment. He requested a plain and inexpensive coffin, and the expenses were to be met by the sale of three pairs of boots, which he had completed. He bequethed to his grand-daughter his watch, and the contents of a tin box containing a dollar bill and sundry small articles.

INCISIONS IN HIS THROAT.

Why go limping and whining about your corns, when a 25 cent bottle of Holloway's Corn Cure will remove them.

WHAT A ROMEO LIKED.

'What is it that you like about that girl? asked one young man of another.

'My arm,' was the brief reply.

By land or at sea, out on the prarie, or in the crowded city, Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the best for purgative purposes, everywhere alike convenient, efficacious and safe. For sluggish bowels, torpid liver, indigestion, bad breath, flatulency, and sick headache, they are a sure remedy.

DO GIRLS SWEAR.

Philadelphia Progress says;—Most any girl who is frank will tell you yes, that most girls do swear upon occasions. Their swearing is not shocking, except as all swearing is shocking, and that any bad done by the weaker sex is worse than if done by ours. Girls swear as they smoke cigarettes, when nobody is about and because they think it does them good. They keep their swearing as a secret gratification, for no one is better satisfied than themselves how badly the habit would fit them. The swearing of girls, such as it is, is a mere declaration of power and independence; we can swear if we choose, and we will swear when we want to. But they are careful, very careful, as to when and where. No girl ever swears when real angry. Then she cries. Swearing is a weapon she does not know how to use. Her swearing means nothing. It never even goes up as high as the big D. It is all small, very small d's; and a combination of genuine oaths so mixed that all their vigor is gone.

G. A. Dixon, Frankville, Ont., says: 'I was cured of chronic bronchitis, that troubled me for seventeen years, by the use of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil." See that the signature of Northrop & Lyman is on the back of the wrapper, and you will get the genuine Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil.

HE OBTAINED THE JOB.

'So you want a position as clerk, do you?' asked the proprietor of the hotel, of a dapper young applicant.

'Yes, sir.'

'Have you had much experience?'

'Oh, yes sir. I have been connected with a great many of the large hotels, and can give the best recommendations.'

'Well,' said the landlord 'we want a clerk but—' and hesitated.

'But what?' asked the young man.

'You seem to have no diamond breastpin.'

'Yes I have. I've got a big one, but I thought I wouldn't wear it this morning.'

'In that case,' said the hotel proprietor with a relieved look, 'the position is at your service. I thought at first that you had a diamond yet to purchase, and the way business is just now, it might cramp me somewhat.'

The Weather Prophet looks for Spring this month. The wise men look for a blood purifier that will not injure his system; he can find what he wants in Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters, the greatest of all blood purifiers. In large bottles at 50 cents.

PETITION FOR THE LIFE OF TOMPSITT AND LOWDER.

Hon. J. B. Finch, of Nebraska, delivered two lectures in Picton on prohibition in the Methodist church on Sunday evening and one Monday night. On both occasions the large church was crowded. The temperance question, and especially the prohibition phase of it, was presented in a logical and trenchant manner.

PLEASANT DAYS.

Soon will the merry picnic days
In season roll around,
When to escape the sun's fierce rays
We'll seek the shaded ground,
Where ants have a peculiar nack
Of wandering from their bed
And marching up a fellow's back,
With a slow and measured tread.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues healed and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all this. Try it. Every bottle warranted.

THE SECRET OUT

The secret of beauty has been at last revealed. Without good health, pure blood and a fair clear skin no one can possess good looks. What is more repulsive than pimples, blotches and a sallow or pasty complexion? Burdock Blood Bitters reveal the fact that all can gain pure blood and freedom from the repulsive diseases of the skin that result from impurities.

Every one speaks highly of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters as a Stomach Liver and Kidney medicine. 'The best family medicine we ever used,' say they all. Try a bottle this Spring as a blood purifier.

NO PLACE LIKE HOME.

"You seem in a bad fix," said a philanthropist to a man sitting on the curbstone looking much depressed in spirits.

"Not so awful bad as I might be," was the reply.

"Have you no home?"

"Oh, yes, I've got one."

"Why don't you go there, then?"

"Because I don't want to."

"But you should, for the poet says, 'be it ever so humble, there's no place like home.'"

"And right the poet was, too. I was at home not an hour ago, and the house was turned upside down, all the beds out of the windows, and the furniture in the corners, and my wife with a dish rag around her head, and the children so dusty you couldn't clean 'em with a feather brush, and the hired girls raising Cain, and four men beating carpets, and the paperhangers at work, and a window cleaner and a hose turned on, and no dinner, and no prospect of any, and the duce to pay generally—oh, you and the poet are shoutin', and you're mighty right too, there's no place like home."

SPOKES.

The annual parade of the league of American wheelmen took place yesterday in New York. Six hundred men were in line. The procession was reviewed by the President.

THE OPERA HOUSE.

Mr. Denman Thompson was greeted at the Opera House last night by a large and enthusiastic audience, in Joshua Whitcomb. He was given a most cordial greeting, many in the gallery rising to their feet in the heat of the applause, a fact that testified to the popularity of both actor and his play. A wholesome, pure and manly character like that of Josh, is effective, humorous and truthful, and its deep hold on the public mind is an evidence of its popularity as a legitimate character. The crossing sweeper (Miss Wilson) was a favourite, acting her part with naturalness and vivacity. Some good part-singing was introduced in the last act which was a pleasing feature. The performance of Den's own orchestra was grand. Mr. Nickerson's cornet solos were something remarkable and showed him to be a complete master of this instrument. Everyone who attended last night was well pleased with the show.

POPULATION BY WARDS.

The population of the city by wards this year according to Assessor McKay's returns is as follows, compared with 1883:

ANOTHER SHANNONVILLE BURGLARY

From our own Correspondent.

SHANNONVILLE, May 20.—This place is becoming notorious just now, as the objective point of several daring but comparatively fruitless attempts at burglary. Last night, the third daring attempt was made on the premises of Mr. B. Holden. Mr. Holden still retains in his possession the two heavy crow bars brought from the G. T. R. Station and used in the attempt to break into his safe a week ago, hoping to be able to bring to light sufficient evidence to convict the suspected guilty parties; and now in less than a week a further attempt has been made, making the third in about a month. Fortunately it was unsuccessful. Surely our detective system, even in the north parts of the country, and especially with the aid of the Belleville police, ought to be able to get on the scent of such persistent villany.

A DIABOLICAL DEED.

STARTING A LOCOMOTIVE AT FULL SPEED ON THE MAIN TRACK.

TROY, May 20.—An unknown person started a switch engine on the Delaware & Hudson railroad at Mechanicsville last night, switched it on to the main track, jumped off, and sent the engine up the track at full speed. The engine collided with a Montreal sleeper, and both engines were wrecked. Expressman Ticker was dangerously injured, Engineer Myers had a leg broken, and others were bruised.

To-Day's Probabilities.

Upper St. Lawrence—Moderate winds; clearing weather; higher temperature.

J. H. Rada, Sh ff rd, P. Q., writes: 'I have been troubled with Liver complaint for several years and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until I tried Dr Thomas' Electric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it with horses in cases of cuts, wounds, &c.—and I think it equally as good for horse as for man.

CABLE BREVITIES

Widespread destitution and many suicides have been caused by the failure of the Oriental Bank of England.

Wm. H. Vanderbilt arrived in London last evening. In an interview he stated that his object in visiting England was to obtain rest and attend the Derby.

H. A. McLaughlin, Norland, writes: "I am sold out of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. It sells well, and I find in every instance it has proven satisfactory. I have reason to believe it the best preparation of the kind in the market." It cures Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and Torpidity of the Liver, Constipation, and all diseases arising from Impure Blood, Female complaints, etc.

HORRIBLY BEHEADED.

Taken up by a Revolving Wheel and Whirled into Eternity.

AT HAMILTON ROLLING MILLS.

HAMILTON, May 21.—Charles Kirkwood, an employe at the rolling mills, was employed as what is known as a 'rougher on the guide mill.' Kirkwood was lying yesterday on one side of a fly-wheel, and another rougher was stretched on the other side, while others were lying about in various places and positions, endeavouring to snatch a little sleep. The seats on which they slept were protected from the wheel by a boarding, but Kirkwood's feet caused his death. They were hanging near an unprotected gap. At exactly three o'clock the whistle was blown as a signal for the men to get up and proceed to work. Before the unfortunate Kirkwood awoke the engineer put the engine in motion. Before the ponderous wheel had made a half a dozen revolutions the engineer noticed an object flying through space with the velocity of a cyclone, and strike the water-pipe Instantly the steam was shut off, and a sight, which would cause the blood to freeze, was witnessed by Gus Post, the engineer. The head was as as completely and cleanly severed from the body as if it had been guillotined, and it lay in the bottom of the pit a shapeless mass. An ear was the only recognizable part of the luckless Kirkwood's head. His limbs were also completely flattened, and if a piledriver had done the terrible work it could not have succeeded better. Just how the deceased got himself entangled into the wheel is not exactly known, but it is supposed that while getting up he was some what dazed and accidentally came in contact with the wheel, which carried him speedily to destruction.

A SOCIETY PLAY.

Scene first.—Gentlemen leaves his wife, saying he wants to go forward to the smoking car to have a cigar. 'Won't be gone long, dear,'

Scene second.—Gentlemen in coach next ahead, which is not the smoking car, enjoying, not a cigar, but the company of a pretty and vivacious young woman, with whom he appears to be on excellent terms.

Scene third (after an hour).—Gentleman returns to his wife. 'I know I've been gone a long time, dear, but I met Mr. Hardy, of Galena, You saw him get on at Freeport, didn't you? We had quite a a long talk about some business matters.'

Another gentleman, who turns out to be the Mr. Hardy, approaches from the rear coach, and despite the winkings and grimaces of gentleman No. 1 says:—'Why, how do you do. Mr. and Mrs. Smither? Smithy old boy, I didn't know you were on the train.

Then Mrs. Smithers picks a long, black hair from her husband's shoulder (her own hair being quite red) and silence reigns. But we can see from Mr. Smithers' meekness and Mrs. Smithers' flashing eyes and compressed lips, as they, without a word alight at their destination, that it is but the calm before the storm sure to break before the sun has set low down in the red west.

IMPORTANT CHANGES

There are two periods in the life of every female when the system undergoes great changes. First, the change from childhood to womanhood; next, that of womanhood to old age. These are critical changes of life, and the system should be nourished and regulated by that matchless tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters. It is invaluable in all diseases peculiar to females.

Mr. W. Atkins, Girard Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. FRAUDULENT TRANSACTIONS

There are many frauds perpetrated in medicine, and many advertised remedies worse than useless. Not so with Hagyard's Yellow Oil. It remains as ever the best internal and external medicine for all pain, soreness and injuries with which human flesh is afflicted.

It is reported that one of the "attractions" of Niagara Falls this season will be the widow of Captain Webb, who has been engaged for exhibition.

THE EFFECTS OF WHISKEY.

The effects of whisky are always evil, and those who feed upon alcoholic stimulants, vainly endeavoring to cure coughs and consumption, but nurse a viper. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam is a remedy that is always reliable for the throat, bronchial and lung troubles, and never does harm to any one.

CORN RAISING.

It may surprise the good people of Canada to learn that the corn crop has been immensely increased in Canada. No doubt the N. P. people will claim this as a product of protection, but PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR alone is entitled to all the credit. It raises more corn to the acre than anything else the world can supply. Safe, sure, and painless. Take no substitute Only 25 cents. Try your hand. A good crop guaranteed. Beware of flesh eating substitute. N. C. Polson & Co., props. Kingston.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the waste by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally and the Ointment rubbed externally are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, surest. Holloway's Pills and Ointment purify the blood, remove obstructions to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the overgorged air tubes, and render respiration free without reducing the strength irritating the nerves, or depressing the . Such as the ready means of saving when afflicted with colds, coughs, other complaints by which so many ar ionoly and permanently afflu mos tries.

Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Whenever the blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of an prevailing epedemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished power should be these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce all erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, biliousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. The fruit season is especially prone to produce irritation of the bowels and disorder of the digestive organs; both of which dangerous conditions can be completely removed by Holloway's corrective medicines.

THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. am satisfied the medicine is not injurious will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical preparation stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of these happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

THROUGH SNOW AND SUNSHINE:

OR

TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

'What tool left this trap open?' he said, 'It would serve him right if he broke his own neck for his carelessness.'

He placed his hand on the trap, then withdrew it quickly.

'No, I will not close it,' he muttered. 'I shall need it open before long. Now, Master Josiah Nib, the sooner your business with me is settled, the better.'

He looked at his watch, then returned it hastily to his pocket, as he muttered through his clenched teeth—

'He comes.'

Thrusting his hands into his pockets, he commenced whistling.

'You are merry, William,' said the soft voice of Nib, as that individual entered. 'But there, who would not be merry on his wedding eve—Christmas Eve, too, and especially after he has had so much trouble to win his bride?'

'You are punctual, Mr. Nib,' said Brierley, taking his hands from his pocket.

'Yes, I am generally so,' was the reply.

'Well, then, let us to business,' said Brierley, and the sooner it is over the better.'

'True. Well, then, William, are you ready to pay into my hands fifteen thousand pounds?'

'Will not your grasping soul allow you to take less?' asked Brierley.

Not one farthing,' replied Nib. 'Fifteen thousand pounds may appear a large sum, but then look what you get for it—silence, safety, a lovely bride—aye, life itself. Were I to divulge the secret I hold, what would you lose?—a lovely woman's hand, your liberty and perhaps your life. No, William Brierley, the contract you entered into, you must keep, or take the consequences of your refusal.'

'If I refuse, you will betray me?'

'Assuredly and this very night,' said Nib.

'And bring ruin on yourself as well?

'True; but I have so little to loose, and my revenge is so great,' said Nib.

'You shall have your dues,' said Brierley.

'Of coyrse I shall,' was the reply.

Aye, you shall, But first, where are the statements you have so often told me you have written out, and would use against me if I failed to feed your hungry soul with gold? I must have them before I pay you.'

'I have them here.'

'Give them to me.'

'Fifteen thousand pounds,' said Nib holding out his hand, 'I must have the money first, and then I will give you every word of evidence against you. You need not fear to trust me, I always keep my word. Give me the money and from that moment you have nothing to fear—my silence is secured. I will instantly start on my long journey, and will trouble you no more.'

'I will take care you do not,' muttered Brierley betweeen his teeth.

Taking a large roll of notes from his pocket, and placed them in the hands of Nib.

'There is the price of your silence,' said Brierley, ; 'the half of the fortune my wife brings me. Now for every scrap you have written of our doings and our crimes.'

'Fear not you shall have them; but first I will make sure the amount is correct.'

'Do you think I would cheat you?'

'No: I know you too well not to feel certain you would if you could. You taught me to be suspicious and wary, and you can't cheat me, I know the villain I have to deal with, and take every precaution against his wiles.'

'Quick, then, for I have no time to waste.'

'Nor I,' said Nib, bending over the lamp to examine the notes. 'I am very anxious indeed to start on my long journey.'

Grasping the gun by the barrel, which he had placed between the sacks just behind where Nib stood, Brierley swung the weapon around his head.

'Aye, villain,' he cried 'the long journey you travel is not across the seas, but to the grave. Thus do I save my gold, and release myself from the power of a merciless wretch.'

As he spoke he struck a desperate blow at the head of Nib. But Josiah turned, and the blow fell on his shoulder. With a howl of pain and terror, Josiah dropped the notes and sprang at the throat of his assailant.

'Villain,' he cried 'would you murder me?'

'Would? Aye I will,' hissed Brierley. 'You know too much for my safety. While you live, the gallows must be ever present to my thoughts. You must die, you must die!'

Fearful of dissovery Tim had crouched behind the sacks and listened with terror and surprise; But now he could endure his position no longer, and at the risk of being seen, he stood up, and gazed upon the struggle,

But neither of the angry men perceived him, so intent were they upon the murderous work.

'I will not die,' yelled Nib. 'Treacherous villain, I will denounce you yet,'

'You have lived too long,' hissed Brierley. 'Take your reward, take it thus—thus.'

And the butt of the gun fell with terrific violence on the head of Nib, and bleeding and senseless, he was dashed at the feet of his assailant.

(To be continued.)

Every who walks the streets of a great city, and sees with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate pegree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, such in Northrup and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never of properly and judiciously administered. Prepared by Northrup & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all druggists.

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M g Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrub for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world Price 25 cents a bottle.

FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable tempraments. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of despepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high-colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

AN AFTESTHOUGHT,

'Twas in the garden chatting
Amid the mignonette—
She with her snowy tatting,
I with my cigarette,
I still can see her fingers
Flit softly in and out;
With rapture memory lingers
To view her lips a-pout.

A happy sunbeam glancing
Upon a wayward curl,
Set every pulse to dancing,
And turned my brain a-whirl;
And when she looked up shyly,
I could not help you see,
But stoop and kiss her slyly
Behind the apple tree.

Strange that some mote forever
Should mar the rays of bliss!
Though conscious I had never
Yet won so sweet a kiss,
Alas! the act of plunder
So gracefully she bore,
I could not choose but wonder,
Had she been hissed before?

—Samuel Minturn Peck in the Century.

FORBIDDEN KISSES.

'Remember,' said a Fort Street physician to his wife, as he was leaving home for a few days, 'and do not let the children kiss anyone.'

'Is it possible asked a surprised third party who was present, 'that you consider it necessary to give such instruction as that? Where is the danger?'

'The danger is so complicated, and yet so certain, that it would take too much time to describe it here,' said the doctor, looking at his watch. 'In any case, all kinds of people come to my house and office to consult me, and they often wait hours. If one of my children happens to come in they are almost certain to take to it, and you know almost the first impulse with people who notice children is to kiss them. Bah! it makes me shudder—tainted and diseased breaths, lips blue with cancer, foul and decayed teeth. You would kill a stranger who would waylay your young lady daughter and kiss her by force, but the helpless, innocent, 6 year old child, susceptible as a flower to every breath that blows, can be saluted by every one who chances to think of it. I tell you it wasn't Judas alone who betrayed by a kiss. Hundreds of lovely, blooming children are kissed into their graves every year.'

'But, doctor, how can a mother be so ungracious as to refuse to allow people to notice their children?'

'There need be no ungraciousness about it, or, if there were, which is the most important—the safety and well-being of the child or the permitting of a habit of ill-breeding and doubtful morality at best? Let the mother teach her child that it is not a kitten or a lap-dog, to be picked up and fondled by every stranger, and instruct it to resist any attempt to kiss it. Why, there are agents, peddlers of household wares, who make it a practice to catch up a prattling child, kiss and pet it, and so interest the mother that she will buy something she does not want. I tell you there is death in the kiss.

"The beloved and lamented Princess Alice of Hesse took diphtheria from the kiss of her child and followed it to her grave. Diphtheria, malaria, scarlet fever, blood poison and death lurk in these kisses. There! I shouldn't wonder if I lost this train. Remember, no kisses!" and waving his hand, the doctor drove away.—Detroit Free Press.

WOMEN AS JOURNALISTS.

I was sitting less than an hour in the office of a powerful journalist. A lady's card was brought to him, and a few minutes after, when his secretary reported that the lady was seeking work, he sent word to dismiss her. Then turning to me he said: 'I have concluded to give no more work to women. They are utterly useless as writers on a daily journal; you can never depend on them; they are capricious, whimmy, unreasonable and unreliable.'

I expressed some surprise that he should deem them unreliable, but he said that his experience taught him that women's intuitions are very quick, and that they interfered seriously with the preparation of reports or sketches which would be acceptable to a newspaper whose conductors wanted news and not opinions. In my own experience I have found many difficulties in the way of utilizing women, and, on the other hand, some of the best work I have had done was by women.

COREAN POLITENESS.

Chicago Herald.

A Corean is so polite that if you inquire after his health he answers:—"Thanks to the honor you do me in asking such a question; my health is good." A sick man says to the person who visits him:—"Thanks to your visit, I am better." If a Corean speaks to a Japanese he commences: "You are so learned," or "You are so great;" and if he meet a funeral procession he stops it, and, going up to the coffin, says: "I profoundly regret the death of this virtuous man," even if he had never in his life seen or heard of the defunct.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wasteby giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

WEEDS IN LAWNS.

We have frequent enquiries for the best way to eradicate plantains and other weeds from lawns, without disturbing the sod. There are several ways. One of the best is to use sulphuric acid on the crown of the weed. As this powerful acid must not touch the fingers or clothes, the bottle which holds it should have a long, stiff wire handle for carrying it away from the person, to be held by the left hand, while with the right hand the end of the stick is immersed in the acid and then touched to the crown of the weed, thus depositing a few drops on it. If the stick is cut with a notch or two at the end, it will hold the acid better. When done with, the bottle is corked and kept for the next operation.—Country Gentlemen.

CORN RAISING.

It may surprise the good people of Canada to learn that the corn crop has been immensely increased in Canada. No doubt the N. P. people will claim this as a product of protection, but PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR alone is entitled to all the credit. It raises more corn to the acre, than anything else the world can supply. Safe, sure, and painless. Take no substitute. Only 25 cents. Try your hand, A good crop guaranteed. Beware of flesh eating substitutes. N. C. Polson & Co, proprs. Kingston.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

ANNUAL VITAL STATISTICS.

According to the annual report the total number of births, marriages and deaths, registered in Ontario during the year 1882, was 77,678, an increase of 1.3 per cent. over the number registered in 1881. The number of births registered was 42,429, as against 40,714 in 1882, showing an increase of 1,715, or 4.2 per cent. 13,447 marriages were solemnized in 1882, an increase of 343, or 2.6 per cent., over the number registered in 1881. The number of deaths recorded during the year 1885 was 21,800. In 1882, the number returned was 22,821, showing a decrease of 1,021, or 4.4 per cent.

The total number of births in Hastings county in 1882 was 941, an increase over 1881 of 19; deaths 587, a decrease of 51. The ratio of births to the population was 17; of marriages 8 and of deaths 10.6.

In Belleville City there were 190 births, a decrease of 20; 129 marriages, an increase of 31; 171 deaths, an increase of 2. The ratio per 1000 of the population was—of births 20; of marriages, 13.5 of deaths 18. Of the ten cities the ratio of deaths was lower than in Belleville in six.

The total number of births in Prince Edward County was 399, a decrease of 10; marriages, 157, an increase of 7; deaths 348, an increase of 88. The ratio of births was 19; of marriages 7.5 and of deaths 16.5.

The largest number of births in the Province occurred in March of any one month, and the smallest number in November. There were 1,400 more male births than female. Of the 190 births in Belleville 6 are recorded as still born, and 1 as illegitimate. In the Province there were 966 returned as illegitimate for the year or one in 43 of the whole. This is an increase of 218 over the record of 1881. This is accounted for by the returns from one public institution in Ottawa which were not given in 1881.

December and October maintain the same position, as in former years, of being the favorite months for marrying in Ontario—2,913 or 21.6 per cent. of all the marriages, were solemnized in these two months. The Methodists shew up to be by far the largest marrying denomination. There were 2,208 girls under 20 married, and 175 youths. Two old men over 80 were married during the year. In several instances men were married to women many years their juniors, but few instances occur where women married men more youthful than themselves.

RESTING UNEASILY.

It is a curious fact in connection with the nineteenth century, that few people are self-reliant, and still fewer can occupy themselves agreeably without aid. Like the Turk, they want somebody to amuse them. With the additional burden of seeing that the members of a family are amused, as well as their material wants provided for, it is no wonder that wives and mothers look so tired. No doubt men feel the fatigue of the constant drive that is requisite to keep up with the general stride, but they have a peculiar faculty of being able to take a rest, even in the midst of turmoil. Women unfortunately, from long expereince in being overdriven, get into that state where they cannot repose, even when the opportunity offers. This is a state of nervous expectation, brought about by the knowledge that there will be something to do in a minute, even if there is is nothing calling for the attention just now.

AN HISTORICAL GROUP.

Mr. Harris' Painting Commemorative of the Quebec Conference.

The historical picture, commemorative of the founding of the Canadian Confederation, to cover the cost of which an appropriation of $4,000 was made by the Dominion Parliament in 1883, has been placed in position at Ottawa facing the main entrance of the Parliament Buildings, Mr. Forbes, potrait of Lord Dufferin being placed on the side wall to make room for it. The picture is fifteen feet by eleven, with heavy bronze and gold frame, and as a specimen of native Canadian art is creditable in the highest degree. It is certainly superior to any work of the kind now on exhibition here. Considering that there are thirty-four figures the grouping has been admirably done, and the likenesses are pronounced excellent. While representing the members of the Conference as they then appeared, twenty years ago, Mr. Harris has at the same time brought out the distinctive features of each in such a way as to be readily recognised to-day. The central or prominent figures of the group are:—Sir Eteinne Tache (Chairman), Sir George Cartier, Hon. George Brown, Sir John Macdonald, Sir Charles Tupper, Hon. Mr. Mowat, Sir A. T. Galt, Sir Alexander Campbell, Sir L. Tilley, Sir Hector Langevin, and Messrs. Mitchell, McGee, Chaplas, and Archibald.

PERIODICAL PUBLICATIONS.

The long-promised new cover appears on the June number of The Manhattan, which may now congratulate itself on having as beautiful a cover as magazine ever had. The design, simple and artistic, is printed in a rich carnation on the old-gold paper. The contents of the number are worthy of of the cover. The frontispiece is an airy figure piece, entitled 'Spring,' drawn by McIlhenney and engraved by Juengling, illustrating some lines of Willis Gaylord Clark. An American painter, Henry Roderick Newman, who has long lived in Florence, is the subject of the opening article, written by H. Buxton Forman, the editor of Keats and Shelley. Another profusely and brilliantly illustrated article is a second paper on 'The Gunnison Country.' There are four portraits, illustrating the first part of 'Retrospections of the American Stage.' Of 'Trajan,' the new novel, there is a second striking instalment, which has an illustration and which must serve to whet the curiosity of readers. Edgar Fawcett's 'Tinkling Cymbals,' is concluded, and there are two short stories, one 'A Boston Man,' by Nora Perry, in her best vein. There are two purely literary papers. one on 'The Brownings. The other literary paper, by J, Heard, is a sinfiularly cogent argument, written with both force and elegance, to show 'Why Women Should Study Shakespeare.'

The Century Magazine for June can simply be described as a magnificent number. There is nothing in it that can be passed over; nothing that can be skimmed. The artist correspondent on board the 'Alice May,' finds fit subject for pen and pencil in the port of St. Pierre, off Newfoundland. President Eliot's paper, 'What is a Liberal Education,' is an eloquent, forcible plea for an intelligent and systematic study of English Literature in the colleges, and for more attention to French, German, history, political economy and natural science. He remarks on the anomaly of allowing the study of Greek and Latin to overshadow that of English Literature—'beyond all comparison the amplest, most various and most splendid literature which the world has seen.' The graphic pen of Julian Hawthorne, sided by the engraver, illustrates 'American Wild Animals in Art,' from the sculptures of Edward Kemeys. This paper is a very fascinating one. The Use and Abuse of Parties, (political), is a thoughtful paper which the 'independents' of Canada would do well to ponder, and it is one upon which it would be interesting to see Prof. Goldwin Smith comment. There are other articles illustrated with the skill and finish for which this magazine is noted, but space will not permit of their notice. The poetry of this number and the translations are of that quality not found in every issue of even The Century.

TEMPERANCE TEXT BOOKS.

BRANTFORD, May 21.—A a largely attended temperance meeting in the Park Baptist Church last night, Mrs. F. Hunt, of Boston, during the course of a powerful lecture, strongly advocated the teaching of temperance in Canadian schools as in the States of New York and New England. The following resolution at the close was moved by Mr. Wm. Petch, M, A., seconded by Dr. Nichol, and was unanimously carried:—"That having listened to the able lecture given by Mrs. Hunt, the citizens of Brantford would respectfully request the Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education, to take steps for the more efficient teaching of temperance in our high and public schools, and that a copy of the resolution be transmitted him in accordance therewith."

WHY MACKENZIE FELL.

The reason given by Sir Richard Cartwright.

COST OF AN UNJUST STEWARD.

Speaking at Toronto, on Tuesday, Sir Richard Cartwright referred to Mr. Mackenzie's administration as follows:—He did succeed in keeping down the expenditure. He refused—perhaps too rigorously—to add to the public burdens, but at any rate he carried out great public works and paved the way for a great improvement; and if you remember the figures to which I called your attention in the early part of this evening you will see that Mr. Mackenzie accomplished these things without adding in any appreciable degree—in fact, I may say, not at all—to the public burdens. Now, I know that a great many people took him and his colleagues, and me in particular, to task because they said that we refused too obstinately to add to the taxation of the people. But bear in mind that the question presented to Mr. Mackenzie and his Administration was not whether we had a sufficient amount to provide for expenditure in ordinary years. That we had provided for; but when the great commercial crisis came, when we saw that the people were struggling hard, when we saw that the taxes were as high as we thought the people could bear. was it or was it not the lesser of two evils under such circumstances for us for a year or two refuse to add to the public burdens for the purpose of reducing the public debt by means of an ordinary loan? I have never contended, nor has my hon. friend or any member of his Cabinet contended, that it was right for us to go on from year to year expending for ordinary expenditure what we had not received out of current taxation; but that was not the case. We succeeded in making both ends meet so far that we could provide for ordinary expenditure out of ordinary revenue. All we failed to do was to provide for the sinking fund for defraying the public debt out of ordinary revenue. But I am willing to bear my share, and no doubt Mr. Mackenzie is to bear his share, of all the fault which will prove in the minds of the people of Canada to be due to the late administration far being perhaps a little too anxious to spare increasing the burdens of the people. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) But gentlemen, if you desire to know the real truth, if you desire to know the secret history of 1878, if you desire to know why it was that Mr. Mackenzie fell, I will tell you, speaking from a pretty intimate knowledge of the situation, that Mr. Mackenzie fell in 1878 because he would not bribe. (Loud cheers.) It may have been—and I am not very anxious to screen him from the imputation—that on some occasions Mr. Mackenzie may possibly have been somewhat too rough in dealing with the temper. It may have been that to the man who came to him to offer him political advantages to himself, he was more prone to say, 'Get the behind me, Satan,' than he was to make frends of mammon of unrighteousness. If you had a Premier who offended by his over-stubborn honesty you may be well content. You need have no fear that, after the lesson which the people of Canada have been taught, other Premiers will be equally prone to offend in the same way. (Laughter and cheers.) The people of Canada in 1878—I do not know whether they are of the same opinion now—thought that an unjust steward would suit them a little better. They have now a very fine specimen of the article, and the cost of him last session was just $83,000,000.—

STATE OF THE CROPS,

TORONTO, May 22.—The following valuable information has been received from the Bureau of Industries:—Reports received from over six hundred correspondents of the Bureau show that the condition of fall wheat in the Province is much more satisfactory than it was in May of last year. Yet it is not uniformly good, and there are some districts in which the outlook is somewhat gloomy. This noticeably the case in the extreme ends of the Province—westward of the meridian of London, and eastward of the meredian of Kingston. For the large middle districts the accounts are on the whole favourable, and the weather of this month has caused a marked improvement to take place everywhere. Complete returns of the acreage under crop have not yet been received, but as far as they have been obtained they indicate an area twenty per cent. less than last year.

METHODIST UNION.

The committee appointed at the Belleville Methodist Conference to take the necessary steps towards closing the book rooms, which are to be discontinued by reason of the consummation of the union, and to arrange for discontinuing the publication of certain denominational journals for the same reason, met Tuesday in the Methodist Book Room, Toronto. The Observer, Bowmanville, and the Christian Advocate, Hamilton, are to cease publication on July 1, and the Christian Guardian is to be supplied to subscribers to those journals. The Christian Journal has been discontinued for some time. The Methodist Book Room at Hamilton is to be closed on July 1st.

As Age Creeps on Apace, the various functions of the body grow weaker in their performance. Old people who suffer from increasing indigestion, torpidity of the liver, and constipation, should give renewed impetus to the action of the stomach, bile-secreting organ and bowels with Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, from which aid is never sought in vain. It works wonders as a blood purifier.

IMPORTANT CHANGES

There are two periods in the life of every female when the system undergoes great changes. First, the change from childhood to womanhood; next, that of womanhood to old age. These are critical changes of life, and the system should be nourished and regulated by that matchless tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters. It is invaluable in all diseases peculiar to females.

BALTIMORE, May 22.—Elizabeth Wardwel has brought a suit for divorce from her husband. The parties are about 19 years old, and were married last month. The plaintiff says Wardwell annoyed her for several years, and was favoured in his suit by her sister, who had married defendant's brother. At the solicitation of Wardwell, the plaintiff's sister drugged her with wine, and while in an unconscious state had her married.

J. H. Eads, Sheffor', P. No one should be without it. I have tried it with horses in cases of cuts, wounds, &c.,-and I think it equally as good for horses as for man.

The congregation of Holloway Street church have extended a call to Rev. J. Young, of Coburg, a very popular minister of the old M. E. church, and secretary of the Bay of Quinte Conference. Those who are acquainted with the rev. gentleman are exceedingly gratified that there is probability of him coming to Belleville, a change which would be of benefit to all concerned.

Private information states that a poor farmer named Hammond, of Innisville, who was victimized by hay-fork fiends, went crazy, and had to be placed in gaol. On Sunday afternoon he cut his throat in the cells. There is no report of the agents themselves, who hail from Belleville, having committed suicide, but its a pity that their scandalous operations could not be checked by the officers of the law. Such, it appears, cannot be done, however.

There are about ten electric lights in use in the city now, but the number will be materially increased all along Front Street in a few days. Those who are using the light are more satisfied than ever with its steadiness and brilliancy. The lights in front of Messrs. The wings will be used as the hospital wards, one for females and the other for males, the total cost to be about $15,000. Mr. Biggar has invited the city contractors to tender for the job and it is expected that in a few weeks pratical operations will be begun to supply an institution which has been a long-felt want in this county.

THE CONDEMNED MEN.

Their Rumored Confession Found to be False.

SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER IN BLOOMFIELD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

PICTON, May 22.—The Band of Hope entertainment given in the Town Hall, Friday evening, was a decided success both financially and otherwise.

A rather suspicious looking character, dressed as a woman, but generally supposed to be a man, has been frequenting the neighborhood of Bloomfield the past week. For want of sufficient evidence of disguise, no arrest has yet been made.

The theme of conversation is still the Lazier murder. In paying a visit to the gaol yesterday, your correspondent ascertained that contrary to the many reports Tompsitt has made no confession. To his attendants he firmly denies his guilt, as also does the prisoner Lowder, who positively asserts that he is not the right man. They are closely guarded by armed officers, although still living with the hope that the petition which has been sent to Ottawa will have the desired influence towards a commutation of sentence. Still they are making every preparation for the doom that in all probability awaits them. The Church of England minister has been very faithful in his attendance upon them—visiting them and holding prayers in their behalf every morning. The petition, contrary to the expectations of the public, has been largely signed.

SPOKES FROM THE WHEEL.

The Canadian Wheelman for May is out.

A comical incident occurred at Island Boy, Australia. Whilst the members of the bicycle club were returning to town a sportive bull espied the wheelmen travelling down one of the inclines at a rapid rate, and endeavored to arrest the progress of Mr. W. P. James, who was leading the procession. A race down the hill ensued between that gentleman and the beast, and after a keen struggle the captain proved victorious, much to his relief. The spurt was witnessed by about a score of persons, who thoroughly enjoyed the scene.

A special meeting of the Rambler's Wheel Club is called for to-night to complete arrangements for the parade and races on Monday.

The bicycle has not gained so strong a hold upon popular favor without giving a value received. The novelty of this novel contrivance may have been the first incentive to favorable consideration, but the steady and rapid increase in use among all classes of people could have come only by its intrinsic value,—its ability to fill a place which was pre-eminently its own, and a place which common desire would recognize. The bicycle fills three very important places. First, for business. It is a convenient rapid transit for the inexpensive conveyance of the rider between home and office, from town to town; for almost any purpose where a team can be used, except in the carrying of loads. A speed, over fair roads, of from eight to twelve miles an hour is easily attained, and with it the rider combines his business with healthful exercise and pleasure.

UNION TEACHER'S INSTITUTE.

A large number of teachers from North and South Hastings assembled at the Central School this morning to attend the Union Teacher's Institute, which is being conducted by Prof. DeGraff, of Washington, D. C. The proceedings were opened by a song from Mr. D. Stickney. Mr. Johnson, I. P. S., South Hastings gave a few opening remarks, and then introduced Prof. DeGraff, who expressed the pleasure he felt in being privileged to meet with Ontario teachers, said he could see no difference between them and those of the States, and already felt himself at home, spoke of the pleasant and profitable visit he made yesterday to the Deaf and Dumb Institute, alluded to the excellent state of education in Ontario, and paid a high tribute to the late Superintendent, Dr. Ryerson. He then gave an excellent drill on the elementary sounds of the English language, after which the Institute adjourned until 2 p.m.

Mr. George Chainey will Lecture in Workingmens' Hall Thursday, to-morrow, evening. Subject "The Church of the Future." 21

A.L. Geen has just received another supply of Fluid Lightning. It kills pain.

Geen's Hair Restorer has given such satisfaction that he sells more of it than all other preparations combined. It is up in large bottles and sold at fifty cents.

STOCKS.—The Felt hat market in Belleville at present is in an excited state prices running low on account of the very large stocks on hand. Desirable styles are going off fast at Hyman's at 15 per cent. discounts, while those not quite so good are going off at very low rates. Should the demand so continue for a couple of weeks stocks will all be cleared out. The largest and best assorted stock we find is held by S. A. Hyman.

Just received at Ford's art gallery a large stock of gold and plush mouldings, a beautiful line of new enamel mouldings will be opened this week. If you want your picture framed well and cheap send them in at once. J. H. Ford, Picture framer.

ALIVE.—T. Donnelly & Co. have a beautiful assorted line of English, American and Canadian wall papers at prices to suit all. Come and see. T. Donnelly & Co., 281 Robertson Block, Front Street.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues healed and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all this. Try it. Every bottle warranted.

THE SECRET OUT

The secret of beauty has been at last revealed. Without good health, pure blood and a fair clear skin none can possess good looks. What is more repulsive than pimples, blotches and a shallow or pasty complexion? Burdock Blood Bitters reveal the fact that all can gain pure blood and freedom from the repulsive diseases of the skin that result from impurities.

EVERY one speaks highly of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters as a Stomach Liver and Kidney Medicine. 'The best family medicine we ever used,' say they all. Try a bottle this Spring as a blood purifier.

MADOC NEWS.

From our own Correspondent.

MADOC, May 22.—The Lacrosse boys are steadily putting in good practice for the coming matches on the 26th.

Mr. Wm. Coe has workmen employed in erecting two large brick barns.

Rev. Messrs. Baker and McAmmond exchanged pulpits last Sabbath evening.

Mrs. Moon has let the contract of erecting her hotel to Messrs. Kerr & Walton of this village.

The brickwork of Wilson's new block is about completed. It is three stories high, and arranged similar to the one burned.

M. McLean, agent for the Watson Reaper Company has erected a show room on the north side of O'Flynn & O'Hara's store.

The firecracker nuisance has already commenced. The Chief should look after the young shavers in this direction.

Mr. E. D. O'Flynn has improved the appearance of his block by having a fresh coat of paint and kalsomime applied to it. The work was done by Mr. Corneilus of Belleville.

Mr. John Dale had a substantial fence erected in front of his new residence, last week. The material was prepared by Mr. Flint & Holton, and put in position by Mr. Findlay Houstan.

It was decided at the District meeting held in Trenton last week to send two married men back to this circuit and to assist in paying both ministers. Queensboro was added to this appointment.

Men are employed in developing the marble quarry at Bridgewater and if favorable a company will be formed to work it. The marble will be shipped, the refuse burned into lime, which will also be shipped.

Mr. Sydmer Ross has planted a number of trees around his grounds which will add materially to the appearance of it. Mr. T. Cross has also planted trees in front of his residence, and Dr. Loomis the same. The latter gentleman has levelled his lawn adding greatly to its appearance.

The 26th will be celebrated in grand style in this village. There will be two lacrosse matches between two clubs from Norwood and two from Madoc; together with tugs of war, bicycle races, and all sorts of games and athletic sports. The firemen will have a grand physog parade by torchlight.

Quite an excitement was created in the village on Friday last through the action of one of the teachers in the Model School. Teachers have a great deal to put up with, and, as a general thing there is not much consideration shown them. Parents should not be too ready to side with their children, but in this case, according to report, the child was too severely punished, and the teacher became truly penitent, but the parent wouldn't listen to her, and was going to push the matter. However, I believe the affair has been settled, which no doubt is much better for all concerned.

A MIDNIGHT CALL.

When Mr. Blank's man servant, Michael rang him up at night to borrow sufficient money to meet the peremptory demands of a physician who had attended Michael's wife it was said that it came C. O. D.

H. A. McLaughlin, Norland, writes: "I am sold out of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. It sells well, and I find in every instance it has proven satisfactory. I have reason to believe it the best preparation of the kind in the market." It cures Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and Torpidity of the Liver, Constipation, and all diseases arising from Impure Blood, Female complaints, etc.

When lemons are cheap it is an excellent plan to buy quite a good many of them. Pass a small twine through the nib on one end, and hang them up in a cold place. In this manner they will keep quite a long time. There are so many uses for the lemons that it is desirable to keep them on hand.

Last year there were 1,517 murders in the United States, 93 legal executions, and 118 men were lynched.

A dipsomanic boy of eight years was recently attacked, in Dublin, with delirum tremens. The child, says the Medical Press, had a passion for alcoholic liquors ever since it was able to drink at all.

Travellers rave about the soft purple light which fills Italian skies and gives peculiar beauty to Italian mountains. The light has now been discovered on the mountains of southern California, and tourists are so informed by the railroad company interested.

The Rev. Clara M. Bisbee has started a Free Church in Boston on the basis of "ethical culture." There will be in the service no petition to Deity in the hope that human supplication may reverse the irrevocable decrees of nature, but "unworded music shall express our common confidence in that power which makes for righteousness.

An English provincial newspaper has a correspondent in London who holds a lucrative place under Government, and is consequently indolent, forgetting sometimes to write his letter, but never forgetting to draw his pay. The other day at the end of a silent week, he wired, "No time to write letter. Send check." To which the editor answered, "No time to send check. Send letter." It came.

Mr. W. Atkins, Girard Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints Purify the blood and regulate the bowels, No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctors bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by R. TEMPLETON.

FRAUDULENT TRANSACTIONS

There are many frauds perpetrated in medicine, and many advertised remedies worse than useless. Not so with Hagyard's Yellow Oil. It remains as ever the best internal and external medicine for all pain, soreness and injuries with which human flesh is afflicted.

It is reported that one of the "attractions" of Niagara Falls this season will be the widow of Captain Webb, who has been engaged for exhibition.

THE EFFECTS OF WHISKEY.

The effects of whisky are always evil, and those who feed upon alcoholic stimulants, vainly endeavoring to cure coughs and consumption, but nurse a viper. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam is a remedy that is always reliable for the throat, bronchial and lung troubles, and never does harm to any one.

Illinois, with its 8,937 miles of railways, leads the States of the Union. New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Iowa follow in order with a little over 7,000 miles each.

As a sure remedy for sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Dispepsia Indigestion, Constipation, Torpid Liver, Biliousness, &c., no medicine is equal to Baxter's Mandrake Bitters.—25 cents per bottle.

THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS

HIS OUTSPOKEN OPINION.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemn I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. I am satisfied the medicine is not injurious ... will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical preparation stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of these happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

THROUGH SNOW AND SUNSHINE:

OR

TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

As Brierley sank upon his knees beside the now powerless form of his victim, Tim clasped his hands to his forehead, and crouching down behind the sacks, muttered—

'Great God, now I do remember all the incidents of that terrible night? This fearful scene has broken the spell and brought them to my memory. These are the two men who attacked me in the lane; the assassin there is the man who struck me down, as he has stricken him, and left me for dead. Yes, yes, I see it all now; and Harry Fairfield you are saved.'

And while Brierley tore open the clothes of his victim, and took from him the statements he had written of his crimes, and thrust them together with the notes that had fallen from Nib's hand into his pocket the terrified Tim crawled from among the sacks, and gaining the trap door, dashed down the steps nearly hurling Harry into the well as he did so.

Clutching the farmer's arm, he hissed in his ear—

'Down, down, murder has been committed; aye jusiice shall be done to you.'

While he yet held the farmer back, to prevent him springing up the steps, Brierley drew the body of Nib to the trap, and hurled it through the opening.

'Now I am safe at last,' he muttered. 'The only man who could have divulged my crimes is dead, and the terible fears that for years has haunted me is at rest for ever. Possessed of Mary, with wealth sufficient for all my wants, with that viper removed from my path, I can defy all the world. One turn of the wheel and the body floats out to sea, and all evidence of my crime is hidden. Ha, ha, ha! this is the hour of my triumph and my revenge.'

Throwin down the trap, Barierley hastily cleaned the stock of his gun threw some flour over one or two blood spots on the floor, and taking the lamp, hurried from the apartment, satisfied that no obstacle stood in his way to either love or liberty.

CHAPTER VII.

It was Christmas Day, and a cold frosty morning. The bells in steeple of the pretty little church at Hazleberry rang a merry peal.

The men and boys employed at the mill congregated in the snow-covered churchyard, with their wives and daugaters.

The gentry of the neighborhood, the farmers, besides many other friends, had been invited; and anxious to appear generous, Brierley had provided a feast for those in his employ.

Every body looked joyous, and it being Christmas Day added to the pleasure of all.

Mary Brierley, despite her belief in the love of the man whose wife she had promised to become, had spent a restless night.

Her mind had wandered over the seas, and despite every endeavor on her part to forget the man she had loved, the poor convict would force himself upon her thoughts and her heart still yearned toward him whom see never could expect to see more.

And the murderer of the night before, what frightful visions had assailed his couch!

He arose wearied, depressed, and heartsick.

'What have I to fear?' he asked himself. 'Is not my only enemy removed by death? never can he or that farmer rise to confound me. The body of the one lies at the bottom of the river, while the other languishes in chain far over the waste of waters. I have triumphed, I willl triumph at any cost, If danger confronts me, I will be prepared to meet it.'

He threw open a case on his dressing table, took a pair of small pistols therefrom, examined them and, secreted them about his person.

'There has already been enough blood shed to give me my revenge for that blow struck by Harry Fairfield on the day of the harvest home, but rather than be foiled at last, I will swim in it. Pshaw! what have I to fear? Nothing! Still I will be prepared.'

It was with a sickly smile that he took the trembling hand of Mary, and carried it to his quivering lips, and it was with hearts ill at ease that, attended by their friends and guests, they set out for the church where the bells rang merrily and the minister waited to join their hands in wedlock.

A joyous shout greeted their arrival at the gaits of the old churchyard, and not a few noticed the deadly pallor of Mary's face, and the wild, anxious glances of the bridegroom as they took their way up the snow-covered path.

Pausing at the foot of the steps of the sacred edifice, Brierley summoned a smile to his face, and turning to the girl on his arm, said—

'At last, dear Mary, the hopes of years, the love of my youth and manhood is about to find its reward. But why that pale cheek? Can you doubt my love, Mary?'

'No, no,' she said hastily; 'but—'

'But what, dear one?'

'I know not, William, but there is a presentiment at my heart—a something that tells me I shall never leave this church your wife.'

'Who shall prevent you?' he asked. 'Pshaw! away with all presentiments. You are mine—mine now, for none can part us—come.'

(To be continued.)

Every man who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligtnt eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate degree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrup and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remody required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never ... of properly and judiciously administered. Prepared by Northrup & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all drugists.

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M'f'g Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrub for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world Price 25 cents a bottle.

FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable tempraments. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of despepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high-colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

SCHUBERT'S SYMPHONY.

I shudder at the awful airs that flow
Across my soul; I hear crushed hopes that wail
And flatter their brief wings and sudden fail,
Wild tender cries that sing and dance and go
In wonderful sweet troops. I cannot know
What rends within my soul what unseen veil,
And tells anew what strangely well-know tale
Of infinite gladness and of infinite woe.

Was I long since thrust forth from Heaven's door.
Where in that music I had borne my part!
Or had this symphony its birth before
The pulse of nature turned to laws of art?
O what familiar voice, from what far shore,
Calls to a voice that answers in my heart?

THE STEAMSHIP AUSTRAL.

The new and magnificent steamship Austral of the Anchor line, built specially for passenger service, is, without exception one of the largest, swiftest and most commodious crafts in the Transatlantic trade to-day. She was built by John Elder. & Co., of Glasgow, is 470 feet in length 48 feet in width, 37 feet depth of hold, and her gross register tonage is 5,588 tons. She is supplied with three cylinder engines of 9,000 horse power, and has four cylindrical steel boilers.

This magnificent steamship is wholly built of mild steel, all of which has been carefully tested, so that its great strength might be known and its quality ensured. She has a double bottom, with a space of over three feet between the inner and outer bottoms. This is divided into many compartments, each side of the ship's keel being being distinct from the other, and made perfectly watertight by that division Above the inner or double bottom the bulkheads rise to the height of the main deck. These are all watertight, and the holds have been so divided that if even two of the largest of them were filled with water the ship has sufficient surplus buoyancy to enable her to keep afloat with perfect safety. All the bulkheads have been stiffened with heavy bulb iron beyond the usual stiffness of such bulkheads, so that it is impossible for them to give way to any pressure that can come on them from either side, and all the watertight doors fitted in these bulkheads are worked from (or at the height of) the main deck, being many feet above the deep draught or water line of the ship.

The Austral has five decks—viz., the promenade deck, about nine feet above the upper deck, and capable, therefore, of being used in all weathers; the upper deck, which is of steel, covered with teak three inches thick; the main deck, also of steel, covered with pitch pine three inches thick; the lower deck, also of steel from the line of the engine and boiler room casing out to the ship's side, and covered with three inches of pitch pine; and the orlop deck, which is of yellow pine two and a half inches thick.

The passenger accommodations of the Austral are not excelled by any other steamer afloat. The promenade deck is about 220 feet long by 46 feet wide and about 24 feet above the load water line. The space is reserved for the use of the saloon passengers and is approached from the saloon space by a handsome staircase, not visible from the upper deck, There are, however, at the fore end of the promenade deck two circular staircases in direct communication with the upper deck. On the promenade deck are chart room, captain's room, &c., on the top of which the navigating bridge is fitted, whence there is communication to the engine room, lookout bridge, forecastle and to the after wheel by telegraphs (mechanical) and voice pipes At the part where the funnels come up through the promenade deck the fidley or casing is carried up seven feet high. This, besides carrying up the heat, dust, &c., forms an excellent "lee" on one side or the other at all times.

Decendiding to to the upper deck by means of the saloon stair before mentioned, the entrance of the drawing room is reached. This is a most beautiful apartment, 32 feet by 16 feet and about 9 feet high, finished in white enamel and gold. Round its fore ends and sides are arranged settees or sofas, while about the room are handsome tables and chairs, and at the after ends between the door stands a most excellent piano, and under the ceiling are several electric lights in opal globes. Passing aft to head of the saloon stair to the main deck, the saloon smoking room can be entered on either side. It is a most comfortable apartment, lighted and ventilated from above. The seats are of the 'park' description, leather and such like materials being found unsuitable for a smoking room. On the upper deck are the galleys or kitchens, three in number, There are also large bakeries and sculleries fitted up with every necessary. All the officers' rooms are on this deck, and at the after end of the midship house the hospitals both for saloon and second saloon passengers, fitted with every conveyance. At the after end of the upper deck comes a large deck house containing hospitals for third class passengers, cabins for intermediate passengers, and different sets of bath rooms and lovatories for the use of male and female passengers respectively of those classes; while at the extreme after end of this house is to be found a most powerful steam steering engine, connected by a heavy chain to a large circular tiller keyed on to the rudder head, and over which hand steering gear of great power is placed Descending to the main deck by a continuation of the stairs already mentioned as leading from the promenade deck, the whole staircase being in solid oak, French polished, the doors of the saloon dining room are arrived at, facing the staircase. This is a square apartment, extending the whole width of the ship, and arranged to accommodate about 120 persons at dinner. The saloon is lighted by the swan electric light by night, and by a magnificently finished dome skylight in addition to the sidelights by day, the dome also assisting to ventilate it in a most perfect manner.

CORN RAISING

It may surprise the good people of Canada to learn that the corn crop has been immensely increased in Canada. No doubt the N. P. people will claim this as a product of protection, but PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR alone is entitled to all the credit. It raises more corn to the acre, than anything else the world can supply. Safe, sure, and painless. Take no substitute. Only 25 cents. Try your hand. A good crop guaranteed. Beware of flesh eating substitutes. N. C. Polson & Co, proprs. Kingston.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

ABUSE OF THE ONTARIO GOVERNMENT.

The following was extracted from the Toronto Mail of a recent date by the Montreal Herald :—

> And one of the worst dangers to the Confederation is the existence of this corrupt and infamous ring of conspirators, agitators, and political assassins who call themselves the Mowat Party. They endanger not only the morals of the people and the sanctity of the law, but also the very structure of the Confederation.

Commenting on this style of writing our Montreal contemporary says :—

The corrupt and infamous ring of conspirators, agitators and political assassins referred to here are the elect of the people of Ontario. They constitute a Government who have governed reasonably well ; at all events, the people of Ontario are satisfied with them. Superhuman efforts were made both by Provincial and Dominion politicians to overthrow them last year, but the electors of Ontario stood by them. A conspiracy was organized to buy up their supporters, a few weeks ago, money was paid to men to betray the Government ; the money was produced in Parliament and the bribers overwhelmed with shame ; and this, too, failed to destroy what the Mail is pleased to call "the infamous ring." Under all the circumstances—seeing that the electors of Ontario are the parties responsible, if the Government are not what they should be ; seeing that the general opinion of Canada, outside of partisan ranks in Ontario, agrees in regarding the Mowat Government as about the best of the Provincial Governments ; seeing that their opponents have despaired of destroying them by fair means and a section of them has resorted to mean and foul attempts at bribery with money to capture the Government, it is scarcely wise in the Mail to be stigmatizing such a Government in the terms which we have quoted. There will be no response in public opinion to such atrocious charges. They come, too, with a bad grace from the journal that has been engaged in defending, by every ingenious and other means at its command, the acts and character of those who were caught while attempting to bribe the supporters of the Government. If the Mail has unlimited abuse at its disposal and if this is the most convincing "argument" it can serve out to readers, it might visit some of its indignation on the bribers who conspired to defeat the people's will by the use of money.

DOMINION REVENUE.

The total Dominion revenue for the first 9 months of the fiscal year 1883-84 is $23,455,220, against $26,381,685 in the corresponding 9 months of the previous year, a decrease of $2,926,465. The expenditure for 9 months of the current year was $20,691,771 against $18,902,149 in the nine months of the previous year, an increase of $1,789,622. The surplus of revenue over expenditure was $7,479,536 in the 9 months of last year ; in the 9 months of this year the surplus is only $2,763,449, a decrease of $4,716,087. High taxes do not evidently always fill the treasury.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Tables show that the population of the manufacturing and prosperous city of Hamilton has not increased in the same ratio during the last five years as in the corresponding period ten years ago.

Winnipeg says plainly enough that immigrants from the east end of London are not wanted. In winter they would be helpless in the city. Mr. Pope is asked what he means by persisting in encouraging immigration of this kind. It is cruel to the immigrants and injurious to the country.

If the Ministers of Customs and his collectors are to exercise a supervision over the literature imported into Canada why not bestow some attention on such books as "the Life of Jesse James" and others with a view to their exclusion. Juvenile crime in Canada is on the increase and a large part of it is attributed to bad literature. Parents should give special attention to the reading in the hands of their children, but while you rail against a low book be prepared to replace it by something better.

In the Presbyterian confession of faith two causes for divorces are recognized, namely, adultery, and "such wilful desertion as can in no no way be remedied by the church or civil courts." The Washington presbytery has adopted a memorial to the general assembly in session at Saratoga, praying that an overture may be sent down to the presbyteries expunging the clause from the confession of faith which permits divorce for desertion.

UNFORTUNATE HAMILTON.

We suppose Mr. Robertson and Mr. Kilvert could be spared from the house of Commons. The former only graced Ottawa by his presence for eight or ten days during the whole of last session, and had Mr. Kilvert's seat been occupied by a wooden dummy the benefit to Hamilton and to Canada would have been as great as any conferred by Mr. Kilvert's efforts.—Hamilton Times.

WHAT IT WILL DO.

Get a bottle at any drug store. You will be made happy. Ten and 25 cents a bottle.

MR. CHAINEY'S LECTURE.

Mr. Geo. Chainey, of Boston, delivered a lecture last evening in the Workingmen's hall before the Belleville Secular Society. The audience was exceedingly small. This is the gentlemen who was refused the use of the City Hall on April 25th last. His subject was "The Church of the Future." So far as can be judged a definition of this Church is compressed by Mr. Chainey into these blasphemous words :—"As Jesus proclaimed the coming of the Kingdom of God so would I declare that the kingdom of man is at hand." The idea he said last night, that man is one with God is being rapidly displaced by the idea that man is one with Nature. Where Mr. Chainey would be in this presumptuous partnership if, for example, Nature should bring on an earthquake he did not pause to say. The crumbling to dust of the strongest habitations of puny man at the subterranean throes would probably induce him to believe he had taken a strong partner. The lecturer is, no doubt, modest enough when he's at home, but standing there as the exponent of Liberal Thought he declared that Liberal Thought had in the last ten years done more for the world than had Christianity in a century. The page of his manuscript which enumerated the noble deeds of such liberal thinkers as he —the self-sacrificing labors in foreign lands, the prison gate missions to succor the fallen, the homes for the friendless, for the incurable and for the repentant outcast, the hospitals, the societies to aid the poor and sick and to protect the dumb animals,—the page of his manuscript, we say, which enumerated these fruits of Liberal Thought was mislaid or lost, or he had forgotten to write it. The auditors therefore had to imagine the good results of ten years of Liberal Thought.

Space is too valuable to follow this fellow through his stilted sentences and rounded periods. He appears to be an advocate of free love. What he means by the following no one can tell :—"A woman with a fine form makes a hundred thousand dollars a year by its exhibition. Why do we pay so much money to sit in the outward shadow of beauty ? Because we lack it in our own lives." The only other piece of this bosh we shall reproduce is the statement that "the study of systematic truth will be our only theology." What systematic truth will be in the church of the future this father of that coming institution does not deign to tell us.

But this is the only theology. Scant fare for souls that are immortal. An unsatisfactory outlook. Mr. Chainey may unroll his fine phrases so long as he is paid for it, or until his vision is enlarged but the Divinity that stirs within men rebels against a religion which shuts out God and a hereafter. Liberal thought and a kingdom of man may satisfy the cravings of Mr. Chainey's religious nature, but most men will prefer to continue looking to the God whose thunder shakes the sky, and whose omnipotent will guides the workings of Nature, content to believe that the new religion—that sublime religion which gave glorious birth to benevolence, philanthropy, and brotherhood is final and complete.

Lo, the poor Indian whose untutored mind
Sees God in clouds and hears him in the wind.

SPOKES FROM THE WHEEL.]

A grand stand has been erected on the track. The crowd on Monday is expected to be unprecedented.

The Prince of Wales has found a new road to popularity. He has become an enthusiastic and expert bicyclist.

An effort will be made to get Mlle. Louise Armando, the champion female bicyclist of Amer'ca, to take part in the bicycle races to be held in Kingston on July 1st.

The gold and silver medal presented by Mr. Alex. Robertson, M.P., for the best two mile wheelman, is on exhibition in Mr. Angus McFee's window. It is of very pretty design.

There is a large muster of wheels on the bicycle track each evening and a number of spectators. The speeding at times is very exciting and speculation is rife regarding the relative merits of the riders. "He goes well but can he stay for five miles?" is frequently heard. Some of the best riders decline to show their speed.

A New York telegram says of the meet of the League of American Wheelmen :—The races were contested in the presence of 5,000 spectators. For the first event, 25 miles, for the championship league trophy, now held by A. H. Robinson, England, there were two starters, Chas. Frasier, of Smithville, N.Y., and H. J. Hall, Brooklyn. It was won by the former by 25½ sec. in 1 hour 38 min. 42½ sec. In the second race, 10 miles, for the championship league tropny, held by G. M. Hendee of Springfield, Mass., there were two starters. John Brooks, of Elmira, N.Y., and C. H. Chickering, of Smithville, N.Y. The race was close and well contested. Brooks' saddle slipped out of place. He won, crossing the line eight feet in front of his opponent. Time, 35 min. 3 4 5 sec. In the three mile race there were three starters, the two in the previous contest and B. W. Hanna, of this city. Hanna won in 10 min. 25½ sec. In the fourth race, one mile, for the diamond and gold championship medal, Hendee, of Springfield, Mass, won, virtually without opposition, in 3 min. 6½ sec., his only opponent, Fraser, having broken his machine. The last race, one mile, for tricycles, was also won by Hendee, in 3 min. 57½ sec.

RE-UNITED.

Sequle to the Common Place Elopement from Foxboro.

TEARS AND RECONCILIATION.

Some days ago the Ontario chronicled the elopement of a Foxboro married woman with a Madoc benedict. The Watertown papers furnish the sequel.

The eloping couple left Belleville on Sunday per Grand Trunk as far as Prescott, crossed the River to Ogdensburg, and were on their way west from that place when discovered. The woman's husband had traced the pair as far as Ogdensburg, and from there telegraphed to Chief Champlain, of Watertown, to detain a "woman in blue" on the in-going train. Upon the arrival of the train the officer was on hand and after the couple alighted from the train and took seats in the waiting room he approached the woman and told her that she was eloping and he had authority from her husband to detain her. When she was thus detained her lover, Wally, became uneasy, and when opportunity occurred fled. When last seen he was enroute northward with satchel in hand, haunted by visions of an angry and deeply wronged husband, with a shotgun. After his departure the officer again visited the woman when she said she was the wife of William Mormon, who resides in Belleville, Canada. They had been married seven years, and she contended that Mormon had rendered her life miserable by his jealous disposition. When Mormon reached Watertown he foamed with rage and talked of divorce, horse whipping, pistols and coffee for two. The husband and repentant wife met, there was a reconciliation amidst tears and upbraidings, and when they started for home they appeared to be as proud of each other as turtle doves. They reached Belleville Wednesday evening and proceeded home to Foxboro.

On leaving the distinguished visitors expressed the pleasure at the creditable manner in which the institution was conducted. They afterwards inspected "B" battery barracks and the Royal Military College, some creditable manoeuvres being performed by the men, their Excellencies being entertained by the cadets with an athletic exhibition.

PARNELL'S COMPLAINT.

London, May 21.—In the Commons today the bill amending the Irish laborers' act of '83 was rejected by a vote of 138 to 75. Parnell complained of the opposition offered by Trevelyan, chief secretary for Ireland. He said the government must not find fault if it meets with a little retaliation. Does the government, he asked, mean to wait until the laborers burn the houses over the heads of dissenting landlords ? The laborers have been patient but but it is intolerable they should continue to live upon mud floors until a commission has investigated their grievances.

HORRIBLE TREASON.

The following is a naughty American journal's wicked burlesque of Her Majesty Queen Victoria's book :—

January 1.—This is the first day of the year, and Beatrice reminds me it is New Year's Day. What a beautiful coincidence ! We had cream toast and muffins for breakfast, and I had two helps to each. Brown said he was delighted to see my old appetite for muffins returning.

January 2.—It is snowing. Brown said the snow was beautiful. It is. Beatrice says that some poet once expressed the same opinion. I will ask Mr. Tennyson about it. Brown came up at two o'clock to announce Mr. Gladstone, who wanted to see me about some horrid affair in Egypt or somewhere. Sent down word I was out. Am very busy knitting a pair of ear muffs for the Duke of Connaught, and haven't time to bother about Egypt. Brown says that Egypt is old enough to take care of itself.

March 8.—Brown had a cold. I made him four mustard plasters, which were applied by the Royal College of Surgeons. He is better. I ordered Dean Stanley to sing a Te Deum, He sent back word that personally, he would prefer to whistle it. Wanted Mr. Tennyson to change 'Locksley Hall,' so as to bring Brown in. He replied that he would be delighted to, but the only rhymes he could find for Brown were syntax, delirium, and meningitis, and he didn't think any of these would do.

March 20.—Brown says it is raining. Mr. Gladstone called. I was not at home. I do wish Albert Edward would not worry me so much with free tickets to American theatricals. It is frugal but the boy will drive me mad yet. Brown says, however, that he will outgrow all these freaks. I trust Brown is right.

March 21.—Brown got wet to-day standing out in the rain telling Mr. Gladstone that I couldn't see him. I do not see why I am to be bothered about those wars in India and Egypt, and other horrid affairs. Beatrice has a pet kitten of which we are all of us very fond. I must really get Mr. Tennyson to write a poem about it.

April 1.—Brown came in this morning with a placard on his back, which bore the initials "N.G." When I called his attention to it he was real angry, and said he supposed it was done by the Prime Minister, or somebody. I shall ask Mr. Gladstone about it. The cat had a fit this morning, which quite upset us all. The College of Surgeons was in attendance, and said it was meat. Brown says it is likely to die if it had more than a dozen. Dear me !

April 10.—I sent for Brown, and read him this journal for a year. He sat with closed eyes, nodding his head whenever I came to a favorite passage. He then said that he did not think any distinguished woman had ever written anything like it. I chided Brown for flattery, but he assured me it was honest truth. I will read it to Mr. Gladstone.

April 11.—Mr. Gladstone called. I read it to him.

April 12.—Mr. Gladstone is very ill.

April 14.—I wanted to read nineteen more chapters of my journal to Brown, but he said he really could not thine of letting me tire myself. Said he would take the book and read it in his study.

April 15.—Beatrice and I went out for a walk. Brown accompanied us. We walked up a hill and then we walked down.

As Age Creeps on Apace, the various functions of the body grow weaker in their performance, Old people who suffer from increasing indigestion, torpidity of the liver, and constipation, should give renewed impetus to the action of the stomach, bile-secreting organ and bowels, with Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, from which aid is never sought in vain. It works wonders as a blood purifier.

IMPORTANT CHANGES

There are two periods in the life of every female when the system undergoes great changes. First, the change from childhood to womanhood; next, that of womanhood to old age. THE TEACHERS INSTITUTE.

Prof. DeGraff Tells How to Teach Reading.

LECTURE ON ELEMENTS OF SUCCESS

Work of Parent and Teacher at the Opera House To-night.

The Union Teachers Institute reassembled at 2 p. m. yesterday afternoon, Mr. C. R. Howell gave a vocal solo, Miss Booth presiding at the piano. Mr. W. Mackintosh, I.P.S. North Hastings, occupied the chair.

Prof. DeGraff took up the subject of "How to teach reading to beginners." After explaining the various methods in use at present, and pointing out the advantages and defects of each, he said that to be a successful teacher one must be eclectric and chose the best from each method and make it his own. He then, in an address of over two hours in length, fully discussed this important subject. It is impossible in this short space to give even a synopsis of this discourse. To the thoughtful, conscientious teacher the many valuable hints thrown out will furnish food for mental digestion for some time to come and be to them in their work. Among many other things he recommended beginning to teach this subject by the introduction of objects, making each lesson by means of talks and questions a language lesson, and this he would carry on through the whole subject. He would show the object, then a picture of it or draw one on the board, get the pupils to tell something about it, and finally write the word name on the board in script, and let the child copy it on the slate. The teacher should see that the model put on the board is an exact one, as it is just as easy to learn an incorrect form as a correct one, and when once learned it is very difficult to unlearn. When ten or twelve words have been learned in this way combine them into sentences and in this way go through the words of the first reader, change from script to print and then put the reader in the pupil's hands. The advantages claimed are that the pupil learns penmanship, reading, spelling, language lessons, and is furnished employment. The professor then gave a short sketch of Prof Parker, and the Quincy system.

OF VALUABLE SERVICE

During the intermission, Miss Bollard and Miss Boswell sang a duett entitled "Day Dreams." Miss Emma Harold sang "Sweet Violets," and Miss Diamond sang "The Tempest," Miss Ockerman presiding at the piano.

Rev. Mr. Burke gave a short address after which Prof. DeGraff gave an excellant exposition of "how to teach spelling," and the Institute adjourned.

THE LECTURE.

Prof. DeGraff, M.A., of Washington, D.C., delivered a capital lecture last night on the "Elements of Success, or Bound to Win," under the auspices of the Hastings Teachers Institute. "The Work of the Parent and Teacher," was the subject advertised for last night, but on account of there being very few of the heads of families present he intimated that he would not deliver that lecture until to-night. Mr. Wm. Johnson, Chairman of the Board of Education, occupied the chair, and seated beside him on the platform were:—Mr. S. L. Tilley, Inspector of Model Schools, Mr. Irvine Diamond, Mr. Scarlett, Public School Inspector County Northumberland; Mr. Borland, Principal Napanee High School; Mr. W. Mackintosh, Public School Inspector, North Hastings; Mr. Agnew, Public School Inspector County Frontenac; Mr. John Johnston, Public School Inspector South Hastings and Rev. A. Schuster. Mr. DeGraff is a man of average height, with full grown beard, grey, and with a strong voice, every word was distinctly audible.

The first element to success he said was adaptation. One man will win in a particular line of business because he was adapted to the work; the other will lose because he was not adapted to it. One must learn to face difficulties and meet them boldly. If he was bound to win he would not despise little things—

TRIFLES MAKE PERFECTION,

but perfection is not trifles. While they should be watchful of little things they ought not to let little things annoy them. There was a great difference in men's observation and intelligence. The close observer had an essential element to success in knowledge and science. To him how to value a dollar is to know how to earn it. Whatever was worth doing was worth doing well. A man may possess the energy to reach the top round of the ladder of success, but, unless he posessed that indefatigable energy and strong perserverance, his rise would be slow. Common sense was also an essential element to success. That was of course the least deficiency man suspected in himself. Common sense was the most scarce as well as the most useful factor to success. Accidents nor circumstances would not make men. Drudgery and toil in most spheres of life have to be endured, and those who have reached the highest round on the shining ladder of fame began at the very bottom. Poverty was a good thing in most cases. Excellence was only obtained in the labor of lifetime. Great men are always busy men. They are not busy over nothing as most ordinary men are. "Woe unto the man who is faint hearted,' should be the motto of every man who wished to succeed Money nor royal blood would not make it, but sturdy and perserverance would make them the first fathers of the land. All men who have made their mark in the world have marked their lives by perserverance and steady application. He implored them to be active and enthusiastic. Teachers should not be afraid of work for the good of humanity. Energy and enthusiasim was worth tons of text books. (Hear, hear.) Impossible, Napoleon said, was only to be to be found in the dictionary of fools. No truly Christian man could be an idle man. His criticism of the specimen of humanity sometimes called was severe yet humorous. Those, he said, who wore claw-hammer coats, slim canes, morroco shoes, silk hats, who did not live but existed, eking out a support on others, men who to all intent and purposes were dead, who by a heathenish custom of society have not been buried, were the curse of the land. (Laughter and cheers.) He thought parents were too indulgent with their children now-a-days. Instead of learning how to earn their living the son is dressed up with a cain, a little hair oil on his hair, and kid gloves, while the daughter learns to dance a little and play a piano miserably. He admired fine arts, but he had the greatest respect for those engaged in the coarser ones. He related a story of a Boston angel who would not marry a man with any bad faults, when one day her father said to her "my daughter, Heaven is your home," (laughter.) It was better he said to be a producer than a consumer. He would like to know what had become of the romping, jumping merry girls of forty years ago. The girls of to-day were called ladies but he liked the old time girls better. Girls have their privileges and they should exert them. They should have their fun, real boisterous fun if necessary, to relieve their aching brain. Avoid affectations—that is being a fool according to rule (cheers). He told them to use pure English and as they would the rankest poison. Girls who spend their time in reading exciting stories never succeed in life. They should read books that would not only instruct but refine them. Money borrowing he said was a bad practice and lead to discomforts and evil results. Industry was another element of success. A trade was the best thing a man could have. There were too many clerks and professional men. Pupils are taught at school to look down on mechanical pursuits, which was a grievous practice on the part of the teacher. As a rule children learn at school to avoid manual labor, whereas many of them when they leave school have to earn their daily bread by hard work. They only then begin their real education. No person should be "Jack of all trades and master of none;" they should have a fixed purpose in life. A thorough classical education was of little service unless backed up by a good, sound, general education. A good education with a good trade was sure to run up a healty bank account. Boys are debarred to a certain extent from leaving a trade by the labor unions of the present day and by immigration but they should turn their mind to mechanical pursuits rather than be a genteel clerk. He believed in legitimate sports, but as boat racing, ball playing and horse racing was carried on in this age, it was demoralizing, and those who engage in it rather than in study become a and should be expunged. To young men the ring of the hammer was better than the rattle of the faro table. If they would have bread they should earn it by the sweat of their brow. They should have a purpose in life and strive to make a mark in the world if it was only a dint in the sand. They will win when title bonds and deeds will perish. The poor boys will be shunned, but those who dispised them to-day will take them by the hand to-morrow. Young men should be courageous and if they go down they should not give up. Soft, putty men were only intended to scare the crows from the corn field. (Cheers.) There was no royal road to knowledge, no railroad, no short cut, but the same road as their fathers took. Distinction was not attained without hard work. Health, wealth, happiness and in truth every comfort was in the trade. Intelligence was another essential element to success. To-day they should spare no pains to teach others, and when they speak they should use good language. Words express character bad language runs into bad deeds. The more words are condensed the deeper they burn. He alluded in a humorous manner to the many mistakes of the present age by the extravagant and injudicious use of words, which brought down the house. Directness in speech should be cultivated, short words were more expressive and better than long ones. Culture he continued was another element of success.

THE 'DUDE"

AVOID SLANG

SOCIAL LEACH

CHARACTER WAS A GROWTH

and a very slow growth. Men may not live long enough to amass a fortune, or to be educational benefactors, but they will live long enough to have a character. Character was formed, not reformed. A character once lost can never be reclaimed. He preferred to hear the remark, there goes an honest man than a brilliant man. A brilliant man is very often a polished scoundrel. It's not all gold that glitters. Honest lawyers were better than great lawyers. There was no compatibility in the two. Men with the pluck, nay with the iron, to give a negative answer when the public demands it are the men of the right stamp. The present was no time for politics but a day for the cultivation of true citizenship. Energy with an honorable determination are the levers that move the world.

At the close of his lecture he was heartily applauded and a vote of thanks moved by Dr. Wright, seconded by Mr. Irvine Diamond, was carried among vociferous cheering.

This evening Prof. DeGraff will lecture in the Opera House, on "The Work of the Parent and the Teacher," and none who can attend should miss the opportunity.

H. A. McLaughlin, Norland, writes: "I am sold out of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. It sells well, and I find in every instance it has proven satisfactory. I have reason to believe it the best preparation of the kind in the market." It cures Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and Torpidity of the Liver, Constipation, and all diseases arising from Impure Blood, Female complaints, etc.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues, healed and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all his. Try it. Every bottle warranted.

FRAUDULENT TRANSACTIONS

There are many frauds perpetrated in medicine, and many advertised remedies worse than useless. Not so with Hagyard's Yellow Oil, It remains as ever the best internal and external medicine for all pain, soreness and injuries with which human flesh is afflicted.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally and the Ointment rubbed externally are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, surest. Holloway's Pills,—No Misery.—Whenever the blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of an prevailing epedemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished power should be these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce all erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, billiousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. The fruit season is especially prone to produce irritation of the bowels and disorder of the digestive organs; both of which dangerous conditions can be completely removed by Holloway's corrective medicines.

THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

HIS OUTSPOKEN OPINION.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. I am satisfied the medicine is not injurious and will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical preparation stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of these happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

'Because the house of God should not be defiled by the foot of an assassin.' cried Tim.

'An assassin,' shrieked Mary, recoiling.

'Yes,' cried Tim boldly, 'Squire Danvers, you are a justice, and I demand that you hear my charge against this man before he takes one step from the spot in which he stands.'

'Get away, Tim; you have been drinking,' said the squire. I shall have to spoil your Christmas by ordering you into custody,'

,My Tim drinking!' cried Dolly. 'Why he ain't tasted a drop for these seven years.'

'Stand aside fellow,' cried Brierley, 'or I'll hurl you from my path.'

'No you won't, fire raiser and skull-spitter that you are!' cried Tim. 'Squire, neighbors all, you know that three years ago I was beaten and left for dead in the lane, and that Harry Fairfield was transported for the deed because things looked black against him, and I could not recollect who bid it?'

'Yes, yes,' cried sevegal.

'But I recollect now: I remember it all now.'

'Squire,' exclaimed Brierley, 'as a magistrate, I appeal to you to have this mad man removed, Come Mary, let not the wild ravings of a drunken man distress you. A few hours in the stocks will bring him to his senses.'

I am in my senses, worse luck for you.' said Tim; 'and now I remember waking up out of my sleep in the lane and confronting you and yoor villainous clerk—Josiah Nib—whom you had sent to fire the farm and leave the coat of its owner, with the tinder box in the pocket, to convict him of your crime.'

'Away, lying villain, or I'll strike you to my feet!' cried Brierley.

But Mary flung herself between them.

'Hold,' she said; 'if he speaks falsel, what have you to fear? An innocent man need never resort to violence to establish that innocence.'

'True; I must laugh at and pity him. Forgive me for being annoyed at his ravings,'

'They are true words I utter,' cried Tim. 'Surprised in your infamy, with the farmers gun, which Josiah Nib had brought from the farm, you struck me about the head, and left me for dead in the lane.'

'Ha, ha, ha!' laughed Brierley with a forced laugh; 'a pretty story, but a very weak one when it takes three years to make it up.'

'Aye, villain; and it never would have been remembered but that hidden in the corn-room of the mill, behind the sacks, last night I witnessed a similar scene.'

With a cry of terror, Brierley sprang forward, and clutched Tim by the throat.

'Viper!' he hissed, 'I'll strangle you.'

'Release him,' exclaimed Mary, 'Why this violence, William?'

'Forgive me, Mary; I scarce know what I do. Justice, see, my bride is pale as death. This villain and liar has terrified her.'

And I will save her. Justice, you may think me mad, but hear me, and let him disprove it if he can. Here I swear that last night I saw him qurrrel with Josiah Nib, beat his head as he did mine, with the butt of a gun, and thrust his bleeding body down the wheel hole of the mill to prevent him ever divulging the crime o having attempted to murder me and setting fire to Fairfields farm.'

'Heaven! can I endure this?' gasped Brierley. 'Stand aside, Mary; Not even your love shall save him.'

'Hold, I command you!' cried squire Danvers. 'Where is Nib? Let him confront this fellow, and prove him a liar and slanderer,'

'Aye produce him if you can,' cried Tim.

I cannot, for he sailed for India last evening, and it is well known to many here he was going,' said Brierley.

'True,' said Danvers, 'and the fellow, knowing he is far from here, has connocted this vile story. Remove him and I will not fail to inflict a punishment upon him he deserves.'

'You dare not produce him.' said Tim. 'But I repeat every word, and to prove the truth, I call upon my witness. Here he is!'

At this moment supported by two rustics, a man staggered into the centre of the throng.

His face was ghastly, and his head swathed in bandages stained with blood. It was Josiah Nib, and it was evident that he was dying.

A howl of terror broke from the lips of Brierley, and Mary, clasping her hands to her forehead, staggered, and would have fallen to the earth had not Dolly caught her.

Every [illegible] ho walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate degree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrop and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never of propely and judiciously adm ns ered' Prepared by Northrup & Lyman, oronto, and sold by all drugists.

The reason why "Nonsush Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless, Second, It saves more than half the labor. Third, It is the cheapest in th market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficent. For sale by all Druggists.

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained a world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M'f'g Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world Price 25 cents a bottle.

FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable temperaments. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of despepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high-colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

AYER'S
Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the Vigor is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

Mr. C. P. Bricher writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. Bowen, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

Mr. Angus Fairbairn, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

Mrs. O. A. Prescott, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using Ayer's Hair Vigor the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the Vigor, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of Ayer's Hair Vigor. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

BAD RULERS.

Sermon Delivered in Brooklyn by Rev. Dr. Talmage.

"When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice; but when the wicked beareth rule the people mourn." Proverbs xxxix, 2.

"Woe to thee, O land, when thy king is a child, and thy princes eat in the morning," Ecclesiastics x. 16.

The scenes of riot and scandle in some of the Legislatures of this country, and the grave charges made against men in high places at Washington make it appropriate that I speak to you about what ought to be the high moral character of those who are in authority, that we may be more intelligent in our prayers, more intelligent in our suffrages. The morals of a nation seldom rise higher than the virtue of the rulers. Henry VIII. makes impurity popular and national. William Wilberforce gives moral tone to a whole empire. Sin, bestarred and epauletted, makes crime respectable and brings it into canonization. Malarias arise from the swamp and float upward but moral distempers descend from the mountain to the plain. The slums only disgust men with the bestiality of crime but dissolute French Court, or corrupt Congressional delegation puts a premium on iniquity. Many of the sins of the world are only royal exiles. They had a throne once, but they have been turned out, and they come down now to be entertained by the humble and the insignificant. There is not a land on earth which has so many moral men in authority as this land. There is not a session of Legislature or Congress or Cabinet but in it are thoroughly Christian men, men whose hands would consume a bribe, whose cheek has never been flushed with intoxication, whose tongue has never been smitten of blasphemy or stung of a lie; men whose speeches in behalf of the right and against the wrong remind us of the old Scotch Covenanters, and the defiant challenge of Martin Luther, and the red lightning of Micah and Habakkuk. These times are not half as bad as the times that are gone. I judge so from the fact that Aaron Burr, a man stuffed with iniquity until he could hold no more, the debaucher of the debauched, was a member of the Legislature, then Attorney-General, then a Senator of the United States, then Vice President, and then at last coming within one vote of the highest position in this nation. I judge it from the fact that more than half a century ago the Governor of this State disbanded the Legislature of New York because it was too corrupt to sit in council

HOLDING BACK THE TRUTH.

There is a tendency in our time to extol the past to the disadvantage of the present, and I suppose that sixty years from now there may be persons who will represent some of us as angels although now everything is so unpromising. But the iniquity of the past is no excuse for the public wickedness of to-day, and so I unroll the scroll in the presence of the assemblage. Those who are in editorial chairs and in pulpits may not hold back the truth, King David must be made to feel the reproof of Nathan, and Felix must tremble before Paul, and we may not walk with muffled feet lest we wake up some big sinner. If we keep back the truth, what will we do in the day when the Lord rises up in judgment, and we are tried as well for what we have declined to say? In unrolling the scroll of public wickedness I first find incompetency for office. If a man struggle for an official position for which he has no qualification, and win that position, he commits a crime against God and against society. It is no sin for me to be ignorant of medical science, but if, ignorant of medical science, I set myself up among professional men and trifle with the lives of people, then the charlatanism becomes positive knavery. It is no sin for me to be ignorant of machinery, but if, knowing nothing about it, I attempt to take a steamer across to Southampton, and through darkness and storm I hold the lives of hundreds of passengers, then all who are slain by that shipwreck may hold me accountable. But what shall I say of those who attempt to doctor our institutions without qualification, and who attempt to engineer our political affairs across the rough and stormy sea, having no qualification? We had at one time in the Congress of the United States men who put one tariff upon linseed oil and flaxseed oil, not knowing they were the same thing. We have had men, and have men now in our Legislatures who know not whether to vote aye or no until they have seen the wink of the leader. Polished civilians acquainted with all our institutions and run over in a stampede for office by men who have not the first qualification. And so there have been school commissioners sometimes nominated in grogshops and hurrahed for by the rabble; the men elected not able to read their own commissions. And judges of courts who have given sentences to criminals in such inaccuracy of phraseology that the criminal at the bar has been more amused at the stupidity of the bench than alarmed at the prospect of his own punishment. I arraign incompetency for office as one of the great crimes of this day in public places. Unroll still further the scroll of public wickedness and come to intemperance. There has been a great improvement in this direction. The Senators who were more celebrated for their drunkenness that for their statesmanship are dead or compelled to stay at home. The

TEMPTATION TO INTEMPERANCE

in public places is simply terrific. How often there have been men in public places who have disgraced the nation. Of the men who were prominent in public circles, political circles, twenty-five or thirty years ago, how few of them died respectable deaths! Those who died of delirium tremens, or kindred diseases, were in the majority. The doctor fixed upon the case very well, and in his report of it said it was gout, or it was rheumatism, or it was obstruction of the liver, or it was exhaustion from patriotic services; but God knows and we all know it was whiskey! That which smote the villain in the dark alley smote down the great orator, and the great legislator The one you wrapped in a rough cloth and pushed into a rough coffin and carried out in a box wagon and let him down into a pauper's grave, without a prayer or a benediction, Around the other gathered the pomp of the land, the lordly men walked with uncovered heads beside the hearse tossed with plumes on the way to a grave to be adorned with a white marble shaft, all four sides covered with eulogium. One man was killed by logwood rum at two cents a glass; the other by a beverage three dollars a bottle, I write both their epitaphs. I write one epitaph with my lead pencil on the shingle over the pauper's grave; I write the other epitaph with chisel cutting on the white marble of the senator, 'Slain by strong drink.' You know as well as I that again and again dissipation has been no hindrance to office in this country. Did we not at one time have a Secretary of the United States caried home dead drunk? Did we not have a Vice-President sworn in so intoxicated that the whole land hid its head in shame?

PUBLIC BRIBERY.

I unroll the scroll of public iniquity and I come to bribery—bribery by money, bribery by proffered office. Do not charge it upon American institutions. It is a sin we got from the other side of the water. Francis Bacon the thinker of his century—Francis Bacon, of whom it was said, when men heard him speak they were only fearful that he would stop—Francis Bacon, with all his castles and all his emoluments destroyed by bribery, fined $200,000, or what is equal to our $200,000, and hurled into London Tower, and this only excuse was, he said all his predecessors had done the same thing. Lord Chancellor Macclesfield destroyed by bribery, Lord Chancellor Waterbury destroyed by bribery. Benedict Arnold selling the fort in the Highlands for $31,585. For this sin Geargy betrayed Hungary, and Ahithophel forsook David, and Judas kissed Christ. And it is abroad in our land. You know in many of the Legislatures of this country it has been impossible to get a bill through unless it had financial consideration. The question has been asked softly, sometimes very softly asked, in regard to a bill, 'Is there any money in it?' and the lobbies of the Legislatures and the national Capitol have been crowded with railroad men and manufacturers and contractors, and the iniquity has become so great that sometimes reformers and philanthrophists have been laughed out of Harrisburg and Albany and Trenton and Washington, because they came empty handed. 'You vote for this bill and I'll vote for that bill.' 'You favor that monopoly of a moneyed institution, and I'll favor the other monopoly for another institution.' And here is a bill that it is going to be very hard to get through the Legislature, and you will call some friends together at a midnight banquet, and while they are intoxicated you will have them promise to vote your way. Here are $5 000 for prudent distribution in this direction, and here are $1.000 for prudent distribution in that direction. Now we are within four votes of having enough. You give $5,000 to that intelligent member from Westchester, and you give $2,000 to that stupid member from Ulster, and now we are within two votes of having it. Give $500 to this member who will be sick and stay at home, and $300 to this member who will go to see his great aunt languishing in her last sickness. Now the day has come for the passing of the bill. The speaker's gavel says. 'Senators, are you ready for the question? All in favor of voting away these thousands of millions of dollars will say 'aye.' 'Aye, aye, aye, aye.' 'They ayes have it.' Some of the finest houses on Brooklyn Heights and Brooklyn Hill and on Beacon street and on Madison square and on Rittenhouse square were built out of money paid for votes in Legislatures. Five hundred small wheels in political machinery, with cogs reaching into one great centre wheel, and that wheel has a tire of railroad iron and a crank to it on which Satan puts his hand and turns the centre wheel and that turns the five other wheels of political machinery. While in this country it is becoming harder and harder for the great mass of the people to get a living, there are too many men in this country who have their two millions and their ten millions and their twenty millions, and carry the Legislatures in one pocket and the Congress of the United States in the other. And there is trouble ahead. Revolution. I pray God it may be peaceful revolution and at the ballot box. The time must come in this country when men shall be sent into public position who cannot be purchased. I do not want the union of Church and State, but I declare that if the Church of God does not show itself in favor of the great mass of the people, as well as in favor of the Lord, the time will come when the Church as an institution will be extinct, and Christ will go down again to the beach and choose twelve plain, honest fishermen to come up into the apostleship of a new dispensation of righteousness manward and Godward. But you know that bribery is cursing this land. I never believed in a Republican form of Government as I do to-day, for the simple reason that any other style of government would have been consumed long ago. There have been swindles enacted in this nation within the last thirty years enough to swamp three monarchies. The Democratic party filled its cups of iniquity before it went out of power, before the war. Then the Republican party came along, and its opportunities through the contracts were greater, and so it filled its cup of iniquity a little sooner, and there they lie to-day, the Democratic party and the Republican party, side by side, great loathsome carcasses of iniquity, each one worse than the other. Tens of thousands of good citizens in all the parties; but you know as well as I do, that organization in this country is utterly, utterly corrupt.

GO IN AND REFORM.

Now, if there were nothing for you and for me to do in this matter, I would not present this subject. There are several things for us to do in this matter. First, stand aloof from all political office unless you have your moral principles thoroughly settled. Do not go into this blaze of temptation unless you are fireproof. Hundreds of respectable men have been destroyed for this life and the life to come because they had not moral principle to stand office. You go into some office of authority without moral principle, and before you get through you will lie, and you will swear, and you will gamble, and you will steal. You say that it is not complimentary. Well, I always was clumsy at compliments. Another thing for you to do is to be faithful at the ballot box. Do not stand on your dignity and say:—'I'll not go where the rabble are.' If need be, put on your old clothes and just push yourself through amid the unwashed and vote. Vote for the men who love God and hate rum. You cannot say, you ought not to say:—'I have nothing to do with this matter.' Then you will insult the graves of your children who may live to feel the bad results of your negligence. Another thing for you to do:—Evangelize the people. Get the hearts of the people right and they will vote right.

The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labor. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficent. For sale by all Druggists.

CORN RAISING.

It may surprise the good people of Canada to learn that the corn crop has been immensely increased in Canada. No doubt the N. P. people will claim this as a product of protection, but Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor alone is entitled to all the credit. It raises more corn to the acre, than anything else the world can supply. Safe, sure, and painless. Take no substitute. Only 25 cents. Try your hand, A good crop guaranteed. Beware of flesh eating substitutes. N. C. Polson & Co., proprs. Kingston.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

QUEEN VICTORIA.

Her Majesty of Great Britain and Ireland attains her sixty-fifty year to-day. It is safe to say that she stands higher in the estimation of her people as a constitutional sovereign than ever before. As the head of a pure Court, and patroness of everything that is good and charitable she is making the Victorian era noteworthy in future estimation for piety and public progress. Her private character is extolled by all nations and constitutes a garland more precious than the crown. Recent private griefs display a resignation and fortitude which show that in her declining years Her Majesty is sustained by that unfaltering trust which looks beyond towards a crown greater than earth can bestow. May her remaining years be spent as usefully as those of the past, rewarded by the approbation of a loyal people to whose lips comes without constraint the prayer—God Save the Queen.

A SERIOUS QUESTION.

In the beginning of Sir Richard Cartwright's great speech at Toronto a few days ago he addressed himself first to the danger which confronts Canada. Politics, he said, are every day becoming, in a country like Canada, more and more complicated; the work of government requires more and more time. We cannot shut our eyes to the manifest fact that, constantly as it becomes more and more necessary that we should secure the services of the best men in the country to manage our public affairs, it is evident that it is more and more difficult for us to get them.

The hon. gentleman then cited the case of the Southern States whose influence at Washington had grown unduly proportionate and for which the North has at length to dearly pay. Continuing he said:—I have to say to you that, partly owing, no doubt, to the laches of the people of Ontario, the people of Ontario, as recent events have shown, are far from possessing their due influence or weight in the councils of the nation, while, on the other hand, one of sister Provinces exercises, as all of us who have been in public life know, much more than its reasonable share. I am not in the slightest degree disposed, for my part, to make it a reproach to the people of Quebec that they have chosen to take more interest in politics, and in proportion to their population and resources have sent more of their best men to Parliament than the people of Ontario have done. But I say that in the history of the United States there is a warning for us and a warning for them. Every man knows, who has paid any attention to public affairs in Canada for a good while back, that the great Province of Ontario has been deprived of the exercise of its due share of weight in the councils of the nation. I would not have you suppose that I blame the members from Quebec for this—that those of them who supported the Government have always appeared to more able and willing to exercise an independent voice on the concerns of the nation. I do not blame them for that. I blame ourselves. I blame the country. I blame the members from Ontario, because they will not stand up for the rights of their own province; because they will not stand up in defence of those rights which they are sent to protect; they will not do that at all in the same spirit or to the same extent that the members from Quebec, the delegation from Quebec, do constantly (applause). It is well for you to remember that these things are in your own hands to remedy, and that when you choose to insist on those who represent you in Parliament doing as the representatives from other provinces do—then, gentlemen, you will have no reason to complain that Ontario has not her due weight and share in the councils of the people. (Loud applause) Now, gentlemen, if these things be so, and I think that no man who has had any experience in public life will deny that they are substantially correct you will see for yourselves what an extraordinary opening is given just now in Canada to unscrupulous men of seizing upon the reins of power and abusing it; and you will see that there is of necessity very considerable difficulty in opposing them. Almost of necessity the knowledge of public affairs, which, as I have said, are becoming more and more intricate, grows less and less. Almost of necessity the people begin to think that they can no longer devote the requisite time and attention to public matters, and consequently the idea springs up in the minds of many men that they can very well afford to let things go—at the worst, come what may, the resources of this coutry, its inherent vitality, are so great that it can stand any amount of misgovernment without being utterly ruined. That idea is the more dangerous because there is a certain germ of truth in it.

After referring to the difficulties of governing a country so vast and complex as ours the speaker said:—The inference that I draw from that—the inference I would have you draw—is not that because of these difficulties you should cease to take an active interest in politics, but that you should recognize these difficulties; that you should face them; that you should seek by your energy, activity, and patriotism to overcome these evils and make of Canada as great a country as I believe Providence intended Canada to be—(applause)—if only the sons of Canada be true to their task. (Applause.) But I have to say to you that this cannot be done by sitting at home at ease, and that you will do well to remember that your duty to your country compels you to take a share—an active and energetic share—in the government and politics of our country just as if war were to threaten your country, duty would compel you to bear a share in the defence.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE MEMBERS of the Quebec Legislature are considering the question of increasing their sessional indemnity $300. They feel rich after the Dominion generosity.

THE POST OFFICE Savings Bank statement published for April shows that the deposits during the month were $483,488, and the withdrawls, $615,352. This excess of taking out over putting in is a depressing sign.

WE CONGRATULATE the editor of the Mail on the improvement in his poetry. It is gratifying to friends that the following high standard of excellence has been reached:—

"C was a whiskered old rat
Who tried to make love to a cat;
He sang her a song, both loving and long,
But she said, 'You can't fool me like that!'"

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT said in Toronto that in some important respects our people have a less firm hold of the real principles of liberty than they had twenty or forty years ago. Rev. Dr. Talmage said the other Sunday that the morals of a nation seldom rise higher than the virtue of the rulers. There is much truth in this. Turn the false guides out.

* * *

THE MAN who has the courage of his convictions, and the good of the people at heart is the man to be trusted with the administration of public affairs. Speaking in Toronto Sir Richard Cartwright said:—"If I am to do any good—if any of us are to do any good by our addresses to the people—we must not be afraid because what we have to say may be unpopular or even somewhat unpleasant to some of our audience."

HIS EXCELLENCY'S PLUG HAT.

The Kingston News narrates the following incident of the Governor General's visit on Wednesday, but omits to append the usual affidavit of its truth:—When His Excellency became seated he placed his silk plug hat behind his chair. During the crush a merchant placed a number "11" on it and the hat instantly collapsed. When the Marquis picked it up at the close of the proceedings he did not recognize it, but the Mayor, taking in the situation at a glance, took the hat out of his hand, pressed out the crown and sides, straightened the rim, ran the sleeve of his broadcloth around it, and then handed it back a changed article. The Governor smiled and returned thanks, but is was noticed that he wore a new hat next day.

QUICK-TEMPERED STUFF.

A Buffalo janitor kicked a can of nitro-glycerine, and right then, for the first time in his life, became a really active man, inaugurating proceedings by turning a double somersault and knocking out a hodful of mortar and brick with the back of his head at one end of the room. He continued the performance by kicking down the stove, pulling down the chandelier, and plowing up the plaster with his nose. When the nitroglycerine let the old man sit down and take a rest he looked mournfully at the fragment of tin that once held the chain lightning, and said to the doctor: 'Wal, if that ain't the quickest-temperedest stuff I ever saw.

"SPACIALLY JIM."

(From the Century "Bric a Brac.")

I was mighty good-lookin' when I was young
Peert an' black-eyed an' slim,
With fellers a-courtin' me Sunday nights,
'Spacially Jim.

The likelist one of 'em all was he,
Chipper, an' han'som', and trim,
But I tossed up my head an' made fun o' the crowd,
'Spacially Jim!

I said I hadn't no 'pinion o' men,
An' I wouldn't take stock in him!
But they kep' up a-comin' in spite o' my talk,
'Spacially Jim!

I got so tired o' havin' 'em roun'
('Spacially Jim!)
I made up my mind I'd settle down
An' take up with him.

So we was married one Sunday in church,
'Twas crowded full to the brim;
'Twas the only way to git rid of 'em all,
'Spacially Jim!

THE PROPAGANDA.

ROME, May 22.—In the Senate, to-day, Mancini, Minister of Foreign Affairs, said the law passed affecting the Propaganda must be fulfilled. He hoped soon to introduce a bill definitely regulating Church property, in which it would be possible to introduce a stipulation favorable to the Prodpganda. In the Deputies Bonacci gave notice he would soon introduce a motion asking the Government to apply to Court for the appointment of arbitrators.

BIG FIRE IN TORONTO.

TORONTO, May 24. (Special)—A fire is raging in the Mail building corner of King and Bay streets. Owing to the height of the structure it is difficult to throw water to the roof. Strenuous efforts are, however, being made to get control of the flames. The entire brigade is out under a general alarm. Besides the printing company the building was occupied by the London and Lancashire Insurance Co., the Bell Telephone, the Clare Lithographing Company and by numerous lawyers, architects and artists.

TROWSERS FOR WOMEN.

"Do you have female customers for gentleman's suit?"

"We have more than the general public knows anything about. Ah, there it is! What do they do with men's clothes? I dare say many of them wear them in the seclusion of home for comfort's sake. Now, take a riding habit, it's no earthly good without trowsers, and if a woman once gets a complete riding outfit she is spoiled for ever. She becomes irreparably addicted to the trowsers habit, and I never knew one that was redeemed. It grows upon her gradually, until the loose, baggy, riding trowsers only aggravate her craving for an out and out pair of pantaloons. It's a circus to hear the humble requests that some of them make when they come to order a suit for the first time. We send them down stairs to a lady in our employ, who takes their measure for a neat fit. But many of them don't care whether the pantaloons are close fitting or not, being a little shy of the cutters that we can't break off staring at them.—Toronto Globe.

Notwithstanding much has been said about the importance of a blood-purifying medicine, it may be possible that the matter has never seriously claimed your attention. Think of it now! If, by the use a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla you avoid the evils of scrofula, and transmit a healthy constitution to your offspring, thank us for the suggestion.

WHAT'S IN A NAME.

Scrofula so called from the Latin scrofa, a pig, from the supposition that the disease came from eating swine's flesh. It is often inherited from parents, and leads to abscesses, ulcerous sores, debility, king's evil and consumption. The case of the Rev. Wm. Stout, of Wairton, who suffered 23 years from scrofulous abscesses, is one of the most remarkable on record. Burdock Blood Bitters cured him after the best medical skill had failed.

THE LATE THOMAS DOWNEY.

The Napanee Express furnishes the following particulars of the life of the late Thomas Downey, father of G. H, Downey, of this city:—The old gentleman had been in failing health for some time but his demise was not so soon expected. Deceased was born in County Antrim, Ireland, and emigrated to this country, settling in South Fredericksburgh in 1831. He lived there until ten years ago when he removed to Napanee and became the head of the firm of Downey & Co.,—his sons being the partners—which ranks among the largest dealers in grain, dry goods and coal in the Dominion. During later years he has not taken an active part in the business of the firm, and for some time he has been confined to the house from the effects of paralysis and a general breaking up of the system. He leaves a large family of sons, all of whom are prominent business men, and two daughters. The funeral takes place to-day at 2 p.m

THE PLAY OF "THE PHŒNIX."

The Dramatic Association is actively rehearsing "Phœnix or risen from his Ashes," which will be produce as originally performed by Milton Nobles, who holds a copyright of the drama, on Thursday evening. This is confidently expected to be the finest amateur performance ever given in this city, and perhaps any other city. The leading parts are taken by ladies and gentlemen who are familiar with stage business and with some of the requirements of acting. The "leading lady" has exceptional ability and has played the part before. The scenery and music will be all that is required and the public countenance only is wanting to make the occasion a complete success.

THE SECRET OUT

The secret of beauty has been at last revealed. Without good health, pure blood and a fair clear skin none can possess good looks. What is more repulsive than pimples, blotches and a shallow or pasty complexion? Burdock Blood Bitters reveal the fact that all can gain pure blood and freedom from the repulsive diseases of the skin that result from impurities.

HASTINGS REFORM CLUB.

Enthusiastic Meeting and Election of Officers.

A rousing meeting of the Hastings Reform Club was held in their hall, Harrison's Block, last night. The attendance was large and for a time when no election is pending, the young and old Liberals of the city evinced the greatest interest in the formation of a club whose object is political and literary advancement. It was decided to have regular weekly meetings on Friday night, and the rules and regulations governing the Toronto Association were adopted. The officers elected were:—J. J. B. Flint, President; Dr. Murphy, Vice-President; John Williams second Vice-President; P. J. M. Anderson, Secretary; Stephen O'Brien, Financial Secretary; W. T. McIntyre, Treasurer; Executive Committee,—G. W. Vandewaters, (Chairman,) N. McArthur, D. K. I. McKinnon, Geo. H. Anderson, R. Stevenson, C. Green, John Stewart, G. S. Johnson, S. J. Young, J. Fox, M. Wright, A. A. McDonald, C. A. Abraham, W. Benniger. C. Patty, W. Smeaton and E. Fitzgerald. The officers are ex-officio members of this committee, which will meet on Thursday evening next at 8:30 to arrange for supplies for the room. This club is open to members throughout the county, and it is proposed to have the rooms open to receive visitors at any time. The principal object of the Hastings Reform Club is to embrace the younger element of the party, and last night's proceedings augurs well for the future prosperity and usefulness of the club.

THE TEACHERS INSTITUTE.

The Progress of Education During the Last Century.

When the Teacher's Institute opened yesterday morning Prof DeGraff took up the subject of geography and by means of a moulding board gave several useful and practical illustrations. Language lessons was next dealt with in a comprehensive style. In the afternoon reading for advanced classes and arithmetic were the subjects discussed The Institute closed at 5 o'clock.

THE LECTURE.

Professor DeGraff lectured last evening in the Opera House to a good audience on the progress of education during the last century. Mr. A. F. Wood, M.P.P., occupied the chair. Those who occupied seats on the platform were Sheriff Hope, Rev. J. W. Burke, Mr. Wm. Johnson, Mr. W. Mackintosh and Mr. John Johnston. Those who were present were disappointed in not hearing the lecture on the "duty of parent and teacher," as the one which the lecturer substituted would have suited an American audience much better, as it no doubt has on many previous occasions. The paper dealt with America fifty and a hundred years ago and gave statistical information regarding the number of colleges and so on in the States He said as education increased pauperism decreased, and if education was compulsory throughout the land pauperism would decrease 90 per cent. The key to self-support was education. Of those arrested for crime 90 per cent cannot read nor write. The best preventive to crime was the public school aided by the high school, the colleges and the religious churches. The free access which women had to the colleges of the present day was one cause for the wonderful advancement of education during the nineteenth century.

THE HAMMOND ELECTRIC LIGHT COMPANY.

The reports and balance sheets of these electric lighting companies are strange reading. The Hammond Company, with a capital of £330,000, shows on the debtor side of the year ending December last, a total of £32,860, and on the creditor side a total of £3,100. The gross profit for the year on trading has been £2,734, advertising figures for £1,667, exhibitions for £1,166, and experimenting and testing for £3,449. Altogether the company is poorer by £29,768 than at the commencement of 1883.

To meet this state of things the directors propose to convert the capital, which now consists of £330,000. divided into 66,000 shares of £5 each, into £525,000 divided into 350,000 shares of £1 10s each. Of these, 40,-133 are to be given to the holders of ordinary shares, 7,990 to the holders of deferred shares whilst the Company is to take powers to issue a further 150,000 shares to the public. Of these latter, it may be said, "First catch your hare." It is hardly likely that even idiots will subscribe to an issue of shares in an electric light company just now, and certainly not to one that assesses its loss during a year's operation at about £30,000. There can be no objection to the company converting its ordinary shares of £5 into shares of £1 10s, but why, I would ask, are deferred shareholders and holders of founders' shares to receive ordinary shares? What possible value can attach either to a deferred share or to a founder's share in this company?

ONTARIO MUTUAL LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

We have just received a Dominion Blue Book containing an abstract of Life Assurance done in Canada for 1883, and a pamphlet containing the fourteenth annual report of the Ontario Mutual Life Assurance Company. From the Government report we learn that in the number of new policies for last year, the Ontario Mutual stands far ahead of all the British and American Companies and is third on the list of Canadian Companies. The reasons for this high standing of the Ontario Mutual is shown by a reference to its annual report and appended statistics. Being the only purely mutual company, its management is altogether in the hands of the assured, who alone receive all the profits. How favorably the mutual system is regarded by insurers, is shown by the fact that in the United States the assets of the six leading Mutual Companies amount to $272,634,633, while the assets of the six leading Stock Companies amount to only $110,258,122 How the mutual system cheapens life assurance may be seen by two examples of mutual transactions, A young man who is insured for $1,000 in the Ontario Mutual at the age of 27 at the annual premium of $19,44 has paid in 14 years on account of reduction by profits only $190.80, while the cash value of his policy is now $122.60 so that he has covered the risk for 14 years at an average yearly cost of $4.88 and his premium is now down to $8.91 and is still decreasing. Another gentleman, aged 51, under similar circumstances has carried the risk at an annual average cost of $10 45, while the decreasing premium is now down to $18 90. If is not surprising then that the Ontario Mutual is doing such an enormous business, and their energetic general agent, for this district, Mr. S. Burrows, will no doubt, as he always has done, contribute a good share of the amount from his agency. Doubtless he will be pleased to see all intending insurers. His office is in the Ashley Block, Front street,

TRUTH WINS THE DAY.

'Ah, villain, villain,' cried the wounded man pointing to the terrorstricken Brierley 'Thank God! I am in time to prevent the poor girl becoming the wife of a murderer. Squire Danvers, I am dying, and before I pay the penalty of a wicked life, hear my confession and arrest my murderer. I die by the hands of William Brierley, the man who tempted me to fire the farm of Harry Fairfield, the man who all but murdered Whipall, the man who goaded me to crime and made me the instrument of his revengeful passions.'

'False, all false!' cried Brierley. 'Who will believe this tale? I guilty!—what should prompt me to such crime?'

'Revenge for the blow struck by a true and honest man, upon the face of a villain, Squire with my dying breath I swear that Farmer Fairfield is innocent, that I kindled the fire at the farm, and that yonder villain, to hide his attempt on Tim's life and destroy all evidence of his crime, he has murdered me,'

Then faint and overcome by the exertions he had made, Josiah sank back.

'Mary, Mary!' cried William, 'you will not believe this wild story.'

And he attempted to take her hand.

'Away!' she cried, recoiling from him. 'Away, murderer. Oh, villain, villain! You have destroyed my happiness for ever, Away, I say; I hate, I loathe, I despise you!'

'Seize him!' said Danvers. 'William Brierley, you are indeed a villain without mercy! And as you have denied it to others, may the law deny it to you. Arrest him!'

'Back!' cried Brierley, drawing a pistol from his bosom. 'The game has been played, and I have lost, but I'll not make a show for a gaping crowd, or stand upon a gallows. Approach not; I am a desperate man,'

'Block up each path; he cannot escape. William Brierley, I call on you to surrender.'

'And I refuse, and woe to him who attempts my capture. Brought as I am to bay, I can still give back scorn for scorn, hate for hate, Mary, you are saved from a blood-stained husband, but still I triumph in the knowledge that the man you preferred to me can never possess you, toiling in chains, a branded felon, you will never see him more, and the man who ruined him to win you still glories in the knowledge that he is dead to you for ever.'

As he spoke he walked backwards up the church steps, presenting his pistol at the officers and rustics: but as the last words fell from his lips, a figure sprang through the doorway, tore the pistol from his grasp, seized him by the throat and hurled him down the steps, crying—

'Scoundrel! Harry Fairfield is to confound you.'

'Great Heavens!' yelled Brierley. 'Has fate itself conspired against me?'

'Aye, villain. Providence enabled me to escape my chains, and brought me to the spot where your last victim lay, and aided me to secure him long enough to betray your villainy. Oh, what injury did I ever do you, that you have made wretched two loving hearts?'

'You loved the woman I had marked for my own and struck the man who never forgave a blow. I swore to be revenged and I kept my word.'

But how has that revenge recoiled upon yourself?' said Harry, 'Defeated, dishonored, you stand a branded felon, in the presence of those you sought to destroy.'

'Ah, triumph in your victory,' said Brierley. 'But even yet I will turn your triumph to defeat, your joy to sorrow, your hopes to tears, and thus I triumph even as I fall. This to her heart!'

As he spoke, he drew another pistol from his bosom and levelled it at Mary.

But quick as a flash, Harry raised the weapon he held and fired, and leaping up in the air, William Brierley fell at her feet.

With a scream the poor girl clung to Dolly.

Nib raised himself up in the rustics arms'

'Retribution, justice at last, and I die content,' he cried, flinging his arms above his head, and falling forward dead.

Brierley struggled to his elbow and looking at Harry, gasped out—

'Aye justice is mine victory yours. My life is ebbing fast. Draw near me all, and hear the only atonement I can make for years of villainy. I—I am guilty,—Harry Fairfield is innocent. I hated him; but my revenge has recoiled upon myself. But he has been merciful and saved a blood-stained wretch 'from the gallows. Forgive me, pray for me—pray, pray.'

His head sank back—he was dead.

For a few moments Harry and Mary stood gazing down upon the dead body of Brierley—then they rushed to each other's arms.

'Mary, Mary, my loved, my lost, my restored,' he cried.

'Oh' Harry, my long mourned, everloved Harry. Providence has restored you to my arms, and in gratitude I press to my now joyful heart the hand from which the brand of crime has been removed.'

'It has, and now I again stand among my fellows an honest, guiltless man. Oh, Mary, what happiness to hold you once more to my throbbing heart, while the Christmas Bells ring out in joyous pale a promise of peace on earth, good will to all.

THE END.

Every [illegible] ho walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligtnt eye the colorless faces of more tham fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate pegree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrup and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never [illegible] of properly and judiciously administered. Prepared by Northrup & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all drugists.

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M'f'g Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable temperaments. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of dyspepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co s. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND's farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND's direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND's permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND's extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

THE "MAIL" FIRE.

Perilous Position and Exciting Escape of Six Girls.

A FIREMAN FATALLY INJURED.

From our own Correspondent.

TORONTO, May 26.—The fire in the splendid five story building of the Mail Ptg. Co., of which I wired you on Saturday was not so disastrous as at first supposed. The exterior of the building presents its usual imposing view with the exception of the roof and tower.

The fire for the most part was kept to the King street or south wing. The cellar was completely gutted; so were the basement offices; the ground and first and second floors were ruined by smoke and water; the third floor (the Bell telephone) was gutted, and the loft and roof above completely destroyed.

THE TELEPHONE GIRLS.

The World has the following account of the most exciting accident of the fire:—The elevator and stairway is the only exit for the King street wing. Once the fire got in the elevator shaft all means of exit was cut off for those who were in the King street wing. The iron door on the telephone flat between the two wings has been locked for a year. Had it been open the girls might have escaped first by it. Six girls were at work in the telephone operating room. It is the fifth floor up from the street. Terror seized them when they learned of the fire. One called up the house of Mr. Neilson, the manager, and told in a crying voice that the Mail was on fire. Ald. Brandon, from his office on Victoria street, made the last call. One of the girls told him she could not give him the Walker house, as the Mail building was on fire. The telephone company occupy half a dozen rooms. The back room at the northwest corner of the south wing has a window looking out on a court that separates it from the north wing. Fifteen feet lower down is the roof of a building in rear of the Brunswick hotel (King street), but some feet west of the Mail building. The girls finding the stairway and hall full of smoke ran to this window. One of them, Miss Francis McCarthy, raised the window, got on the sill, and seizing one of four wires that run out of the top of the sash, jumped for the roof below. She fell in a heap on the gravelled top. The wire was extra strong (one of the four that run to Hamilton), and carried are all right. She had to slide or

JUMP FIFTEEN FEET,

and in her flight she passed over a yawning court space reaching to the ground. Another girl was going to follow, but Mr. Hambley called to her from the Mail composing room not to, as he was getting a ladder. The girls then retreated, closed the doors to keep out the smoke, and went to a window on the King street front. The water gutter is just under the sill of this window. It is ten inches wide, eighty feet from the ground. One after another the five girls got out on the gutter. They were calling for help. The crowd below was wildly excited. The flames were bursting out of the roof in rear of the girls. Two young men, J. Myers, plumber, 113 Simcoe street, and James Quinn (son of the hotel keeper), King street west, forced open the hall door of the building immediately west of the Mail, and ascended the stairs to the roof, taking with them a ladder they found on the ground floor. The roof is a flat one with an iron railing on King street. They got up close to the railing and raised the ladder against the west wall of the Mail. It was fourteen feet long and reached

WITHIN TWO FEET.

of where the nearest girl stood of the burning. Quinn held the ladder and Myles went up, reached for the nearest girl, got her to step round the corner, as it were, on to the ladder, and then conducted her down to the flat roof. Young Quinn held the ladder, no small task, while the other went up. Cheers burst from the crowd below as they saw the five girls rescued. Miss McCarthy, who had jumped from the rear was also on the same roof.

Tom Reid, foreman of one of the fire halls was so seriously injured by the upsetting of the reel going to the fire that he died this morning. The company think they will repair the damage to the building by July.

THE DAILY ONTARIO

THE SETTLERS IN BELLEVILLE

Our neighbor, The Intelligencer, has been extremely exercised of late about the interests of "a settler in Faraday." Some of our readers may know where Faraday is, and to those who do not we can impart the needed information. It is a township containing some fifty to sixty thousand acres, lying seventy miles north of us, with a population of possibly five or six hundred and an equalized assessed value last year of twenty thousand dollars. The City of Belleville has an assessed value of several millions and a population of about ten thousand. It is a matter of public notoriety, extremely to be regretted but nevertheless true, that the value of property (and the number of people in Belleville are not increasing as rapidly as we would like. We have endeavored to show where the responsibility largely rested for this grave state of affairs. The City of Belleville has many claims upon our neighbor and the party for which it is the mouthpiece. The interests at stake here are vastly more important, and our indictment against the powers that govern cannot be obscured by a cloud of dust regarding the township referred to. The short comings of the Ontario Cabinet may be all that are claimed. Mr. Wm. Coe may be a soulless and merciless land grabber. The "settler in Faraday" may be a veritable inhabitant of that township, or he may stand as a thin disguise for the local member for the North Riding who is so industriously blowing his own bugle and sounding his own praises. We are perfectly prepared to let Mr. Mowat and Mr. Pardee, as public servants, stand upon their own record. But we are not disposed to allow Messrs. Bowell, Robertson and John White to escape from deserved public censure upon any false pretence. We have arraigned them upon the grave charge of wilful neglect of the vital concerns of their own county and city. We charged them with the improper exercise of their functions as representatives of the people of Hastings. We showed that they had neglected to do things which they should have done, and that they did things which they should not by any means have done. We demonstrated that they had jeopardized the future of this city and the village of Madoc by allowing their personal animosities, political prejudices and unworthy jealousness to sway them as public men. We therein voiced the unanimous opinion of the settlers in Belleville of all shades of politics and all departments of business. The Intelligencer, as the organ os these worthies, has pursued a course that is stale from too long and too frequent use. It simply fires a charge of mud at Mr. Pardee and Mr. Coe, who are not parties to the controversy. An old and shrewd lawyer once advised a younger one that if his client was guilty to never try him. He said to postpone the case as often as possible and when at last he had to face the music to try anyone else rather than the prisoner. If a witness was modest or hesitating, abuse him; if the opposite counsel was a gentleman, fall foul of him; in any way possible divert attention from the real culprit. It would be entirely proper for the Intelligencer to criticise the Department of Crown Lands when it gets to fully understand the subject of the Coe lands. But its constituency of readers wants to know, not why Mr. Coe and his friends have got a lot of wild lands by paying the usual price for them but it does want to know why Mr. Coe and his friends have got exclusive railway control of all the back country. The railway is the key to the situation. Without it the lands are of no value, with it they may be made available and profitable. But with this road in the hands of a small number of men the lands are of little value to anyone else. Indeed the same may be truly said of the whole north country. Now we have demonstrated that among the chief offences of the Minister of Customs is this glaring one of neglecting our railway interests at the critical moment. Belleville may thank Mr. Bowell for her isolation. Messrs. Robertson and John White are too small fry to do much but echo their leader. It will not do for Mr. Bowell's paper to omit all excuse for his misconduct. He has committed a grave public offence or rather a series of them. We charged him with them specifically and he has not attempted a reply. The "settlers" of the whole country are clamoring to know the why and wherefore. Their eyes are directed towards the platform whereon are seated the three representatives, and they await some explanation. It will not do for an anonymous scribbler from Faraday or elsewhere to fire his little shot in the hope he will draw off their attention from this important matter. Messrs. Bowell, Robertson and White have the floor for personal explanations and the settlers in Belleville have their ears wide open. Begin gentlemen.

Being the first holiday of the season and the weather favorable, there were few who did not welcome such an opportunity of enjoying a trip on the water or a ride in the country, where the fields and orchards have donned such a beautiful mantle of green. The Oddfellows Band with about twenty friends left by the Annie Gilbert at six o'clock for Napanee, where the band was engaged for the day. The Hero steamed away a few minutes later with about a hundred pleasure seekers who were bent on enjoying an excursion down the river while at eight the Varuna took a pleasant party on board for Napanee. An early special train took the high school foot ball club with a few others by rail to Napanee, and thus the exodus went on until midday. A few arrived from the country to witness the parade of the fire brigade and the bicycle races.

THE FIREMEN'S PARADE.

The ann parade and inspection of the fire department took place between nine and ten in the morning, and was a prominent feature of the day's proceedings. Headed by the Cobourg band they marched in procession through the principle streets. There was a large turnout of the fire-fighters, and the engines, hose carts and horses looked well. The streets were lined with people as the procession passed through, and very many congratulated the city on having such a splendidly equipped brigade, composed of such a fine, muscular body of men. The brigade assembled for inspection with the following officers and men:—

Chief Engineer—W. H. Campbell.

Assistant Chief Engineer—James Cummins.

No. 1 Company—J. Wilson, Foreman; S. Cornelius, First Assistant; E. Reeves, Second Assistant; R. Backus, President; H. Bonner, Vice-President; W. J. Brown Secretary; John Bell, jr., Treasurer, and sixteen men.

No. 2 Company—L. F. Lalonde, Captain; R. Bradford, First Lieutenant; M. Keeler, Second Lieutenant; T. Meyers, Secretary; T. Cox, Treasurer, and twenty-one men.

No. 3 Company—J. F. Gordinser, Foreman; L. Rosnick, Assistant Foreman; J. Gerow, Second Assistant; J. Urquhart, President; H. Thompson, Vice-President; S. Jones, Treasurer; S. Woods, Secretary; and twelve men.

The brigade in all numbered seventy strong and as a volunteer department they will compare favorably with many cities of greater pretentions.

INSPECTION OF THE HALLS.

Mayor Dunnet, Ald. James Macoun, Chairman of the Fire Committee, and one or two members of that committee made an inspection of the fire stations and halls at nine o'clock. They were well pleased with all that they saw. A reporter of THE ONTARIO met the Chairman of the Committee and asked him in what condition he found the firemen's quarters.

"We found them in splendid order," he said, "everything was clean and tidy. No. 2 company has a magnificent room. You can say that the result of our inspection was quite satisfactory."

The Mayor said: The apartments were very nice indeed. I was very much pleased with the inspection."

COMPLIMENTARY REMARKS.

After the parade many of the firemen assembled in the parlor of Moira Hose Company, where several citizens congratulated the brigade on their efficiency and the fine display which they had just made. Addresses were delivered by Mayor Dunnet, Ald. Macoun, Col. Lazier, Chief Engineer Campbell, Assistant Chief Cummins and Band Master Cline. Col. Lazier, in his remarks, eulogized the firemen on their parade and expressed the wish that some day one of the companies would become a company of the 15th Battalion as well. Mayor Dunnet regretted the absence of the two junior companies from the parade, but the appearance of their seniors or "old cocks" he said, was excellent, and he hoped the brigade would always maintain the same efficiency. (Cheers)

Refreshments were served in the rooms during the day and at night the festivities were brought to a close by an assembly in the City hall under the auspicies of No. 2 company.

The Cobourg Band, numbering twelve pieces, with Mr. F. Cline as leader and instructor arrived in the city Sunday at midnight. They were met at the depot by the members of No 3 Hook & Ladder Company who accompanied them down town and entertained the visitors in their parlor for a time. They afterwards took up their quarters at the Commercial House.

AROUND ABOUT US.

AT THE INSTITUTE.

The deaf and dumb children at the Institution had a lively time yesterday and enjoyed their holiday to the fullest extent. In the forenoon they engaged in fishing from the wharf and succeeded in catching a large number of bass, rock fish and perch. During the afternoon Captain Jellett very kindly gave them all a sail around the bay on the steamer Prince Edward which pleased them immensely, and in the evening various games were indulged in on the front grounds of the Institution.

MADOC, May 27th—(Special by telegraph)—Yesterday the 26th was celebrated in Madoc as the Queen's birthday. In the forenoon the Alert fire company turned out in full uniform and paraded the principal streets and were inspected by the village fathers and pronounced O.K. After dinner the various games were entered in to, the winners being as follows:—Running jump, W. Ham, E. A. E. Halliwell; running hop, step and jump, W. Ham, E. A. E. Halliwell, standing jump, Geo. Richardson, John Phillips; one jump backwards, W. Ham, John Phillips; three jumps backwards, John Phillips, H. A. Kemp; putting heavy stone, James Libberty, W. Ham; running race, W. Ham, G. A. Rollins; three legged race, Ham and Burns, Harper and McDonald. After the games there was a lacrosse match between the Sioux of Madoc and the Norwood lacrosse club, the latter taking the first, third and fifth games, the home team winning the second and fourth. The game was a very tight one and was well played by both teams. A bicycle race took place next, the winners being I. Geary, W. H. Aylsworth and J. Weir. In the evening a grand torchlight calithumpian parade was held and was an immense get up. The day passed off satisfactorily to the large crowd which was present. White's Agricultural Band kindly lent their aid through the day and evening and their music was well appreciated.

AT NAPANEE.

NAPANEE, May 27—The celebration here yesterday was a grand success, the attendance of visitors numbering several thousands. When the Oddfellows' Band arrived at 9:30 a trades procession was formed on the market and proceeded through the town. There were three other bands, Napanee, Gananoque and Picton. Prizes were awarded for the best waggons in the procession, and in the afternoon athletic games, horse races, bicycle races and other sports were indulged in on the grounds in front of the Agricultural building. The fireworks in the evening and the electric light exhibition concluded the program for the day. The Oddfellows' Band from Belleville was by far the best band in the town and received flattering encomiums from all sides. The football match between our club and the Belleville team ended in a squabble.

HORSE RACING AT PICTON.

Reports of the Events at the Annual Spring Meeting.

GENERAL SPORTING NOTES.

PICTON, May 26, (Special)—About a thousand people attended the spring meeting of the Picton Driving Park Association on Saturday afternoon. In the three minute trot Brigg's horse from Wolfe Island won the race in 2.44½. Welter Fanning's chestnut got second and James Ketcheson's mare third. Albert Morton's horse was distanced in the second heat. In the third heat Fanning's led to the three quarter pole, but he could not get to the wire. The running race was between Park Ketcheson's horse "Red Squirrel" from Brighton and another grey horse for $100 a side. The former won in two straight heats in 2.06; 2.04½. Charley Sweden of Guelph, Briggs' Tommy B. from Wolfe Island and Midnight owned in this county and driven by John Allison were the three entries in the 2.37 class. The first named won the race in 2.47. "Midnight" trotted well up in the third heat and covered the mile without a skip taking second place, but "Tommy B. got the two first records and therefore received money. The event of the day was the free-for-all contest between "Lookout" owned by Joe Martin of Belleville, and Fuller owned in Watertown, N. Y. The Belleville horse won the first heat easily with hands down in 2 34½. In the second heat Fuller ran behind three quarters of a mile but won the heat in 2 36. The third heat was a recepitition of the second, time 2 38½. The fourth heat and race was won by Fuller in about 2.40. Strange to say the judges compelled the carrying of weights and used a distance flag, but would not allow any official time to be given. The time as reported was taken by three different parties with stop watches, therefore it is correct.

SPORTING NOTES.

The North of England lacrosse team defeated the Americans by 5 goals to 0. The American team defeated the Yorkshire team by 8 goals to 0 on Saturday.

Joe Martin wishes it stated in this column that he will match Morton's colt against Ketcheson's mare for $100 in two or three weeks, best three in five to harness.

Williams, sired by "Terror," won the Queen's Plate at the Ontario Jockey Club spring meeting. Blanton took the cash handicap and Lloyd Daly the trial stakes, Miss Archibald won the Woodbine Steeplechase. The Welter cup was taken by the Laird. Modjeska, Bonnie Bird, Marquis, Oakdale and Defiance were the winners yesterday.

As Age Creeps on Apace, the various functions of the body grow weaker in their performance. Old people who suffer from increasing indigestion, torpidity of the liver, and constipation, should give renewed impetus to the action of the stomach, bile-secreting organ and bowels, with Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, from which aid is never sought in vain. It works wonders as a blood purifier.

SHANNONVILLE NOTES.

(From our own Correspondent.)

SHANNONVILLE, May 27.—On Sabbath last one of the largest funeral gatherings ever seen in this locality followed to the grave the remains of Mrs. Border, youngest daughter of Mr. James Geddes, of Thurlow. The funeral sermon was preached in the Methodist Church by the Rev. J. C. Ash. This is the second daughter taken by the hand of death from this family within ten weeks. The aged parents have the warmest sympathy of the entire community.

"Fools that we are Never to think of death
And of ourselves at the same time.
As if to learn to die,
Were no concern of ours."

A special service will be held in the Methodist Church here, next Sabbath morning to inaugurate, in common with the united Methodism of the Dominion the great union movement. Henceforth we are one and indivisable.

THE SECRET OUT

The secret of beauty has been at last revealed. Without good health, pure blood and a fair clear skin none can possess good looks. What is more repulsive than pimples, blotches and a shallow or pasty complexion? Burdock Blood Bitters reveal the fact that all can gain pure blood and freedom from the repulsive diseases of the skin that result from impurities.

THE BICYCLE TOURNAMENT.

The Races Largely Attended—A Pronounced Success.

RECORD OF EVENTS AND TIME.

The members of the Rambler's Wheel Club are undoubtedly entitled to the credit which is on all hands given them of holding an unqualifiedly successful tournament. The weather was verily "Queen's weather" and the attendance large. Nothing occurred to mar the day's sport and everyone felt satisfied at the program and the manner in which it was carried out.

THE PARADE.

The members of the club, thirty strong, assembled on Campbell Street, shortly after one o'clock in the afternoon in front of their club rooms with the band, where, after being photographed, the parade through some of the principal streets was begun. The band led the procession followed by an open carriage containing Mayor Dunnet, Ald. W. H. Biggar, Mr. H. Corby and Mr. Thos. Ritchie, after which came the wheelmen in single file. It was just two o'clock when they arrived on the grounds, and immediately the program was entered upon.

The Committee of Management consisted of Messrs. H. Corby, Thos. Ritchie, W. R. Carmichael, S. G. Retallack, Jos. Morgan, W. H. Garratt, J. W. Snider, officers of the club, and W. P. Way, Geo. Reid and Geo. F. Thomas; Judges,—Mayor Dunnet, H. Corby and Ald. Biggar; Referee, Chief McKinnon; Marshall of the day C. Wallace; Starters, S. G. Retallack and H. Tammadge; Clerk of the course, Geo. Reid; Time keeper, S. A. Spangenberg; Tally Clerk, W. P. Way.

THE RACES.

The first event was the one mile race, best two in three, for a gold medal for first and a silver medal for second, presented by His Worship Mayor Dunnet, to be competed for by members of the club only. Entries were W. Greatrix, W. Garratt and T. West. Greatrix drew first place and the others in the order named. Just after starting Garratt took a "header" and was out of the first heat. West went to the front and led the other competitor to the finish. Greatrix on the eighth lap made a strong effort to get to the front but failed. Time 3:17¾ In the second heat West forged ahead from the start and although hard pushed at times he maintained the lead. Greatrix got second and Garratt third place, the latter hugging him closely. Greatrix once attempted to shoot ahead but West was working splendidly and maintained his lead. On the fifth lap West lost considerably and when they passed under the wire the sixth time the three machines were bunched, each one working hard. Garratt found the company too hot for him and he went to the rear. West finished first very much fatigued and had to be carried from his wheel. Greatrix was only a very few inches behind, with Garratt a poor third. Time 3:17¼

One mile junior race, for members of Rambler's Wheel Club who have learned to ride since January 1st 1884, silver medal. Entries,—Cooper, Stinson and Clarke. Stinson led at first, but Cooper passed him on second round and led to the wire in 3.49¼. Clarke second and Stinson a bad third.

Slow race, open to all comers, for a silver medal, presented by Vice-President Carmichael. Eight entries,—J. W. Snider W. Greatrix, F. Macoun, Thos. Kelly, George Davis, Walter Northcott, jr., John Yorke, (Cobourg) and F. Foster. The conditions of this race was that the one who came in last won the medal, therefore each competitor moved around the track as slowly as possible. They were all obliged to dismount but Northcott and Foster, the latter winning easily. He was greeted by hearty cheers as he rode up to the wire.

One mile handicap open to all comers, for silver medal (gold centre) presented by Secretary Snider, There were a large number of entries for this, but at the finish it was found impossible to decide who won the judges not being familiar with the handicap. The race was finally declared off.

FOR THE CUP.

Corby Challenge Cup open to club members only, five mile dash. Cup presented by President Corby, to be won three times before becoming property of winner. This was the event of the day. Davis, Northcott, Greatrix and Macoun were the only ones who responded to the call of the judges. Northcott led easily during the first three laps, Davis next, and Macoun third, with Greatrix in rear. On the fourth stretch Davis began to show signs of fatigue. Greatrix lost some on the fifth lap, but kept well up to Davis and Macoun who were racing together pretty much. This position was maintained until the tenth round, when Greatrix gave a splendid exhibition of his staying powers by forging ahead of Macoun. On the eleventh lap Greatrix closed on Davis, and Macoun fell behind, and on the fourteenth lap succeeded in getting the lead, Northcott and Davis bunched, with Macoun in the rear. On the fifteenth stretch the four men were strung out in the order named. Northcott withdrew from the race after making nineteen lap. Greatrix now had the race nicely in hand. There was some fine racing between Davis and Macoun, but after the thirty second lap Davis, by a spirited spurt, regained the lead of Macoun he had lost, and Macoun dropped out and Davis made a fruitless effort to capture Greatrix, but the latter won easily in 18m. 46¼s.

One mile ride and run race, open to all comers, for a silver medal presented by Lieutenant Morgan. York, Snider, and Foster started. The latter won by half a lap.

Fancy riding, open to all comers, for a silver medal presented by Mr. W. L. Hogg. Foster and Kelly competed, the latter coming out victorious.

Club race, one mile championship, for a gold medal; 2nd a silver medal, was an exciting contest between Garratt, Greatrix, and Davis. Garratt took the lead with Davis second. He worked hard for first place, but could not get there. In the sixth lap Greatrix fell back and in the seventh he dropped out entirely, Garratt won by a few feet in 3.25¼.

The most laughable event was the boys' velocipede race. Medals to 1st and 2nd presented by J. C. Overell. Master Benson and Roy contested for the honors in this. The former won easily, handi cap.

Half mile championship—best two in three—for a silver medal presented by Vice President Ritchie. W. Garratt and F. Macoun entered. First heat was taken by Garratt, second by Macoun and third by Garratt. This was a good race.

Half mile dash (for non-Sunday riders) silver medal presented by Rev. E. W. Sibbald. Entries: W. Northcott and J. W. Snider. The former won.

Consolidation race, open to all comers, for a silver medal for first; and racing saddle for second, presented by Captain Retallack. Entries—Snider, Yorke, Clarke and Holden. The race shortly lay between Snider and Yorke, who had a severe tussle for first place which was finally taken by Yorke, as Snider felt unable to continue the race and dropped out. Yorke, (from Cobourg) rode well in this race.

Two mile dash, open to Co. Hastings, silver medal, presented by Alex. Robertson, M.P. It was impossible to induce any of the riders to enter in this race, as they were all tired out, so the judges declared the race off.

The medals and silver cup were presented to the successful competitors by Mrs. Dunnett, and as each one walked away with his trophy he was enthusiastically cheered.

Three cheers for the Mayor, President and Captain brought the tournament to a close.

WHEEL SPOKES.

The big trophy was neatly won by Mr. Greatrix.

Mr. Geo. Davis rode a remarkably good race for the cup. Mr. Macoun was the favorite with many.

The mile race for the Dunnet medal was a pretty one. Mr. West apparently started with the intention of winning and no one could persuade him to fall behind. He is evidently the champion one mile man of the club. His time 2.17½, compares well with that made in New York the other day by the champion of America.—3 6¼.

The run and ride race was neatly taken from Mr. Yorke of Cobourg by Mr. Foster whose skilful pedalling was universally admired.

In the fancy riding contest the prize was justly awarded to Mr. Kelly.

The race for the half mile championship between Messrs. Garratt and Macoun was very exciting, Mr. Garratt winning in an exhibition of graceful and fast wheeling, the time being 1 27¾. The second heat was taken by Mr. Macoun whose easy yet swift riding was the subject of much admiration.

The non-Sunday riders race had two entries and was won by Walter Northcott in good time.—1.30¼. Mr. Snider was however a formidable antagonist.

In the handicap race Messrs. Holden and Clarke showed up well and almost astonished themselves.

The club will probably have a medal struck to present at the next meet to the man who can sit or stand longest outside the fence while stealing a view of the races.

The valuable assistance of Mr. Tammadge must have been appreciated by the club. Chief McKinnon also furthered the races.

Ald. Biggar, and Messrs. Thos. Ritchie and W. H. Garratt, during the afternoon ran once around the track in a foot race for a box of cigars, the former winning easily. The Alderman showed himself to be very fleet of foot.

Charles Langley of the Toronto Bicycle Club, was in the city yesterday with his wheel en route for Kingston. He attended the tournament in the afternoon.

NO ONE TO SAVE HIM.

WALTER GORDON DROWNED IN THE PRESENCE OF A HUNDRED,

Walter Albert, an eight year old son of W. Gordon, baker, was drowned in the river yesterday morning above the Upper Bridge and at noon to-day had not been recovered. The boy was walking on the stone wall with a playmate named Davis, above the Upper Bridge about eleven o'clock, when he slipped and fell a distance of nearly fifteen feet into the water. He immediately sank to the bottom, but on rising again he called to them on shore to throw him a rope, but not one of the hundred and more men and boys who heard him call out for assistance, made any attempt to rescue the perishing child. He then made an attempt to swim to a passing saw-log but failing in this, he sank to the bottom to rise no more. Before going down the last time the unfortunate boy placed his hand on the back of his head and shrieked at the top of his voice: "For God's sake save me." But the cowardly spectators remained idle, ignored this piteous appeal, and allowed a helpless boy to perish before their eyes. A boat was launched a few minutes later and with grapling hooks, men began the search for the body, which was kept up late into the night, and commenced early this morning.

H. A. McLaughlin, Norland, writes: "I am sold out of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. It sells well, and I find in every instance it has proven satisfactory. I have reason to believe it the best preparation of the kind in the market." It cures Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and Torpidity of the Liver, Constipation, and all diseases arising from Impure Blood, Female complaints, etc.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock from the family residence Great St. James street.

"IT WAS ONLY YESTERDAY."

It was only yesterday
That the earth was common clay—
Only clay, so brown and bare;
Now the chill, dark garden mould
Is aflame with crocus' gold,
Sweet with lilies white and fair.

It was only yesterday
That the fields were common clay;
Now the clay is waving grass,
Starred all through with many a flower;
But who saw the wondrous Power
Through the fields and gardens pass?

Oh, how oft through many a day
We are naught but mortal clay!
Then some spirit, sweet and strong,
Breathes around us airs divine,
Touches clay to purpose fine,
And we blossom into song.

Have you tried Holloway's Corn Cure? It has no equal for removing these troublesome excrescences.

OLD FASHION COURTSHIP

A writer in the Home Journal believes that the old fashion courtship is passing away, and after asking what are to be the regulations of courtship during the transitional epoch, answer as follows:—'Nominally and theoretically, the man still does all the courting, but really and pratically women are taking the matter in their own hands. Enough of the restraint of chivalry has remained to prevent them from openly proposing marrige to the object of their choice; but there are a thousand ways in which a lady of tact may woo and yet not transcend the bounds of etiquette. The present method is a hybrid between the one sided courting of knightly days and the custom which will prevail when women have their proper position in the perfected society in the future. In a word, courtship is now evidently drifting womanward, by which we mean that the ladies will constantly take a more and more active part in it, until in the day when woman shall have her rights, the most important of which is marriage, it will be as common for women to offer their hands to men as it is for men to propose to women. O lucky day for bashful bachelors!"

THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

HIS OUTSPOKEN OPINION.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. I am satisfied the medicine is not injurious and will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical preparation stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of these happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

OFFICE AND RESIDENCE JOHN STREET

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

CHAPTER I.

THE HALF-SISTERS—THE STRANGER.

The Drive and Rotten Row were crowded.

A clear sky, aided by a brilliant sun, lent splendor to the scene, as fair equestriennes, skillful and graceful, dashed over the tan, winning back in the bracing air the colour late hours the overheated ballrooms had robbed from them the night before.

An endless string of carriages, from the plain brougham to the four-in-hand flowed along the Drive at a more sober pace.

Among the later was observed a neat but elegant barouche, which had twice made the tour of the Drive, and was apparently attracting universal attention.

Even the most languid of female heads turned to gaze, while the exquisitely 'Pooled' cavaliers had no other object for their eye-glasses.

The carriage contained three persons. On the front seat sat an elderly negress, attired in brilliant shawl, and handkerchief twined about her shiny black brows. who acted, apparently, in the double capacity of duenna and attendant upon her companions, two young girls of the respective ages of eighteen and twenty.

Each of the latter was, though in a different style, superlatively beautiful.

The elder, of Creole darkness, was graceful, with the commanding carriage of a Juno.

On the firm round throat rested a superb head circled by massive braids of black hair, matching brows that arched eyes as dark as night, and as brilliant as its attendant stars, eyes that could melt with affection or blaze with passion, as their owners feelings dictated.

In her love, hate. and pride were like her beauty, superlative.

The younger, petite, fragile, loving, was as in contrast, the fairest of fair blondes.

With hair of gold, eyes of violet blue, a complexion alabaster, cheeks of delicate rose tints and pouting lips, that seemed as though Cupid, in one of his amorous moods, had formed them with a kiss.

Such were our heroines.

Such were the half-sisters, whose histories it is our pleasant duty to recite.

Dressed with exquisite neatness, they reclined in the barouche, watching in evident amusement the brilliant, representatives of fashion eddying to and fro.

Their expressions typified their natures to be as dissimilar as their appearance.

The younger, with a winning timidity shrank ocasionally from the marked admiration they attracted.

The older evidently saw in it but her just right, the honour due to beauty.

'I serve' and 'I rule' would have been applicable mottoes for the half-sisters.

Though so young, every move of the brunette declared a proud, haughty spirit that might break but never bend.

An empress might have envied her bearing.

She seemed born to reign—to have the world at her feet.

Poor child!

Twice had the vehicle rolled along the Drive, when the younger sister exclaimed—

'Ah, Juliette, I once thought, I should never like any place as well as America. I detested the very name of England, and now——'

She stopped, and drew a deep respiration, and added—

'Oh, it is beautiful!' How could papa have ever torn himself away from it?'

At this instant, the coachman, one well versed in such matters, having performed the 'constitutional airing,' prepared to turn the horses' heads homewards.

Divining the intention. the last speaker exclaimed—

'Do not let us return yet, Juliette, I pray Think of this beautiful day! It is barbarous. Let us remain longer I entreat, dear!'

'But Pauline,' remarked the other more sedately, 'perhaps we shall dalay our aunt's dinner, and also be late at Lady Wilton's ball this evening.'

'Nay, the hour is not yet advanced,' rejoined Pauline at the same time inspecting her jewelled watch. 'Pray bid Keziah tell the coachman to make one more round at least.'

Smiling at her sisters eagerness, Juliette did as she was desired, and Keziah transferred the order to the coachman. As she resumed her seat, her dark, beadlike eyes rested upon one of the pedestrians at the side of the rails. She started—a peculiar expression stole over her black countenance, which she instantly averted.

Every one who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate degree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrup and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never [illegible] of properly and judiciously administered. Prepared by Northrup & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all druggists.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the waste by giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See advt in another column.

IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M[illegible] Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrub for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists through out the world Price 25 cents a bottle.

FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable temperaments. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of despepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high-colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND's farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND's direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND's permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND's extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

AN EARLY SUMMER IDYL.

Now shy
And bashful lovers sit upon the stoop
And sweetly spoon,
While downward summer's first mosquitoes swoop
With weird, low tune,
And high;
And higher up the sapphire skies
Slow climbs the moon,
And eyes look love to loving eyes
And sigh greets sigh

The frog
A nocturn warbles to his listening mate
In accents low,
The youth perceives the hour is growing late
And he must go
Yea jog,
He kisses her a wild good-bye
Meanwhile, oh, woe!
An irate pa, with angry eye,
Lets loose the dog.

* * * * *

Few moons
E'er gazed upon so harrowing a sight
With smiling face:
A youth, wild, yelling with affright,
A dog in chase.
Still croons
The frog within the sedgy pool,
While from the race
The dog returns with mouth crammed full
Of pantaloons.

M. E. CONFERENCE.

Gratifying Increase in the Endowment Fund of Albert College.

CONFERENCE MEMORIAL SERVICES.

FARMERSVILLE, May 24.—The Bay of Quinte Conference of the M. E. Church met for its fifth session this morning at ten o'clock, R. Shorts conducted the devotional exercises. The Committee on the Caledonia Church reported. J. O. Mallary was again called. He had not been before his examining committee, and was continued on trial. After an extended discussion, the Committe on Conference Relations' report was ordered to be laid on the table. J. O. Mallary, a probationer, asked for a certificate of standing from the secretary, and his request was granted. J. C. Danham was granted a letter of standing. It was ordered that all parties dissatisfied with their time list place their complaints in writing in the hands of G. A. Bell. It was moved by J. E. Mavety and seconded by W H Graham, and resolved, that we, as a Conference, hereby express our gratitude to Sister McClow for her generous gift of $500 to the Equilization Fund, and tender her our hearty sympathy in her affliction.

The Conference proceeded with the service of Rev. S. Young, who died during the last Conference year. After the memorial service, the Conference resumed business. The secretary read the exhibit of Albert College. The report showed the College to be in a prosperous condition. The endowment fund has been enlarged to over $54,000. The report was referred to the Committee on Education. The Committee on Printing reported. Entire satisfaction was expressed with the management, but a falling off of the finances was felt owing to a dearth in the sale of hymn books. The report was received and adopted. S. J. Greenfield and O. H. Visser, the deacons elect, were called and answered. The ministers of the Napanee District here presented their presiding elder, H. Williams, with a purse accompanied by an address. He made a suitable reply.

FARMING IN MANITOBA.

That young Ontario farmers can do better by settling in Manitoba or the Northwest than by going to the Western States has often been shown in these columns. We have again the pleasure of giving our readers information regarding the success that is attainable in Manitoba, gathered from the experience of two Prince Edward boys, Messrs. James and Wellington Anderson, sons respectively of Messrs. George and Levi Anderson, of Ameliasburg. These young men went to Manitoba three years ago, and with an outlay of about two thousand dollars secured about six hundred and forty acres of land south of Brandon. This spring they have sown four hundred bushels of grain, two hundred of which was wheat. They sowed one hundred acres in nine days and the present appearances indicate a fine crop. They have a ready market for everything they can produce, and congratulate themselves that they are settled in a country so richly blessed by Providence. The winter was a pleasant one and the spring exceptionably favorable for farming operations. They are going into cheese making this spring, having just returned from Ontario with a car load of fine cows, with which they were just twelve days on the road. They say there are more people to be seen in Brandon on a market day than will be found in Belleville on a Saturday. They would doubtless have preferred to remain in the good old county of Prince Edward, but it would have been impossible for them to have obtained such fine farms as they now possess for more than twenty times the money they have expended. The experience of these young men may be that if any of our boys who want to leave home and find farms in the western prairies, almost without cost, and under the old flag.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

SINISTER INTERESTS.

The present administration's method of government by bribery met a scathing criticism at the hands of Sir Richard Cartwright at Toronto. The hon. gentleman in continuation of his speech said: I have alluded, and partly from certain special circumstances, you are practically confronted with a combination of sinister interests such as has been rarely seen before in any country having free representative institutions. Those interests are of various kinds. They are engendered and headed by a band of politicians who, even their own supporters, while they claim that they are adroit and talented men, are obliged to admit are unscrupulous, are reckless, are careless how they attain them. Behind these men there came a great array of various kinds. We have a number of contractors who find that it is easier and pleasanter to amass fortunes by the expedient of subscribing to testimonials (applause), or aiding in that or other political election, or subsidizing a newspaper here and there, or by any other of the hundred ways that will readily suggest themselves to old and experienced politicians who desire to promote what they are pleased to call the welfare of their party. We have besides a small but extremely powerful body of monopolists, especially railway monopolists, whose interests, no doubt, are great, but cannot by any possibility be reconciled with the true interests of the people of Canada. You have a whole array of place and subsidy hunters, influenced by much the same motives. You have, lastly, that class of men who may be found in all countries, whose idea of government is not that Government should take care of the interests of the whole people but that Government exists for the purpose of granting special privileges to special classes. These men, to do them justice, have been wonderfully organized, wonderfully disciplined, wonderfully drilled for their work by a past Grand Master in the Order. We have got to-day a well organized system of Government by bribery, the like of which has rarely been seen in any country. Sir Robert Walpole in his day no doubt, for a time administered the affairs of England on a somewhat similar system. But Sir Robert Walpole at his worst—or his best, whichever you choose to call it—never ventured on one-twentieth part of the acts, never attempted to corrupt one-twentieth of the people that are attempted to be corrupted under the present Government as it now exists. If you want to find a true parallel to our Government in Canada, you will not find it, I think, in a country having free institutions outside of Canada. You must go and search for it in some such state of things that existed in France in the days known as the "Second Empire," which began with a massacre and wound up with the capitulation of Sedan. Although I do not want to speak too severely, I must say this, that when in 1878 the people of Canada, or rather a majority of the people of Canada, chose under the then circumstance to do what they did, they did almost precisely the same as if the people of the United States, after a full exposure of his deeds had been pleased to choose the late Mr. Tweed as President of the United States, with Mr. Fisk as Minister of Railways, and Mr. Oakes Ames as Secretary of the Treasury. The act was the same, and the consequences will be the same if we do not take care; because it is impossible for any people in Canada or elsewhere to violate all the laws of political morality and escape the inevitable consequences. The nation which chooses to sow the wind will reap the whirlwind. And if to-day we find that the whole tone of public morality has been reduced; if we find that the people have practically lost control of their own Parliament; that all restraint has practically been removed from those men; that we have entered upon a career which, unless checked, will end in national bankruptcy and the utter destruction of our Confederation, let us remember that it was done by our own act, and that it rests with us to remedy it. I make these statements, and make them gravely, in a sense of responsibility to you and to those who are not here present to-night. And I propose to adduce what appears to me reasonable proofs that in making that statement I have not overstepped the limits of truth.

Let me call your attention to the present financial condition of this country. Canada has now been confederated—or within a few months will have been confederated—for seventeen years. When we entered Confederation our total population was 3,375,000, and our total expenditure $13,500,000—and I take the expenditure because objection has been taken to my making reference to the gross taxation of the people on the ground that a certain part of it was not expended. In seven years, in 1874, our population had risen to 3,830,000, and our expenditure to $23,316,000. In four or five years thereafter, in 1878, our population had risen again to 4,124,000 and our expenditure had increased $200,000, or to $23,516,000. In six years thereafter, in 1884, our population, exclusive of Indians, is estimated at about 4,400,000, and our expenditure at $31,000,000. Now, gentlemen, I say this—I do not say it simply because the men who have brought about this state of things are my political opponents; I say it as a Canadian having a deep interest as well as you in the welfare of Canada—I say there never was a more disgraceful exhibit than is contained in these four statements of figures. Here in Canada, without a war, without any adequate or worthy cause, we find that in seventeen years our position as a nation has become as bad as that in which the United States found themselves in 1867 after emerging from a most desperate civil war of four years' duration. Our condition is far worse, I am sorry to say, than the condition of the people of the United States to-day. (A Voice—No.) My friend in the corner disputes that. Does he know what the expenditure of the United States is to-day? Does he know what the population of the United States is to-day? Well, sir, I will tell him, because I would like to convince everybody here if I can—(cheers)—that at any rate I am on this occasion stating the exact and literal fact. Now, sir, the present population of the United States is 54,000,000 or thereabouts. The actual expenditure of the United States was $265,000,000, which is a little less than $5 a head. The population of Canada is 4,400,000; her expenditure was $31,000,000, which is a little more than $7 a head. (Hear, hear.) Twenty-five dollars are required from each family in the United States at a time when, to my great regret—because it is a great injury to Canada—$35 a head are exacted from every family in Canada. Sir, we will take England if you like. Had the people of England allowed their expenditure to go on at the rate at which ours has been advancing during the last seventeen years, instead of having a total expenditure of £85,000,000 sterling, they would have an expenditure of £170,000,000 sterling; and the people of the United States, instead of having an expenditure of $265,000,000, would have an expenditure of no less than $800,000,000. Now, as I know that many of you cannot quite comprehend the tremendous extent of the drainage that has been going on in this country upon the country's resources, I have added together for seventeen years the actual amount in hard cash which has been collected in Customs and Excise alone, not taking into account one penny which has been collected in other ways. From 1867 to the present year, 1884, the people of Canada have been called upon to pay the enormous sum of $333,000,000 in customs and excise taxes; and bear in mind that under our present fiscal system it is perfectly clear to a demonstration that the sum paid into the exchequer is very far indeed from representing the sum which has been really and truly taken out of the pockets of the people. Were I to make allowance for that circumstance, the very smallest sum I should name as having been exacted from the people of Canada would be at the least $420,000,000; and over and above that, if you take into account the $52,000,000 which we have immortalized ourselves by voting away in Parliament last session, and add to that the amount of the net debt increased from 1867 to 1884, you will find that besides all that $133,000,000 have been borrowed and spent, for which we have the pleasure of paying interest. (Cheers.) Now, I say that here you have exacted from the people of this young and comparatively undeveloped country, in debt and taxes during seventeen years, not much short of $555,000,000, or very nearly $600 for every individual family from one end of Canada to the other.

THOSE MINING LANDS.

Our contemporary gives the local member for North Hastings the opportunity of vaporing over the sale of wild lands in Faraday to Mr. Coe, and prints long letters "upon which we cannot improve." But Mr. Bowell's pocket organ is not in accord with Mr. Bowell's private opinion of this transaction. When the promoters of the company of which Mr. Coe is a member were in Ottawa, Mr. Bowell told them that he did not think they were treated by the Ontario Government in the matter as fairly as they might have been. He said the Government might well have given the lands free. Yet Mr. Wood thinks it a terrible thing that these wild lands were sold for a dollar an acre. Mr. Bowell may be willing to allow Mr. Wood to try and make some political capital out of it but had he been in Mr. Pardee's place he would not have charged Mr. Coe a cent for the lands!

THE TORY CONSPIRACY.

TORONTO, May 28.—In the Common Pleas Divisional Court yesterday the motion was argued for handing over to Stuart & Macpherson, of Hamilton, the $1,000 given to McKim by the conspirators.—Judgement reserved. In the conspiracy case, McCarthy, Q.C., on behalf of the defendants, obtained a rule nisi, calling on the Crown to show cause why the proceedings taken by them for argument of demurrer should not be set aside on the ground that the return to the certiorari was not fully made at the time the proceedings were taken. The order will be argued to-morrow.

THE NEW ORLEANS EXPOSITION.

The World Industrial and Cotton Centennial Exposition, New Orleans, under the joint auspices of the United States of America National Cotton Planters Association and the city of New Orleans, opens on the first Monday of December 1884, and closes not later than May 31st, 1885. We have received a circular and plan of the Exposition Building for the above, through Col. Prince, U. S. Consul. Copies of the same will be sent to the leading manufacturers in this Consular district and may be seen also at the American Consulate in this city, and information regarding the same will be given. It is to be hoped that Canada will be well represented in the industrial department and a visit to the southern portion of the States during the season of the Exposition will be thoroughly enjoyable.

WHAT'S IN A NAME

Scrofula so called from the Latin scrofa, a pig, from the supposition that the disease came from eating swine's flesh. It is often inherited from parents, and leads to abscesses, ulcerous sores, debility, king's evil and consumption. The case of the Rev. Wm. Stout, of Walton, who suffered 23 years from scrofulous abscesses, is one of the most remarkable on record. Burdock Blood Bitters cured him after the best medical skill had failed.

A TORONTO TRAGEDY.

A man Murdered and Thrown on the Street to die.

THREE ARRESTED ON SUSPICION.

TORONTO, May 28.—W. E. Mitchell, a printer, who was passing en route for his home at 89 Baldwin street about five minutes past four yesterday morning, observed the prostrate form of a man in front of No. 2 Edward street. Examination showed that the man was wounded, and a pool of blood was evidence that the injuries were severe. The wounded man was apparently in the death agony and Mitchell darted down Chestnut street in search of a policeman. He met P. C.'s Charles Slemin and Munns, who had just been dismissed from the Agnes Street Station after their nightly round of duty. The officers hurried back to Edward street, where the man, whom they immediately identified as Samuel Curran, an unmarried drain-digger, of 146 Elizabeth street, lay dying. Dr. Macdonald, who was attending a patient in the vicinity, was summoned by one officer, while another rushed to call the ambulance. Before Dr. Macdonald could aid the suffering man he breathed his last, without giving utterance to anything but a few incoherent exclamations, which gave no clue to the person responsible for his sudden taking off. Dr. Macdonald stated that the man could not have lived more than twelve minutes after receiving which is necessarily mortal. The corpse was taken to the morgue. The murdered man was about 35 years old and fairly well known to the police. For weeks past he has been living at 146 Elizabeth street with a woman named Fannie Johnston. Johnston, whom the police say is a hard drinker, has been in the habit of resorting to the Vincent House. Curran called there about 8 o'clock last night in search of the woman, but was informed that she was not in the place. Detective Reburn arrested John Flavey, an Irish laborer, about 45 years of age. Flavey boarded with Curran at 150 Elizabeth street, and both were rivals for the affections of the woman Johnston. On the Queen's Birthday they had a quarrel, but last night they were out until 9 o'clock, when Flavey came in. He was not seen again until the alarm was given at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, when he ran down stairs from the boarding-house. He was fully dressed and appeared to be labouring

A WOUND IN THE JUGULAR

UNDER SEVERE EXCITEMENT.

He stated to the landlady, who was surprised that he should have dressed himself so quickly, that he was just coming to get a drink of water. Mrs. Elliott, and Flavy, the prisoner, hurried to Edward street, where Curran was dying. Flavey bent over the wounded man and said, "Who done this Sammy?" Curran attempted to reply, but blood choked his utterance. Flavey took his arrest quietly and protested his innocence. There are suspicious marks on the front of Flavey's flannel shirt which attracted the detective's notice.

TWO MORE ARRESTS.

The detectives have been hard at work investigating the Edward street tragedy, and this afternoon had secured evidence sufficient to warrant them in arresting William Neil and Mary Clarke, who were locked up in No. 2 station.

Fannie Johnson (Curran's paramour) says she saw him Monday night and also that John Clure told her yesterday morning that he saw two men and a girl carrying the man out of No. 118 Edward street (a house of bad repute) and laying him on the sidewalk, where found, the girl remarking "Let him die." In No. 118 blood was seen in the hallway. Curran was in the habit of carrying a large clasp knife, which was not found on him. He belongs to Brighton, England, and is 37 years old. The woman Johnson and he have lived together for the past eight years.

THE INQUEST.

At the inquest last night Fanny Johnston said she had seen blood in the hall in Jeffery's house, 'and' the witness added, 'I have a good idea Curran was murdered there.' The deceased, witness said, had intended to leave the city with her the week after next, as he had said they could do no good in Toronto. The deceased, she said amid sobs, had never abused her except when she was drunk. Minnie O'Brien, who lived at 118 Edward Street, said to her after the murder, 'He had no money and I killed him and threw him out."

The inquest then adjourned till this evening.

CORN RAISING.

It may surprise the good people of Canada to learn that the corn crop has been immensely increased in Canada. No doubt the N. P. people will claim this as a product of protection, but PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR alone is entitled to all the credit. It raises more corn to the acre, than anything else the world can supply. Safe, sure, and painless. Take no substitute. Only 25 cents. Try your hand. A good crop guaranteed. Beware of flesh eating substitutes. N. C. Polson & Co., proprs. Kingston.

GLADSTONE AND GORDON.

The Premier's Speech on the Motion of Censure.

WHAT GORDON'S INDIGNATION COMES TO.

Mr. Gladstone, in the course of his speech in reply to Sir Michael Hicks-Beach on the resolution of censure which was moved in the House of Commons on the 12th inst., dealt with Gen. Gordon's telegram, in which he expresses his indignation at his abandonment. The Premier in this connection attempted to make the Opposition commit themselves fully on the subject of reconquering the Soudan by a British military force. He said:—Knowing that the blue book was full of matter that might be used either one way or the other, the right hon. baronet took good care to do nothing except to piece together a number of incongruous statements to make a case against the Government. (Cheers.) On March 11 General Gordon telegraphed to Sir Evelyn Baring, "I should like to express to you and Her Majesty's Government my sincere thanks for the support you both have afforded me since I took up the mission, and to acknowledge that you have both given me every assistance I could have expected. It is not in our hands to command success. I say the same for the Khedive and the Egyptian Ministry." I shall be asked perhaps, what he has said since. (Opposition cheers.) Well, I am not going to pursue this new example of the right hon. gentleman; I am going to refer to what he has said since—and the worst he has said against us. He has sent two telegrams which signify displeasure and even indignation. (Opposition Cheers.) In one he tells us—or, rather, Sir Evelyn Baring, although that may be the same thing—of the indelible disgrace of sacrificing the garrisons of Senaar, Kassala, Berber and Dongola, and in the other he complains that he cannot undertake to walk about the streets of Khartoum for years like a dervish. (Cheers.) But when these telegrams were written he had not received the telegrams which had been sent to him by Her Majesty's Government, as we have it now on record from Sir Evelyn Baring himself, even down to and long after the time he wrote them. He believed and not unnaturally,

THAT HE WAS ABANDONED,

and not receiving intelligence from us, not perhaps asking himself whether there might not have been obstacles in the way of the arrival of the intelligence, the gallant general stated what he did in those two telegrams. (Hear, hear.) Now I want to put a point to the right hon. baronet. He pointed to me and said, "You hear of the indelible disgrace of sacrificing the garrisons of Berber, Kassala, Dongola and Senaar." The first question I put to him is this—Are these the only garrisons in the Soudan? (Cheers.) There are six other garrisons in the Soudan, containing, I think, a majority of the whole forces in that country. May these six other garrisons be sacrificed with safety to our honor if we go into the country to rescue the four? Upon what principle is the distinction to be drawn before them? There is no principle at all. (Cheers.) The only question is this, that whereas these four garrisons are at a great distance and difficult of access, the others are at a greater distance still. But when you have got these garrisons why not go forward to the others? What is the answer of the right hon. gentleman? I think he has none to give. (Laughter.) Probably he does not want to give an answer. But I would ask him now:—Is he prepared to say that it is the

MILITARY DUTY OF ENGLAND,

in honor, to rescue the garrisons of Kassala, Sennaar, Berber and Dongola? The right hon. gentleman is dumb? (Laughter and cheers.) Dumb! (Cheers.)

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach:—I merely wish to say that what I read to the House was General Gordon's opinion. ('Oh, oh,' and cheers.)

Mr. Gladstone—It was only an abstract opinion. (Oh, oh.) He says so. Let me bring this matter to the issue, if I may do so with the utmost respect to the right hon. gentleman. Does the right hon. gentleman adopt that opinion or not. (Cheers.) What did he mean by quoting it if he did not adopt it? What did he mean by pointing to me, to dishonor me in the eyes of my countrymen—(loud Ministerial cheers and some cheers from the Opposition)—as those gentlemen opposite now echo his evident intention? I know not unless it was an indelible disgrace to leave those garrisons unrescued. Sir, the right hon. gentleman and his friends won't escape from this debate without answering that question. (Cheers.) It is an indelible disgrace to leave them, and, if so, it is an honorable obligation to rescue them. And if it is an honorable obligation to rescue them, why has not the right hon. gentleman the courage and manliness instead of confining himself to big words and loud reproaches, to put something that had intelligibility, something that had force, something that had the promise of a policy, into the terms of his motion? (Cheers.) It is the old story—a transfer of power that is the object of the motion. It is the same spirit that dictated those previous votes of censure, not one of which contained an intelligible idea. (Laughter and cheers.) He availed himself of the just interest which the country feels in the safety of General Gordon for the purpose of what? Not of substituting a better policy in the Soudan or in Egypt, but for the purpose of effecting the change (of Government) which gentlemen opposite are perfectly justified in their desire to bring about. (Cheers.)

A BOLD INTRUDER.

A Cold Wave struck the city last evening and was interviewed by an ONTARIO reporter as to the meaning of its unexpected advent. The Wave was charged by the indignant representative with being jealous of Summer and vindictive. It was told that owing to its having no visible, apparent or persumptive means of support It was liable to arrest as a vagrant. The reporter would have proceeded to abuse this intrusive visitor but his lips had grown blue and his teeth began to chatter. The Wave began to make excuse by laying the blame on the north wind but, alas, the reporter heard not. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

LIGHTING NORTH FRONT STREET

Dear Sir,—As our City Fathers are supposed to be engaged in preparing the estimates, would you kindly allow me, through you, to petition the council for an appropriation to supply North Front Street with two or three old fashioned tin lanterns and a few pounds of tallow dips. The apertures in the tin are not so liable to get filled with smoke, soot and dust as glass and then the candles can not be so easily turned down out of sight as a lamp wick. If that is too expensive could not a few lightning bugs be secured and tied by the leg to the lamp post as a warning to pedestrians, as sometimes these dark nights render it somewhat favorable to collision between the posts and a too lengthy proboscis. Trusting the Council will kindly take these matters into serious consideration is the prayer of

A RESIDENT.

Belleville, May 24.

P. S.—If we cannot secure the above possibly the small boy who passes along occasionally to look at the lamps might fasten a yellow rag to each post.

MR. CHAINEY'S LECTURE.

DEAR SIR:—I beg to offer a few lines in reply to the article in your issue of May 23rd on "Mr. Chainey's Lecture." You accuse Mr. Chainey of rashly stating the progress of "Freethought" and do not mention any of the instances he gave of "Liberal" charities, such as Prof. Felix Adeor, of New York, who is doing a grand work for the poor and outcast of New York; Giverd College, the gift of a Liberal to Philadelphia; James Lich, of California who gave millions to charities, and numerous others, among whom Mr Stratford, of Brantford, recently gave some twelve thousand dollars to that ars to that city to found a free hospital for the poor and friendless. The sentences from which the critic of Mr. Chainey draws the inferences that he is an advocate of "free love," can not be so explained by any person who had the pleasure of hearing that gentleman, and, indeed, even taken alone, it is impossible to see how any sensible person could take such a villianous and unfair view of an opponent, but "to the pure all things are pure," and vice versa. Hoping that your columns are not closed when falsehoods are to be contradicted, I remain

Yours,

J. LANSDBERG.

The escape was miraculous.

A Quarrel at Picton Which will Come Before the Courts.

(From our own Correspondent.)

PICTON, May 28.—The town is excited about an unusual occurrence in which the Church of England Rector, Rev. E. Loucks, figures prominently. It appears he had a dispute yesterday about some work with Robert Welsh a stone mason. Words led to blows, and as the reverend gentleman carries a heavy cane he inflicted serious injuries upon Welsh, who is badly cut about the head and carries one arm in a sling. Different stories are told of the affair which will probably go to the criminal as well as the ecclesiastical courts. The clergyman claims to be justified in his action, but Welsh gives a different version of the affair.

It is said that the size of men's pants is to be increased. Even at that they will be nothing to the sight of the fellow who can't get a new pair.

THE EFFECTS OF WHISKEY.

The effects of whisky are always evil, and those who feed upon alcoholic stimulants, vainly endeavoring to cure coughs and consumption, but nurse a viper. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam is a remedy that is always reliable for the throat, bronchial and lung troubles, and never does harm to any one.

It makes the fellow who cannot afford new suits awful mad to see that the dogs have already donned their spring pants.

As a sure remedy for sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Dispepsia Indigestion, Constipation, Torpid Liver, Biliousness, &c., no medicine is equal to Baxter's Mandrake Bitters. 25 cents per bottle.

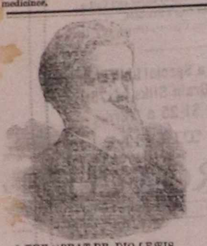
Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally and the Ointment rubbed externally are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, surest. Holloway's Pills and Ointment purify the blood, remove obstructions to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the overgorged air tubes, and render respiration free without reducing the strength irritating the nerves, or depressing the Such as the ready means of saving when afflicted with colds, coughs, other complaints by which so many are ously and permanently afflicted.

Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Whenever the blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of any prevailing epidemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished power should be these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce all erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, billiousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. The fruit season is especially prone to produce irritation of the bowels and disorder of the digestive organs; both of which dangerous conditions can be completely removed by Holloway's corrective medicines.



THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

HIS OUTSPOKEN OPINION.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. am satisfied the medicine is not injurious will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical preparation stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of these happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

OFFICE AND RESIDENCE JOHN STREET BOX 853.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

'Here,' she muttered, here; he follows close always on the watch. Ah! I am his and he is mine, for through him I shall be avenged.'

She glanced furtively at her companions, but her gaze rested on the youngermost; it ran with a lingering scrutiny over the sweet features and delicate limbs, while an expression evil to behold swept transiently across her face.

'A charming morsel, and a charming retribution,' she chuckled, then another glance towards the pedestrian, but for the present he had disappeared.

He whom she had sought had been an attentive observer of the barouche, from the moment of its arrival.

Withdrawn slightly from the loungers who thronged the rails, and keeping in the shadow of the trees, moving from one to another, he never once lost sight of the half-sisters, unaware that he was being almost as closely inspected by a lady of very dashing appearance, driving an equally dashy pony carriage, her sole escort, a diminutive groom and Blenheim spaniel.

As he went she went, her penciled brows and 'Bloom of Ninon' complexion discomposed into a frown, as she turned her quick, angry glance from the stranger to the barouche, and back again to the stranger.

He, however, was unconscious of the espionage of this lady, whose status in society was not difficult to define; his whole attention was absorbed by the other vehicle.

'How lovely she is,' he muttered, rapturously; 'what a sweet dove to take to nestle to your bosom, to soothe, to fondle, and the other—ah! dared man wed both. The blonde should be the one to amuse his lighter hours, while that proud, Cleopatrian beauty could talk sense in his serious moments, and lend him sound counsel and advice in times of difficulty. They are both magnificent, but—' and here he drew his tall figure erect—'she is angelic. It is Pauline who is mine—yes mine; struggle, sweet bird, as you may, you cannot escape—see—I will——'

The last words of the sentence were thought, not spoken, as, unperceived for a second, he extended his hands towards the barouche, then on a line with him.

Instantly a violent tremor ran through Pauline's frame, and, as though involuntarily, she bent her eyes in the direction of the stranger.

But he had gone.

He had passed behind one of the large trees which concealed him from her sight.

An amused triumphant smile flickered over his countenance, as he detected the glance.

'In the toils! in the toils!' he repeated 'the greater will rules the lesser. Thousands, fair Pauline, may sigh at your feet, but I—Stuart Loring, alone shall possess you: in you I behold my wife—in you, in you queenly Juliette, my——'

He stopped abruptly, arrested by the sound of a voice. Two gentlemen had lounged near the tree behind which he stood.

The elder was tall, with a worn, aristocratic-looking face that bore the unmistakable stamp of an exhausted life. Though but thirty John M'Grath had crowded into it the experience of sixty, and now philosophised, cynic fashion, upon woman's frailty, and the entire mistake humanity was.

His companion was a nonentity, one of the milder roues who regarded themselves as highly honored in associating with such men as John M'Grath.

The words which had seized the strangers ear had reference to the sisters.

'By Jove,' lisped the younger, 'your last epigram, my dear fellow, upon woman's falseness from her hair so her heart, must surely confess an exception yonder. What lovely girls!'

'Mon ami, the reason of their being an exception is because they are a recent importation. Wait till the first season is over and take the odds there will not be a pin's point to choose between them and their sisterhood.'

'Let us hope not. Such creatures should be above contamination. But who are they? What do you mean by recent importation?'

Every who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate degree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrup and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has under long and close observation, and it is believed it will never of properly and judiciously administered. Prepared by Northrup & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all drugists.

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wastby giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes, accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee" to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv's in another column

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M g Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

ROBLIN HOUSE,

Late Douglas House.

As the late proprietor of the Douglas House has removed to other premises and called it the New Douglas House, I beg to notify the public that I have reopened the Douglas House myself, under the name of the "ROBLIN HOUSE." As the house has always had the name of a First-Class Hotel, I shall spare no pains to make it as popular as it ever was. The above is pleasantly situated in the central part of the city, and is a very desirable place for Families and the Public generally. It has been thoroughly renovated and furnished with new furniture. A cordial invitation is given to all old patrons of the Douglas House, and all new ones who will favor me with a call.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrub for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable tempraments. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of despepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.
W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Bro."
Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable.
J. T. HAYES."
Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

A TEASE.

A darkeyed maid's
Coy glance has played
Sad havoc with my heart.
Her shining eyes,
Her winsome sighs—
Are they coquetry's art?

She teases me,
But pleases me.
With laughter and with pouting,
My heart's ablaze,
Her charming ways
Still hold me while I'm doubting.

But if her love
I strive to prove,
Unconscious how she's hurting,
With laugh and pout
She falters out,
"Dear me, I'm only flirting."

IT PAYS.

It pays to wear a smiling face
And laugh our troubles down;
For all our little troubles wait
Our laughter or our frown.
Beneath the magic of a smile
Our doubts will fade away,
As melts the frost in early spring
Beneath the sunny ray.

It pays to give a helping hand
To eager, earnest youth;
To note, with all their waywardness,
Their courage and their truth;
To strive with sympathy and love,
Their confidence to win;
It pays to open wide the heart
And "let the sunshine in."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

A LETTER TO MOTHERS.

MR. EDITOR,—I am not in the habit of writing, I would not write now, but wishing to have a little talk with some friends, and as I have not time or strength to go from place to place, I will take this opportunity, with your permission, of saying a few words through your paper, believing God's blessing will rest upon what I may be directed to say. I am a true believer in this passage, 'Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it.' He will not depart from it, God says it, and it cannot be otherwise, 'The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but the word of our God shall stand forever.' This is why we have the Mission. It is true that our work may appear to some of little or no importance, but we have this knowledge that God approves of it; and it is He who says unto us 'go forward,' 'Lo I am with you always, 'I will never leave thee nor forsake thee.' Don't you think we ought to be encouraged, knowing that this work will and must tell, not only in time, but throughout the countless ages of eternity. We know that from the beginning it has been of the Lord's own planting and not of ourselves. We also have the assurance that our Father will uphold his own cause and will take special care of those who are engaged in it. Please turn to Matthew 25th chapter, read carefully from the 31st verse through the chapter. 'I was in hunger and ye gave me meat, I was thirsty and ye gave me drink, I was a stranger and ye took me in,' &c. Give attention to the Lord's answer. 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me.' Just think of Christ's love for His own dear children, and the blessings upon those who help them. They do it unto the Lord himself. Who would not follow such a friend as Jesus all the way from earth to heaven? Now I would like to say a few words to parents, My earnest prayer is that you may have your eyes opened to the fearful responsibility that rests upon you, mothers, and all those who have the oversight of children. When our boys were about three years old, I saw in them a strong tendency to evil, So fearful did their case appear to me, that I was led to the conclusion that my wisdom was but ignorance and my strength weakness. This knowledge led me to cry unto God my Father for the right kind of wisdom, that I might live and act before my children as God would have me do; fully realizing that my words and actions would live in the hearts and lives of my boys; not only through time but throughout eternity. Oh, mothers! I call upon you in the name of my Saviour and your Saviour, to look into this all important matter. Will you believe that you are making a coat for your child that must be worn not only in time but forever in the world to come? I entreat you, before you close your eyes to-night, for the sake of your dear children, for your own happiness, and for Christ's sake, to no longer neglect this salvation, which Christ now offers to you without money and without price. Receive him now into your heart. 'Learn of me,' are the words of Christ. You cannot teach your children that which you have not learned yourself. Oh! learn the story of Jesus' love. Although it may cost you considerable self denial, it will bring you peace and joy to which you have hitherto been a stranger. As I pass up and down the street sometimes, and look into the innocent little faces of those whom I know are not being trained for happiness here and heaven hereafter, I say to myself, how much I would like to have the care, if possible, of all such till they are about ten years old, as I fully believe that if the good seed of righteous living is sown into their young and tender hearts, no earthly power can erase the first impressions, and the precious seed that is early sown will abide forever. Thanking you for your kindness. I remain yours,

MARY SCHUSTER

of the continued use of mercury and potash for the treatment of blood and skin diseases, they never cure, and nearly always injure or totally ruin the general health.

A WELL KNOWN DRUGGIST.

I have seen a great many cases cured with Shaker Blood Syrup—some who have tried all sorts of treatment. In fact, I have never known it to fail when taken properly. I sell a large quantity of it, and for all diseases that are dependant on blood poison or skin humor, It cures PIMPLES AND BLOTCHES ON THE SKIN and makes the complexion fair and rosy. As for blood taint, there is no such word as fail. It cures cases that have long withstood other sorts of treatment, and without any of those recurring troubles that generally follow mercurial and so-called cures.

JOHN STANWOOD,
Druggist. East Boston, Mass.

THE SHAKER BLOOD SYRUP cures completely Syphilis, Scrofula, Rheumatism, Cancer, Catarrh Ulcers and skin and Blood diseases of every discription. Sold everywhere. $1 per bottle or 6 for $5

"Twenty-four years experience," says an eminent Physician, convinces me that the only cure for "Nervous Exhaustion" and weakness of the Generative organs is to repair the wastby giving Brain and Nerve Foods, and of all the remedies I have used Mack's Magnetic Medicine is the best. This remedy is now sold by all Druggists at 50 cents per box, 6 for $2.50, and on receipt of order for 12 boxes accompanied with $5.00, addressed to Jas. Clarke & Co. Belleville they will forward the goods free by mail, and send their written guarantee to refund the money, if the treatment does not effect a cure. See adv't in another column

The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labor. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficent.—For sale by all Druggists.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

CANADA'S DESTINY.

We reproduce below the utterances of Sir Richard Cartwright at Toronto on the subject of the future of the Dominion which have provoked so much comment. After making it understood that he was speaking for himself alone he continued:—"There can be no doubt whatever, that as we grow and our country becomes more consolidated, by-and-bye our people will naturally aspire to a more independent form of existence than we now have; and for myself I have begun to think that this is a question which may well be discussed. As you all know, there is more than one course open before us. As you all know, two or three distinct courses have been suggested for our consideration. Practically, as everybody knows, there is always in the background, situated as we are, a small country alongside a great one, the possibility, and in the minds of some people the desirable possibility, that we may be absorbed into our great republican neighbor. For myself, I say frankly that to me that has always appeared as an ignominious surrender. As only one form of national suicide. I say that, however great the people of the United States may be—and I do not desire to diminish their greatness one whit—however excellent their institutions, I think there is enough vitality and strength in Canada to ensure more than the mere merging of our national existence in that of the United States. I am not in favor, even if I were better convinced than I am, that it would be for our material advantage of bartering our birthright for a mess of pottage.

Whatever the history of the United States may be, it is one which we have no part in, and I believe it is as true of nations as it is of individuals that neither men nor nations live by bread alone, nor by material considerations; and therefore, though I cannot ignore the fact that there are among us some, and there may be among us more particularly under the pressure of misfortune those who may desire to seek that refuge I can only say that I should regard it as a distinct lowering of our position, as much so as if one of you owning a small farm were to sell it to a richer neighbor and agree to become a tenant of the land which you formerly held and controlled. Then there is what is a natural and obvious thing—the possibility of Canada in a speedy period becoming an independent power, and requiring an independent existence. That is a matter to be discussed, to be seriously and gravely discussed. I will venture to say that if Canada desires it, and when Canada thinks herself fit for that independence and chooses to ask for it, no English statesman will be found in the least degree disposed to place barriers in the way. But I am bound as an honest man to tell you this, that in my judgment and in the judgment of those well entitled to speak, that that time has hardly as yet come. Canada is not, as I have pointed out, a very homogeneous country. A very considerable, needless weight has been placed upon us; needless impediments have been placed in our way by that mis-called national policy, which, as I have shown, has greatly and grievously exhausted the resources of the Dominion. Although I quarrel with no man who discusses the question, although I do not believe it is just to accuse any man of disloyalty because he does so, yet I point out to you that at the present moment there is probably in many portions of Canada rather a sentiment of loyalty to the province to which men belong, rather a sentiment of loyalty to the British empire, of which these provinces are a part, than, as yet at all events, a sentiment of loyalty to the Dominion of Canada. Still, I say, these are subjects to be discussed and thought over, and if the people really feel within themselves that they are fit for the new position, then they have only to say so and their wish will be speedily accomplished. There is another possible course which has also been considerably discussed, which deserves consideration at your hands—that is the question whether it is or is not possible for us to further confederate the whole British empire. In a short time, in all human probability, we will be stretching out our hands from the other side of the continent to our brethren in Australia and New Zealand—and no doubt, and there is no doubt whatever, that much may be said for the project of the confederation of the British empire. At the same time you must remember that our colonies are very widely scattered; you must also remember that the British people themselves, who in this matter I think, should give some certain sign or indication of their desire if the change is to be agitated for, have as yet bestowed but little attention upon the matter. Though I say the thing deserves discussion, though it is a thing which there is no reason whatever why we should not seriously consider, I admit, in this case, that there are considerable difficulties in the way.

If neither of these plans be possible, if it be not possible to carry out such a confederation as I have hinted at or a confederation of the British empire, I think we might as well at once begin to turn our attention to the task of preparing ourselves for the duties of independence. Gentlemen, there is room enough for you. There is half a continent before you. There is room enough in Canada for half a dozen first-class European states, and if we may be at first dwarfed by the great people beside us, those among that very people who know us best are those who speak most highly of Canada and who take most trouble to explain to their fellow-countrymen what a valuable heritage the people of Canada, and particularly the people of Ontario, possess."

After some remarks on the subject of a confederation of all the English speaking races the hon. gentleman continued: "I tell you, whatever may be the future of Canada, whatever may be her destiny, I believe if Canadians are not able to make sacrifices for Canada such as Scotchmen have made for Scotland, Englishmen for England, and such as Irishmen, with all their faults have many times made for Ireland, this will not be such a country as we would desire Canada to be. Not until then shall we see Canada take the place among nations of the earth which I believe, in spite of all that has come and gone, Providence intends her yet to occupy.

THE DEMAND FOR FREE CANALS.

"The reduction of the canal tolls," says the Chicago Tribune, "is being discussed with much interest by all Canadian vessel owners. The unprecedented circumstance that there is no Canadian wheat for export this summer gives force, they say, to their contention that the tolls should be removed or greatly diminished in amount. The only hope for grain-carrying vessels is to get a share of the American wheat between Chicago and Montreal. With the Erie Canal free, the Western shipper will not forward his wheat by the St. Lawrence, where he has to pay tolls. The Canadian vessel-owners have no resource left but to carry American wheat by the St Lawrence, and if this is stopped their occupation is gone. Even the charters to Georgian Bay ports from Chicago have fallen off during the last few years The situation is full of apprehension for Canadian vessel-owners." A Montreal despatch says in effect that the statement telegraphed from Ottawa that the Government has decided to reduce canal tolls on east bound wheat to one half the rates for the present season was received there with derision and disgust, and the general opinion expressed on all sides was that this reduction would not prove of the slightest perceptible advantage to the St. Lawrence route. Moreover it is claimed that unless the canal tolls are recinded at once the prospects of an advantageous competition against the free Erie canal are at an end.

BEECHER'S LECTURE.

Toronto Turns out in Force to Hear the Famous Preacher.

TORONTO, May 29.—Between two and three thousand people went up to the pavilion of the Horticultural gardens last night to hear Rev. Henry Ward Beecher lecture on "Evolution and Revolution." His defence of Christianity against the onslaught of scientific infidelity, raised cheer after cheer, his scathing denunciation of certain theological dogmas such as the theory of the fall of man, and of original sin, brought a look of uneasy amazement to many a clerical countenance. The theory of original sin, he characterizes as a blasphemous and damnable doctrine and believes the man who preaches it educates infidels. Neither does he believe in hell or anything appertaining thereto. He does believe in God, Heaven, and the immortality of the soul, and gives good reasons for so thinking.

THE LEAGUE FUNDS.

PERIODICAL PUBLICATIONS.

St. Nicholas for June is a bright out-of-door number, nearly every article taking the reader out into the woods and fields, yet without sacrifice of the variety of subject and interest which is so distinguishing a feature of the magazine. DOMINION LICENSES.

TORONTO, May 28.—Mr. A. Murphy, corner of King and Power streets, had been granted a license by the Dominion Commissioners. He reported that he had tendered the fee, $210, to the Ontario License Inspector, but that gentleman had refused to accept it, although he had accepted other amounts from applicants for Dominion licenses. It is consequently thought that Mr. Murphy's will be made a test case, and that he will be at once summoned by the Ontario Inspector.

M. E. CONFERENCE.

Meeting Under the Auspices of the Women's Temperance Union.

THE EQUALIZATION REPORT.

FARMERSVILLE, May 27.—Last evening at 7:30 a temperance meeting under the auspices of the W. C. T. Union, was held in the M. E. Church. At the close of the addresses the following resolutions was unanimously adopted:—

Moved by Rev. F. Chisholm, seconded by Mr. Brown, and resolved, that it is the sense of the meeting that the establishment and enforcement of the principles of prohibition as embodied in the Scott Act would be beneficial to the interests of these united counties morally, socially, and every other way, and that we do hereby pledge ourselves to put forth our best efforts for the accomplishment of such a desirable end.

At the close of the temperance meeting the Conference again resumed business. The Equalization report was read. The report shows that considerable has been done towards raising the amount required and recommended a renewed effort on delinquent circuits immediately. New deputations are arranged for, and the canvass is to be completed not later than the 20th of June. The Treasurer was ordered to pay over to the S. A. P. Board the funds collected in harmony with the action of the General Conference. The report was received and adopted. It was ordered that it be the sense of this Conference that if a man refuses to level-up he has no share in the general fund raised by the church. The camp meeting report was read, received and adopted. The St. Lawrence Central Camp Ground was represented to be in a flourishing condition.

The ministers of the St. Lawrence District presented their Presiding Elder, Rev. W. H. Graham, with a beautiful gold watch on Saturday evening after Conference. The Conference has concluded its business and risen.

It cures Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and Torpidity of the Liver, Constipation, and all diseases arising from Impure Blood, Female complaints, etc.

THE SECRET OUT
The secret of beauty has been at last revealed. Without good health, pure blood and a fair clear skin none can possess good looks. What is more repulsive than pimples, blotches and a shallow or pasty complexion? Burdock Blood Bitters reveal the fact that all can gain pure blood and freedom from the repulsive diseases of the skin that result from impurities.

THE MANITOBA TERMS.

Control of Public and School Lands Refused.

NO EXTENSION OF BOUNDARIES.

WINNIPEG, May 28.—Mr. Norquay presented in the Legislature yesterday the report of the Ottawa delegation and the reply of the Dominion Government. The control of public lands are refused the Province excepting swamp lands, which are to be handed over. A grant of 150,000 acres is made to the University of Manitoba. The Province is to continue to be paid $45,000 annually in lieu of lands. The school lands are also refused. The Government pledge themselves to manage them strictly in the interest of Manitoba. The capital account of the Province is to be so re-adjusted as to increase the subsidy about $208,000, or from $237,000 at present to $435,000 to be adjusted quinquennially hereafter. The right of the Dominion to disallow local railways charters is re-affirmed. It is asserted that the Province has not succeeded in showing itself to be prejudically affected by the tariff. The northerly extension of the Provincial boundaries is refused. The better terms offered are upon the condition that they will be accepted by the Legislature of Manitoba as a settlement of all claims put forward by the Legislature. Much dissatisfaction is expressed over the result. It is felt that the Legislature should not accept terms upon the conditions proposed. It is not known what the Government will do yet. The Opposition will vote against the terms.

Mr. Norquay yesterday gave notice of a resolution for a Select Committee to consider the Dominion Government's reply to the delegation. To-day, seeing the temper of the House, he asked that the notice be allowed to stand, apparently with the object of securing time for the purpose of devising some other scheme to meet the requirements of the occasion. The feeling of the majority of the House is evidently in favor of rejecting the terms offered by the Dominion. A notice of motion was given to-day by a member of the Opposition, recalling the Attorney General from England, because the success of Manitoba in the boundary dispute would involve additional burdens for the Province, in view of the Dominion Government's refusal to transfer the public lands.

THE COMING FRUIT CROP.

HUMBERSTONE, May 27.—Apples, pears cherries, plums, currants and strawberries will probably be a good crop. Peaches are a failure. Grapes and some other fruits are not forward enough to indicate what the prospects may be.

SOUTHEND, May 27.—The early apples are promising a full crop, and winter apples also. Peaches will be very light, not over a third of a crop. Plums will be a full crop. The prospects for pears are good. All varieties of cherries are promising a full crop. The grapevines have stood the winter well, and the prospects are good as far as we can tell yet. There is the best show for strawberries that we have had for ten years; even the oldest beds are looking like new. Raspberries of all kinds look favorable, as also do currants and gooseberries. This may be said to be the prospect for fruit in the township of Stamford generally.

A SINGULAR DEATH.

A Fairview, O., despatch says:—Mrs. James Hanna, wife of a farmer living near here, had a tooth pulled last week. When the tooth was pulled she began to bleed profusely from her mouth and nostrils, and all efforts to stop it were of no avail. She slowly bled to death.

ROUGH ON REBECCA.

Last week, when about to break up for the holidays, Mr. Spurgeon dismissed his young men with a caution. Don't get courting. That is not good for students. Come back, as some one puts it, with your hearts and manner uncracked. Walk in the fields like Isaac, by all means, and meditate, but don't lift up your eyes for Rebecca. She will come soon enough.

J. H. Eads, Shefford, P. Q., writes: 'I have been troubled with liver complaint for several years, and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it with horses in cases of cuts, wounds, &c., and I think it equally as good for horse as for man.

BASE-BALL AS SEEN BY A GIRL.

A girl's notion of the national game is called off pretty accurately by the letter of a young city lady to her girl chum in the country. 'You must visit me,' she wrote, 'when the base ball season opens. There is so much skill and grace displayed, The pitcher, I think—but my! you never saw a game. I will explain it to you. The pitcher—a dear little thing—stands in the middle and throws a ball at another who stands in front with a long stick in his hand. The thrower tries to hit the stick, and the other young man who is called the knocker, tries to so swing the club that it will be impossible for the thrower to hit the stick with the ball.'

WHAT IT WILL DO.
Polson's NERVILINE, the great pain cure, never fails to give prompt relief in the following complaints:— Sprains, bruises, cuts, tic douloureux, rheumatism, spinal pains, neuralgia, toothache, lumbago, sciatica. Buy to-day at any drug store a 10 cent sample bottle and test it in any of the above complaints It never fails, for Nerviline is composed of the most powerful pain subduing remedies in the world. Get a bottle at any drug store. You will be made happy. Ten and 25 cents a bottle.

WHAT'S IN A NAME
Scrofula so called from the Latin scrofa, a pig, from the supposition that the disease came from eating swine's flesh. It is often inherited from parents, and leads to abscesses, ulcerous sores, debility, king's evil and consumption. The case of the Rev. Wm. Stout, of Wairton, who suffered 23 years from scrofulous abscesses, is one of the most remarkable on record. Burdock Blood Bitters cured him after the best medical skill had failed.

THEIR LITTLE CONFIDENCE GAME.

The Toronto News says:—Tuesday evening two welldressed young men entered a car at the Union station, and got into conversation with a Belleville merchant named Evans, and just as the train was about to start a third stranger entered, wearing an official-looking uniform, and demanded from one of the men $35, as payment for freight. The man drew a cheque from his pocket, but at that moment Detective Brown put his head in the car door and the official-looking and the two well-dressed young men bolted, leaving the Bellevillian greatly perplexed. One of them, Jerry Sheehan, a well-known Buffalo hoodlum, was arrested last night as a vagrant.

Professor Coste, of the Dominion Geological Survey has received instructions to spend the whole summer in exploring the mineral regions north of Belleville. At present he is travelling through Marmora with Mr. Ganjot of this city.

A circular has been issued by District Traffic Manager White, of the Midland division of the Grand Trunk, addressed to the conductors and trainmen, notifying them that a reduction of five per cent. has been made in their wages, commencing May 1st.

A well-selected stock of wall paper, the cheapest in the city, and we are bound to clear out the entire stock.—T. Donnelly & Co.

A. L. Geen has just received another supply of Fluid Lightning. It kills pain.

STOCKS. — The Felt hat market in Belleville at present is in an excited state prices running low on account of the very large stocks on hand. Desirable styles are going off fast at Hyman's at 15 per cent. discounts, while those not quite so good are going off at very low rates. Should the demand so continue for a couple of weeks stocks will all be cleared out. The largest and best assorted stock we find is held by S. A. Hyman.

THE STREET LETTER BOXES.

Figures Showing that they are a Great Public Convenience.

The street letter boxes, which were located at prominent points on the principal thoroughfares in the city in February last, have been appreciated by the citizens as the collection of letters each day shows. During the first week beginning February 19th, 477 letters, 132 postals and 38 papers were dropped in the boxes and during the last week ending 24th May, 505 letters, 146 cards and 50 papers were collected, or at the rate of about 26,000 a year. Two collections are made each day, the first in the morning and the other at eight in the evening. The largest number of letters are found of course in the evening. The boxes being a new thing in Belleville the troublesome youth has been doing some damage to the boxes. One box was smashed with stones and on Monday a mischievous specimen of the bad boy put a burning fire cracker in another, but should an example be made of one of these juvenile dynamiters this annoyance would no doubt cease.

FUNERAL OF MR. P. ROBLIN.

The funeral of the late Philip Roblin, of Ameliasburg, took place yesterday at the Rednerville Methodist church, and was attended by a large concourse of friends from Belleville and Sidney, as well as from the county of Prince Edward. Mr. Roblin was born on the bay shore, Ameliasburg, within a few rods of where he died. He was the son of Owen Roblin, and his mother's maiden name was Polly Dulmage. He married Miss Vandewater, of Sidney, who died 9 years ago last December. Four children were born to them three of whom are still living; the fourth, Mrs. Vair, wife of the late George Vair, merchant of this city, died several years ago. Mr. Vair left one child, Miss Libbie Vair, who is at present living with her aunt, Mrs. Wood, of Peterboro. Mr Roblin was for forty years a member of the Methodist church of Ameliasburg.

An appropriate sermon was preached at Mr. Roblin's special request, by the Rev. J. C. Ash, who, in the past, also officiated at the funerals of his wife and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Geo. Roblin.

Two days afterwards this announcement appeared:—

A HORRIBLE LIFE.

LOCKED UP FOR THIRTY YEARS IN A BACK YARD.

MONTREAL, May 29.—It coming to the ears of Detective Cicq Mars that a maniac was confined in the back y of a house on St. Hypolite Lane he went to the spot to investigate the matter, accompanied by Sergeant Carpenter of No. 4 police station, and the man was seen through the fence walking up and down within the yard, tearing a piece of bread, his only companion being a large Newfoundland dog. He was foaming at the mouth and his right side was completely paralyzed. The neighbors stated that he was in the habit of waking them up during the night, begging for bread and water which they out of pity always supplied him with. The officers decided to remove him at once, and they went round to the front door of the house, where Miss Ellen Milloy, the man's half-sister was met with. She stated that the man's name was Patrick Keenan, and that he had been confined there for thirty years, but she denied the statement of the neighbours in reference to his being out at night, as he slept in a bed upstairs. He was very quiet except when annoyed, when he became dangerous, and she had to lock him up. She said she would be very glad to get him cared for, as he was a burden to her, and both his parents were dead. He was clothed in rags, but it was not her fault, as she had no money to buy clothes for him. The officers removed the man to No 4 police station, and yesterday after examination, the recorder sent him to Longue Pointe Asylum.

IMPORTANT CHANGES There are two periods in the life of every female when the system undergoes great changes. First, the change from childhood to womanhood; next, that of womanhood to old age. These are critical changes of life, and the system should be nourished and regulated by that matchless tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters. It is invaluable in all diseases peculiar to females.

STEAM PLOWING

FARGO, Dak., May 28.—A number of heavy wheat growers assembled yesterday to witness an experiment in steam plowing. The traction engine drew eight plows, turning a sod four inches thick as well as could be done by horse power, and at the rate of 25 acres per day. This will mark a new era in wheat growing. It will enable farmers to plow at a cost of one dollar per acre.

SPORTING NEWS.

The Prospects for the June Trotting Races.

LACROSSE CLUB ON THE FIELD.

Four new canoes have been added to the fleet of the Deseronto Canoe Club.

The N. Y. Sun editorially expresses a high opinion of the prowess of John L. Sullivan, and says the world never saw, and very likely may never see again, such a fighter as he.

The Oka Lacrosse Club had a splendid practice last evening the muster being large, The club promise to put some good material into the field. Practice is held every night except Saturday.

The race home between St, Gatien and Harvester at the Derby yesterday was exciting. This is the first time that a dead heat for the first place has ever been recorded in the Derby. Queen Adelaide, who got third place, was bought by Sir John Willoughby at the sale of the Blankney yearlings in 1882 for the large sum of 3,600 guineas.

In a yatcht race from Oswego to Fair Haven, the Ella came out victorious, beating the Katie Gray (formerly of Belleville) Cricket, Laura and Cygnet. There was a heavy fog at the time.

The June "Outing and the Wheelman" is richer in illustrations than any previous number, beginning with Halsall's charming frontispiece of the start in the yacht race, and the other pictures accompanying Mr. Dodd's article on the Hull Yatch Club and the bicycling illustrations of Mr. Bates' account of the great Canada trip last year, and Mr. Hume's lively story of his "cycling experiences in France; and ending with a number of reproductions of the out door pictures in the late Academy Exhibi- in New York, and the usual lively caricatures at the close. These 'cycling trips seem to be multiplying every season. Everywhere, from the depths of Canada or Florida, over the rocks of the down east coast, or the trackless sod of the western praire, even to the wild beauties of the National Park, the steel wheel is penetrating. Then there is a practical canoeing article and some out door science from Florida. The fiction consists of another instalment of Thompson's Summer Sweethearts, which is evidently drawing near its close, and a bright story founded on a whimsical notion of a New England Spinister that Miss Jewett might have enjoyed working out. [Boston, 175 Tremont Street $2.

The Canadian Trotting circuit, organized in this city a few months ago, and which has now become connected with the National trotting association, includes five of the largest cities in the Dominion, offering greater premiums than were ever given before on this side of the line. The purse of $9000 is to be divided between Montreal Ottawa, Kingston, Belleville and Toronto, as follows: Montreal, June 12, 13, and 14, $3 000; Ottawa, June 17, 18, and 19, $1,500; Belleville, June 24, 25, and 26, $1,500; Kingston, June 30, and July 1 and 2, $1,500; Toronto 8, 9, and 10, $1,500. The entries for the entire circuit close on 6th June. In this city the first day's races will consist of a 2:25 and a 3 minute race. The second five mile bicycle race for the Corby challenge cup will also take place on this day, and will be an exciting contest. On the second day the 2:30 and 2:45 horses will compete for honors, and on the last day of the meeting besides the colt race and a bicycle race, the free-for-all trot will take place for a purse of $400. The liberal premiums which the association has decided to offer in order to bring this circuit prominently before the notice of the great American and Canadian horsemen will undoubtedly insure the attendance of many of the best trotters on the continent. All that is wanting now is fine weather and the races in Belleville next month will be witnessed by thousands of people who enjoy legitimate sport. The Grand Trunk are having cars built especially equipped for the transportation of horses, so that those having fancy equines will not suffer any inconvenience from this source.

John R. Vert, Hamilton, says: McGregor's Speedy Cure for Dyspepsia and Indigestion is cheap at fifty times the price asked for it. I am a commercial man, and travel continually, and would no more leave home without a bottle of McGregor's Speedy Cure in my valise than I would of leaving my team at home and going on foot.' THE SALVATION ARMA AND PROPERTY.

Major Booth, chief of the Salvation Army of America, instructs his folowers to "Shout; those who can't stand the noise 'will never get to heaven.' But a number of leading citizens of London apparently do not understand the Major's beliefs, They own property in the vicinity of the Army barracks, and they declare that the noises caused by the army are such as to render life in the neighborhood intolerable—and to seriously decrease the value of their property. Accordingly, they appeal to the Court of Revision to reduce their assessments. The Court hesitates; but in all probability the assessors' figures will be reduced, as the owners offer to sell for a less amount.—Hamilton Times.

LIBERTY'S PEDESTAL.

The foundation for the pedestal and statue of Liberty at New York is completed, and rises twenty feet above the old ramparts on Bedloe's Island. The pedestal is to rise 117 feet above this, and the statue (157 feet) is to cap the mass, making a height from low water to the top of the torch of 332 feet.

FRAUDULENT TRANSACTIONS

There are many frauds perpetrated in medicine, and many advertised remedies worse than useless. Not so with Hagyard's Yellow Oil, It remains as ever the best internal and external medicine for all pain, soreness and injuries with which human flesh is afflicted.

The bridesmaids now give presents to the bridegroom, instead of the opposite as formerly. This ensures the groom a full supply of 25 cent neckties before starting.

THE EFFECTS OF WHISKEY.

THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemn I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. am satisfied the medicine is not injurious will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use his preparation. The truth is, the medical preparation stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leave room to doubt that Mr. H. OFFICE AND RESIDENCE JOHN STREET BOX 853.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

'Merely that they have just arrived from America.'

'America! Transatlantic cousins.'

'Not exactly. Their father was an Englishman—one Colonel Beauchamp. Years ago he emigrated, and lived in the new world until his death a short time back, when, I understand, he confided these girls to the care of his only sister, Lady Georgiana Dudley.'

'Lady Georgiana Dudley,' repeated the other quickly; 'you know her—you have the entree of her house?'

'I have that honour.'

'Do me a favor.'

'Get you the entree also, eh!' laughed M'Grath. 'You, then, are smitten. You are anxious to cast yourself beneath the wheels of Juggernaut Venus's chariot? There, follow your destiny, mon garcon; the only lasting lessons are those learned from experience.'

Anxiously the stranger waited for them to pass on, when quitting his concealment he took a short cut across the park to the gates by which he rightly divined the barouche would leave.

'Mr. M'Grath has the entree,' he soliloquized. 'Good, I must improve Mr M'Grath's acquaintance.'

As he came in sight of the gates, he discerned a man near them. slowly walking backwards and forwards, rather with the air of a person killing time than one with any definite purpose in view.

Of middle hight, square built, and of powerful make.

His sallow face was of pure American type, from which the long, lank hair was brushed back.

His attire was plain, and while it proved him to have no pretensions to gentility, failed equally to declare to what grade of society, be did belong.

He had just turned in his walk as Stuart Loring came up, and their eyes met.

A meaning glance passed between them, far two rapid to be detected, then each continued his course.

The track of the one lay at right angles to the other, consequently they crossed each other's path.

As they did, so the stranger whispered hurriedly—

'Keep your eyes on me. They will be here soon.'

The man never stopping, made no answer, except a slight peculiar movement of the fingers of the right hand.

The speaker, however appeared satisfied and crossing, took his stand under the trees near the gate.

In less than five minutes the barouche approached among a string of carriages quitting the park.

Furtively Stuart Loring glanced toward the man whom he had addressed.

He had halted within, a few yards, and his eyer were turned in his direction,

'He is prepared,' he mused, 'there is no more useful fellow than Grum, He's as keen as a fox, as mute as a fish, and as unscrupulous as—his master.'

As the barouche drew near, a sudden cessation of vehicles left it a moment alone.

The stranger slightly raised his hand.

The man he had called Grum looked towards the sisters and made the same movement of the fingers.

Evidently it was a sign.

Just then a gentleman mounted on a spirited chestnut mare rode up to the carriage and bowed with easy grace, addressed its occupants in a manner that showed that he stood on the footing of a familiar acquaintance.

The tiny gloved hands of the sisters were readily extended, while the dark, piercing eyes of the observer desected a faint flush suffuse each fair cheek.

He had not only a familiar acquaintance but evidently a welcome one.

'Is he a lover?' he mentally asked, his brows contracting; 'if so of which?'

On the vehicle rolling by, he anxiously tried to find an answer.

In vain.

Both sisters seemed to be equally animated, and equally engaged in talk,

Beckoning the man to him, he said, rapidly—

'You see that gentleman by their carriage,'

The man inclined his head.

'He, too, must be watched, mark me, Find out all about him speedily.'

The other bowed, and drew back.

The stranger followed the barouche.

As it passed through the gates, the negress, lifting her eyes, encountered his.

Raising her hand, she touched her forehead.

Was it a sign of recognition?

The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never ... of properly and judiciously adm nistered. IMPORTANT TO RUPTURED PERSONS

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago in such a manner as to completely secure the confidence of the whole nation. The mode of introduction was by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its various forms and collecting no pay until a a permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained a world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has at the solicitation of thousands placed the remedy on sale by all druggists both wholesale and retail, in the United States, Canada and England. In this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost compared with the benefit which are derived from the use of the treatment. Ask your druggist for a free book on rupture or send 6 cts. for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure M'f'g Co., Ogdensburg, N. Y.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrub for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world [Price 25 cents a bottle.

FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable tempraments. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of despepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high-colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co.s. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

HALLELUJAH! HALLELUJAH!

5. Another evil conspicuous in a false revival is the vain glory apparent in the published accounts given of the large numbers saved, and the wonderful character of the work. During the last few weeks I have wondered if the Hallelujah Band of Belleville endorsed the greatly exaggerated reports of their work furnished constantly in the newspaper, but the wonder is now gone, for I find in the Christian Guardian of May 14 an official report of the marvelous numbers saved by the band. This report in the face of the fact that in a majority of the places visited by the band not a tithe of that number can be found. It is now correctly reported that in several places where the band reported scores converted that not a single scriptural conversion was witnessed. What has become of our christian veracity, of what value is the record of christian work when such statements are allowed to go without correction? The band seems possessed of an intense desire to secure numbers, without any disposition to enquire what becomes of them in the future. Now, Sir, I claim that this mechanical way of converting men is a terrible calamity. You have professors but not possessors. Sinners are coaxed into obedience to the wish of the band, an experience furnished gratuitously by the helpers, the work of the Holy Ghost forestalled, the soul deceived and probably rendered sceptical in all future time respecting the reality of religion and the possibility of obtaining a change of heart. God is dishonored, the work of atonement frustrated, the church really injured and objectors confirmed in their unbelief. So many converts made—made—That reminds me of Wesley's response to a wag, who said to him one day on the street, "Wesley there goes one of your converts," pointing to a man staggering under the influence of liquor, "Yes," said Wesley, "I guess he is one of my converts, he is not God's." If the band must report why not say so many seeking God, or so many enquirers, It is thought best in many quarters not to give such reports at all. See II Samuel, 24, 10, etc.

6. Another evil is the tendency to rely on the means of grace, rather than grace itself. The agents flatter themselves that the power belongs to them and not to God. They forget that God will not give His glory to another. I have been amazed at the determination of the Band and their patrons to drag us back into the dreary ages of the past, when the moon and stars were shining dimly in the moral firmament, and there beside the shadow of an obsolete dispensation in connection with semi-religious festivals of that age find high authority and divine sanction for clapping of hands and tambourine jingle turning the house of God into a very bedlam and driving away from its courts all true and devout worshippers of God. The whole performance is a direct insult to Christian intelligence and offensive to the Holy Ghost who is so sensitive touching His mission on earth and His high perogative in convincing of sin and converting the soul and witnessing to its adoption into God's family. Better by far transport us into the blackness and darkness of barbarism, and thus with one fell sweep rob us of our glorious civilization with all its grand achievements in art, and science, and culture, and blessing, &c., &c., than to endeavor to extinguish the sun of righteousness now shining in the moral firmament in all His meridian glory, with the sublime agency of the Holy Ghost renewing and transforming man, and making sweetest melody in the Christian heart, than to seek to find scriptural authority for tambourine jargon and muscular demonstration by taking us back thousands of years into the dim ages of the past. I cannot think of Hallelujah Band operations without calling to mind a certain scene enacted ages ago and reported on scriptural authority. "And it came to pass at noon, that Elijah mocked them, and said cry aloud; for he is God; either he is talking, or he is pursuing, or he is on at journey, or peradventure he sleepeth, and must be awaked."—Kings xviii, 27.

7. Neglect and depreciation of the regular means of grace. Hallelujah Band crowds will never find any congenial atmosphere in the regular prayer or class service so they will never feel at home in the church. They could never tolerate a sermon after the magic touch of the band. Hallelujah Band patrons have said that they never heard of a soul being converted under a sermon. What about Peter's sermon on the day of Pentecost, when 3,000 souls were converted, What of the grand records of the servants of God in the past when scores and hundreds were converted as the result of one sermon. If it is a crime to preach a sermon how is it that God has called and perpetuated a gospel ministry to preach the everlasting gospel? How is it that through the foolishness of preaching the world is to be converted to Christ?

It has been repeated again and again that this Hallelujah Band's religion is just like the religion of the Primitive Methodists. I repudiate the insinuation with all the accumulated testimony of the ages. There is not the slightest resemblance either in method or result. In the early days of Methodism men went forth filled by the Holy Spirit preaching the truth as it is in Jesus, and souls were converted to God by the power of the Holy Ghost, born again made new creatures in Christ Jesus. Transformed in every fibre of their moral being. Lifted out of fellowship with sin into the presence and favor of God. Saved for God and humanity, saved for time and eternity. The early Methodists knew nothing of salvation by tambourine jingle and Hallelujah wave. Nothing about the grace of God that cannot save a man through and through giving him the mastery over all sin. Methodists are the last people in the world that should disparage the time honored institutions of the Methodist Church. Think of her record in the past—sufficient to stir every loyal Methodist to the very depths of his soul in profound gratitude to God. Think of your noble lineage with some of the grandest men that ever walked on earth. Think of the grand legacy they have bequeathed to you. Think of their injunctions repeated again and again down through the years to be faithful to your doctrines, practices, experiences and discipline and Methodism can never die. Think of all these things and then tell me if you are willing to sell your birthright for a mess of pottage that will subsequently fill you with disgust and remorse. The Methodist church was never so strong as to-day—never so highly approved of God—never so fully equipped to do noble service for God and the world. It is a base libel on the Methodists of the present age to say that they have been recreant to duty. It is false to say that they have failed in their mission to the poor. The Methodist Church with its devoted pastors, local preachers, class leaders is well calculated to reach all classes of society and to secure the highest possible development in Christian character and life. Never before was the Methodist Church so fully inspired with the grandeur of her mission in the future, a prospective history that looks back upon us with such glory and brilliancy that starts into fullest play all the redeemed energies of our being, making us moral heroes and victors in the conflict with sin.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for the large amount of space so generously accorded me, I commit these letters and the facts they detail to the fate of an intelligent Christian public. I wage war against no man, I have simply called attention to certain abuses in Christian work and experience. I have no unkind feeling toward any man. I have no response for personal invective lest I should suffer infinite moral contamination.

THE DAILY ONTARIO.

THE EXTRADITION TREATY.

A movement is now on foot for the purpose of enlarging the scope of the extradition treaty between Great Britain and the United States of America. The present treaty, which was made some forty years ago, is very incomplete and defective, covering only seven crimes; murder, assault with intent to commit murder, piracy, arson, robbery, forgery and utterance of forged papers. The United States Secretary of State in a communication to Congress suggests that manslaughter, counterfeiting, embezzlement, larceny, perjury, rape, abduction, child stealing, kidnapping, burglary, criminal destruction of a vessel, and mutiny and revolt on shipboard, should be added to the list of crimes for which extradition should be granted. These crimes are embraced in all the recent extradition treaties which have been made between Great Britain and other Powers.

SHIPBUILDING IN NOVA SCOTIA.

Shipbuilding is an important industry of Nova Scotia, though probably not growing in proportion to some others, since iron steamers there as elsewhere are so far taking the place of sail and wooden vessels. "But" says the American Consul of Halifax, "labor and many of the materials required in the construction of vessels are comparatively cheap, and building will continue as long as sail vessels are in demand. I am informed that ships of a thousand tons or more are built in this Province for $36 per register ton, fitted and ready for sea. Fishing vessels of 100 tons cost, for hull and spars, about $40 per register ton. Fitted for sea, however, with hawsers, dories, &c., the cost is $75 per ton. But spruce timber is used here largely, and is materially cheaper than the timber used in American shipyards."

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

WHAT AMERICANS THINK.

Of American papers a great many are also discussing Sir Richard Cartwright's speech. Most of them seem to think that annexation is the cure for the evils which he claimed this country was now suffering from. But they do not show how this could be brought about; it is a mere matter of opinion on their part.—Toronto World.

TROUBLES OF A RURAL COMMUNITY.

The removal of cows from the public streets is urgently demanded. The present practice is to send from half a dozen to a dozen cows out to graze on the boulevards and roadsides, in charge of a small boy or an old woman. These cows are an unmitigated nuisance.—Hamilton Spectator.

THE TOWN'S GROWING.

Our town is now well supplied with fresh meat. there being two excellent butcher shops.—Regima Leader.

A REFLECTION ON THE SENATE.

If this "Peer of the realm" (Lord St Leonards) instead of having a seat in the British House of Lords, had held a seat in the Canadian Senate he would no doubt have been able to give some very excellent reasons why Charlton's seduction bill should not become law.—Regina Leader.

THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT.

The national monument at Washington, when finished, will be the loftiest structure in the world, by about thirty feet. The towers of the cathedral at Cologne, just finished, have a height of 524 feet and 11 inches; tower of St. Nicholas, Hamburg, 478 feet 1 inch; cupola of St. Peter's, Rome, 469 feet 2 inches; cathedral spire at Strasburg, 465 feet 11 inches; pyramid of Cheops, 449 feet 5 inches; tower of St. Stephen's Vienna, 443 feet 10 inches; tower of St. Martin's, Landshut, 434 feet 8 inches; cathedral spire at Freiburg, 410 feet 1 inch; cathedral tower of Antwerp, 404 feet 10 inches; cathedral of Florence, 390 feet 5 inches; St. Paul's, London, 365 feet 1 inch; cathedral tower at Magdeburg, 339 feet 11 inches; tower of the new votive church at Vienna, 314 feet 11 inches; tower of the Rathhaus at Berlin, 288 feet 8 inches; towers of Notre Dame, Paris, 232 feet 11 inches. Of American structures the Washington monument, Baltimore, is 210 feet; Bunker Hill monument, 221 feet; Trinity Church, New York, 284 feet; St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, to be 330 feet.

A SCOTT ACT CASE.

An important case under the Scott Act is likely to occupy the attention of the courts. George Morrow, druggist, in Georgetown, received an order from a local doctor prescribing a quantity of liquor for a patient, with the words. "Repeat the treatment if necessary." The druggist followed out the instructions of the doctor and replenished the bottle of the patient. For this he was fined $50 and costs. An eminent lawyer now says that the druggist did perfectly right, and a suit for damages is contemplated.

LIMESTONE CITY.

The Board of Education will ask the Council to provide $15,000 for a new Central School. The money further required for school purposes for the year is $15,600 or $1,000 more than last year.

Arrangements have nearly been completed for the visit to Toronto of the 14th Battalion. A C.P.R. car has been secured and the route will be by way of Sharbot Lake, only twenty-five miles longer than by the Grand Trunk line, which could not furnish accommodation.

A. D. Noyes, Newark, Michigan, writes: "I have enquired at the drug stores for Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, but have failed to find it. We brought a bottle with us from Quebec, but it is nearly gone and we do not want to be without it, as my wife is troubled with a pain in the shoulder, and nothing else gives relief. Can you send us some?"

The reason why "Nonsush Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labor. Third, It is the cheapest in th market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficent. For sale by all Druggists.

According to the tenor of some of the speeches in the Quebec Legislature on the motion by Mr. Joly respecting the necessity of amending the B. N. A. Act, our French Canadian friends are afraid that if the Act is opened for amendment their race may not fare so well as they would like. From this the inference is obvious that they imagine they are pretty well off under the present constitution and have perhaps some special privileges for which, may be, they could not find good reason for retaining. Another gentleman viewed the Act as a sort of covenant, which no sacrilegious hand should dare touch. If a thing is right discussion and careful consideration will only ratify it; if it is wrong it should be amended or repealed.

A HORRIBLE EXPEDIENT.

SAWING A MAN'S LEGS TO MAKE HIM FIT A COFFIN.

Milwaukee, May 26.—There is much indignation at Oak Creek over the action of relatives of Horace Baldwin in sawing his legs off after death to make his body fit in the coffin. He was six feet seven inches tall and the coffin was found short. It was to late to porcure another and his nephew began to cut the legs off with a common saw. While thus engaged he thought he saw the corpse move and he fell in a faint. The work was finished by another relative. There is talk of mobbing the nephew.

STREET RAILWAY LIABILITY.

Montreal, May 30.—The Court of Appeal has rendered an important decision regarding the liability of the City Passenger Railway Company for damages for injuries caused through their tracks, affirming that the obstruction is legalized by statute, and that therefore the company cannot be held in damages for injury to property or person.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Goderich, May 30.—The coroner's jury in the case of William Maines, a farmer of Blyth, who was killed in a fight with a neighbour and his two sons on Monday, yesterday returned a verdict of manslaughter against all three of the accused, who were conveyed to Goderich gaol to await a magisterial examination.

A SERIOUS QUARREL.

Montreal, May 30.—The ante mortem deposition of a young man named Lafon has been taken by the Police Magistrate. Lafon is employed in a jewellery store on the Place de Armes, and on Tuesday when he returned from dinner he found his slippers cut. He accused a shopmate named Karkin of committing mischief, and called him some foul names. Larkin then seized him by the throat, and in the scuffle they arose Lafon was thrown, his head striking the sharp edge of an open door, cutting him dangerously. His life is considered in great danger.

MATTERS IN THE SOUDAN.

Communication With Berber and Cairo to be opened.

Cairo, May 30.—The new Mahdi claims the power of becoming invisible at will. The natives say that Mahdi recently sent soldiers to capture the new prophet. When they had surrounded him he suddenly vanished in air.

Kassal is completely isolated. Three thousand Egyptian troops are there. Ammunition is plentiful, but the food supply is rapidly decreasing. Major Van Sekendorff is still a prisoner at El Obeid, and suffers terrible privations. It is asserted that a ransom will be accepted for him.

The Nile is rising rapidly, and it is expected Gen. Gordon's armed boats will be able to drive the rebels from the banks above and below Khartoum and open communication with Berber and Cairo. A rumor prevails that the rebels have withdrawn from around Shendy.

The rebels fired on Suakim for two or three hours yesterday. The forts and ships responded with twelve guns. The Egyptians deserted their post.

The delay on the part of King John of Abyssinia in meeting Admiral Hewett is attributed to the intrigues of the Italians' mission at Assab.

London, May 30.—The Pall Mall Gazette declares that Lord Granville's request to Turkey to send 15,000 troops to the Soudan is more serious for the cabinet than the scheme of multiple control. It is not clear how the cabinet can repudiate Turkey's acceptance without insisting on Lord Granville's resignation.

Have you tried Holloway's Corn Cure? It has no equal for removing these troublesome excrescences.

THE SECRET OUT

The secret of beauty has been at last revealed. Without good health, pure blood and a fair clear skin none can possess good looks. What is more repulsive than pimples, blotches and a shallow or pasty complexion? Burdock Blood Bitters reveal the fact that all can gain pure blood and freedom from the repulsive diseases of the skin that result from impurities.

A MURDEROUS LUNATIC.

An Insane Quack's Brutal Assault Upon His Wife.

A Guelph despatch says: For some time past a pedler of quack medicines, named Charles Orr, who lives with his wife and family of four children on Paisley street, has shown signs of insanity and been under medical treatment. Last night the disease of mind culminated in a serious and what narrowly escaped being a fatal affray. Some time after midnight Mrs. Orr had occasion to get up to fetch one of the children a drink of water. She had no sooner reached the hallway than her crazy husband struck her a terrible blow on the back of the head with a sharp pointed hardwood stick of the ordinary stove size. This was quickly followed by three others, all about the same part of the head and a fifth over the right eye. At this point the eldest girl managed to pull away the brutal assailant and to get possession of the stick, with which she threatened to strike him and so frightened him off. Mrs. Orr was not able to appear to give evidence at the Police Court, and her husband was remanded to jail for a week to undergo examination.

The plot of Edward Sothern's play, "Whose Are They" is said to be so obscure that at the end of the performance in New York on Monday evening, circulars were distributed at the door explaining it. Hereafter, says the Sun, it would be just as well if they were distributed before the curtain rose.

"No," answered the editor; "let those trousers hang just where they are. I may start a daily paper some day and then I will need them, sure."

A new outdoor game for ladies and gentlemen, called enchantment, is becoming fashionable in England. WHAT'S IN A NAME

Scrofula so called from the Latin scrofu, a pig, from the supposition that the disease came from eating swine's flesh. It is often inherited from parents, and leads to abscesses, ulcerous sores, debility, king's evil and consumption. The case of the Rev. Wm. Stout, of Wiarton, who suffered 23 years from scrofulous abscesses, is one of the most remarkable on record. Burdock Blood Bitters cured him after the best medical skill had failed.

People Who Read and Reflect, after reading upon the many published testimonials regarding Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, can scarcely fail to perceive that evidence so positive and concurrent could not be adduced in behalf of a remedy of doubtful efficacy. The facts proven by such evidences are that it roots out impurities of the blood, restores digestion, enriches the circulation, and regulates the bowels and liver.

DAMAGE TO CROPS.

Considerable damage has been done to fruit and early vegetables in this province and the United States by the frosts of Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Grain crops are also badly injured. The grape vines and tomato plants have been entirely ruined in many sections. The grape crop in the vicinity of Watford has been entirely destroyed by frosts.

Baldness may be avoided by the use of Hall's Hair Renewer, which prevents the falling out of the hair, and stimulates it to renewed growth and luxuriance. It also restores faded or gray hair to its original dark color, and radically cures nearly every disease of the scalp.

CURE FOR DEAFNESS. As numerous testimonials will show, there is no more reliable cure for deafness than Hagyard's Yellow Oil. It is also the best remedy for ear ache, sore throat, croup, rheumatism, and for pains and lameness generally. Used externally and internally.

To cure consumption, ulceration in the lungs must be stopped, the matter must be thrown off, the membranes and tissues healed and the system invigorated. Downs' Elixir will do all his. Try it. Every bottle warranted.

THE PICTON EXECUTION.

Tompsitt and Lowder to Drop through a Trap in the Gaol.

Arrangements are nearly completed for the execution of Tompsitt and Lowder on June 10th. They will be hanged inside the gaol. A double trap door has been placed in the floor of the upper corridor, and an oak beam six inches square, mounted on a solid framework, placed over the door. In the beam are heavy iron staples to which the ropes will be attached, and the doomed men will drop through into the lower corridor. The work has been carried on within hearing of the prisoners. Both still firmly maintain their innocence.—Times.

THE KNIGHT AND THE LADY.

In the brave old days of the Table Round
There lived a knight of illustrious fame,
Who cherished a passion most profound,
A truly romantic, chivalric flame,
For a proud and beautiful lady.

And she—accepted it all as her due,
The knightly devotion so tender, so tried;
But when for her love he ventured to sue,
"Who seeketh to woo me, must win me!" replied
This most discouraging lady.

'Sir knight, you must wander a year and a day;
You must seek for adventures beyond the seas;
You must seek for castles enchanted, and slay
Three dragons, and, having disposed of these,
You may then come back for your lady!"

So the good knight went, as in duty bound,
He wandered many a weary mile:
Adventures enough and to spare he found,
And he met and braved them all in a style
That would quite have delighted the lady.

Castle and dragons, he found them too,
And settled their fate with small delay;
In short, he carried the program through
To the last poor end of the year and a day,
But he never came back for the lady.

Fair maiden, whose lover brave and true
Goes forth, at your word, to seek a name,
Or honors—or riches—or rank for you;
Take care! for perhaps he may do the same,
And gain the place, and the wealth, and the fame,'
But come not back for the lady!

THE LATEST TONSORIAL CRAZE.

[Chicago Times.]

'Yes,' said a Monroe street barber, as he quickly tossed a blazing gas jet over the head of a customer, singeing the hair off as accurately as it could have been clipped by a pair of scissors, 'the latest craze in the tonsorial art is the singeing process. The method usually adopted in large shops is to use a movable drop light. The comb is passed through the air, and the ends are burned off by the flame of gas, which is turned down low.'

'What is the particular benefit claimed to be derived from this process?'

'It is claimed that it prevents the hair from changing color, and restores to its original color faded and colorless hair. So popular has the singeing process become that every first-class barber shop is prepared to remove hair either by the scissors or by burning. It is claimed that in singeing the hair the ends are hermetically sealed, thus preventing the escape of the vital principle, or fluid of the hair at the ends, just as the sealing of a thermometer by the blow-pipe prevents the escape of the mercury, and the action of outside agencies.'

"The secret of the preservative influence on the hair of singeing was discovered in France in a very singular manner. Some years ago a terrible gas explosion occurred in Paris, and among the casualities reported was that of an elderly gentleman who, upon alighting after having been blown into the air an unknown distance, discovered that his hair had been burned off close to his head. What was his surprise to find a few weeks later a luxuriant growth of hair where before had been scattered a few gray and faded tufts, of what looked more like frost killed bunch grass than healthy hair. Acting upon the hint afforded by this well authenticated case as to the effects of singeing was adopted in a few of the shaving parlors of Paris. The process speedily became so popular that it was generally adopted. In Boston this method of treating hair has been in vogue for several years. So far as I know, however, this is the first season of its use in anything like a general way in Chicago.

We believe the cause of the wonderful success of our MURRAY & LANMAN'S FLORIDA WATER may be found the fact that the principal aim in its preparation has always been to give the simple natural perfume of flowers without any chemical addition whatever, and to avoid, by all means the great error of making a heavy, sickly, sweet perfume.

FRAUDULENT TRANSACTIONS

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally and the Ointment rubbed externally are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is epidemic this treatment is easiest, safest, surest. Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Whenever the blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of an prevailing epedemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished power should be these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce all erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, billiousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. The fruit season is especially prone to produce irritation of the bowels and disorder of the digestive organs; both of which dangerous conditions can be completely removed by Holloway's corrective medicines.

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.

Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable.

J. T. HAYES."

Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

More flattering still considering you have such a pair of eyes, and that they were never once off the drive,' and the lady viciously flecked her pony's ears. 'Come, Stuart, I'm not used to such negligence, and I won't have it. You asked to be my friend, I gave you permission. I can tell you to go as readily.'

'But you went be so unkind, Nellie,' he smiled.

'I will, sir, I protest, if you fail to keep your promise to sup with me to-night after the opera-bouffe.'

'Did I promise Nellie?'

'You did, sir and shall keep it.'

'Shall?'

'Shall, or I will tell everyone what I know,'

'And what do you know?'

'Your secret,' exclaimed the young lady bending forward, dropping her voice, and pointing her whip towards the rapidly disappearing barouche. You love one of those girls; you have followed them from America.'

A shade of anger passed over Stewart Loring's features.

Quickly supressing it with a smile, but a dangerous look in his eyes, bending in his turn he said—

'And I, my dear Nellie, have yours; you love the cavlier who is now in their company. Ah!'

'Ah,' and the powdered and roged face looked defiantly up, 'a great secret truly. Love him! Of course I do, for he is the only man who is worthy of a woman's affections in the world. Your secret is no great one after all, monsieur. I'll tell you more, I ll wager to win his love before you your American blonde's. Do you come to-night? Do or stop away just as you please,' she added, with apparent indifference.

Stuart Loring reflected then.

'Yes,' he said, 'I will be there.'

Very well. Ta, ta, or au revoir,' was the careless rejoinder, as the lady shook the rains over the ponie's back and rode off.

But the bold pretty face hardened, and the white teeth gave a viscious bite as their owner remarked, sotto voce—

'Come, I fancy you'd better. Mr. Stuart Loring, the great Yankee, I know more about you than you think, and will prove it if you neglect me as you have today. You shan't turn me off for that girl, who has already robbed me of one far your superior.'

Nellie Montmorency, of the opera-bouffe company attached to the Royal Patronage Theatre in this made a silent error.

The gentleman she refered to had never been, in the slight degree an admirer of her, much to the actress's secret pain and vexation.

Stuart Loring looked after the pony carriage.

A smile on his lip, but a very, very evil light indeed in his eyes,

'Yes Nellie ma belle,' he murmured, 'I will come for I perceive I must show you a little of my power. Such comedienne airs may suit youth and folly, but not me.'

He stopped as a voice accosted him.

'Ah, Mr. Loring well met,' it remarked.

The stranger turned quickly, and with embarassment, took the hand extended towarks him.

The speaker was John M'Grath.

'No one could I have greater pleasure in seeing,' said Stuart Loring. 'For the last hour I have been quite ennuied with my own society. Will you take compassion, Mr. M'Grath, upon my solitude in this vast city, and dine with me?'

'I shall be delighted; after which if you like, I will tulfil my promise of introdcing you to my club.,

A thousand thanks; I know no one here in London, so if I am to enter English society, I must hold myself indebted to you.'

'The favor is a small one. At any time I shall be happy to oblige you.'

Again Stuart Loring expressed his gratitude, and his mild occupied by Pauline Beauchamp and the peculiar look of Nellie Montmorency, proceeded arm-in-arm with his friend towards Pall Mall.

CHAPTER II.

THE CLUB—"EUSTACE BELMORE, BEWARE,"

A March evening descending, dull, yellow and foggy over London,

A night for those abroad to make a general and rapid stampede homeward or clubward.

Obeying this impulse, the members of a certain St. James' club had mustered numerously in the smoking room, as luxurious as an Eastern picture.

Those of a social turn sat in groups, others enjoyed the fumes of the weed from cigar, meerschaum, or hubble-bubble in retired solitude.

'What awful weather, by Jove!' lisped a member lazily from the sofa, fingering the silky appendage on his upper lip.

'It's truly dreadful,' chimed in another. 'People don't expect this sort of thing in March you know. 'Pon my soul, it isn't fair.'

'To the fair, eh?' laughed an elder member, cynically. 'Fog don't agree with pearl powder and rouge, eh? Clings to the delicate nose, and gives an idea of that secret tippling at which our papers hint.'

(To be continued.)

Every [illegible] ho walks the streets of a a great city, and scans with an intelligtnt eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate pogree the animal health and robust condition. Nature in its stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of its self but requires some stimulating tonic to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrup and Lyman's Quinine Wine we have the xact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in case of general debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never of properly and judicirusly administered. Prepared by Northrup & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all drugists.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Winslow's Soothing Syrup For Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrub for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world Price 25 cents a bottle.

FUNCTIONAL HEART Troubles are commonly the outcome of impaired general health from depraved nutrition, and are peculiar to nervous, irritable temperaments. Palpitation, intermitting, or irregular pulse, difficulty of breathing, and head symptoms are reflex or sympathetic from stomach derangements, especially that form of despepsia with acidity or heartburn, flatulence, irregularity of bowels, high-colored urine and brick dust deposit. Many of these cases have been entirely relieved by the prolonged use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA fortifying the nervous system and restoring the digestive apparatus to its normal activity.

OUR CANADIAN SILK INDUSTRY is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If the ladies will take the trouble to ask for Belding Paul & Co's. own brand, and see that their name is on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best made.

EARTH COMPARED WITH HEAVEN.

['Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven.'—MATT. 6 : 10].

If the prayer of our text had not been dictated by the Lord Jesus Himself, we might think it too bold. Can it ever be that this earth, a mere drop of a bucket, should touch the great sea of life and light above and not be lost in it? Can it remain earth and yet be made like heaven? Will it not lose its individuality in the process? This earth is subject to vanity, dimmed with ignorance, defiled with sin, furrowed with sorrow; can holiness dwell in it as in heaven? Our Divine Instructor would not teach us to pray for impossibilities He puts such petitions into our mouths as can be heard and answered. Yet certainly this is a great prayer; it has the hue of the infinite about it. It is a brave prayer, which only a heaven born faith can utter; yet it is not the offspring of presumption, for presumption never longs for the will of the Lord to be perfectly performed.

I first lead you to observe that the comparison is not far-fetched. That our present obedience to God should be like to that of holy ones above is not a strained and fanatical notion. It is not far-fetched for earth and heaven were called into being by the same Creator. If, then, heaven and earth were created by the same God, and are sustained by the same power, and governed from the same throne, we believe that the same end will be subserved by each of them, and that both heaven and earth shall tell out the glory of God. They are two bells of the same chime, and this is the music that peals forth from them: 'The Lord shall reign forever and ever. 'Hallelujah!' He that made can remake. The curse which fell upon the grounds was not eternal; thorns and thistles pass away. God will bless the earth for Christ's sake, even as once He cursed it for man's sake.

'Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven.' It was so once. Perfect obedience to the heavenly will upon this earth will only be a return to the good old times which ended at the gate of Eden. Those who desire to set up the kingdom of God are not instituting a new order of things; they are restoring, not inventing. Earth will drop into the old groove again. As it was in the beginning so shall it be yet again. History shall, in the divinest sense, repeat itself. The temple of the Lord God shall dwell among them. 'Truth shall spring out of the earth; and righteousness shall look down from heaven.' 'Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven.' It will be at the last.

Meanwhile, remember also that there is an analogy between earth and heaven, so that the one is the type of the other. You could not describe heaven except by borrowing the things of earth to symbolize it; and this shows that there is a real likeness between them. What is heaven? It is Paradise, or a garden. Walk amid your fragrant flowers and think of heaven's bed of spices. Heaven is a Kingdom; thrones, and crowns, and palms are the earthly emblems of the heavenly. Heaven is a city; and there, again, you fetch your metaphor from the dwelling-places of men. It is a place of 'many mansions'—the homes of the glorified. Houses are of earth, yet is God our dwellingplace. Heaven is a wedding feast; and even such is this present dispensation. The tables are spread here as well as there; and it is our privilege to go forth and bring in the hedge birds and the highway men, that the banqueting-hall may be filled. While the saints above eat bread in the marriage supper of the Lamb, we do the like below in another sense. Between earth and heaven there is but a thin partition. The home country is much nearer than we think. I question if 'the land that is very far off' be a true name for heaven. Was it not an extended kingdom on earth which was intended by the prophet rather than the celestial home? Heaven is by no means the far country, for it is the father's house. We are not taught to say, 'Our Father which art in heaven?' Where the father is the true adoption counts itself near. Our Lord would have us mingle heaven with earth naming it twice in this short prayer.

Secondly, this comparison is eminently instructive. Does it not teach us that what we do for God is not everything, but how we do it is also to be considered? The Lord Jesus Christ would not only have us do the Father's will, but do it after a certain model. And what an elevated model it is! Yet it is none too elevated, for we would not wish to render to our heavenly Father service of an inferior kind. 'Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven.' Mark the words 'be done,' for they touch a vital point of the text. God's will is done in heaven. How very practical! On earth His will is often forgotten, and His rule ignored. My brethren, I am afraid that Christ's will on earth is very much more discussed than done. Too often we are satisfied with having approved of that will, or with having spoken of it in words of commendation. But we must not stay in thought, resolve, or word; the prayer is practical and business like, 'Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven.' An idle man stretched himself on his bed when the sun had risen high in heaven, and as he rolled over, he muttered to himself that he wished this were hard work, for he could do any quantity of it with pleasure. Many might wish that to think and to speak were to do the will of God; for then they would have effected it very thoroughly. Up yonder there is no playing with sacred things; they do His commandments, harkening unto the voice of His Word. Would God His will were not alone preached and sung below, but actually done as it is in heaven.

In heaven the will of God is done in spirit, for they are spirits there. It is done in truth with undivided heart, and unquestioned desire. On earth, too often, it is done and yet not done; for a dull formality mocks real obedience. Here obedience often shades off into dreary routine. We sing with the lips, but our hearts are silent. We pray as if the mere utterance of words were prayer. We sometimes preach living truth with dead lips. It must no longer be so. Would God we had the fire and fervor of those burning ones who behold the face of God. We pray in that sense, 'Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven.' In heaven they do God's will constantly, without failure. Would God it could be so here! They do God's will universally, without making a selection. Here men pick and choose—take this commandment to be obeyed, and lay that commandment by as non-essential. We are, I fear, all tinctured, more or less, with this odious gall. A certain part of obedience is hard, and therefore we try to forget it. It must no longer be so; but whatsoever Jesus saith unto us we must do.

Thirdly, this comparison of holy service on earth to that which is in heaven, is based upon facts.

The facts will both comfort and stimulate us. Two places are mentioned in the text which seem very dissimilar, and yet the likeness exceeds the unlikeness—earth and heaven. We have the same fare on earth as the saints in heaven, for 'the Lamb in the midst of the throne doth feed them;' He is the Shepherd of His flock below, and daily feeds us upon Himself. His flesh is meat indeed, His blood is drink indeed.

Brethern, we are in the same company below as they enjoy above. Up there they are with Christ, and here He is with us, for he hath said—'Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.' 'But heaven is a place of peace,' says one; 'there they rest from their labors.' Beloved, our estate here is not without peace and rest. 'Alas!' cries one, 'I find it far otherwise.' I know it. But whence come wars and fightings but of our fretfulness and unbelief? 'We which have believed do enter into rest.' 'But we have not their victory,' cries one, 'for they are more than conquerors.' Yes, and 'our warfare is accomplished.' We have prophetic testimony to that fact. Moreover, 'This is the vicinity that overcometh the world, even our faith.' In the Lord Jesus Christ the Lord giveth us the victory, and maketh us to triumph in every place. 'Up there,' says a brother, 'they are all accepted, but here we are in a state of probation.' Did you read that in the bible? for I never did. A believer is in no state of probation; he has passed from death unto life, and shall never come into condemnation.' 'Ay' saith one, 'but heaven is the place of perfect service; for His servants shall serve Him.' But is not this the place, in some respects, of a more extensive service still? Are there not many things which perfect saints above and holy angels cannot do? If we had choice of a sphere in which we could serve God with widest range, we should choose not heaven but earth. There are no slums and overcrowded rooms in heaven to which we can go with help, but there are plenty of them here. There are no jungles and regions of malaria where missionaries may prove their unreserved consecration by preaching the Gospel at the expense of their lives. In some respects this world has a preference beyond the heavenly state as to the extent of doing the will of God.

This life is the vestibule of glory. Array yourselves in the righteousness of Jesus Christ, for this is the court dress of earth and Heaven. Manifest at once the spirit of saints, or else you will never abide with them. Now begin the song which your lips shall carrol in Paradise, or else you will never be admitted to the heavenly choirs; none can unite in the music but those who have rehearsed it here below.

Lastly this comparison, which I feel I can so feebly bring out, of doing the will of God on earth as it is done in Heaven, ought to be borne out by holy deeds. Here is the urgency of the missionary enterprise. God's will can never be intelligently done where it is not known; therefore, in the first place, it becomes us as followers of Jesus to see to it that the will of the Lord is made known by heralds of peace sent forth from among us. Why has it not been already published in every land? Is it not probable true that the selfishness of Christians is the main reason for the slow progress of Christianity? If Christianity is never to spread in the world at a more speedy rate than the present, it will not even keep pace with the growth of the population. If we are going to give to Christ's kingdom no larger a percentage than we have usually given, I suppose it will require about an eternity and a half to convert the world; or, in other words, it will never be done. The progress made is so slow, that it threatens to be like that of the crab, which is always described in the fable as going backward. What do we give, brethren? What do we do? It is not for us to say, 'My Lord, Thou hast many ways and means of accomplishing that will; I pray thee do it, but let me not be asked to help on the work,' No, when I utter this prayer, if I am sincere I shall be searching my stores to see what I can give to make known the truth. I shall be inquiring whether I cannot personally speak the saving word. You who fail to support missions when it is in your power to do so should never say 'Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done,' but leave out that petition for fear of mocking God.

We want to bless the world, we have a thousand schemes by which to bless it, but it ever God's will is done in earth as it is done in Heaven it will be an unmixed and comprehensive blessing. Join the Peace Society by all means, and be forgiving and peaceable yourself; but there is no way of establishing peace on the earth except by God's will being done in it, and that can only be done through the renewing of men's hearts by the Gospel of Jesus Christ. By all manner of means let us endeavor to so control politics, as Christian men, that oppression shall not remain in the earth; but, after all, there will be oppression unless the Gospel is spread. This is the one balm for all earth's wounds. They will bleed still until the Christ shall come to bind them up. Oh, let us then, since this is the best thing that can be, show our love to God and man by spreading his saving truth. The text says, 'Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven.' Suppose any one of you had come from Heaven. It is but a supposition; but let it stand for a minute; suppose that a man here has come fresh from Heaven. Some would be curious to see what his bodily form would be like. They would expect to be dazzled by the radiance of his countenance. However, we will let that pass. We want to see how he would live. Coming newly from heaven, how would he act. Oh, sirs, if he came here to do the same as all men do on earth, only after a heavenly sort what a father he would be, what a husband, what a brother, what a friend! I would sit down and let him preach this morning, most assuredly; and when he had done preaching, I would go home with him and have a chat.

I should be careful to observe what he would do with his substance. I do not think this man coming fresh from heaven would say, 'I must have this luxury; I must have this goodly raiment; I must have this grand house.'' But he would say, 'How much can I save for the God of Heaven? How much can I invest in the country I came from?' I am sure he would be pinching and screwing to save money to serve God with; and he himself, as he went about the streets, and mingled with ungodly men and women, would be sure to find out ways of getting at their consciences and hearts; he would be always trying to bring others to the felicity he had enjoyed. Think that over and live so—so as He did who really did come down from heaven. For after all, the best rule of life is, what would Jesus do if he was here to-day, and the world still lying in the wicked one? If Jesus were in your business, if He had your money, how would He spend it? For that is how you ought to spend it. Now think, my brother, you will be in heaven soon. Since last year a great number have gone home; before next year many more will have ascended to glory. Sitting up in those celestial seats, how shall we wish we had lived below! It will not give any man in heaven a moment's joy to think that he gratified himself while here. It will give him no reflections suitable to the place to remember how much he amassed, how much he left behind to be quarrelled over after he was gone; he will say to himself, 'I wish I had saved more of my capital by sending it on before me, for what I saved on earth was lost, but what I spent for God was really laid up where theives do not break through and steal.'' O brothers, let us live as we shall wish we had lived when life is over; let us fashion a life which will bear the eternal. Is it life to live otherwise? Unless we are striving to honor Jesus, and bring home His banished, we are dead while we live. Let us aim at at a life which will outlast the fires which shall try every man's work. If I may have moved any person here to resolve, 'I will so live,' I have not spoken in vain. I have at least stirred myself with the intense desire to cast off the mere outsides and husks of life, and to ripen the real kernel of my being. Thy will be done on earth, as yet, my Lord, I hope to do it in the skies. May I begin here a life worthy to be perpetuated in eternity. God bless you, for Christ's sake.

THE UNIVERSITY APPOINTMENTS.

As we pointed out yesterday our esteemed contemporary the Peterboro' Review takes hold of a question with which the Ontario Government has to do and with a charming faith in the iniquity of the Grits says, whatever the facts may be of this one thing we are assured, the Mowat Administration have done something they would like to hide, something of which they may well be ashamed. The Government has just appointed Mr. Alfred Baker, M. A., to the position of Dean of University College, Toronto. The Review thinks this a very poor selection and sees in it only another instance of the incompetence of the Minister of Education and of the wickedness of Mowat. It must be refreshing for those Conservatives who fancy their newspaper organs in earnest when they cry out "No politics in our educational matters," to read such diatribes against the Government's educational policy. Our contemporary will doubtless believe that no good point can be made against the Government this time when it it reads in yesterday's Mail that :—"The appointment of Mr. Alfred Baker, M. A., to the position of Dean of University College, Toronto, will be a most acceptable one, not only to his own friends, but to those of the College as well."

When the classical chair was filled from England our contemporary joined in the howl and cry against the Government for neglecting home talent; now that home talent alone is drawn on for all the new appointments there is not one word of praise for the Government. That would be too consistent, too fair, too honest. On the other hand the Toronto World which condemned Mr. Crooks' system recognizes the change of policy and says :—"In thus affording home talent a chance the government will find their course approved of by all who have made a study of university management. There are other qualities besides scholarship to be taken into account, one of them being the ability to understand the educational wants of Canada and the genius of the Canadian people."

MR. BOWELL'S RESPONSIBILITY.

Everyone knows that the Minister of Customs was away when the railway subsidies resolutions passed through Parliament, but will our contemporary assert that the bonuses were not determined upon before he left? Of course they were. Even were they not, had his colleagues so little regard for his wishes as to go counter to them? Is it not more likely that considerations other than the good of the county or city intervened and the member for North Hastings put forth no exertions in behalf of his constituents? In any event will our contemporary say that the Minister is not equally responsible with the other members of the Cabinet for the entire bill which the Government put through the House in derogation of the rights of this county and of this city? We challenge our contemporary to say that had Mr. Bowell not been called away to California the Government would have aided the Madoc and North Hastings extension. We will await the answer.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

TO-MORROW'S SUN rises on an united Methodism in Canada. It is the beginning of a new, and let us hope, unprecedentedly prosperous era.

* * *

OUR esteemed local contemporary says that our utterances are made up of "lies and "erroneous statements." We might have borne the lies, but the erroneous statements—!

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

A BETRAYED PROVINCE.

If there was a subject on which the Ross Government was especially pledged to the electors of the Province it was an exhaustive and fearless examination of the railway accounts, the railway management and the scale of the road to Mr. Senecal and his friends, The Ross Government has gone back on the pledges made on its behalf, and now proposes to whitewash all who were connected with these affairs. Another pledge, which inspired a certain amount of public confidence, was that economy and retrenchment would be the order of the day in connexion with Provincial expenditures. We see how this promise is being kept by the increase of members' pay from $600 to $700 for the session, thus adding about $18,000 to the cost of every session. These are but fair examples of the manner in which the new Government has betrayed the public confidence.—Montreal Herald.

REWARDING CORRUPTION.

Hawkins, the Bothwell usurper, has been rewarded with the appointment of assistant to Rufus Stephenson, Inspector of Colonization Companies' Lands. The duties of Mr. Stephenson's office do not take up one month of the year. Wilkinson has his little appointment as well as the privilege of nominating a person whom Mr. Macpherson has agreed to recommend for the Registrarship of Edmonton. H. H. Smith, of Peterboro', has been made Inspector of Dominion Land Agencies. In short, every Tory who has been convicted in the election courts or elsewhere of dishonesty or corruption has received, or is in the way of receiving, his reward. A more shameless defiance of public opinion never was exhibited even by Sir John Macdonald himself.—Toronto Globe.

A. D. Noyes. Newark, Michigan, writes: "I have enquired at the drug stores for Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, but have failed to find it. We brought a bottle with us from Quebec, but it is nearly gone and we do not want to be without it, as my wife is troubled with a pain in the shoulder, and nothing else gives relief. Can you send us some?"

The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labor. THE PICTON ASSAULT CASE.

Rev. Mr. Loucks says he Was First Brutally Attacked.

THE MURDERERS PREPARING FOR THE WORST.

From our own Correspondent.

PICTON, May 31—The farmers and gardeners are complaining of the injury done vegetation by the late frosts. More was experienced to quite an extent in Greenbush Thursday afternoon.

Robt. Welsh, the man who was beaten by the Anglican clergyman, is under medical attendance. He is reported to be quite seriously hurt. The case will be tried before Judge Jellett next month. In justice to Rev. Mr. Loucks it should be stated that he says he was the attacked, not the attacking party and had to defend his life. He characterizes the attack as one of the most brutal and unprovoked that ever befel a man, and expresses the determination to push the matter before a criminal court unless an ample apology is at once tendered.

The execution of the Lazier murderers, now so near at hand, will be conducted in private. There is no hope for a reprieve as it is generally understood that the Governor-General has been advised to allow the law to take its course. The prisoners are making every preparation for the doom that awaits them. Reading the bible and religious tracts accompanied by prayer constitutes their daily exercise. They eat well and sleep soundly.

COLLAPSE OF A BUILDING.

EIGHT DEAD BODIES RECOVERED FROM THE RUIN.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 30.—The weight of cotton stored in Hooper's building, this city, caused it to collapse this afternoon. When the front of the building fell in three or four persons were in the counting room, four in the shipping office, and at least fifteen or twenty in front of the structure. Men are busily engaged removing the debris in order to get the people out. The body of Mortimer H. Linthicum, cashier of the house, was found packed in between several barrels. It was impossible to reach him. A man named Kelly and a colored boy have also been found among the ruins. Eight bodies so far have been recovered.

PLANTATION PHILOSOPHY.

Dar neber wuz a man so smart dat dar wan't somebody else smarter.

De bes' pusson is made o' de smile an' de tear. Sunshine an' rain iz whut makes de cotton.

When er ole man gits mad he's awful. De ole family hoss, when he runs er way, t'ars de buggy all ter pieces.

De mo' er man thinks o' hisself, de mo' he thinks o' de debil, for in all things, de debil shows dat he 'siders hiss' fust.

De wust fool is the fool what tries ter 'vince his 'quaintances dat dar ain' no God, fur at de las' he cries wid de loudest' voice an' wants mussy de quickes.'

De man what tells one truth, although it may make de curmunity mad, is greater den de man whut tells a hundred lies ter please de neighborhood. Truth, follered in de right way, is de foundation o' dis worl's happiness. De liar may muse de folks, but nobody wants ter ax his 'pinion consarnin' a 'portant matter.

YEARNING.

Over the west the glory dies away.
  Faint rose flecks gleaming in the darkening sky;
And the low sounds that mark the close of day,
  Rise up from wood and upland—rise and die;
Soft silence falls o'er meadow, hill and grove,
And in the hush I want you, oh, my love.

In the gay radiance of the morning hour,
  In the warm brooding glory of the noon,
When man and nature, in their prime of power
  With the day's fulness blend in eager tune,
The rush of life forbids the pulse to move,
That now, in yearning passion, wants you, love.

Wants you to watch the crimson glow and fade
  Through the great branches of the broad-ching lime;
Wants you to feel the soft, gray, quiet shade,
  Lap the tired world in blessed eventime;
Wants you to whisper, "Come your power to prove,
The gloaming needs its angel, come my love."

Mr. Alexander Robinson, of Exeter, in writing about one of the most popular articles, and one that has done more good to the afflicted than any other medicine has during the short time it has been in existence, says: "I have used four bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, and have been cured of Dyspepsia that troubled me for over ten years. Part of that time I had it very bad, and I was at considerable expense trying to get relief; but this excellent medicine was the first and only relief I received

GOOD NIGHT.

Good night, beloved ! the tender night is falling
  O'er all the weary world, and through the light
That fades, the voices of my heart are calling
  Good night ! O love, to thee a fond good night.

Good night, beloved ! May angels bless thy sleeping
  With dreams far brighter than the day's lost light;
And may thy waking be to smiles, not weeping.
  Good night, O truest friend and best—good night

Good night, beloved ! though weary miles are lying Between thy heart and mine, yet with the flight
Of day my thoughts on wings of love are flying
  To bid thee, even as a prayer, good night.

Good night, beloved ! 'neath that great Eye unsleeping
  I leave thee ; lo, His stars are shining bright
O'er us and thee, God have us in his keeping
  Until we meet again, O love ! Good night.

'Oh, carry me, then.' cried the fair coquette,
'To the land where never I've journeyed yet—
  To that shore
Where love is lasting and change unknown
And man is faithful to one alone
  Evermore.'

'Go seek that land for a year and a day:
At the end of the time you'll be still far away,
  Pretty maid.
'Tis a country unlettered in map or in chart
'Tis a country that does not exist, sweetheart,
  I'm afraid.'

Have you tried Holloway's Corn Cure? It has no equal for removing these troublesome excrescences.

THE SECRET OUT

The secret of beauty has been at last revealed. Without good health, pure blood and a fair clear skin none can possess good looks. What is more repulsive than pimples, blotches and a shallow or pasty complexion? Burdock Blood Bitters reveal the fact that all can gain pure blood and freedom from the repulsive diseases of the skin that result from impurities.

Health is a duty, Disease a crime. Use Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters and be cured o all biliousness or liver trouble. 25 cents will buy a large bottle.

WHAT'S IN A NAME

Scrofula so called from the Latin scrofa, a pig, from the supposition that the disease came from eating swine's flesh. It is often inherited from parents, and leads to abscesses, ulcerous sores, debility, king's evil and consumption. The case of the Rev. Wm. Stout, of Wairton, who suffered 23 years from scrofulous abscesses, is one of the most remarkable on record. Burdock Blood Bitters cured him after the best medical skill had failed.

JUNE.

Apple-blossoms in the orchard,
  Singing birds on every tree ;
Grass a-growing in the meadows
  Just as green as green can be ;

Violets in shady places,—
  Sweetest flowers were ever seen !—
Hosts of starry dandelions,—
  'Drops of gold among the green !'

Pale arbutus, fairy wind-flowers,
  Innocents in smiling flocks ;
Coolest ferns within the hollows,
  Columbines among the rocks ;

Dripping streams, delicious mosses,
  Tassels on the maple-trees ;
Drowsy insects, humming, humming ;
  Golden butterflies, and bees ;

Daffodils in garden borders,
  Fiery tulips dashed with dew ;
Crocus flowers; and, through the greenness,
  Snow drops looking out at you !

FOR YOUNG MEN.

A TALK ABOUT SOCIAL ISOLATION AND OF SOCIETY.

Avoid isolation. Few need this caution. Those who do need it need it very much. Without society one cannot be more than half a man. He will be uncouth, abstracted, 'remote, unfriended, melancholy, slow,' whether at home or abroad. Cicero said : 'A man will have no pleasure in the discovery of the beauties of the universe itself unless he has a partner to whom he may communicate his joy.' Milton beautifully declared that 'Loneliness is the first thing which God's eye named not good.' Without society we lack stimulus. The soul grows rusty, or, as Isaac Watts called it, 'moldy,' and as years advance and spirits diminish the lonely man becomes misanthropic. He is suspicious, He knows that he does not understand human nature and he is very liable to be imposed on. These are the men who live alone until they are fifty and sixty years of age, accumulate by parsimony a fortune, or gain by study a literary reputation and then marry an adventurous, scheming widow twenty years younger than themselves or a girl scarce out of her teens and who furnish divorce and probate courts with much of their business.

Do not have too much society. Society is a great thief—a thief of time, a thief of money. Entertainments must be returned ; raiment must correspond ; and too much society may make a difference between saving and losing both pecuniary and intellectual treasures. Society is a great exhauster of nervous force. A brilliant talker is using up a great deal of energy. Brilliancy is in proportion to the amount of combustion. Such persons may spend an hour a week in society, but if they spend every evening in the week in it they will early in life became the victims of nervous disease and at their best estate will be moody, irritable and liable to fits of great depression. The tendency to use stimulants to keep up a flow of spirits which nature cannot supply is also great. It is principally on this account that many young men fall into intemperance. Too much society develops flippancy and superficialty. The small talk never goes beneath the surface. No subject is thoroughly thought out or understood. What such young men will say can be foreseen by any one who knows what the papers say, what the girls say and what the regular society goers say. A little now and then breaks the monotony of the roast beef of study, but he who lives wholly on sweetmeats gets bad blood, boils, pimples and not a sweet breath.

Select a circle of two or three or five or six intelligent, attractive and vivacious young ladies. Call upon them from time to time and leave the mystic influence which some one is to exert over you to its natural developement. Photographs are taken quickly in a right light and with the right adjustment, and without them staring will never produce a picture. In like manner the young man who has society, and not too much and of the right kind, will some day, if he do not hurry the process, find what Solomon described when he said: 'Whoso findeth a wife findeth a good thing and obtaineth favour of the Lord.'—From Dr. J. M. Buckley's 'Letters to Young Men.'

The Weather Prophet looks for Spring this month. The wise men look for a blood purifier that will not injure his system; he can find what he wants in Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters, the greatest of all blood purifiers. In large bottles at 50 cents.

DO NOT FORGET IT.

It is a fact that NERVALINE, cannot be surpassed by any combination for the relief of pain. The reason is a good one. Nervaline contains the best, and most powerful, and the latest discovered remedies. It is a magic pain cure, Rheumatism, stiff neck cramps, neuralgia, colic, in fact all pain, internal or external, and local, are subdued in a few minutes. Go at once to any drug store and get a trial bottle. It will only cost you 10 cents, and you can at a small cost test the great pain cure, Polson's Nervaline. Large bottles only 25 cents.

THE RELIGIOUS REALM.

Concise Chronicles of Churches and Christians of all Creeds

LOCAL.

The Bridge Street congregation worships tomorrow morning in the Tabernacle. In the evening all the congregations are expected at Bridge Street Church. Addresses will be delivered, and fine music, from the combined choirs led by the organ and cornet, will be rendered. The collections are on behalf of the General Conference fund. There will be a union sacramental service in the evening. Rev. Dr. Jeffers will occupy the pulpit in the Holloway Street Church, and preach special sermons bearing on the union.

GENERAL.

The annual meeting of the Congregational Union will be held in Montreal on June 4th.

The bishop of Algoma ordained at St. George's church, Montreal, Rev. Robert W. Plante, a young Englishman who came out with his lordship to undertake duty as a missionary in Algoma.

Bishop Henry C. Potter proposes that every clergyman whose salary is $3,000 or over shall contribute an annual percentage to increase the income of clergymen who receive less than $1000. The plan is warmly indorsed by the poor clergy.

In 1883 the congregations of the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland increased from 551 to 558. Their total income for all purposes was $1,956,444—an increase over the income of 1882 of $97,850, and larger by $90,000 than that of any one of the last six years. This income has only been thrice exceeded in the history of the denomination.

In the Convocation of York Dean Howson, of Chester, placed the following important resolution on the agenda paper:—"That the establishment of a ministry of women in general harmony with the system of deaconesses in the Primitive Church, and adapted to the conditions of modern times, is an urgent need of the Church of England."

Dr. Gordon, of St. Andrew's, Glasgow, has been presented with a mediæval mitre to be worn in festivals, in choir, and in processions, as "Abbot," in virtue of being incumbent of the church built on land which was an old ecclesiastical marsh termed Willow-acre, on Englesholm Croft. He is thus the first mitred abbot in the Scotch Episcopal Church.

Following is the list of those nominated for the Moderatorship of the Presbyterian General Assembly:—Revs. Prof. McLaren, D. D.; Kenneth McLennan, M. A., of Prince Edward Island ; Principal McKnight, D D., of Halifax ; Thomas Wardrobe, D D., of Guelph ; J. K Smith, M. A., of Galt ; Principal G. M. Grant, D. D., and Rev. C. B. Pitblado, of Winnipeg.

The general synod of the Church of Ireland has opened its annual session. The Representative Body is able to meet the synod with a report which, on the vital question of finance, speaks most favorably for the future of the church. The total receipts of the year exceed by £24,000 those of 1882, and are even some £4,000 more than those of 1878, which has been till now accounted the best year since disestablishment.

RAFAEL JOSEFFY.

Belleville to Have a Chance of Hearing the Great Pianist.

When a few years ago, a boy made his appearance in the Vienna Concert Halls, the public as well as the critics felt, that without making a decided success then, that boy would yet be great. But now Rafael Joseffy is a master, and that too in the truest sense of the word, a master whose name is famous, and who will compare favorably with the greatest artists in the world.

To compare Joseffy with any of the present piano virtuosos, would do him injustice ; he is phenomenal, and while his brilliant talent in former years showed a marvellous force and impetuosity, he now captivates by his delicacy and expression. The aforetime rough diamond has been carefully cut and polished, and now displays such wonderful fire and brilliancy as to elicit the unqualified admiration of both laymen and critics. "At his first concert Joseffy proved himself a great pianist, destined to inherit the fame of Rubinstein. Aside from his fabulously brilliant technique, he plays with rare expression, and evinces an extraordinary versatility of conception. With equal force he produces the peculiar effects of the classic Bach, the tender Chopin, the sentimental Mendelssohn and the impetuous Liszt."

This great virtuoso will appear in Belleville Opera House for one night provided the advance sale of seats justifies it. It only remains for those who desire the opportunity of hearing Joseffy to subscribe for seats at once in order to guarantee the performance. It is necessary that a certain number of seats be subscribed for by Tuesday night.

In addition the program will contain numbers by Miss Aggie Corlett, the well known soprano, and by Mr. J. E. Thomson, the pleasing baritone.

THE BRIGADE CAMP.

Lieut.-Col Villiers, D. A. G., of Kingston, Major VanIngen, of Cobourg, Camp Quarter Master, Capt. Ponton, of this city, Major Fidlar and Capt. Orr, have selected the ground on which the Brigade Camp will be held this year. The place considered most suitable was on the Weller farm, a short distance east of Trenton. The review will take place on the old race course near Wilkin's Grove, on the 1st of July, and on the evening of the same day a monster promenade concert will be held in the Trenton drill shed.

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgil, N Y., writes: "Dr Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours: one application also removed the pain from a sore toe: my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty-four hours was entirely cured.

IMPORTANT CHANGES

There are two periods in the life of every female when the system undergoes great changes. First, the change from childhood to womanhood; next, that of womanhood to old age. These are critical changes of life, and the system should be nourished and regulated by that matchless tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters. It is invaluable in all diseases peculiar to females.

Dr. Talmage :—Rigidity of divorce law will keep hundreds of women from the failure of attempting to reform men by marrying them.

The favorite form for the popular white lawn suit is the Mother Hubbard yoke and belted waist, with a tucked skirt, not gored, but gathered or plaited to the waist band.

"Can you draw a dog ?" asked a young lady of a gentleman caller. The youth blushed crimson and said it depended upon two things —the size of the dog and the strength of the material in his pants.

The blending of many colors in the same frabric gives an antique grace to many costumes, and also permits latitude of taste in the selection of the color of the ribbons and other accessories of the toilet.

Kate Field is represented a having been measured for an urn. This was not some thing new to wear, but to hold her ashes after she had been cremated. She is an advocate of incineration in place of interment.

The cross rays of pink and blue, pink and red, and blue and gold, as seen in the shot silks of this season, present a rare luxury of color to the artistic eye, and afford scope for variety and harmony, in the hues of the other parts of the dress.

It makes an editor mad to have word come up through the tube from the counting-room that a lady is waiting to see him, and after tramping down six flights of stairs find her to be only his wife after a ten dollar bill.

The new Fifth Avenue specimen who walks with her arms hanging at her sides wears for her pedestrianism what is called a walking corset—made to order two inches greater in girth than the one in which she incloses herself for ordinary occasions.

"I dont't understand why women dress that way," said a man pointing to a lady who passed along the street. "I don't either, replied the bystander. "That woman," continued the first speaker, "is dressed ridiculously. Her husband must be a fool." "I know he is," said the bystander. "Do you know him ?" "Oh yes, I'm the man myself."

John R. Vert, Hamilton, says: McGregor's Speedy Cure for Dyspepsia and Indigestion is cheap at fifty times the price asked for it. Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Coughs, Influenza.—The soothing properties of these medicaments render them well worthy of trial in all diseases of the lungs. In common colds and influenza the Pills taken internally and the Ointment rubbed externally are exceedingly efficacious. When influenza is pidemic this reatment is easiest, safest, surest. Holloway's Pills and Ointment purify the blood, remove obstructions to its free circulation through the lungs, relieve the overgorged air tubes, and render respiration free without reducing the strength [illegible] ritating the nerves, or depressing the [illegible]. Such as the ready means of saving [illegible] when afflicted with colds, coughs, [illegible] other complaints by which so many ar[illegible] iously and permanently affl[illegible] tries.

Holloway's Pills.—No Misery.—Whenever e blood is impure or the general health is impaired the human body is predisposed to attacks of an prevailing epedemic. The first indications of faulty action, the first sensation of deranged or diminished power should be these purifying Pills, which will cleanse all corrupt and reduce all erring functions to order. These Pills counteract the subtile poison in decaying animal in vegetable matter, and remove all tendency to bowel complaint, billiousness, and the hosts of annoying symptoms arising from foul stomachs. The fruit season is especially prone to produce irritation of the bowels and disorder of the digestive organs; both of which dangerous conditions can be completely removed by Holloway's corrective medicines.

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.

W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Bro."

Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable.

J. T. HAYES."

Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

LOVE'S LOTTERY

OR,

THE RIVAL SISTERS.

'Grantly, you're perfecly scandalous.'

'Not I, but the lovely Venuses, if all's true that's said of 'em. There were plenty in the park to-day. By the way, going from Una to the lion, he was there, too—the fellow who is creating a sensation from the mere fact that he is unknown.'

The remark was simple, but it instantly attracted universal attention.

'You mean the mysterious stranger,' remarked one drawing near, 'who has been general talk lately?'

'I do. Who the deuce is he? Can no tell?'

'That's a question frequently enough put my dear fellow, but as yet has not been answered; no one knows.'

'That is scarcely correct,' broke in another, leisurely joining the circle.

'What, Milwood; are you acquainted with him?'

'Not I, Nevertheless I can tell you who is.'

'Who?'

'John M'Grath.'

'Is it a fact?'

It is, I saw them, not three hours ago, arm-in-arm together taking the direction of Pall Mall.'

The conversation was evidently growing excitingly interesting.

The members drew closer yet, and among them was one, who, as he plays an important part in this story, requires a more minute description.

About twenty-five, about middle height, with a well-made, manly figure, his appearance and bearing were gentlemanly in the extreme, and graceful. his step was buoyant but decided, displaying firmness of character. likewise shown in the clear large, grey eyes, and the broad, white forehead shadowed by clusterings of chestnut hair. which leant the same hue to a long, silky, pendulous moustache, that partly concealed a mouth as sweet and good-humored in expsession as a woman's.

Leaning on a pipe stand, he remarked with a bright geniality of expression habitual to him—

'I imagined we of the noble sex attributed the fault curiosity to women. How in the world can this mysterious stranger affect us gentlemen?'

'My dear Belmore, have you seen him?'

'Not yet.'

'Then lay by your sarcasm until you have.'

'You increase my wonder; what is their so peculiar about this man?'

'That I cannot tell, but all feel a peculiarity, a difference even to, I have heard, little Nellie Montmorency, in whose circle I learn he has entered, I heard her confess it, though the impertinent beauty boasts of her power over him.'

'What is he like?'

'I will tell you. Broad and colossal of frame; though six feet high, he scarcely looks so tall; his massive head is a perfect Mirabeau's, from which the dark, tawny hair falls thickly on to his shoulders. His features are large but good, his mouth full-lipped and suggestive of strong power of will, his eyes dark and piercing, rendermore so, by overhanging brows that have the effect of concentrating the vision with singular intensity. He is a man for women to love, but fear.'

'Graphically described, Grantly; but I see nothing to create this furore of curiosity.'

'Perhaps not. Still, once behold the man, then——'

'Hush,' broke in a bystander, raising his hand warningly. 'here is M'Grath—and—the deuce—the mysterious stranger with him.'

At the moment the two entered, John M'Grath, towing in his wake Stuart Loring.

The description just given of the latter was accurate, even to the singular attraction, the strange influence, the man possessed.

Of all the room's occupants, none felt this more powerfully than Eustace Belmore; the very nature of the atmosphere above him seemed to change, a dull weight to settle on his heart.

As the new comer, following his conductor, aproached the circle, the young man dropped one of it, and took his place on a rough stand in a retired corner, from whence he could observe the stranger.

Indeed he could not remove his eyes.

He was as one fascinated.

'Grantly was right,' he mused; 'there is something indescribable in this man, who is he?'

Every [illegible] who walks the streets of a a great city, and scans with an intelligent eye the colorless faces of more tham fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such dwarfs upon the working energies the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate pegree the animal health and robust condition.
